

WOMEN REGISTER FOR FOOD CONSERVATION.

Plan Calls for Elimination of Waste in Homes.

Within the next fortnight the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, working with the Massachusetts Division of the Council of National Defense and in co-operation with Herbert C. Hoover, Federal Director of Food Administration, will endeavor to enroll every housekeeper in the State in a food conservation campaign that promises to be tremendously effective in results. To this end a house-to-house canvass will be made and every woman who handles food or directs the handling of it will be registered on a card which will be sent to Mr. Hoover in Washington, which will return frequent bulletins of suggestions.

No radical innovations are contemplated at this time. The plan simply calls for the elimination of wastes, most of them so small that in the average household they pass unnoticed, and by substituting corn or other cereals for wheat to the extent of one loaf of bread per week for each member of a family.

Such a trifling substitution, Mr. Hoover points out, would mean that we could increase our export surplus of wheat for the Allies by 100,000,000 bushels. By economy in eating, or by the elimination of waste, to the extent of six cents per day per person, Mr. Hoover also points out we can reduce the national expenditure by two billion dollars—the amount of the recent Liberty Loan.

Henry B. Endicott, executive manager of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, has written a letter to the chairman of every local committee in the State, pointing out the importance of this campaign and the value of the co-operation of the housekeepers of the State in making it a success.

The work of completing the enrollment will be under the direction of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Chairman of the Massachusetts Division of the Council of National Defense, who will work through the City and Town Units of the Woman's Committee as far as practical. Mr. Hoover asks that the enrollment be completed by July 15.

Volunteer canvassers will be organized at once in every city and town in the State, under the direction of the local committees, which will supply the necessary enrollment cards. When the cards are filled out they will be returned by City and Town Committees to the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety at the State House, Boston, for forwarding to Washington.

Mr. Endicott and Mrs. Thayer point out that Massachusetts has taken the lead in organizing for the effective carrying on of the war and urge that this enrollment be as complete as possible in order to lend the fullest support to the plan to direct the uses of food in this country and to control food prices.

The enrollment card reads as follows:

To the Food Administrator,
Washington, D. C.
I am glad to join you in the service of Food Conservation for our nation and I hereby accept membership in the United States Food Administration, pledging myself to carry out the directions and advice of the Food Administrator in the conduct of my household, in so far as my circumstances permit.

Name .....
Address .....
Do you employ a cook? .....
Occupation of Breadwinner .....
Will you take part in authorized neighborhood movements for food conservation? .....

There are no fees or dues to be paid. The Food Administration wishes to have as members all of those actually handling food in the home.

Mrs. George H. Root as Chairman of the Co-ordination Committee of Women's Organizations, under the public Safety Committee of Winchester, has called upon the various societies to undertake this canvass for the town. It is hoped that every one called upon will be ready to assist in this patriotic work.

PHILATHEA LAWN PARTY.

A very successful lawn party was held last Tuesday evening by the Philathea Class of the Second Congregational Sunday School at the home of Mrs. Belle MacDonald Clematis street, who is one of the members of the class.

The grounds were very prettily decorated for the occasion and the tables were in charge of the following young ladies:

Ice cream—Mrs. Belle MacDonald, Miss Ethel Peterson and Miss Ruth McElhiney.
Cake—Mrs. Wm. Fryling, Mrs. Arthur Belville.
Punch—Misses N. Lillian Winn and Alberta Seagrave.
Grabs and Roses—Miss Jessie Dearborn.
Candy—Mrs. Chas. Wigglesworth, Miss Florence E. Plummer.

At an early hour all of the tables were completely sold out, and a goodly sum was made.

MRS. MARY KANE.

Mrs. Mary Kane, aged 64 years, a former resident of this town, died last Friday. The funeral services were held from the residence of her brother, Mr. Thomas Langford, at 85 Wendall street, with high mass at St. Mary's Church on Monday morning. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

Who is Contesting Mr. Dutch's Seat in Convention

HEARING ON CONVENTION DELEGATE.

Before the Committee on Elections of the Constitutional Convention concerning charges preferred by Mr. Jasper N. Johnson that the election of Mr. Charles F. Dutch was irregular, a hearing at the State House, Boston, Monday forenoon was held.

There was a small attendance of outsiders and but little interest manifested. Three members of the Board of Selectmen were in attendance: Messrs. Metcalf, O'Connor and Laraway. The election officers were present almost to a man. The spectators included Mr. H. A. Emerson, P. E. Fitzgerald, John Holland, Mr. W. L. Tuck, and Rev. C. H. Davis, but they took no part in the hearing. The hearing was a quiet affair. Town Clerk Carter spoke of the orderliness of the election proceedings and he was followed by Mr. Metcalf, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, John O'Connor and Mr. Jonas Laraway also of the Board. Mr. Jewett and Mr. Clark were not present. Others to speak were Charles F. Dutch, who was elected to the convention and conducted his own case, while Mr. Johnson looked after his own interests. The above gentlemen testified to the correctness of the proceedings and said that the election was held according to the election laws. Several of the election officers were questioned and stated that as far as they knew the proceedings were correct. The hearing was quite formal and the remarks of those who were called to testify were almost devoid of public interest. Shortly after twelve o'clock the testimony for both sides was all in, and the commission heard the summing up in the afternoon.

Moderator Ives, who was mixed up in the specifications came in late, but as he took no part in the election, was not called upon.

THANKS EXTENDED WINCHESTER COMMITTEE.

July 3, 1917.
T. P. Wilson, Publisher,
Winchester Star,
Winchester, Mass.
Dear Mr. Wilson:
I am in receipt of an autograph letter from the Secretary of the Treasury thanking the members of the Liberty Loan Committee of Winchester for their services in helping to raise the liberty loan. Inasmuch as it is practically impossible to notify each of the members of the committee in person, I will thank you to publish the letter from Secretary McAdoo, a copy of which I enclose herewith.

Yours very truly,
Ralph E. Joslin.

QUIET 4TH.

Neither Noise or Excitement Found in Winchester.

In days gone by a favorite occupation after July 4th was the debate as to whether the day was the quietest ever passed, and it was always a source of disappointment if public sentiment proved it was. Such debates have long since passed out of style, but it might be mentioned in connection with this year's observance of Independence Day that it was not nearly so noisy as any day during the last four of the Liberty Loan, Washington's Birthday, Patriot's Day or June 17th. In fact it holds the record for sober Sabbath calm.

The only accidents noted were the auto cases, there being four in this town. It is said that one resident heard a fire cracker or torpedo, but this remains to be proven. Fireworks were in evidence at the band concert in the evening, several out of town visitors bringing sparklers here, which they shot off with reckless disregard for our laws and lives. This was mostly on the Parkway, however, which is under State jurisdiction.

The day was ushered in at the early hour of 7 a. m. by the ringing of the town hall bell. At 10 o'clock an entertainment was given for the children in the Town Hall which furnished amusement and diversion for about 700 young people until almost 12 o'clock. A Punch and Judy show, magician, banjoist and entertainer kept the big audience in a pleasant frame of mind, and grown-ups who visited the hall were well repaid by the sight of the sea of smiling faces, the buzz of youthful chatter and the spontaneous and abundant applause of the children, all shining in their best bib and tucker. Over 700 tickets for ice cream cones distributed after the show made Randall's ice cream store a busy place for some time, and it was quite evident that the morning at least held many and abundant pleasures for the children.

The ball game with Wakefield in the afternoon called the largest crowd of the season to Manchester Field and proved a good entertainment and an excellent demonstration of base ball for the grown-ups.

In the evening the band concert on the playground was excellent, the First Corps Cadet Band giving a program which was highly commented upon for its fine program and rendition.

PIANOFORTE RECITAL.

The pupils of Miss Sadie F. Bowser of Winchester, gave a recital last Saturday afternoon at Bloomfield street, Dorchester. They were assisted by Mr. William Lawrence Bowser, tenor and Miss Ella Whittridge, violinist, of Dorchester.

The program throughout proved extremely interesting and entertaining to the large number of relatives and friends of pupils present, as was evidenced by the hearty applause which followed each number. Special mention should be made of the opening selection "Reinhold's Impromptu in C Sharp minor, played by Walter Collins, also the closing number by Everett Walker. All the pupils made an excellent showing of the year's work, the entire program (with one exception) being rendered without notes. Miss Whittridge gave much pleasure in her violin selections and evidence of future success for the young artist. Mr. Bowser contributed two solos which were heartily received. Roses and ferns were used in decorations. The recital closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

INCREASE IN STATE TAX.

The following comparison of the State and Metropolitan tax of this year and last is interesting in these times of economy. The total tax this year exceeds last year by $13,205.87, a d of this sum the State tax alone is responsible for an increase of $10,370. This outside tax will raise the local tax rate about 75 cents, and present indications are that our rate will be fixed around $21.

AUTO ACCIDENTS ON 4th.

The Most Serious From Head-on Collision.

Auto accidents were the only occurrences to mar the 4th in Winchester, and it got its share, no less than three occurring within the town limits. The most serious accident was that of 9.30 on the evening of the 4th at the Country Club when two touring cars came together head-on at the dangerous curve over which there has already been much controversy. As a result of this accident Mrs. Eugene Toller, 72 years old, of Lowell, is at the Winchester Hospital suffering from three broken ribs. Two other men and two women were badly bruised but escaped broken bones.

According to reports a light Overland touring car driven by Mr. Lawrence Green of Lowell, containing also his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Toller, was proceeding towards Winchester, while a Hudson touring car, owned and driven by Arthur H. McKenney of Fitchburg and containing besides himself Mrs. McKenney, was going towards Arlington.

It is said that the bright lights blinded McKenney, who followed the car track. At this point it runs from the side to the centre of the road, so that he was thus carried over to the left side and into the Green machine.

The injured occupants of the cars were taken to the Country Club and Doctors Cutter and Olmsted summoned, who ordered the three women removed to the Winchester Hospital. Two of the women later went to their homes, not being seriously hurt.

Both cars were badly damaged, radiators, mud-guards and springs being broken, as well as most of the glass at the front ends.

Another accident occurred on the morning of the 4th, when Cecil P. Kelley, who is stopping at 9 Thompson street, drove his touring car too close to the sidewalk in front of the place and struck a hydrant. The hydrant was just at the edge of the road, and caught the front wheel as it passed, bending the frame of the car and springing the wheel, besides ripping open a tire.

When Harold J. Griffin of Medford, was coming down Main street at about noon, he lost control of his father's Hudson touring car and ran into a telegraph pole. That he and his companion were not seriously injured was largely due to a fender on the front of the car, which was bent clear back to the radiator. The telegraph pole was broken off and the wires fell into the street. The car was badly damaged, the engine base being broken besides other damage.

All of the above cars were towed to the Mystic Valley Garage for extensive repairs.

Another near accident was rather expensive to two men who were fined in the Woburn court yesterday morning. It appears that a big truck loaded high with lumber and carrying a half dozen men approached the centre from Medford at a reckless speed and narrowly missed a collision with A. D. Rogers in his Packard car who was crossing the tracks towards Mt. Vernon street. In fact the accident was so narrowly averted that the driver of the truck was obliged to turn sharply on Mt. Vernon and Mr. Rogers the other way up Main street. The truck lost some of its load of lumber and narrowly escaped overturning.

Officer Cassidy took the driver into custody after finding that he had no license, and while he was accompanying him to the station the owner of the outfit started the truck and its load up Mt. Vernon street, being caught at the Baptist church and taken into custody himself. The truck was bound for Foster's Pond, Wilmington. The two men were detained at the police station and the truck taken to Kelley & Hawes garage.

In court yesterday morning, Herbert C. Rikeman, operator of the truck, was fined $25 for reckless driving and $10 for operating without a license. Fred A. Twombly of Chelsea, owner of the truck, was fined $10 for allowing the truck to be operated with its brakes out of condition and was found guilty of operating without a license and with not having his truck registered. The last two charges were placed on file.

HULTGEN-PETERSON.

Miss Amanda E. Peterson of this town, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson of Maine, and Nils A. Hultgen of 27 Loring avenue were united in marriage on Saturday evening at eight o'clock by Rev. Mr. Elmer of the Swedish Congregational Church at Woburn. There was an attendance of about 50 relatives and friends at the ceremony and following reception.

The bride wore for her wedding dress white taffeta trimmed with silver lace and carried a bouquet of brides roses. Miss Jennie Erickson of Woburn was bridesmaid and wore pale blue chiffon over pink silk. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Bron Hultgen of Roslindale was best man. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Edith Erickson.

The residence at No. 41 Elm street, where the reception was held from 8.30 until 10 o'clock, was decorated in white and green effect carried out with daisies, syringa and ferns. Mr. P. J. Winden and Miss Karin Hultgen assisted in receiving. The ushers were Messrs. Clarence E. Preble of North Woburn, Knut Olsen of this town, William Widen of Danvers, Edward Merlander of Brookline and Oscar Johnson of Woburn.

Following a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Hultgen will make their home at No. 51 Loring avenue, this town.

BASE BALL SATURDAY.

Winchester will play Woburn on Manchester Field tomorrow at 3.30. This team is managed by Harold Weaver and will be composed of College and High School players. A live game is expected as usual when Woburn plays.

Egyptian Wheat.

Egypt in the most ancient times was celebrated for its wheat. The best quality was all bearded. The wheat was put into the ground in winter and some time after the barley. In the Egyptian plagues of the barley suffered, but the wheat had not appeared, and so escaped injury.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The other afternoon while passing through one of Winchester's most exclusive thoroughfares, The Spectator had his attention called to a youngster who was seated on the front veranda of his home nibbling away at his fingers in dead earnest. Not long ago a French investigator published the results of an elaborate study of the subject of nail-biting, chiefly in reference to the importance of the habit as an indication of nervous disease. His investigations were pursued among the school children of Paris, among whom he found the habit widely prevalent. Of the total number of children examined, about one third were given to the practice, the greater proportion being among the girls. The age at which the habit was most common was found to be between twelve and fifteen years. The investigator thinks he has discovered a remarkable relation between nail-biting and a defective, or at least an impaired stability of mind and character, as all the teachers united in saying that the pupils addicted to nail-biting were the poorest students. The boys were inclined to effeminacy, and the girls to slackness. Both sexes showed a lessened ability to sustain the attention, and were consequently the hardest pupils to teach. According to this French scientist the habit is best corrected by endeavoring to transform the unconscious act into a conscious one, thereby counteracting the tendency to a confirmed habit. In the opinion of The Spectator it is doubtful if nail-biting is indicative of anything more serious than a nervous temperament, which should be treated on general principles.

The love of books is one of the greatest blessings in life only you cannot love a book all at once; with books, as with men and women, love is the privilege of long intimacy. It is only when books have been read and reread, and, as it were, clasped to the heart, that they become in McCaulay's words, "the old friends who are never seen with new faces; who are the same in wealth and poverty, in glory and in obscurity." To know even one book in this way is to gain a spiritual revelation. It is thus that the study of the Bible, even as literature, has so profoundly affected English life and thought; for it often seems to The Spectator that the most sharply drawn of all dividing lines in English history is between reading and non-reading America, or, in other words, between America without the Bible and America with it. Our forefathers were contented with one book; we are some times not contented with many. Gibbons says in his autobiography, that he would not "exchange his early and invincible love of reading for the treasures of India." But modern education has so far equalized the social classes of the community that the pleasure of reading, which at the beginning of the 19th century was enjoyed by a small cultivated minority, has now become the boon of all.

There is an art of reading, The Spectator thinks, as well as an art of writing. It is not enough that people should be told to read—they must be told how they ought to read, and what. For in all life it is not the work which men have to do that makes the difference, it is the way in which they do it. A man may do little or nothing and be always at work, or he may administer an empire and be at leisure.

Under the title "An Art of Reading Books," Rev. G. E. C. Weldon, writing in the National Review says: "There are two perfectly different ways of reading a book. It is curious that we often speak of reading as if it were always the same thing. But nobody, after consideration, will maintain that it is possible or necessary to read 'The Proverbs of Solomon' and King Solomon's Mines' in the same way. Bacon, in his essay upon studies, puts the matter clearly: 'Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested; that is, some books are to be read only in parts, others to be read but not curiously, and some few to be read wholly, and with diligence and attention.' It is fair to say that there will be a great saving of time, if the number of books which require to be 'chewed and digested' is made as small as possible.

"I do not deny that the habit of concentrating the full power of the mind upon every chapter and page of a book is a discipline of very high value. The study of books written in a foreign language, whether ancient or modern, forms this habit, and is principally valuable as forming it. In fact, it may be doubted if a person ever reads his own language in such a way as to appreciate its full meaning. But the great majority of books in a public library do not require and do not deserve to be read. In looking at some statistics of the books taken out of one of the public libraries by the working classes, I notice that the class of books which is in most request is novels, and the class which is in least request is sermons. It is not for me, being a clergyman, to declare with what degree of attention sermons ought to be read. But I confidently say that nearly all novels admit of light and rapid reading. Where the point of a book lies in its narrative rather than in its style or substance, the process of 'tearing out its heart,' as it has been called, is the secret of alleviating labor. To some extent the same is true of history, and especially of that fascinating form of history—biography. You do not want to know or remember all the incidents; you want to grasp the general contour of the country (if I may use a geographical expression), not to be able to name every height and valley in it. Nor must it be forgotten that you have made an acquisition of knowledge which is well worth having, if your reading enables you not, indeed, to produce your facts at an instant's call, but to discover where they are to be found and what they are, when leisure is given you. It appears to me, then, that one book in twenty should be read scrupulously; the rest may be read, so to say, currente oculis. But it is more important to read wisely than to read widely. Intellectual health, like physical, depends not upon the amount of food consumed, but upon the digestion. And if it be necessary to decide what books are they that should be read not with the eye only but with the soul, they will be such books as, in the German phrase, have been "epoch-making," and have exercised a lasting influence upon the current of human thought. They are not many, but in them is contained the essence of all literature. In religion, the Bible, and these two books which are most closely founded upon it, the "De Imitatione Christi" and "The Pilgrim's Progress;" in poetry, the writings, or some at least of the writings, of the four great masters—Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, Goethe—who guard the portals of human sentiment for all time; in history, Thucydides and Gibbon as respectively illustrating the perfection of historical science in miniature and on scale of majestic dignity; in philosophy, Plato's "Republic," which by the genius of the late master of Balliol has been made an English classic, and Pascal's "Pensees;" in political science, Aristotle's "Politics," Montesquieu's "L'Esprit des Loix," and Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations;" in science, Bacon's "Novum Organum," Newton's "Principia" (if it be intelligent to you) and Darwin's "Origin of Species"—these are all or nearly all the books that have been "epoch-making," and to read these will be to enter, however humbly, into the temple of knowledge and truth."

There is an exhilaration for every Winchesterite in the thorough study of noble literature. It gives love and courage to the mind. The famous novelist, George Eliot, said it was her wont to seek inspiration for her writings, by daily intercourse with the good and great writers of the past. "The modern university," says Carlyle somewhere, "is a library." "It is a university in which you all may graduate. It is a home which stands above the stress and pain of evil days. For literature, like virtue, is its own reward, and none but they to whom that reward has been given know or imagine how unspeakably great it is.

WOMAN SAVED AT CROSSING.

Many persons about the centre saw a well known woman of the Highlands rescued from being struck by an express train on the centre crossing last Friday forenoon. The escape was so close that many turned their heads away rather than see the tragedy. The woman followed another woman across the tracks, going around the south end of the gates. As they crossed the gatemen and spectators shouted warnings. The first woman got across all right, but the second hesitated.

William H. Gorham of Eaton street was standing on the sidewalk and turned when the warnings were shouted. Without hesitation he ran to her and pulled her off the tracks and she fell on the walk as the train flashed by. Even then many thought she had been struck, so close was the escape. The engineer of the train blew his whistle, and he too, evidently thought his locomotive had hit her, for he slowed his train down almost to a stop below the station, starting up when he looked back and saw her rise.

Mr. Gorham made little fuss over his prompt and efficient rescue and continued on his way to the Hersey Hardware Co., but it is reported that he was quite willing to take a chair at that place for a time after his arrival. The woman, although considerably unnerved, was able to proceed.

LOVE—RICHARDS.

Miss Florence Irene Richards of Weston, formerly of Winchester, and Mr. Lawrence Baxter Love of 711 Main street, this town, were united in marriage at the First Congregational parsonage on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock by Rev. Howard J. Childley.

The bride wore a travelling suit of brown silk and carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ruth Campbell of Cambridge was bridesmaid and wore a grey silk suit. Mr. Henry J. Phillips of Jamaica Plain was groomsmen.

After a short wedding trip to Portland, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Love will make their home at 22 Connecticut avenue, Somerville.

WILL NOT BUY PARSONAGE.

At the adjourned special meeting of the Winchester Unitarian Society held last Friday evening it was voted not to purchase the estate on the Mystic Valley Parkway at the corner of Walnut street for a parsonage. This property is owned by Mr. Frank R. Miller, contains 11,000 square feet of land and is occupied by a modern dwelling assessed at $7,500. The meeting was unanimous in its rejection of the project and spent a considerable portion of its time discussing the matter of increasing the parsonage fund in view of future plans, but no action was taken.

NEW TREASURER APPOINTED.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Calumet Club held last Friday night Mr. George W. Annin was appointed treasurer of the Club to succeed Dr. E. Russell Murphy who has resigned. Mr. Annin will enter upon his new duties this month. He has previously filled the position for the Club and proved a most efficient officer.

AUTOISTS INTERESTED.

Winchester Firm Recognized for Progressiveness.

Winchester friends and autoists will be greatly interested in the marked recognition given the Oscar Hedtler Co. of Main street, local dealers handling the Diamond and Goodrich tires, last week by the makers of their products. Mr. N. E. Oliver, sales manager of the Diamond Rubber Co. of New York, has been so impressed with the progressive campaign and service of this firm that he commissioned his advertising manager, Mr. P. L. Cornell, to visit Winchester for the express purpose of calling upon the Hedtler Co. and conveying his recognition of results they have achieved during the four months service they have given this town.

Mr. Cornell expressed himself as much pleased with what has been accomplished in acquainting local autoists with the company's tires during the short time the firm has been established here. He attributed this in a large measure to the "personal service" the Hedtler Company is giving its customers, for amongst other things it is always ready to give advice on the care of tires, testing alignment of wheels and to look over tires for small troubles, which when taken care of at once save more serious trouble in the future.

Although the visit was of interest in showing that the Hedtler Company's service is receiving recognition at headquarters, local autoists have known for some time that they can get better service and more painstaking attention right in their own town than by going outside. And they have been quick to appreciate it, for one good turn deserves another, and every customer has been eager to impart the news of his satisfaction to his friends.

The Oscar Hedtler Co. is now installing a free air pump and has also petitioned the Selectmen for a gasoline tank and walk pump. All this is in line with the idea of building the business up by thorough "personal service", coupled with courtesy and a full stock of well known and dependable goods. The firm has increased its vulcanizing branch to such an extent that a new plant is now being installed, and with this in addition to its full stock of shoes and tubes of all sizes, local motorists will be well served in every branch when it comes to tires. A feature of the thoroughness with which the Oscar Hedtler Co. is conducting its business may be recognized when it is announced that it carries in addition to its many kinds and sizes of auto tires a full line of bicycle tires.

SUMMER REVIEW SCHOOL.

The Summer Review School will open on Monday, July 9, in the Prince School Building and continue to Friday, August 17, '17. Daily session will be from 8.15 to 12.15. Teachers will be Mrs. Anna T. O'Sullivan, Principal, Miss Mary H. Barr, and Miss Edna M. Hatch, Assistants. Pupils in the 5th, 6th, and 7th grades whose report cards at the end of the school year 1916-1917 were marked "Promotion depends on work done in the Summer School" should attend the Summer School or receive equivalent instruction elsewhere. This will in most cases do sufficient work to justify their promotion in September. Pupils who were not promoted in June may, by attending the Summer School, gain promotion. A greater effort will be required than for the first group, but the opportunity is afforded to those who wish to take advantage of it. It is expected that these two groups will furnish about as many pupils as can be effectively instructed. Other pupils who may wish to gain a grade or for any good reason to review the work of the 5th, 6th and 7th grades will be accommodated as far as possible. The schedule of recitations will be arranged to provide for a review of 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th grade work in arithmetic, English, geography, history, and spelling. Pupils who do not need to take all the subjects given for any grade will be required to attend only for so long a period as may be necessary each day.

The results of the Summer Review School of 1916 demonstrated that pupils are materially benefited by attendance, especially those whose promotion would otherwise be doubtful. Those who wish to take advantage of the opportunity this year should be enrolled without delay next Monday morning.

WILL WORK DEGREE AT MASONIC HOME.

P. B. Metcalf, William M. Belcher, Benjamin T. Morgan, Amasa Harrington, and George A. Barron make up the committee in charge of the arrangements for the automobile trip to be made to the Masonic Home at Charleston by the members of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. and A. M. The date is Saturday, August 4, and a number of special features will be carried out in connection with the day's outing. The members of the lodge have always maintained a lively interest in the home since it was established.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL DEDICATED.

Short Exercises Held at New Building Saturday Afternoon.

The formal dedication of the new Winchester Hospital and nurses home, following the public inspection held a few weeks ago, took place on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the building on Highland avenue. There was an attendance of about 125 members and friends of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association, through which organization the new hospital has been made possible.

Miss Katherine F. Pond, president of the association, presided and the opening prayer was made by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Miss Pond, in a few remarks expressing gratification by the association on the completion of its achievement, introduced Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, a staunch supporter of the men of the town in carrying the project for a hospital through, who gave a short informal address.

Mr. Parkhurst touched upon the various phases of the history connected with the hospital, giving the credit of its completion to the ladies of the Association who worked so hard, and complimented them upon the results of their labors. He also spoke of the fine building for the nurses' home as being a most welcome addition to the hospital itself, both as a convenience and an aid in conducting the work. In closing he gave assurances of continued support from all in this humanitarian project.

Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, chairman of the Building Committee, under whose auspices the building was planned and erected, presented the keys of the structure to Miss Pond with well chosen words, and Miss Pond in accepting them likewise replied. The exercises closed with prayer by Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church, and many of those present made an informal inspection of the premises.

In presenting the keys Mrs. Sanborn spoke as follows:

Madam President and friends of the Association:

Maurice Maeterlinck in one of his essays says that when you do not know what it opens, there is nothing so mysterious and enticing as a key.

The Building Committee who have just finished the construction of this beautiful "up-to-date" Hospital, have had not only the labor but the pleasure of seeing it grow according to the plans they set out to fulfill.

There has been about it therefore, that fascination and interest one always has in seeing things grow.

We are happy to say that our work is now completed and the keys which the committee turn over to the Association through the President have a very practical function.

It is the hope of the Committee that they will be used in the largest fulfillment of the objects for which the Hospital has been built, to unlock and keep the "open door" for the admission of suffering humanity and not to be used for that other function of keys, of closing and barring the way to any.

This Hospital Building which we now turn over to you, though due to the special efforts and services of the few, represents also the gift and interest of the whole community.

It is our earnest wish therefore that the Hospital be always used for the larger community welfare.

Rena A. Sanborn,
Chairman of Building Committee.

WILLIAM KELLEY.

William Kelley, a resident of this town for the past 36 years and a former employee of the Highway Department, died at his home, No. 33 Swanton street, Monday night. He was 67 years of age and was a native of Ireland. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Katherine Sheehan of Boston, and one daughter, Sister Mary William of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Marriage intentions were filed with the Town Clerk during the week past by Terrance McGovern of 27 Loring avenue and Margaret Tague of Fletcher street.

TRINIDAD'S PUZZLE

Mystery of the Island's Curious Lake of Pitch.

HOLES FILL UP OVERNIGHT.

And Great Trenches More Than Three Feet Deep Will Be Obliterated in a Week—The Great Mass Is Solid, Yet in Constant but Slow Motion.

Though disappointing at first sight to people who have the crater of an active volcano in mind, yet the famous "pitch lake" of Trinidad is remarkable enough to satisfy most thoroughly long ere the visit has come to an end.

The lake is a level plain about a hundred acres or so in extent, surrounded by low hills and dotted here and there with bushes and trees. The surface is not a shimmering black, as might be supposed, but a dull, grayish blue color, intersected with pools of shining water. Altogether it is a very prosaic looking place, giving no hint of its real interest.

One can walk where one pleases on the surface of the asphalt without any fear of sinking in, for it is quite solid enough to bear one's weight. If you stand in one place for a little while it feels hot to the feet, just like an asphalt street on a very hot day.

Much of the time a fresh breeze blows, and one remembers with amusement the stories of the imaginative writers who talked about stifling heat and oppressive atmosphere.

The digging of the asphalt is a simple operation. A mattock is the only tool required, and under its blows the pitch breaks readily. The negroes employed are very skilled in the work and break out lumps a couple of feet across, far too heavy for an ordinary man to carry.

Only a very small amount of the material gets broken into little pieces, so that scarcely any baskets are needed to carry the asphalt to the cars. A laborer simply lifts one or two lumps, puts them on his head, walks a few yards and drops them into the car.

The crude asphalt, as broken out, is somewhat brownish or earthy in color. It is usually quite wet and filled with many holes, like bubbles, measuring up to an inch or more in diameter.

The gang of barefooted workmen in one place may number thirty men, of whom half a dozen do the digging. They work on a space perhaps sixty feet long and forty feet wide, and in the course of a day they will dig down to a depth of three feet, or more in some places.

Go to that same spot next morning, and you will find it a little rough, but approximately level with the rest of the lake. The hole has been mysteriously filled up during the night, and in the course of a week all traces of the digging will be obliterated.

This does not mean necessarily that fresh asphalt has come into the lake from underground sources. On the contrary, the excavations are filled by a very slow settling or leveling of the surface asphalt. There is no such thing as "new" asphalt, by the way, for the transition from liquid petroleum to solid asphalt by nature's process involves a period of time that must be calculated in centuries.

The digging done in past years has caused the general level of the lake to sink several feet, so that it is not absolutely inexhaustible, as some people imagine. It is believed that fresh asphalt very slowly pushes itself upward into the lake from the subterranean depths, but how large a quantity is thus added annually has not been calculated.

Near the middle of the lake the material is less hard than elsewhere, and in a few places soft asphalt may be seen in small, irregular patches oozing up from below. This fresh asphalt is of about the consistency of putty and can be kneaded and pulled in the hands without soiling them greatly. In the main, however, the lake is solid asphalt.

No one knows the depths of this mysterious lake, the only information on the subject being the fact that long ago a boring was made to a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. The "cores" of this and other borings show that in consistency the asphalt remains the same to a very considerable depth.

Curious as it may seem, there are many evidences that the entire mass comprising the lake is in constant but very slow motion. The surface is a series of great folds, and in the creases between these the rain water gathers. One writer has aptly compared the surface of the asphalt to the skin of a great elephant, the creases being the folds in his hide. Along the edges of the pools of water grass, bushes and small trees take root, forming green "islands" of greater or less extent—Victor Pitt-Kethley in Wide World Magazine.

An Aid to Canned Music.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer makes the following suggestions: "Into a blank book I copy the words of songs and operas that I buy for my phonograph and hand this book to my friends as I play the records. Understanding the words perfectly adds much to their pleasure."

His Interest.

THE PITH OF OPINION.

Speaking of sacrifice—that is one of the things that we must expect. Sacrifice must begin with men like you; with men like you, to whom the boy will come and say: "Dad, I have got to get into this thing!"

He is occupying a very important position. You cannot spare him. Your business will be mutilated if he goes. Yet the boy wants to go, and in your heart of hearts you are mighty glad and proud that he comes to you and says: "Dad, I have got to get into this thing!"

On that day the sacrifice will bite into your heart. But the only great sorrow of war after all is the sorrow of shame; and those who are going to carry with them to their graves the bitter, the bitter fruits of war—those agonies that time will not efface, but will increase—are those who will carry with them the memory that they failed at the hour of testing and were unwilling to sacrifice their best and dearest for this great cause and for their country!

A Dorchester woman has asked for a permit to wear overalls. Here in Winchester such permits are not asked from women who work in their gardens. And why should they?

The absence of the objectionable scum from the river below the Main street dam is noticeable these days. The reason thereof is not that the scum does not accumulate, for it is as thick as ever, but by running a log boom across the river just under the south side of the bridge, the whole accumulation is kept bottled up out of sight. The improvement in the appearance of the river is a great relief, but it would be even more so if one knew that the water went over the dam without making the scum and was in its old and natural color.

The question now arises whether our river is more delightful in its present aspect as an open sewer than it was as a chemical sluiceway. We were promised last year that after the ice went off last Spring the water would regain some of its old-time appearance. Where the error was made we do not know, but if anything as filthy in the way of a river can be found anywhere around it will probably prove an improvement over that which flows through Winchester from one end to the other. It would appear that our Board of Health has full evidence to act, both from sight and smell.

One effect of the present day economy is very noticeable through the centre of Winchester from end to end. This is the great clouds of dust raised by every passing express train. We seldom remember seeing the trains raise so much dust, which clouds the air for a full five minutes after the passage of a train, and rises above the trees so it can be seen from the side hills. This is due to the Railroad's not oiling its roadbeds this year. If the destruction to store-keepers' goods is as great as would appear, it might seem that the saving in one direction makes waste in another; and therefore why oil the streets about the centre.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has denied the plea of the railroads for the United States for a horizontal increase of 15 per cent in freight rates. It looks as if the railroads were obliged to become government owned or forced with bankruptcy. The Railroad War Board says that the car shortage is not due so much to lack of cars as to lack of adequate terminals, sidings and modern appliances, so that the maximum use of each car is not obtained as the railroads have not been permitted to spend all they should to keep up their equipment for several years past, they have a great task before them in developing more efficiency. In the meantime the public is paying dearly for present conditions existing with the railroads.

What Senator Reed thinks of Hoover has been made known. What Hoover thinks of Senator Reed is not stated. Yet the debate on the food control bill in the Senate has again disclosed the fact that the most earnest of the opposition to the president's war plans comes from members of his own party and that, in this case, as with conscription and other fundamental proposals, it will be Republicans who will "stand by the President." Nevertheless, we assume that Jimmie Lewis and others of that party will continue to declare that a Republican voter who refuses to abandon his own party and who will not vote for a Democratic candidate for Congress in a special election is for the Kaiser and against the president for Prussianism and against liberty.—[Greenfield Courier.]

The charges preferred by Mr. Jasper N. Johnson of Medford against the Selectmen, the election officers, the Moderator, Town Clerk and Town Counsel regarding the manipulation by them of the recent election of a delegate to the constitutional convention, are very serious and should not be allowed to go unchallenged. Statutes were violated by the officers in charge of the election deliberately and intentionally in the interests of Charles F. Dutch." "That the acting moderator of the meeting who had charge of the ballots of the election, acted as campaign manager for the candidate declared and actively passed about among the tellers during the counting and afterwards communicated the result of the count to persons unknown who were thereby enabled to know how many voters would be required to change the result of the election."

"That the various tellers acting in the counting of the ballots were actively participating in the count and in the canvass for voters for the sitting member, Mr. Dutch, and counted ballots during a large part of the day; that he communicated from time to time with people outside of the building urging them to vote for the sitting member."

"That all the tellers who actually counted the ballots were either active in the management of the sitting member's canvassing, or else were members of the Winchester Municipal Association."

"That the town clerk, acting as the other principal election officer, has heretofore actively interfered with the papers filed in his office in the interests of candidates favored by the sitting member."

"That unfit persons were allowed to act as tellers and have charge of the ballots during the election."

"That the whole conduct of the election in the town of Winchester was so colored by the interference and participation of the officers of the election that it is difficult to determine how extensive the fraud is, but is strongly persuasive of the belief that grave frauds were participated upon the contestant."

These are pretty serious statements. The following charges, publicly made, were withdrawn:

"That certain ballots which were marked for the contestant were afterwards marked by a cross opposite the name of the sitting member for the purpose of invalidating the ballot which was originally cast for the contestant."

"That certain ballots which were believed to have been left blank as to the name of the district delegate were afterwards filled in by persons unknown and counted as ballots for the sitting member."

These gentlemen who are accused of manipulating the election are all men of supposed integrity and well known and trusted citizens who have the confidence of the people, and we do not believe for an instant that they are guilty of the above charges. Mr. Johnson, we believe, has made a serious blunder and he should retract the statements, or else be forced to substantiate them.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

A Convention for all Branches of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness in the County of Middlesex will be held on July 18th. All members of the Winchester Branch are invited to attend.

These County Conventions are being held throughout the State and are creating much interest and enthusiasm. Every woman should make an effort to attend, as all branches of the War Relief Work will be discussed and demonstrated.

Prominent speakers have been secured, and models of the work for the American Fund for French Wounded, Red Cross, Navy League and Surgical Dressings will be on exhibition.

The Convention will be in session from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. and a Can-teen Lunch will be served at a nominal price.

Cambridge Branch will be the hostess for part of Middlesex County.

BASEBALL.

Saturday, June 30th, Winchester met and defeated the strong Linden A. A. of Malden 8 to 5. This team had only lost one game this season until they met Winchester, and were very confident of winning here; and to make it dead sure they secured the services of Wright, the former Arlington pitcher, who was winner in 3 out of 4 starts against us last season. But they missed their guess in Wright, for he had to be taken out in the second inning, due to poor control and Roakes, their regular man, finished the game. Roakes did good work and the game would have been much closer had he started in the first inning. The game was a heavy batting game, there being two double and four three baggers during the afternoon. Charles was the heavy hitter for Winchester and Loenstein for Linden.

Baseball July 4th.

Before the largest crowd of the season on the holiday afternoon, Winchester met defeat at the hands of Wakefield and as usual on a holiday the home team put up a poor exhibition of baseball, Charles being the chief offender. Of course, Kelley was hit hard and that gave the fielders a chance to make errors of omission while the errors of commission could not be charged. Kelley was hit for 10 hits in three innings, which is some hitting when you come to think it over. McCarthy, who replaced him, should not have been second on, but Charles let the easiest kind of a hit get away from him and two runs came over. While McCauley pitched there were only three hits registered off him. McCarthy was the extra pitcher at Falmouth for two years alternating with Whittaker in the box, but he has not been in shape this season, so Manager LeDuc did not attempt to use him until this game. Reports say he is a good man, and from what he showed in the holiday game it looks as though he will be able to deliver. Scanlon, the Wakefield pitcher, who has just come back from Denver in the Western League, did the work for Wakefield and with any kind of backing behind our own pitchers we should have won, as we hit him hard enough to win any game. Flaherty, behind the bat, caught a fine game for Wakefield. McQuinn was the heavy hitter for Winchester, getting three fine singles, while "Jack" Hevey pulled off the best fielding play, getting a fly close to the ground and doubling a runner off first base. Some nice work any way you look at it. Mr. Robert Metcalf, Chairman of the Selectmen, put over the first, for a strike, showing the fans he was in mid-season form.

DAYLIGHT EXPRESS DELIVERY.

At the earnest request of the expressmen and other delivery employees the retail stores of Boston have agreed upon a daylight delivery plan. Under this plan expressmen and other delivery employees will have daylight working hours, there will be fewer mistakes made in delivery, and customers will not be disturbed at night. Believing that the public will be served even better than before, and that the delivery driver is entitled to his evenings for recreation the retail merchants of Boston have adopted the following delivery schedule, recommended by the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and to be known as the Daylight Delivery schedule.

Deliveries will be made at homes between 8:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. as follows: For Metropolitan Boston, cities and towns within 15 miles radius all goods purchased before 12:30 p. m. will be delivered the same day before 7 p. m. All goods purchased after 12:30 p. m. will be delivered the following day.

STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT P. F. SULLIVAN.

"We feel confident of the future because of the results of our request for increased income," said President P. F. Sullivan of the Bay State Street Railway Company at the announcement of the decision of the Public Service Commission to put the new fare schedule into effect. "First, because we are assured of increased income; and second, because of the spirit of understanding with which our demands were met by the majority of the communities served by our roads. With but one or two exceptions it was admitted by representatives of all those communities that we should have more money."

"The officers of the Bay State are not convinced that the increases are sufficient to meet all the Company's needs, but they have agreed to make trial of the new rates and it is clearly understood by all the parties that if the resulting revenue proves insufficient an application may be made at the end of six months for a further increase in fares."

"When we ask the public to turn in and help us make a success of this six months' experiment we have their interests in mind as well as our own. City officials can aid us materially by regulating jitney competition. We do not ask that jitneys be abolished. All we ask for is a square deal. Unregulated jitneys divert from our treasury more than $300,000 a year."

"We are going into this experimental period with the feeling that we have back of us the public and we shall take special pains to acquaint the public with what we are doing. If operating costs go up we shall tell them that, and if they go down it will be with special pleasure that we shall tell them that also. We are assuming that our business is the public's business and that inasmuch as it is the public's business the public should know all about it."

Funeral services for William Kelley of 31 Swanton street were held yesterday morning at St. Mary's Church. Rev. John W. H. Corbett was the celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, Rev. Francis E. Rogers, deacon, and Mr. Edward Maguire, sub-deacon. The interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, where the committal service was read by Fr. Corbett.

It was reported yesterday that Coleman Connolly of this town was held up and robbed by five men on the lower end of the Mystic Valley Parkway Wednesday night.

BUILT IN BLOOD.

Petrograd, the Artificial Capital of the Czar's Dominions.

Travelers speak of Moscow as the heart of Russia, the real Russian city, and dismiss Petrograd as an imitation of other European capitals. But to me Petrograd seems more characteristically Russian, with its immense facades of government buildings and barracks marching along as far as the eye can reach, broad streets, and mighty open spaces.

The great stone quays along the Neva, the palaces, cathedrals and imperial avenues paved with colds germs under the hands of innumerable servants chained in a swamp by the will of a tyrant and were cemented with their blood, for where Petrograd now sprawls for miles and miles, a city built for giants, was nothing but a feverish marsh a hundred and fifty years ago.

And there, where no roads naturally lead, the most desolate spot, the most vulnerable and the most remote from any natural center of the Russian empire, Peter the Great had a whim to found his capital. Twenty thousand slaves a year for ten years were killed by fever, cold and disease in the building of Petrograd.

Nine times the court nobles themselves conspired to wreck the hated city and force the court to return to Moscow; three times they set fire to it, and three times the czar hung them at the doors of the palaces he had forced them to build.

A powerful section of the reactionary party has always agitated for the restoration of Moscow as the capital, and it is only in the last twenty years that the population of Petrograd has not been artificially kept up.—John Reed in Metropolitan.

PARTING SALUTATIONS.

Those Used in Different Nations Are Very Much Alike.

The parting salutations of various nations are strikingly alike. The vale of the Latin corresponds with the similar expression of the Greeks, and though piety is not expressed distinctly in either, it was doubtless understood, for who can be kept in health without, as the ancients would say, the will of the gods?

The Greek word perhaps has a higher significance than the Latin, for it was not a mere complimentary salutation. St. John forbids it to be given to heretical teachers.

The French on taking leave say, "Adieu," thus distinctly recognizing the providential power of the Creator, and the same meaning is indeed conveyed in our own word "goodby," which is a corruption of "God be with you."

The Irish in their warmth of manner and love of words often extend the expression.

A well known guide, upon one of our friends leaving one of the loveliest spots in Wicklow, shook hands with him heartily and said in a voice somewhat more tremulous through age than it was when Tom Moore loved to listen to it:

"God Almighty bless you, be with you and guide you safely to your journey's end."

This salutation, when used thoughtfully and aright, has not only a pleasant sound, but deep meaning.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Britain's Oldest Colony.

Bermuda now ranks as the oldest of Britain's colonies, the English flag having been hoisted there in 1612 by a party of colonists from the Virginia company who stopped at the Islands on the way to the mainland, went on to Virginia, found Jamestown in a state of starvation and returned. A previous explorer, Juan de Bermudez, gave the group its name.

Loyalty.

"I have been treated very badly by my native city," said a man who had just been fined for drunkenness, "but I love her still."

"True," remarked the magistrate, "I should say her still is about all you do love."

Your achievement will never rise higher than your faith.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

Unfortunate as may be the lot of the man immigrant, it has at least the goal of full American Citizenship, to brighten it. There is not a State Constitution in the 48 that does not make careful provisions for conferring upon the man immigrant full prerogatives of citizenship. Those prerogatives follow inevitably upon his naturalization. Some State Constitutions go so far as to allow him full Voting rights upon a mere declaration of his intention to become naturalized. In all which he is immeasurably favored over the American-born woman. Save for the few politically advanced western states American citizenship in its full significance is no woman's land. Even the western woman who ventures too far east loses her most cherished prerogative of citizenship.

The formation of the "Suffrage Americanization Committee" brings out this dangling injustice more saliently perhaps than any recent development of the suffrage question. In it we have the American-born woman helpfully leading the immigrant man toward those vested rights of American citizenship from which she herself is barred. Presently the men to whom she is trying to point the way will pass her and go trudging on up the shining path to enfranchisement. Presently from sun-caught heights of liberty they will be looking down upon her, ruminating in their foreign way upon the question of letting her share in the vote which she has helped them to win! Small wonder that American womanhood writers under the blistering injustice of such a scheme of democracy (so-called). Small wonder that woman asks ceaselessly how long the United States means to withhold the full measure of American citizenship from women who are doing their utmost to fortify and make sound that Government from within.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Next week, Friday, July 6, the meeting of the local union to work for the soldiers and sailors will be at the home of the president, Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, 50 Lincoln street. All interested are cordially invited to join in this work, which is so needed at this time. There is also need of old cloth for substitute handkerchiefs—any old white will do—and for comfort and fracture pillows. Such pieces may be sent at any time to Mrs. Hamilton.

History on the prohibition question is being made so rapidly these days that it is not easy to foretell what the week may bring forth. At this writing it looks as if the manufacture of whiskey would be prohibited but not the sale, thus ensuring enormous profits to the liquor dealers who will be happy to think they have won such a victory over the temperance forces. It is not the first time that the Senate has balked the will of the people but there will be a day of reckoning sometime. Meantime the opponents of the liquor traffic may congratulate themselves on a popular awakening on the subject that will ensure victory in the long run.

Naturally.

Delivering an address at a Sunday school recently, a visitor spoke on the moral development of children. "There is a boy here," he said, "and a girl there. What will they become when they grow up?" In a loud whisper one of the scholars, turning to his teacher, supplied an answer,—"Sweethearts!"

Too Much Competition.

"Now, where do you want your speech to come?" "Put me on before the celery is served. Two hundred people eating celery in unison make it very difficult to be heard."

LAND COURT.
To Louis Goddu and Anne T. Snyder, of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth; Frederick M. Symmes, of Woburn, in said County of Middlesex, and Samuel S. Symmes, Edgar W. McLeod, and Howard D. Nash, of said Winchester, Trustees of the Marshall Symmes Land Association; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by William W. Wadsworth, of Portland, in the State of Maine, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a stake on the easterly side of Highland Avenue at land of Anne T. Snyder, thence the line runs S. 60° 51' 08" E. 293.58 feet; S. 49° 40' 25" E. 130 feet; S. 10° 57' 17" E. 119.88 feet; S. 28° 03' 24" W. 214.98 feet; and S. 60° 20' 12" E. 231.59 feet of land of Anne T. Snyder; thence S. 37° 14' 14" W. 150.51 feet by land of Frederick M. Symmes, Samuel S. Symmes, Edgar W. McLeod, and Howard D. Nash, Trustees Marshall Symmes Land Association; thence N. 60° 43' 20" W. 667.86 feet, by land of Louis Goddu; to Highland Avenue; thence N. 54° 17' 30" E. 40.15 feet by Highland Avenue; thence S. 60° 43' 20" E. 200.47 feet; N. 34° 43' 30" E. 143.08 feet and N. 60° 44' 53" W. 200.64 feet, by land of Louis Goddu; to Highland Avenue; thence S. 34° 17' 30" E. 19.64 feet by Highland Avenue to a stone boundary marking the P. C. of a curve; thence still by Highland Avenue by a curve of 55.09 feet radius, 309.25 feet to a point of beginning; containing 220,412 square feet.

Petitioner admits the above described land is subject to encumbrances in favor of said Goddu land and said Snyder land, as set forth in the petition filed in this case.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-third day of July A. D. 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

At the time and place aforesaid your default will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Winchester, Mass., May, 1917.
To the Middlesex County Commissioners:
Respectfully represent the undersigned that that part of Bacon street consisting of the bridge over the Abenaki River is in bad and possibly dangerous condition, owing to the sinking of the supporting walls and wooden and stone blocking of the bridge, particularly over the northern end of the central pier, resulting in the sinking from time to time of the roadway.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that after due notice and hearing you will adjudge that common convenience and necessity require specific repairs to be made in said Bacon street at said Bridge.

The WOMAN'S PICTURE

An Unusual Episode of Life on the Border

By GORDON RAY YOUNG
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

I raised my hands. There was no word spoken. The revolver and behind it the masked face of the highwayman were enough. For the first time in my life I realized how people felt when they gazed at the muzzle of my gun and trembled before the black mask that I wore. I remember that I wanted to laugh. The humorous side of the situation appealed to me. I was being held up! I, Hugh Richmond, whose purse did not contain so much as the value of one gold piece, but whose body, dead or alive, was worth $5,000. I know that I smiled, and I could see that my smile was disconcerting; therefore I knew that I was face to face with an amateur. I cared little for being held up. In fact, I rather enjoyed the situation.

"Pleasant day," I ventured.

The gun made a terrific report, and the bullet whizzed dangerously close. After such an answer I kept my lips closed.

My highwayman did not seem to know what to do next, and we sat on our horses at a bend in the mountain road and looked at each other. The first motion he made I knew that he wanted me to dismount, but I pretended not to understand and wrinkled my brow as though puzzled.

"Climb off," came in a faint whisper. Then I was puzzled. It was not the horse whisper of one who had lost his voice. Of a sudden I understood. My amateur highwayman was more frightened than his victim. He could not even manage his voice. I determined to take advantage of him.

In those days I was a good horseman, and I was mounted on the wisest little mare that ever kicked up dust in a sheriff's face.

Gently I touched Dolly's flank with a spur and, keeping my hands aloft, made her plunge from side to side, guiding her with my knees until we were several yards away.

I lowered my hands, leaned forward, chirped in Dolly's ear, and away we flew.

Bang, bang, bang! All of his shots went wild.

An hour later I smiled to myself and tried to imagine the astonishment that would seize Mr. Amateur if he knew that his revolver had caused Hugh Richmond to lift his hands.

There wasn't a sheriff in Colorado that didn't want me. I was wanted on so many charges that I had lost track of them myself.

I only knew that no man—"no, nor woman either, though by your smile"—was my friend.

I sprang in the sunshine, as I often did, and let my thoughts wander.

At such times I would think of the faces of men and women I had known long ago, and of all those faces there was but one I remembered with tenderness, and that dear, sweet little girl believed that I was dead.

I was worse. Society had driven me out.

Solitude is pleasant enough when you grow tired of the city and are wearied by the restless clatter of industry, but I longed—I actually craved the company of a human being.

But I could have no friends. I knew if I made any sooner or later I would be er times would have been offensive, was now a pleasure.

At such a place you meet and see many kinds of people—the vicious and the good gone wrong, who incidentally make up the great percentage of the outcast element; the bad and would like to be bad, the braggart and the hero, faro dealers, rough handed miners and disreputable cowboys.

An hour after I sat down a young man with lily hands entered. I knew him for a gambler or a tenderfoot, and when he placed himself before the tin pan piano and began banging a selection from "Il Trovatore" I knew that he was a newcomer and shifted my chair to get a good look at his face. He was a handsome lad, one of the poetic type.

"Hey!" I shouted softly and in ridicule, "desist from such atrocities!"

He looked at me in amazement.

"You know that piece—you?"

And his last word had an altogether different inflection. He was startled and from squint like eyes stared at me.

My first thought was that I had been trapped; that he recognized me as Hugh Richmond.

"What's the matter?" I demanded.

No answer.

"Tell me. What is the matter?"

There was a ring in his voice that he did not disregard, and he answered in a whisper, "Nothing."

That whisper! He was the amateur highwayman.

We had met again, and I liked the boy. My impressions are not always correct, but they are positive, and if I take a dislike to a man at first sight I would distrust him though we were seated side by side in heaven.

But this lad, this mere youth, this unsophisticated child of the east, who had no better sense than to attempt highway robbery and three hours later inflect music on his victim, touched my sympathy.

"Well," I spoke half defiantly because I wanted to make him talk.

"We never met before," he stammered, coming toward me with the reluctance of one approaching a judgment seat.

"Never," I answered emphatically.

As he sat down I pushed the bottle toward him, and he grasped it eagerly.

"Good stuff," he lied politely.

"Inimitable," I rejoined.

"But I think it is good," he insisted and took another glass of the liquid fire.

"How long?"

"Three weeks," he replied, embarrassed. "I am a tenderfoot, the rawest kind and well bilsted."

"How long?" I queried again.

"God knows. I don't want to stay any longer than I can help."

His tongue had loosened. Three large joints of whisky—such whisky as comes over the bar of the Silver Dollar would have loosened the tongue of the Sphinx—and before I realized what was happening he was rapidly whispering into my ears his tale of sorrow.

"I was in a social set that was too high for my purse," he said. "My family was proud, my name was an open sesame to the exclusive set, but my income was small. My employer trusted me. There is a woman in the case."

"Heaven, such a woman! I am not worthy of her. It was not her fault. And I wish that I could get a start over again, but I've hit the trail for hell, and yet she loves me. I couldn't let her know that I was poor, and I showered her with presents, just as the other fellows did that wanted her to love them, but she turned them away."

"She loved me, do you hear? I gave her everything that money could buy, and then the crash came."

"My own father turned me out of the house. My own mother wouldn't let me kiss her goodby. My employer—he was an old friend of the family—said he wouldn't prosecute, but I was disgraced. The papers had it."

"And then she—she of all women—said that she loved me and always would and said that she was as much to blame as I because she had allowed me to spend money on flowers and take her to the theater—most of the money went for that; but, of course, there was a ring."

"She told me to go west, to go out where money was dug from the ground and fortunes made in a day and to get enough to settle my accounts, and then we would go to some place else and begin life all over again."

"And here I am. But what can I do? How can I dig gold out of the ground? I know nothing about it. There's nothing I can do. I'm bad—bad all the way through. My father told me I was. So what's the use? I don't care for myself, but for her—for her."

Tears rose in his eyes, and he cried: "If I could only get a start again for her! I'd slave my life away just to make her happy, for she loves me even after all that."

He drew a small picture from his pocket, kissed it again and again, then laid it on the table and gazed intently at the sweet, childish face.

I glanced at the picture casually, rose, gripped the table, then sank back, staring into the face of the boy, who failed to notice. I knew her—oh, how well I knew her! And all that he said was true. I glanced around the saloon. It was early. Men were just beginning to drop in. There we sat, the boy and I, men from the far, far east, and each had been driven out, he as the result of a faithlessness to a trust and I—no matter why I came.

There we sat together, he a youth and I a man, and before us lay the picture of a woman whom we both loved.

The boy had fallen across his arms on the table. At first he sighed, and then his heavy breathing told me that he was sleeping. I fell into a reverie.

I had no money. All that I could get hold of went east, passed through the hands of a lawyer and then to— But she never knew whence it came. She believed what the lawyer told her, and he didn't know the truth.

Still the boy slept.

THE HUMOROUS SIDE OF THE SITUATION APPEALED TO ME. I WAS BEING HELD UP!

betrayed, and the horror of horrors that oppressed my mind was that I might be taken alive.

From where I was it was not far to Pinon, and in Pinon—well, there were people—a dance hall, music, the clatter of voices and the sound of oaths, a ghastly resemblance of a pleasurable life that I had known long ago and in another section of the world.

It was quiet in the Silver Dollar when I rode up, casually glanced at the men in front of the saloon and entered. There were only two or three people in the place. To sit in that hot saloon, reeking with odors that at oth-

I speculated on the amount he needed and glanced about the room. I touched him on the shoulder. No answer. I shook him, and he raised his head drowsily.

"How much do you need?"

He was not fully awake.

"Come on; wake up." And I shook him again.

"What do you want?"

"Come on outside. The fresh air will do you good," I said.

We went out.

"Look here, liddle, I came out west several years ago and struck it rich. I like you, and I know that there is not a streak of bad in you. Now, if I lend you the money will you go back and be a man? When you get on your feet you can pay it back; no hurry, though."

"Would I—would I?—oh, heavens! Then I could go back like a man and be a man. You must be an angel in disguise!"

"Have you a horse here?"

"No."

"Well, take mine—over there." I selected the best one in sight—that is, next to Dolly. Explanations at that stage of the game would have been embarrassing.

Then I gave him directions as to how to ride, and told him to make haste.

"I'll be along pretty soon—in about an hour—but I want you to go now. I will have to go back and find a couple of friends and borrow a few dollars to make up the amount. I could get it tomorrow, but I want to see you started back east tomorrow morning. It will be a long ride, but I guess you are good for it, even if you are a tenderfoot."

He wanted to wait and come with me, but I made him ride off.

Then I went back in. It was a risky proposition, and such a desperate chance that even now I have strange twitches about my heart when I think of it.

There were noise and laughter. The tin pan piano was going its utmost; excited gamblers were plunging heavily at faro bank, and several men were at the bar, when I placed my back to the wall, drew both guns instantly and roared:

"Hands up!"

The confusion became silence.

Some turned to the door, bent on taking a chance, but thought better of it, and up went their hands. The bartender hesitated for a moment, debating whether or not to strip down his bar, but he caught my eye and obeyed.

In less time than it takes to tell I had plundered the faro bank—and a goodly roll it was—and asked the bartender to step aside while I emptied the till. He gave me a smile, and I knew by that smile that he was a dangerous man.

I backed to the door, knowing that the moment I stepped outside a fusillade of shots would be sent in my direction. I turned, made two jumps and was astride of Dolly and pounding down the road while the wicked crack of a Winchester troubled my ears. I glanced over my shoulder and could see the white apron about the shadowy form that stood in the doorway. The bartender was a dangerous man, but I had been born under a lucky star.

"What's all that shooting about?" the boy asked when I overtook him a couple of miles farther on.

"A little altercation over a poker game. Come on; we'll have to ride fast if we make that station in time to the morning train."

After pushing our horses hard and talking but little we arrived at the station the following morning just as the train whistled in the distance. Its faint roar grew nearer and nearer until, with a mighty rush, it was upon us, and the brakes were grinding and creaking.

"If I only knew how I could repay you—I will, but I would like to express my thanks now, and words won't do it," he said earnestly as he gripped my hand.

"You can—and fully—for all time."

"How? Tell me how. I will do anything."

"Give me that picture of— and I called the sweet faced girl by name."

He reached in his pocket and handed it to me. Again we shook hands. He stepped on the train, and slowly it moved off, and then faster and faster until it was out of sight.

I stood staring after the train and wondering what he would think when he remembered that he had never told me her name—for she was my daughter.

"BUCKLES" and VINEGAR

PICTURE many small piles of perforated lead disks of the above design but six inches in diameter. Call the disks "buckles" because they resemble the shoe buckles of Colonial days. Imagine the fumes of weak acetic acid (vinegar) and carbonic acid gas passing thru the holes in the buckles for more than three months, finally turning the blue lead white all thru.

The white-lead is ground and washed to snow-white cleanness. Then, mixed to a paste with pure linseed oil, it is packed in steel containers.

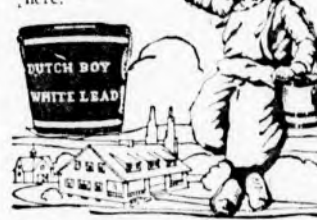

You now have a fair idea of how

Dutch Boy Red Seal White-Lead

the body of non-cracking, non-scaling house paint, is made from metal lead.

Only the addition of more linseed oil is needed to make Dutch Boy White-Lead into good, old-fashioned paint—the kind that keeps houses bright and sound. The paint may be left white or tinted to suit your taste.

Dutch Boy White-Lead, with expert advice regarding inside and outside color schemes, may be obtained here.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by John Pierpont Gaskill to East Weymouth Savings Bank, dated July 10, 1914, and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the County of Middlesex, South District, Book 3624, Page 190, will be sold at public auction, on the premises, on for a breach of the conditions of said mortgage, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely: A certain parcel of land situate in Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as shown on a plan of land belonging to E. A. V. Parsons made by G. P. Hartson, C. E., dated 1912 and recorded in Middlesex, South District, Book 3624, Plan Book 77, Plan 50 and being lot number twelve (12) on said Plan and bounded and described as follows:

TUESDAY, the seventeenth day of July, 1917, at two o'clock in the afternoon,

SUMMER FESTIVAL.

One of the most popular events of the season was that of the summer festival of St. Mary's Church, which took place on the parish grounds on Washington street last Saturday afternoon and evening. The festival this year was carried out in a patriotic manner. The decorations of the grounds and booths consisted of large and small American flags. The afternoon program was arranged entirely for the children. The program consisted of athletic events, contests for both boys and girls with prizes for the winners. The baby contest was one of the chief features, prizes being awarded to the tallest baby, shortest baby, sleepiest baby, most wide-awake baby and crying baby. In the evening an orchestra was furnished and dancing was enjoyed until shortly before midnight. The West Side booth was in charge of Mrs. Daniel Lydon, the East Side booth in charge of Mrs. Patrick Martin. Mrs. Lorenzo Benet had charge of the tea room. Mrs. Daniel Murphy and Mrs. Thomas Mackesy had charge of the palm garden. The festival was under the direction of Rev. John W. H. Corbett and Patrick Kenney, chairman of the Executive Committee. The committees in full were printed in last week's STAR.

FRUIT JARS COMING.

The fruit jars which were ordered through the Supt. of Schools office for numerous Winchester women have arrived at Boston, where they have been for the past week. It has not been possible to secure them from the freight yard owing to the congestion there, but announcement has been made that they will probably be in Winchester by next Tuesday and may be had at the Superintendent's office.

ATTENTION is especially called to the adv. of FRANK A. LOCKE, the tuner.

NEW POSTOFFICE.

Plans Show Exceptionally Attractive Structure.

Plans and specifications for Winchester's new Post Office were received Monday by Postmaster Hatch for use by local contractors desiring to bid on the structure. Although all the elevation drawings are in detail and not readily assimilated by the layman it appears that our town is to have a very attractive building.

An innovation has been made in designing a two story structure in place of the usual single story building one has been accustomed to see in the Federal buildings in this vicinity, which undoubtedly adds much to its appearance. The building will have a front of 70 feet and a depth of 65 feet. It will be built facing Waterfield road and Manchester Field, and will be constructed of dark red waterstruck brick, laid Flemish bond, with light limestone or sandstone trimmings.

With this material for construction the appearance will somewhat resemble that of the Fire and Police Building on Mt. Vernon street and the architecture will in general be also of a Colonial design. The design is pleasing on all three sides—Thompson street, Waterfield road and the river—with plenty of windows and with the building well set back from the street.

The public lobby will be an especially pleasing feature, it being well into the building and surrounded with the workroom and offices and opening clear to the roof at the top. This, too, is different from the surrounding post offices, most of which have the lobby running from one side across to the other at the front.

The exterior waterstruck brick, with light limestone or sandstone and granite trimmings, will make a pleasing combination. The exterior wood will be cypress and white pine. On the two sides large ornamental windows are placed at each front end which also add to the appearance of the structure.

Owing to the fact that all drawings are in detail it has been impossible at this time to produce a picture of the building, but it is expected that a view will be printed in the near future. A general description of the building as compiled from the plans and specifications follows:

Basement

The basement contains ample provision for storage and plenty of space for all equipment. It is reached by a stairway from the lobby connecting with a passage running across the front end, two large offices opening at the right side and two large storage rooms at the left. To the left at the foot of the stairs is entrance to the boiler room, a room of about 40 feet deep and 21 feet wide. Opening on the left of the boiler room is a fuel room about 18 x 29 feet and a "sanitor's" storage room. At the left of the boiler room is a large storage room about 18 x 25 feet, and at the rear of this a smaller storage room 13 x 17. At the rear end of the boiler room is another stairway and an ash hoist.

The basement has cement floor and base, wood trim and is partly plastered. All openings in exterior walls will have sills and the lighting is from half windows in each side wall.

First Floor

The front entrance to the building will be from Waterfield road, three stone steps leading to a three-foot cement landing followed by a flight of eight steps to a vestibule of stone and tile, its roof supported by four stone pillars. The entrance is through a vestibule opening into the public lobby, a room open to the roof of the building about 20 x 36 feet. This will have a terrazzo floor, marble base, wood wainscott and trim, plaster walls and ceiling. The entrance vestibule will have vaulted ceiling.

The lobby should prove a most attractive room, lofty and spacious, and pleasing with pillars on all four sides. Immediately facing the entrance is a grand glass partition, back of which is the large workroom. At the right side is the box section and at the immediate right of the entrance on the front is the stairway to the basement and beyond the postmaster's private office. The left side has the parcel post, general delivery and registered mail windows and immediately to the left of the entrance on the street side is a window for postal savings and a spare window.

Surrounding the lobby on the left front and sides is workroom space. The workroom has wood floor, base, wainscott and trim, with plaster walls and ceiling. At the rear of the workroom is a large mailing vestibule and employees' entrance with cement floors and base, and wood trim and wainscott. At the employees' entrance are stairs to the basement and second story, this being at the left corner, which would be on Thompson street. On this floor is the women's toilet, vault, etc.

The wood trim in the lobby, entrance vestibule, postmaster's private office and main stairs to basement will be in birch. All other interior wood trim will be in yellow pine.

Second Story

The second story of the building covers that portion of the first floor taken by the lobby and workroom immediately back of it. The lobby being open to the roof, no rooms are over that portion, the construction beginning with the rear wall, where there is a passage entitled the "lookout" which runs clear across from side to side. Back of this is a "swing room"—the carriers' lounge room—and a very complete toilet

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Board of Health,
July 6, 1917.
The Winchester Star,
Winchester, Mass.

Sirs: Recalling your interest in the Infantile Paralysis epidemic of last season, I take the liberty of sending you herewith, Public Health Bulletin for the month of May. The findings of the Committee looking into this subject, as set forth in the Bulletin, tend to confirm the course of procedure which we adopted on the advice of the Commissioner of Health of this State, backed up by the opinion of the Health Officers of some thirty-eight States, meeting in conjunction with the Federal authorities and other experts in this line;—you will recall however, that they from time to time changed their opinion as to the period during which suspects should be quarantined and sick persons isolated, and I note that their latest view as to these, is that fourteen and twenty-eight days respectively will afford reasonable protection to the community and patient. In this situation which has so perplexed authorities throughout the world, we are constantly seeking information and advice from those who ought to have the best knowledge of the subject, and welcome constructive criticism.

Very truly yours,
Danforth W. Comins.

The following statements regarding infantile paralysis, while not wholly proven in every particular, represent the opinions of men who are most closely connected with the study of this disease.

Upon these opinions the State Department of Health recommends that local boards of health take the same precautions in cases of infantile paralysis as are customary in cases of other communicable diseases, such as diphtheria and typhoid fever,—the isolation of the patient and attendant in screened quarters, free from unnecessary hangings and furnishings; the destruction or thorough disinfection of all discharges and excretions. In recent suggestions for minimum rules in communicable diseases the Department recommends that the maximum incubation period in infantile paralysis be considered as fourteen days, and that the minimum period of isolation be twenty-eight days.

All cases should be promptly reported. Early knowledge of suspicious cases is highly desirable, and a thorough investigation should be made in all cases. These measures carefully followed in the early cases in each community afford the best known prospect of restricting the spread of the disease.

In co-operation with the State Department of Health, and acting as its agent, the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission is conducting free clinics in Boston and at central points throughout the State for consultation and suggestions as to the after care of cases of infantile paralysis. Aside from this the commission is conducting research work, and offers facilities and aid in establishing early diagnosis.

Infantile paralysis is an "infectious" disease. In many communities, such as Massachusetts, it is more or less constantly present. During the winter months the number of new cases is small, but with the coming of warm weather the disease becomes more prevalent and, occasionally, under conditions which are not well understood, it appears in actual epidemic form. Such an epidemic was experienced in this State in the summer of 1916, and on the basis of our knowledge of the natural history of infantile paralysis, it will be wise for us to look forward to the possible recurrence of the outbreak during the present year.

The cause of infantile paralysis has been shown to be a very small micro-organism or so-called "ultramicroscopic" virus. The virus is constantly present in the brain and spinal cord of all fatal cases, and by the inoculation of small bits of these tissues a condition exactly simulating infantile paralysis in human beings may be produced in monkeys. Other animals seldom show the characteristic symptoms and lesions of the disease, after experimental inoculation. Besides being present in the nervous tissues in fatal cases the virus has been found on the mucous membranes of the nose and throat of patients acutely sick with the disease, and even in a few healthy persons who have been in close contact with cases of the disease, but who have themselves shown no manifestations of sickness. These latter are known as "carriers." It has therefore been assumed that the virus is much more widely distributed in the community than is indicated by the number of clinical cases.

The method of spread of the disease is not accurately known. Certain facts suggest that direct contact with acute cases or with healthy carriers may account for infection, while other evidence suggests that insects play a role in the transmission. Other theories as to the mode of spread have been advanced, such as infection through milk and other foods. There is experimental evidence that discharges from the bowels may contain the virus, and are therefore a possible source of danger in spreading the infection. It is therefore proper to take sanitary precautions against the possibility of all these methods of spread. This equipment for the carriers including shower baths, etc. The second story is reached by stairs at the rear going into the employees' entrance

NEW "RED INK" DRAFT NUMBERS.

Differ From Original Figures On Registration Cards.

For the benefit of young men of draft age, Charles F. Gettemy, director of military enrollment for Massachusetts, stated this week:

"The number on your registration certificate, which you received on June 5th, Registration Day, has nothing to do with your draft number."

"Your draft number is now being marked on the registration card which you signed."

"It will be known as your 'red ink' or draft number."

"You may find out what your 'red ink' number is when the Exemption Board in your division makes the numbers public."

The operation of the draft was explained by Mr. Gettemy, who took for purposes of illustration the supposititious case of "John Smith." Mr. Gettemy's explanation is as follows:

"In answer to President's Wilson's proclamation, John Smith, on June 5, went to the registration board near where he lived and registered. He answered all questions, signed his name to a card and received a small certificate."

"In the upper right-hand corner of the certificate the registration officer placed the number 4, to correspond to the number of the white registration card, which John had just signed."

"That was all John Smith had to do. But his registration card, with thousands of others, was packed and sent to the State House in Boston."

"Since June 5, many other young men, who failed to register because they did not think they had to or because they didn't want to, were made to register."

"Now those registration cards which were made out on June 5, including the one which John Smith signed, have received new numbers in Red Ink. And the cards have been numbered serially by divisions."

"About the last of June 122 divisional exemption boards were appointed by President Wilson on the nomination of Gov. McCall for this State. There are three men on each divisional exemption board. They will later receive applications from men who desire to be exempted."

"The divisional boards must have some list to work with. So Mr. Gettemy acting on orders from Washington, put his clerks to work making more lists. These are the lists which are now being prepared."

"Three copies of these new lists will be sent to each exemption board and the fourth will be sent to Washington. On these lists will be the names of every man in the division who registered and beside the names will be the New Numbers or so-called 'red ink' numbers."

"John Smith's 'red ink' number, his new number, may be 968. It is not the least likely that he will again draw No. 4, the number placed on his registration certificate when he registered June 5."

"So John Smith's 'red ink' number, in all probability, will be between 1 and 5000. John Smith lives in Boston. He is in Division 19. There are 122 divisions in the State, and in each division some young man will have the same 'red ink' number that John Smith has."

"When the new lists, for the exemption boards and the authorities at Washington, are ready, and they will be ready soon, the draft will take place in Washington. And the numbers which they in Washington select will determine the young men who are to be drafted."

"The exact method of conducting the draft by the authorities in Washington has not been determined. There have been many suppositions. Find out your New Number, John Smith, as soon as you can. Your 'red ink' number is your new number."

FARMERS' ATTENTION!

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hemenway of Boston, have lent, for the summer, their house, 273 Clarendon street, for canning and storing purposes. They also provide cans and jars and five women's organizations supply the workers, who meet every Monday through the summer, to can according to the latest and most approved methods. The jars are stored in the house, and next autumn will be sold for the benefit of the war-relief fund.

The house, the jars, and willing hands to do the work, are thus supplied, and now the farmers—both professional and amateur—are asked to contribute materials. Everyone in the suburbs of Boston, who has a vegetable garden, large or small, is asked to contribute "something," during the summer. Already, 1,000 jars—principally of rhubarb and asparagus—have been filled, and last week, a crate of spinach was sent from a private garden. Soon other vegetables and fruits will be ready. Those in charge do not expect to receive many crates, but they hope many who are cultivating fruit or vegetables this year, will be glad to make at least one contribution. No matter how small. Small quantities are as gratefully received as large. Enough of some one kind to fill a small jar, will always be appreciated. Those who have no gardens but have automobiles, can co-operate and give very valuable help, in case of need, by acting as carriers. Will such as are willing to give help, or who may need help, in this way, kindly communicate with Mrs. Danforth W. Comins, 3 Wildwood street, Tel. 318.

The Boston house is open every day, and it is hoped Winchester will do its part in this patriotic work, as it has already done its part in so many others.

THE FOUL ABERJONA.

Editor of the Star:

Is it possible for the STAR to give the public any information whatever as to what is being done toward purifying our little river, the Aberjona, and its connecting ponds? When the city of Boston made use of the river and Mystic Lake as a water supply it kept the water in good condition by constant inspection and prosecution of offenders who polluted the water even in its remote sources in Wilmington, Reading, Stoneham and Woburn as well as in Winchester. The water was used by Charlestown, Chelsea, Somerville, East Boston and Revere, and when the works were established in 1860 the water was pronounced the best obtainable at that time and superior to other neighboring supplies. Fish abounded and until about fifteen years ago, and the Boston Water Board took good care to preserve the purity of the water as much as possible.

At the present time the Mystic water supply is under the direct care and control of the Metropolitan Water Board but it takes not the least interest in keeping the water supply in good condition although the act of the legislature (1860) which gave authority to establish the water works and dam at Mystic lake, plainly states it was for "the purpose of supplying pure water to the inhabitants of Charlestown" and other communities. The only right the Metropolitan Water Board has to control the Mystic water supply and to dam Mystic lake would seem to depend upon its ability to "supply pure water" to the Metropolitan district; not ditch or sewer water in which not even mud turtles, eels and blood-suckers can live. It would seem to be a legal obligation for the Metropolitan Board to either do something to keep the water pure or to give it up as a water supply. In the assets of the Metropolitan water system, the Mystic is held as a future active supply whenever the district needs it as a supplementary source. Under these conditions, the Metropolitan Water Board, a powerful State commission, should take some interest and do something tangible toward preserving the purity of the water.

What the town of Winchester is doing to protect itself from the present active pollution of its ponds and stream is not publicly known. If the proper authorities are doing anything, the public would like to know it. The water is getting worse all the time and the river is nothing but a public sewer in which animal or vegetable life cannot exist. As the Horn Pond branch of the river ceases to run in the summer time, as it usually does, the foul water from the main stream will back up into Wedge pond and pollute the water of the best pond we now possess. The foul water has already backed up from the Aberjona as far as the Whitney Machine Shop and will be soon in Wedge pond unless frequent rains keep Horn pond overflowing into Wedge pond.

We all know that the State Board of Health by legislative act, has control of the sanitary condition of the Aberjona, but like other State boards it needs local "prodding" to make such control useful and effective. No one seems to be taking any active interest in the matter whatever at the present time, but it is one of the most pressing, important matters to be attended to by the Board of Selectmen, our Board of Health, Law Department, or Park Board. The town might vote also, to have the town Sewer Commissioners put a little "push" into present proceedings, if any, toward doing away with an open public sewer which sewers a large territory outside of Winchester and which is a public, unhealthy nuisance if any such ever existed. Will the STAR kindly give us what information it can gather as to present proceedings on the part of anybody toward abating a most foul injustice toward Winchester after the town has spent a very large amount of money in beautifying its ponds and stream, also a very large amount in building town sewers to prevent just such pollution as is now openly taking place in the head waters of our once beautiful Aberjona.

Arthur E. Whitney.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Here they are! The Riversides of Cambridge. It has been over two years since we played this team, and they are much stronger now than in the last two or three seasons. The Boston Globe of Tuesday evening says, "The Riversides of Cambridge this season are one of the strongest semi pro teams of Greater Boston, and have met defeat only once, and that from the strong Fitchburg team, formerly of the New England League." So you fans can see what a contract we have taken to beat this crowd. Well we can make a good try, and with the present lineup we need not worry. Game at 3.30 prompt.

NEW ASSISTANT CLERK.

At Monday night's meeting of the Selectmen Miss Alice G. Foley of this town was appointed Assistant General Clerk at the Town Hall to succeed Miss Winnifred LeDuc, who recently resigned.

OPEN TOURNAMENT AT COUNTRY CLUB.

The Winchester Country Club will hold an open tournament on July 19, 20 and 21st—Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

BASEBALL.

Winchester Hits Hard and Wins From Woburn.

Woburn attempted a return to the baseball map Saturday when they faced Winchester in their first game of the year. The team was managed by Raymond Weaver and this young player deserves credit for trying to establish baseball again in Woburn, and if he continues the rest of the season he should be accorded half decent support by the fans in that city. As individuals, he had a fine crowd of players and they played ball every minute of the game, and were working just as hard for a win when the score was 11 to 1, as when they were tied at 1 to 1. The team was handicapped by poor pitching, and as I have said in my articles many times before, when a pitcher is bad the rest of the team looks bad. We tried out a new pitcher named Smith, and while he was wild during several innings, he settled down later and only five hits were made off him. Of course, we do not know how good he is going to be not having very stiff opposition to face in his first game. Winchester hit the ball to all corners of the field, getting 18 hits, including a triple and four two-baggers.

The score:

Notes

Percentage .750.

Manager LeDuc gave Burke a chance at short Saturday in place of Charles, and he made good in his first game.

Jim Linehan was in uniform and anxious to play, but is not in very good shape yet after a serious operation.

Remington Clark of the High School team, was also ready to come to the rescue if needed. There are a great many fans in the town who think that he should be given a try-out by Winchester, as they claim he is a much better pitcher than Whitaker was when he first pitched for Winchester. He surely had the stuff when pitching for the High School.

Joe Scanlon battled flies to the outfielders, as Wakefield did not play Swampscott, having cancelled the game.

Ray Tift and Charlie Flaherty had a fine time on the bench talking over old times when they played with Bishop's Lead Lined team.

Frank Coolidge, who played several games with us last year, is being sought after by the Braves, but it is doubtful if he plays professional ball.

The Invincible Minute Boys were handed a swell trimming by the Converse Rubber Co. Saturday, Weaver being knocked out of the box. Willard what's your alibi?

When it comes to handling the Minute Boys and arranging games, the "Millionaire Sportsman" makes Bill Viano look like a "piker," and Bill was game at that.

Bunker Hill and St. Ambrose decided their game according to Marquies of Queensbury. Bunker Hill winning by forfeit in the 10th.

Galvin, the captain of St. Ambrose, is like a "kid"; when things are not breaking right he is always on the lookout for some way to get out without being beaten, and they do not dare to play off their own grounds.

Goodyear beat the Linden A. A. 7 to 3. Loenstien and Urann, two Malden High players, are putting up a fine game for Linden.

Wollaston, who thinks the Red Sox are the only team in their class, according to the notices in the daily papers, won from J. J. Storrows' newboys Saturday 3 to 0. Matthews pitched for Wollaston.

Arlington had easy picking Saturday beating the Roger Walcotts 10 to 1, Donnelly, the Arlington High

Aug. 8, Wednesday. Winchester Traders' Outing.

WEST D. ELDRIDGE.

West Daggett Eldridge, aged 49 years, passed away at his home on Webster street Monday of heart trouble. He contracted an attack of the grip three weeks previous which resulted in heart trouble, and although his condition gave much promise of a satisfactory recovery, he passed away unexpectedly.

Mr. Eldridge was a native of Beverly, his parents being West D. and Mary Spencer Eldridge. He received his early education in the Beverly schools, graduating from the High School of that city in 1885 and later from the Bryant & Stratton Commercial College of Boston.

He married Miss Carrie Story of Beverly, who survives him, together with five sons—Kenneth, Reuel W., Donald M., Stuart and Alan S. Two sisters, Mrs. Duncan McPhail of Bellingham, Wash., and Mrs. D. C. Chase of Sacramento, Cal., also survive him.

He moved to this town with his family in 1908 and had since resided on Forest and Webster streets. For a time he was engaged in the leather business, but for a number of years he had been connected with life insurance companies and at the time of his death was Superintendent of Agents for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. of N. J.

He was a member of the Boston City Club and of the First Baptist Church of this town, and was previously a member of the City Council of Beverly.

The funeral services were held from the residence yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Rev. Henry E. Dodge, pastor of the First Baptist Church. There was a large attendance of business associates and friends and many beautiful tokens of flowers. The bearers were his sons. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

NOTICE.

A partial installment of the fruit jars ordered by the Winchester Branch of the Middlesex County Farm Bureau was received last week at the office of the Superintendent of Schools. The quarts have all been taken, but there are pint jars on hand, both round and square, so-called double safety, which may be obtained at the cost price of 71c per dozen.

It is expected that the final lot will be received on Monday or Tuesday next and may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Schools, Prince School building, on Wednesday afternoon. The price will be 74c per dozen plus three or four cents per dozen as may be required to pay for delivery from Boston to Winchester. It is necessary to make payment on delivery as this is not a business transaction as far as the School Department is concerned. The unfortunate delays in obtaining delivery of these jars has been due to the freight congestion on the Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine railroads.

WANTED.

Immediately for surgical work and supplies, old pieces of white or colored cotton, linen or woollen cloth. Scraps of the smallest dimensions to any size. Send to Mrs. John P. Marston, 30 Everett avenue, Tel. 590, or telephone any of the following and they will be called for. Mrs. A. T. Hunnewell, Tel. 830; Mrs. W. M. Weston, Tel. 288-M; Mrs. F. L. Avery, Tel. 948-M; Mrs. F. E. Hovey, Tel. 155-R. jel:tf

WINCHESTER TRADERS' OUTING.

Reserve Wednesday, August 8th, for the big time. Where?—watch next week's issue.

Queen Quality beat W. L. Douglass 5 to 1. Blowers do not seem to be in the Douglass lineup any longer.

Pere Marquette was beaten by the H. B. Fenno team. Shepard, their regular pitcher, was back on the job, but he did not do as well as Fitzgerald, the old Lexington High pitcher. Waite is hitting as hard as ever.

The Riversides of Cambridge are due here tomorrow and we will have to travel some to win from that team, as they have only been beaten by Fitchburg this season, and Fitchburg is composed of all N. E. League players.

Riversides played a 13 inning game with Plymouth Cordage Saturday and won 5 to 6.

SCHOOL NOTES.

July 11, 1917.
The Summer Review School opened in the Prince School building Monday morning at 8.15 with an attendance of eighty-five, distributed as follows: Grade 6, 6; Grade 7, 35; Grade 8, 23; Grade 9, 21. Daily sessions will be from 8.15 to 11.45 a. m. for six weeks to Friday, August 17, the time being given to arithmetic, English, geography, history, and spelling. Pupils will be required to attend only for subjects in which they did not obtain passing marks during the school year 1916-17. Provision will be made for supervised study in each subject during school hours so that there will be no home study. In each subject the work of the school year 1916-17 will be divided into six equal parts, each of which will be given one week of intensive review. Registration comprises four groups of pupils:
1. Those, 48 in number, whose promotion depends on the work done in the summer school. These are usually down in one or two subjects only and by persistent work are likely to gain promotion.
2. Pupils, 26, who were not promoted in June 1917. These pupils will be benefited by attending summer school and some of them will secure promotion.
3. Pupils, 10, who have been regularly promoted but who wish to enter the following grade with a momentum derived from summer review, especially in subjects which they find difficult.
4. Special pupil, 1.
Mrs. Anna T. O'Sullivan of the Wadleigh Grammar School is principal, with Miss Mary H. Barr of the Wadleigh Grammar School and Miss Edna M. Hatch of the Washington School as assistants.
A class of women has been formed to take a course of dietetics given by the Department of University Extension of the State Board of Education. It will meet in the Prince School building, Monday and Wednesday mornings from 10.30 a. m. to 12 noon. Instruction will be given by Miss Marion Gage.
The Little Mothers' Class instructed by Miss Stevens, will end on Thursday of this week. It has been very greatly enjoyed by some twenty girls with small brothers and sisters at home.

BOOKS WANTED FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

It is desirable that the thousands of young men assembled in the various camps should find available for their free hours a supply of good reading matter. The Free Public Library Commission and the Library have provided books for guardsmen but many more books are needed, not only at various points in our vicinity but also at the large training camp at Ayer.
The library invites the citizens of our town to contribute whatever books they can spare for this purpose. The books should be readable. For old and uninteresting books there will be little use, but among the soldiers will be found men of varying tastes and almost any current book of general interest will be likely to find readers. Good novels and stories of adventure will be in demand and books of history, biography, travel, essays, science and especially books about the war, in short, almost any book that appeals to the average reader will be acceptable. Elementary text books for learning the French language and easy French readers will also be welcome.
The library desires not only to assist local guardsmen but also to help in furnishing books for the large national training camp at Ayer. The library will serve as a clearing house. Anyone willing to contribute books for this purpose is invited to bring them or send them to the library.

COUNTRY CLUB PLAY.

At the Winchester Country Club Saturday afternoon the following qualified for the Captain Crane Cup: Claude M. Crafts, R. S. Dunbar, B. K. Stephenson, R. M. Hibsham, H. T. Bond, F. A. Cummings, E. Abbot Bradlee, Irvin Hilton, Thomas R. Bateman, Nelson H. Seelye, Alfred M. Bond, Harry A. Norton, W. H. Mason, Rev. Murray W. Dewart, C. P. Whorf and George M. Brooks.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

A meeting of the board was held on Monday at the Prince School. The work of the various committees is progressing as usual. Money was voted for the work of the knitting committee.
Hospital comfort bags, when finished, may be left at the Woman's Exchange, addressed to Mrs. Elinor Hodges. For sample or directions telephone 287-J. An urgent appeal for kits of all kinds comes from boys at Newport and other stations. Our society desires to fill the need of the Winchester boys first and it is earnestly hoped that many, wishing to give some service, will aid in making and filling these kits. Call Mrs. James E. Corey, Mystic Valley Parkway, Tel. Win. 444, or Mrs. Charles M. DeLoria, Mt. Vernon street, Win. 583-W.
It is probable that the Home Economics Committee will arrange for a "Two-Day School" in canning in the near future.
A member of our branch recommends the steaming of vegetables. She says:
"In April we steamed, very successfully, the old carrots, onions and parsnips. They were much sweeter and took between two and three hours. We also steamed old potatoes. They were good and so were the skins. It made the potato more mealy than when boiled.
Now we are steaming new potatoes ¾ to 1 hour, new beets 1 hour, new carrots 1 hour, asparagus ½ hour, spinach ½ hour, beet greens 1 hour.
All are delicious, the potatoes decidedly better and the skins hardly noticeable. The asparagus has a stronger flavor.
A little juice from the vegetable drops into the kettle of boiling water below the steamer, but not much.
My steamer is a large tin affair with holes in the bottom and a cover that fits tight. It fits the top of the kettle that holds the boiling water.
I think any pan with holes in the bottom, fitted over a kettle and provided with a tight cover could be used.
I have not tried meat or fish, but shall try a piece of bottom of the round soon.
I recommend this method of cooking and it seems as if it must save all the nutriment of the vegetables."
The Middlesex County Convention of the Special Aid will be held on Wednesday, July 18th, at the Cambridge Latin School, Cambridge. May be reached by Broadway or Cambridge street cars.
Mrs. MacLean will speak on Canteen Service and there will be other prominent speakers. An exhibition of work done by the various branches will be shown.
A canteen lunch will be served at a nominal price. You are urged to attend this convention and it is hoped that all who can do so will telephone Win. 193-J, before Tuesday, July 17th, that Winchester may have a large delegation.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

The Finance Committee of the Hospital ask one and all to aid them in their Paper Fund. Spring is here and the annual cleaning time ought to swell the harvest. The amount realized individually is small but if all would co-operate a goodly sum might be turned over yearly to the Hospital Maintenance Fund. Rags, bottles, rubber, old iron, books, magazines, newspapers, etc., all are acceptable. Join this good work. Telephone one of the committee today. Mrs. O. C. Sanborn, Tel. 120; Mrs. W. I. Palmer, Tel. 151; Mrs. F. N. Kerr, Tel. 27; Mrs. M. F. Brown, Tel. 405-M; Mrs. W. A. Bradley, Tel. 702-W and Mrs. W. A. Lefavour, Tel. 663-W.

TAKEN GOODYEAR AGENCY.

The Oscar Hedtler Company of Main street has taken on the service station for the Goodyear Company. This has been done at the request of patrons, and is in line with the general policy of the Hedtler Company in giving Winchester people complete service. The company is now carrying a full line of all Goodyear products, including tires, tubes and accessories.

Education.

It is, no doubt, a very laudable effort, in modern teaching, to render as much as possible of what the young are required to learn easy and interesting. But when this principle is pushed to the length of not requiring them to learn anything but what has been made easy and interesting, one of the chief objects of education is sacrificed.—John Stuart Mill.

You May Rejoice.

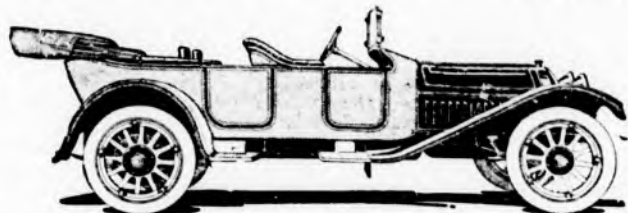

A colonial dinner table contained a roast turkey at one end of the table, a roast pig at the other and a sizeable baked ham in the middle. But cheer up, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, you kicker at the high cost of living. The dinner guests had to pay $1 each for ammunition with which to fight off the Indians on the way to the feast.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

At the home of Mrs. J. H. Hefflon last Friday was held the first of the summer meetings of the local union for the purpose of doing relief work and to provide comforts for the soldiers and sailors in camp and at the front. While the members worked busily on the various articles, Mrs. Holbrook Lowell, who has been identified with the surgical dressings committee for the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, spoke of the work done by that committee, showing samples of the needed articles and also explaining many details essential to efficient activity. A good number was present and those who came were eager to continue the meetings. The meeting this week will be held with Mrs. Riddle, on Myrtle terrace, and the one next week will be at the home of Mrs. C. H. Hamilton. Changes in the places of meeting are unavoidable, but those who wish to come and who may be in doubt are asked to inquire of any of the officers.

Members and friends are again reminded that the need of old cloth of either cotton or linen is very great and even articles almost worthless, if clean, may be used. It is not necessary that all be white or even light colored as for some purposes dark pieces will do admirably. As stated last week such cloth may be sent to Mrs. Hamilton's, 50 Lincoln street.

Prohibition continues to be a leading topic for discussion, not only in Washington, but also in Massachusetts, where hearings before the Constitutional Convention committees have been held. It is impossible to say what will be the outcome but it is no time for temperance folk to follow a laissez faire policy. Now is the time to take every step to help the good work along.

A MOTOR CAR BACKED BY IDEALS.

"The growth of any business depends on the ideals back of it," says D. C. Briggs, manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company's Retail store.

"The automobile itself must not only be meritorious but the service policy back of it must be such as to meet with the approval of an exacting public.

"The Chevrolet Motor Company appreciates the fact that when a man buys an automobile he is making one of the important investments of a life time. The purchaser, therefore, looks upon his investment with great seriousness, and has a right to do so. We all want the full equivalent of our money.

"We hold that Chevrolet reputation is so important to us, and we want the good will to be so generous and so general, that every effort is made to keep every Chevrolet owner satisfied.

"Take for instance the Chevrolet Motor Company of Boston. As a matter of fact, we have what might be called a miniature Chevrolet factory here. We have adequate space and service stock. Each man is a thorough Chevrolet mechanic. We carry on hand at all times a sufficient quantity of parts for any emergency.

"Chevrolet Model 'Four-Ninety' is proving a favorite everywhere. Its power and completeness appeal to those who want a car of minimum price, having so many attributes of higher price cars."

SPARKLERS SET HAY AFIRE.

Children playing with sparklers resulted in an alarm from box 31 last Friday evening, a load of hay being set on fire at the barn of the James J. Fitzgerald Contracting Co. on Washington street. The hay wagon was standing at the entrance to the barn waiting to be unloaded when it was ignited, and through the quick work of Ernest Beaton of Hose 1, who lives nearby, and Mr. Fitzgerald, who ran out lines of garden hose, the fire was out when the department arrived. The damage was slight.

HAROLD FULTZ AT ANNAPOLIS.

Mr. Harold F. Fultz, who enlisted in the Naval Reserves upon the declaration of war and was commissioned as an Ensign, left last week for a ten weeks' intensive training course at Annapolis. Ensign Fultz previously commanded the coast patrol boat Gurkha, on which craft H. Wray Rohman and Horace Martin of this town served for a time. At the conclusion of his course at Annapolis Mr. Fultz will probably go on active duty.

Now is the time to have your car overhauled by competent mechanics. Prices reasonable. Mystic Valley Garage Co. Jan 9, 17

THE BIBLE NEGLECTED.

Though Still the Best Seller, It Is Not Read as It Used to Be.

Although the Bible still leads all other best sellers, few read it. People still present Bibles to brides and grooms. People still present Bibles to children. Colporteurs still roam the country handing out Bibles among the villagers. Associations of devout enthusiasts still put Bibles in hotels. But the Bible is seldom read aloud in the home. And the type of American who daily reads his Bible in secret from a sense of duty is becoming more and more rare.

Quite apart from its moral and religious bearings, the neglect of the Bible involves a cultural handicap worth noting. It involves a cramping of the popular vocabulary, as no other literary masterpiece is such a well of English pure and undiluted. It involves a dulling of literary perceptions, as literature abounds in Biblical allusions which every reader of the Bible instantly understands, but which only readers of the Bible ever can. Finally it involves a failure to respond to many a good joke, as an astonishing percentage of the best quips are nothing more or less than Biblical allusions.

It is mainly useless, we realize, to propose a course of self enforced Bible reading for adults. We insist, however, that parents who want their children to get the most enjoyment out of life may well see to it that their children develop an acquaintance with the Bible. It is the basis of keen speech. It is the basis of intelligent reading. It is the basis of culture. And by culture we mean a capacity for enjoying the fine and beautiful things of this world and the capacity for producing some.—Chicago Tribune.

Fright and the Hair.

The hair does stand on end under certain conditions, because there is a little muscle down at the root of each hair that will make each hair stand up straight when this muscle pulls a certain way. It is difficult to say just how these muscles are caused to act in this way when we are frightened. We know that when thoroughly frightened our hair will sometimes stand straight up, and we know that it is this muscle at the root of each hair that makes it possible, says the Book of Wonders, but why it is that a big scare will make this muscle act this way we do not as yet know.

Platinum Retorts.

Platinum is used directly in the making of munitions of war and indirectly in all sorts of operations that are incidental to warlike operations.

To cite but one example, in the manufacture of condite perfectly pure sulphuric acid has to be used, and sulphuric acid can only be perfectly purified in platinum retorts, each of which, by the way, represents a value of $50,000 to $75,000.

A Lot to Know.

When Disraeli was prime minister of England a good looking young man applied to him for a government position. "I know, sir," said the applicant wistfully, "how little I know."

"Dear me," said Disraeli, "as much as that? I haven't got half that distance yet."

FOUGHT THE DRAFT

The Scene In New York City During the Riots of 1863.

A BRIEF REIGN OF TERROR.

For Five Days the Mobs Opposed to Conscription Raged Through the Streets, and More Than a Thousand Persons Were Killed or Wounded.

During the draft riots in the war days of 1863 New York city was in the grip of a reign of terror and bloodshed for nearly a week. Conscription was begun on the morning of Tuesday, July 13, in a four story brick building at Third avenue and Forty-sixth street, under the supervision of Provost Marshal Jenkins. Assistance and protection had been promised, but no one came to help him and his little force. Drafting commenced at 9 o'clock, and a big crowd stood outside. A stone was hurled through a window at 10:30 o'clock, and soon many more were battering against the walls. Terrorized, the police and draft officers fled to the street, where many of them were roughly handled.

The rioters rushed into the draft office and threw the enrollment books out of the windows to the crowd, which tore the records to shreds. The draft wheel, chairs and tables were smashed, piled in the middle of the room, and a match was applied. This building was one of the many burned, the aggregate loss by incendiary fires being estimated at $2,000,000.

For negroes in the city it was a day of doom, the mob looking upon them as one of the chief causes of the draft. Many of them were killed and wounded, some being shot, others beaten to death and still others hanged to trees and lampposts. The Colored Orphan asylum was burned. Near Fulton market boys killed three negroes and left their bodies on the pier near Fulton ferry entrance.

So suddenly did the shock come that the police and limited force of militia in town could not resist it. There was a hurried conference between Major General Wool, ex-Governor Morgan, General Anthony and Brigadier General Harvey Brown; but, owing to the absence of Governor Horatio Seymour, whose opinion was wanted, martial law was not declared. Brigadier General Brown, however, took command of the troops in the city and summoned from nearby points all available soldiers. Mayor George Opyke issued an anti-riot proclamation.

During the afternoon a mob swept along Fifth avenue, destroying property. They were ready to burn Mayor Opyke's home, but Judge Barnard saved it by telling the crowd the only way to resist the draft was by bringing it before the court. He promised he would issue a writ of habeas corpus for any drafted man for whom application should be made. In all the mobs were many infuriated women, whose actions were often worse than those of the men.

Horace Greeley, who was a particular object of aversion to the rioters, started, as usual, from his home in Nineteenth street to go on a Fourth avenue car to the Tribune office. Friends told him of his danger, and he spent the day in Windust's restaurant, at Park row and Ann street, and went home at night in a closed carriage while mobs were demanding his blood.

Governor Seymour issued a proclamation the next day calling on all citizens to stand by the constituted authorities and assist in maintaining order. Rioting, however, continued throughout the day and night, the police, soldiers and mobs having many fatal encounters.

On the third day the rioting continued, and many of the mob and the city's defenders were killed or wounded. The federal authorities postponed the draft, but trouble did not cease at once, as many of the rioters thought the action was a governmental trick to gain time. The fourth day brought further disorders in New York and Brooklyn. Archbishop Hughes addressed a crowd in front of his home, urging them to keep the peace. His plea had a soothing effect.

On the fifth day fighting ceased and order was partly restored. A heavy storm also dampened the ardor of the tired rioters. General James B. Fry, provost marshal general of the United States, issued an order that drafting would be resumed. Brigadier General E. R. S. Canby assumed command of the Federal troops in the city, relieving General Brown. A roundup of ringleaders among the rioters followed, and many were arrested. By July 30 order was completely restored.

More than 1,000 persons were killed or wounded during the rioting, among them Colonel O'Brien of the Eleventh New York Volunteers, then in the city on recruiting duty. He ventured out in uniform after having conspicuously opposed the mob. He was seized, beaten, dragged through the streets and finally hung into his own back yard, where he died.—New York Sun.

Repotting Plants.

Repotting plants becomes necessary at intervals from two considerations. The plant uses up the available fertility in the soil and fills the pot with roots. In repotting plants it is well to shake off whatever earth can be separated without breaking and injuring the roots. Then water and shade for a few days.

Fame is something which must be won; honor only something which must not be lost.—Schopenhauer.

It has been a matter of comment lately that there have been more persons who have had narrow escapes from being struck by trains at the centre crossing than have been noticed in a long time.

Owing to sewer construction connecting the new block at the north end of the crossing on Main street, Woburn passengers on the electric road were obliged to change cars and walk across the railroad this week—a rather dangerous condition.

Judging from observation the new schedule on the steam railroad is not working just as nicely as it might where the meeting points of trains are concerned. In this town several times a day trains are held up either side of the crossing owing to main line and Woburn Branch trains meeting. This is a new condition not previously experienced, and certainly adds nothing in the way of eliminating the dangers of our dead-end grade crossing.

Winchester appears to be furnishing its usual quota of vacationists, and the number who have left town for the warm weather seems to be fully as large as in previous years. According to reports, the beach and mountain hotels, which opened the season far below previous years in bookings, are now well patronized, and indications point to a prosperous summer. Notwithstanding this, there are many people who are staying at home, many of them preferring to take their outing by auto.

In building new streets the Selectmen are not consistent. This may not apply to the present Board, but yet it happens among the different Boards. A year or so ago, a street over a thousand feet in length and containing but two houses, was accepted in its very rough condition by the town and built by the Selectmen at an outlay of $500 or over. There is an old street in the centre of the town containing a large number of houses, and they have been there for years, and yet when abutters asked to have the street rebuilt the present Board replied that it would do so provided the expense was paid by them. There should be some hard and fast rule regarding building streets. All should be served alike.

WALTER M. RICHARDSON
ORDAINED.

Rev. Howard J. Chidley Preached
At Exercises Wednesday Evening.

The ordination of Walter M. Richardson, son of Mrs. Charles M. Richardson of this town, as pastor of the Free Baptist Church at Melvin Village, N. H., took place at that church on Wednesday evening. Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town, preached the sermon, and there was a large attendance of prominent ministers at the exercises.

Rev. Mr. Richardson has been acting pastor of the Free Baptist Church at Melvin Village since last November, previous to which time he made his home with his mother in this town. In its summary of findings the State Council on Sacred Orders reports:

At a session of State Council on Sacred Orders, under authority of the New Hampshire Yearly Meeting of Free Baptists, held at Meredith, June 11, 1917, Walter M. Richardson was present as a candidate for Sacred Orders. The request for action, issued from the Melvin Village Free Baptist Church, of which Mr. Richardson is a member and acting pastor, was endorsed by Wolfeboro Quarterly Meeting, of which the church is a constituent, and reached the Council by due process. Mr. Richardson was unanimously approved for ordination to the Gospel Ministry.

Whitney Machine Co. of 667 Main street. Portable steel building for storage purposes at same address.

GEORGE E. FOWLE LAID AT REST.

Prominent Woburn Resident Leaves Daughter Here.

With the casket wrapped in the loving folds of Old Glory which was served so faithfully by him in life, funeral services were held Sunday for George E. Fowle of Woburn, past commander of Post 161, G. A. R. and one of the best known residents of Woburn.

The deceased was born in Reading, July 4, 1837, the son of Edward and Deborah (Parker) Fowle. His parents moved to Woburn in 1851 and he received his education in the public schools of Woburn and Lowell. He concluded his studies at the Warren Academy which at that time took the place of a High School.

In 1861 he entered into a partnership with Samuel Tenney, the firm doing business at South Russell street, Boston. When President Lincoln's call for volunteers came however, he made up his mind that he would not wait to be drafted but enlisted in Company K of the 39th Regiment. His war record is an excellent one. Having been wounded on February 7, 1865, he was discharged because of disability on May 18.

Mr. Fowle took an active interest in civic affairs. He served on the first Board of Public Works when it was established in Woburn in 1898, his term expiring in four years. He became well known as a carpenter in Woburn and many of the stores on Main street today were erected under his direction. His conscientious service made him a valued workman and he was continually in demand.

He was married on July 13, 1865 to Elizabeth Frances Caldwell, who died in March, 1883. Seven children survive, including Mrs. Franklin E. Barnes of this town, and there are eleven grand-children, including Frances and Warren F. Barnes.

A large number of friends attended the funeral services yesterday and there was a host of beautiful flowers. The G. A. R. burial service was conducted by Post 161, G. A. R. under the leadership of Commander Edwin F. Wyer and a delegation was present from Post 33, G. A. R.

The bearers were: Messrs. Willard K. Parker, C. Fred W. and John Fowle; Franklin E. Barnes, C. H. Jaquith.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR CHARLTON TRIP.

At the meeting of the William Parkman Lodge A. F. and A. M., held Tuesday evening, further arrangements were made for the automobile journey, which will be made to the Masonic Home at Charlton by the members of the Lodge next month. There is a lodge room in the Home and it has been decided to have a meeting there for the benefit of the old Masons who live in the institution.

The Winchester Masons will meet in their Lodge Room early in the morning, and will adjourn to Charlton where unusually entertaining exercises will be provided with J. B. Benton, Master of the Lodge, in charge. The number of prominent Masons in the State have signified their desire to participate in the excursion so that the outing will be a notable one. The day is Saturday, August 4th, and it is probable that the start will be made from Winchester about 9 o'clock. P. B. Metcalf is Chairman of Committee on arrangements.

REGENT THEATRE.

"All Man," latest World-Brady picture, and coming to the Regent Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday presents the big favorite, Robert Warwick, in a role which just suits him to a "T". His portrayal of the care-free millionaire's son in the early part of the play will give you many a laugh. When he is angered and shamed into starting out and making a name for himself, your sympathies will all be with him, and you will rejoice with his father over the decisive manner in which he proves his real worth.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to our friends for their kind sympathy and for the flowers received at the death of our brother.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The Board of Health report the following cases of contagious diseases for the week ending July 11: Whooping cough 1, Chicken pox 1, Scarlet fever 1.

The Cure for Grief.

The only cure for grief is action.—George Henry Lewis.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

July 9, 1917.

The Board met at 7.30 p. m., all present.

The records of the meeting of July 24 were read and approved.

Fire Department Reports, 1917: The reports of the Chief of the Fire Department for the months of May and June were received and ordered filed.

Town Hall Engagements, 1917: The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, Mass., was granted the use of the Town Hall for Tuesday evening, November 27, 1917, for the purpose of conducting a lecture.

Police Dept. Regular Officers: The Board received the resignation of Mr. Robert B. Davenport as Police Officer of the Town of Winchester, his resignation to take effect at once.

Appointment of Town Officers, Fence Viewers: Messrs. Frederick L. Waldmyer, 11 Webster street and William A. Nicholson, 13 Thompson street nominated July 9, 1917, were appointed to serve as fence viewers until December 31, 1917.

Police Dept., Appointments: A letter was received from the Civil Service Commission addressed to Mr. Metcalf of the Board stating that the Commission will advertise and hold a competitive examination of applicants for police service in Winchester at the earliest practical date. Under the suspension of its rules the Board voted to provisionally appoint Edward F. Shea as a Police Officer of the Town of Winchester at a salary of $3.25 per day, pending the result of the police examination for the Town of Winchester.

Clerical Assistance: Under suspension of rules the Board appointed Miss Alice G. Foley, Assistant General Clerk.

Street Lights, 1917: A report was received from the Town Engineer in regard to improving the street lighting conditions in North Main street, beginning at Park street and extending to the Woburn line. The Board voted to have these proposed changes made in the lights in North Main street beginning at Park street and extending to the Woburn line. The clerk was instructed to notify the Town Engineer and the Town Engineer to take up the matter with the Edison Company.

Side Walk Pumps, 1917: The Board voted to grant Mr. Robert W. Deane, Converse place, permission to install a swinging arm from his garage, now being built, the installation of this swinging arm to be in accordance with the specifications drawn up by the Town Engineer. It being the intention of the Board not to build any sidewalk from Main street to the new garage, Mr. Deane's application for permission to erect a sidewalk pump could therefore not be granted.

Bay State Street Railway Company: The Board voted to request the Bay State Railway Company to replace its car stops at Henningway street and Canal street.

Sidewalk Pumps, 1917: The Board voted not to grant petition of the Oscar Hedtler Company for permission to store gasoline and to erect a sidewalk pump at 536 Main street.

Arlington Gas Light Company: The Board voted to grant the Arlington Gas Light Company permission to lay service pipe as follows: C. W. Parker, Jr., 43 Wildwood Street; to be renewed, C. Larson, 981 Main street.

Pole Locations, 1917: Kenwin road.

Ordered: Notice having been given and a public hearing held as provided by law, that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, be and hereby is granted locations for a permission to erect and maintain poles, with the necessary wires and fixtures thereon, upon, along and across certain public ways in said town, as requested in its petition dated June 22, 1917, namely: Kenwin road, westerly from Washington street—5 poles.

Street Lights, 1917 Ordered: A letter was received from the Postal Telegraph Company in regard to placing the new lights ordered by the Board on its poles on High and Ridge streets. This matter was referred to Mr. Jewett of the Board.

Swanton Street Bridge: The Clerk was instructed to send the following letter to the Boston & Maine Railroad in regard to placing of appropriate walks on each side of Swanton street bridge.

Voted: That this Board believes the condition of Swanton street bridge over your railroad is dangerous to foot travel, and should be remedied by the construction of appropriate walks entirely separate from that portion of the bridge devoted to vehicular travel. The Board request that the railroad give this their immediate attention.

Street Lights, 1917, General Subject: A letter was received from E. L. Phipps of Cabot street in regard to changing the location of an electric light on Cabot street. This matter was referred to the Committee on Street Lights for report.

Mr. Laraway of the Board made a report in regard to the request of Bertha L. Bradford for a shield to be placed on electric light on Glen road.

Adjourned at 10.50 p. m.
George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

FLOWERS FOR THE SHUT-INS.

The season has come once more for flowers to go from the Winchester gardens into the city homes that are flowerless and that are in hot, crowded streets. If flowers are sent to the Winchester Station any Friday morning in July or August before nine o'clock, they go into Boston to the North End Union, and are then carried by the children into the homes of those who need and love their beauty and cheer. Let us pile our baskets high and bring pleasure into many homes. Don't forget, Friday mornings.

FOOD AND WAR

Shortage in Raw Materials Gives Rise to Alarm Among Manufacturing Interests—America Must Apply Every Resource to Meet World's Demand for Food—Labor Saving Machines and Man Power on the Farms Vital Factors in Economic Crisis—Appeal for Government Action.

Government action, ensuring the farmers of America ample supplies of farm implements and competent farm labor is vitally necessary to this country's future participation in the war, declare the manufacturers of farming tools and machinery in the United States. This action must be immediate and effective, they say, or in 1918 the United States will fail to produce foodstuffs necessary to feed the civil population of our allies and to keep the allied armies in fighting trim.

This declaration is made in a public statement by the National Implement and Vehicle Association, whose members manufacture most of the farming implements used in and exported from the United States. It is the Association's answer to an anxious inquiry about reports of a prospective implement shortage addressed to it in behalf of the country's farming interests by ex-Governor W. D. Hoard of Wisconsin, one of the leaders of American agriculture and publisher of Hoard's Dairyman. The statement, which is signed by Charles S. Benningham, Chairman of the Association's Executive Committee, says:

Unless prompt action is taken by the Government, our country will make the same mistakes that have resulted in compelling our allies to appeal to us to save them from famine. Unless we protect the production of labor-saving farm machinery and the supply of skilled farm labor we, too, must soon face a famine of food supplies.

Without such action as is here suggested and urged, the farmers of the United States will not have enough machines or men in 1918 to meet the demands upon them.

"We are now confronted by shortages of raw material and factory labor that will begin to be manifest in shortages of certain lines of farm machinery this fall and will result in serious shortages in many vital lines next year. Stocks on hand in important kinds of tools and machines are smaller than in normal years, because of earlier scarcity of factory labor and a rapidly tightening security of all raw materials.

Farmers have deferred during the last three years the replacing of old and badly worn tools and machines. Now, confronted by the practical certainty that the war is to continue indefinitely, with attendant assurance of a heavy demand and high prices for all their products, and by an inevitable shortage of farm labor, they cannot put off longer replacements of worn out machines and the additions to equipment necessary to increase acreage and production.

"It is also essential in meeting the demand of the farmers for implements that there shall be preference in transportation for raw materials to the factories and for finished goods from the factories to the farms.

"For the last ten years farm labor has been more and more difficult to secure, and now with an enormous increase in the demand for labor in munitions factories, and the withdrawal of many young men from productive occupations, there is bound to be a shortage of farm labor such as this country has never known. In Kansas alone a vast number of fertile acres on which the wheat crop failed will lie idle this summer, chiefly for lack of labor and partly through lack of machines to replant to corn.

"We regard it as vital to keep on the farms the men now there who know the business, especially the men trained in the use of labor-saving machinery. It would be wasteful and foolish to let them go and afterward try to replace them with unskilled men.

"We seek no advantage for our industry over any other, but we realize and we want the public to realize that without this product and without sufficient labor the farmers of the United States cannot increase or even maintain their production of foodstuffs next year. To avert the calamity that such a condition will surely produce, our industry and the farming industry which it chiefly supports must be put upon the same preferred basis as the making of war munitions, even if other less vital industries suffer thereby for materials and men.

"These are the measures that we declare to be vital to the feeding of this nation and its allies next year:

"1. That the manufacture of farm materials be given equal preference with the manufacture of war munitions as regards supplies of necessary raw materials.

"2. That service to the country in farm machinery factories be considered of equal importance with service in munition making plants, Government or private.

"3. That labor on the farms be considered as of equal importance with the production of war munitions.

"4. That the raw materials for farming machinery and the finished goods be given equal preference by the transportation agencies of the country with munitions of war.

"These measures must be taken immediately to be effective, because the use and demand for farming machinery are seasonal. We must have right now materials and the men to make the farm machinery that the farmer at home and abroad must use this Fall and next Spring. Delay in action will be as disastrous as failure to act at all."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

involves the quarantining of sick persons and of contacts in properly screened quarters, and the disinfection of discharges from the nose, mouth, intestine, etc. It is assumed that the disease is not usually contagious after the first four weeks except in those who may remain as "carriers" of the infection. The incubation period, or the interval after exposure before an infected person shows signs of being sick, is generally regarded as being not over two weeks in most cases. This is therefore the length of time during which persons who have been in contact with the disease should be isolated.

Infantile paralysis, especially during an epidemic, is a much more common disease than is generally recognized. Statistics in the past have been almost wholly based on the number of cases that have shown paralysis, but recent investigations indicate that there are at least as many more cases in which paralysis never occurs. The recognitions of these milder cases without paralysis is extremely important because they may be a more significant element in the spread of the disease than the paralyzed cases. Instances of the mild, non-paralytic type of the disease are often referred to as "missed" or "abortive" cases. It is very difficult to make the diagnosis of infantile paralysis in the absence of paralysis. The disease frequently begins suddenly with malaise, fever and vomiting. The children are listless, irritable and show a distinct desire to be left alone. They do not want to be picked up and fondled, since all movements, and especially those which bend the spine, are painful. Except to the most experienced there are few symptoms which are particularly suggestive, and therefore if infantile paralysis is prevalent all children who are even trivially indisposed should be seen by a doctor. A reasonably definite diagnosis of infantile paralysis, during the early stage of the disease, can usually be made by means of the examination of the spinal fluid. The spinal fluid can be obtained by means of lumbar puncture, which is a process requiring some technical skill, and should be attempted only by a specially trained physician. After the onset of paralysis the diagnosis is usually comparatively simple.

According to the statistics of past epidemics the mortality of infantile paralysis varies between 10 and 20 per cent of those who become paralyzed. Many of the paralyzed cases are only slightly affected, and make a rapid and complete recovery. A large proportion improve more slowly, and, although not recovering entirely, are able to carry on a comparatively normal life. Only a very small group of patients remain seriously crippled, provided the best methods of treatment are utilized.

While infantile paralysis in its severe form is a grave affliction it should be remembered that not more than one-half the persons who are infected with the disease ever show any signs of paralysis at all. It is therefore evident that infantile paralysis is not so overwhelming a menace to the individual or to the community as it is popularly supposed to be.

In the care of infantile paralysis the measures for quarantine already referred to are of primary importance in order that the spread of the disease may be limited as much as possible. Absolute rest and the prevention of contractions or deformities are essential during the acute stage of the disease. There is evidence in favor of the fact that lumbar puncture and the administration of immune serum may be useful in the earliest stage, but drugs and patent medicines have not been shown to have any value. For the best results in the individual patient, and for the protection of the community, the acute cases should be cared for in a hospital, if removal may be safely undertaken. The after-treatment of the paralysis, which may require prolonged and skillful treatment, can be well carried out under proper medical supervision in the home.

Since the foregoing article was written, at the Thirty-second Conference of State and Provincial Boards of Health, held in Washington, the following committee report on infantile paralysis was unanimously adopted. At this meeting more than forty States and territories were represented.

There is a noticeable tendency toward shortening the period of isolation, in that three weeks from the onset of the disease is given as the duration of such period, which is somewhat shorter than the period of four weeks recently suggested by the Department, and much shorter than the earlier periods of six and eight weeks formerly recommended by others. This change is based on a growing belief that the infection is chiefly transmissible before or during the acute stage of the disease.

Report of Committee on Method for Control of Poliomyelitis

Your committee has had the opportunity of examining the epidemiological data prepared in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Minnesota, and the winter epidemic in West Virginia, during the year 1916-17. Former statements relative to incubation period of poliomyelitis are confirmed, viz.: four to fourteen days, but commonly seven days. The opinion is also strengthened that this disease is widely prevalent, and is generally of the non-paralytic type. The opinion is also strengthened that the infectious agent is transmitted chiefly by contact with a patient or carrier; however, the exact incident of such contact is often difficult to determine on account of unrecognized forms of the disease. Your committee offers the following suggestions—minimum requirements—for the control of poliomyelitis:

Isolation

Isolation is a useful measure for limiting the spread of this disease. It is often, however, without demonstrable effect because of the general prevalence of unrecognized cases and carriers.

Because of (a) the numerous instances where diagnosis is not made until late, so that the patient is not isolated for several weeks after the date of onset and yet no apparent secondary cases appear.

(b) The fact that the longest period observed where a primary case was apparently the source of infection is only ten days.

(c) Epidemiological experience does not justify a long period of isolation.

(d) Of the satisfactory experience in at least one city and one State with the use of a two weeks' period of isolation for all known cases of poliomyelitis over a period of years, your committee recommends—

First.—That an isolation period for a patient of not less than two weeks nor more than three weeks from onset be required unless the temperature has not returned to normal in the meantime.

Second.—That children of the same household in contact with a patient be restricted from places of public assembly for a period of fourteen days from last date of contact, as determined by the health officer.

Third.—That an adult of the household, if the patient is properly isolated, may continue his vocation, provided it does not bring him into contact with children at any time.

Disinfection

Your committee recommends that, first, the discharges from the nose, throat and bowels of the patient be disinfected promptly; second, the caretaker shall wash her hands with soap and hot water promptly after handling said discharges; third, the caretaker shall wash her hands similarly before leaving the room occupied by the patient; fourth, isolation shall be terminated by a thorough washing of entire body and hair of the patient, and the room cleaned with soap and hot water, aired and sunned; fifth, sick-room precautions should include the usual attention to cleaning and disinfection of eating utensils, personal and bed clothing, rugs, door knobs and other things handled by the patient or caretaker.

Precautions for Physicians and Nurses

The committee recommends that unless a special covering and gloves be worn (a) the physician and nurse shall so handle the patient that discharges shall not soil their clothing, special care being taken to prevent droplet infection; (b) the physician and nurse shall thoroughly wash their hands before leaving the premises.

Hospitalization

The committee approves the removal to hospitals of patients affected with poliomyelitis when proper isolation and satisfactory care for the patient cannot be secured in the home; but the committee believes that during the early stage of the disease the patient needs rest in bed, and transfer to a hospital may be detrimental to his welfare.

Other Suggested Measures Designed To Control the Disease

(a) The committee does not recommend the use of travel certificates, but travel and contact with children should be discouraged.

(b) Surveillance for persons coming from infected districts, in the opinion of your committee, is not necessary, unless the person has been definitely exposed to infection.

(c) The most effective agency in the control of this disease is the employment of public health nurses, who, in co-operation with the physician, will teach sick-room precautions, the necessity for rest in bed, and the need of proper support for affected parts.

(d) Expert diagnosticians should be provided and the use of lumbar puncture urged.

(e) Food, especially such as is consumed uncooked, should be considered as a possible means of transferring the infectious agent, and appropriate measures should be instituted to protect the public during an outbreak.

(f) Where poliomyelitis occurs in a school, your committee advises that the school be not closed, but that daily medical supervision be instituted.

(g) Efficient screening and the use of approved insecticides should be employed so that insects shall not have access to the patient or his excretions.

(h) Household pets should be excluded from the sick room.

(i) In the presence of poliomyelitis a search for, and a careful examination of, all ill children should be made. All children having fever should be isolated pending the diagnosis.

(j) Prompt reporting of all recognized or suspected cases, personally or by telegraph or by telephone, is essential, in addition to the written report required by law.

(k) Weekly reports by State and territorial health authorities should be made to the United States Public Health Service.

Respectfully submitted, Committee.

STOLEN AUTO RECOVERED.

The Winchester police recovered an automobile stolen from Revere Beach on the night before the 4th in a sand bank at the rear of the Winchester Highlands railroad station this week. The car, a Buick touring car of this year's make, had been run so far into the sand that it had sunk to its wheel hubs.

The car was owned by Mrs. Ada Lintzer of Boston and is thought to have been stolen by three young men. The party evidently mistook the road to the sand pit as a highway and did not discover their mistake until they were stalled. After using up all the gasoline and oil in endeavoring to get out, they abandoned the car.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

Lizzie A. Pratt has been appointed as administratrix of the estate of her sister, Jennie E. Webster of Woburn, who died January 19, 1917, by the Probate Court. She has given a bond of $500. The estate is valued at $250, all in personal property.

George K. Huston has been appointed as administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Frances A. Huston, who died February 22, 1917, by the Probate Court. He has given a bond of $1,000. The estate is valued at $500, all in personal property.

William E. Cumings has been appointed as administrator of the estate of his son, Harold H. Cumings, who died April 18, 1917, by the Probate Court. He has given a bond of $2,000. The estate is valued at $840, all in personal property.

George Kirkpatrick is named as executor of the will of Lyman H. Johnson of Everett, who died April 23, 1917. The estate is valued at $3,700; $3,500 in real estate and $200 in personal property.

Mary G. Bicknell of Winchester, is an heir-at-law to the estate of her father, Edward E. Bacon of Arlington, who died May 22, 1917. No valuation of the estate was filed.

WILL TOUR TO WINNEPE-SAUKEE.

A party of fourteen young people will leave here in autos tomorrow for the Long Island House at Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H. They will stay there two weeks and then take a three days' auto trip to other summer resorts. Those who will go on the trip are: Mr. and Mrs. William Kneeland, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Nash, Miss Dorothy Nash, Miss Caverly, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kneeland, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Corey, Dr. and Mrs. Thomasson of Boston. Mrs. Martin Kneeland and Miss Kneeland are summering at Sagamore and will come home to go with the party. There will be six autos in the party, most all containing people who go on annual outings together.

PATRICK CONNOLLY.

Patrick Connolly, single, 47 years of age, died at his boarding place on Main street Saturday. He had been in poor health for some time. He was a native of Ireland and had been in the employ of the town highway department for a period of more than 15 years. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary McCraven, and a half brother, John Tansey, one of the highway department engineers.

The funeral services were held on Monday forenoon at 9 o'clock, high mass being celebrated by Rev. Francis E. Rogers at St. Mary's Church. The pall bearers were all members of the highway department and included Messrs. Thomas Kane, James McCraven, Patrick Duran, Thomas McGowan, James Blackham and Frank Nowell. The burial was at Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

High Tide in Telephone Traffic

This chart shows the extraordinary growth of the long distance traffic in the Bell System under war conditions.

It does not show the tremendous advance in the price of raw materials, which enter into the manufacture of telephone equipment—more than doubled since the war began. It does not show the increase in the price of labor and the shortage of both labor and materials, which have set a definite limit to the increase in telephone facilities.

The entrance of this nation in the great war, was the signal for the Bell System to pledge its entire service, unreservedly to the Government.

As our military strength grows, and we become larger participants in the great war, the demands of the Government upon our service will continue to increase, and must always be met.

An extraordinary increase in telephone traffic, due to the unprecedented commercial and industrial activity incident to the war, must also be adequately provided for.

Like the other resources of the nation, our resources must be conserved, and we appeal to the American public, always patriotic to the core, to assist us in meeting these extraordinary conditions by avoiding as far as possible wasteful and extravagant use of the service.

LAND COURT.

To Louis Goddu and Anne T. Snyder, of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, Frederick M. Symmes, of Woburn, in said County of Middlesex, and Samuel S. Symmes, Edgar W. Metcalf, and Howard D. Nash, of said Winchester, Trustees of the Marshall Symmes Land Association, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by William Wignery Thomas, of Portland, in the State of Maine, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a stake on the easterly side of Highland Avenue at land of Anne T. Snyder, thence the line runs S. 80° 45' 00" E. 262.58 feet; S. 49° 40' 25" E. 130 feet; S. 10° 57' 17" E. 119.88 feet; S. 28° 03' 27" W. 214.98 feet; and S. 60° 20' 13" E. 281.50 feet; thence S. 37° 14' 14" W. 150.51 feet by land of Frederick M. Symmes, Samuel S. Symmes, Edgar W. Metcalf, and Howard D. Nash, Trustees Marshall Symmes Land Association; thence N. 60° 43' 20" W. 667.86 feet, by land of Louis Goddu to Highland Avenue, thence N. 34° 30' 00" E. 46.16 feet by Highland Avenue; thence S. 60° 43' 20" E. 260.47 feet; N. 23° 4' 30" E. 142.66 feet and N. 60° 43' 20" W. 260.44 feet, by land of Louis Goddu to Highland Avenue, thence N. 34° 30' 00" E. 46.16 feet by Highland Avenue to a stone boundary marking the P. C. of a curve; thence still by Highland Avenue by a curve of 155.70 feet radius, 300.25 feet to a point of beginning; containing 229,432 square feet.

Petitioner admits the above described land is subject to easements in favor of said Goddu land and said Snyder land, as set forth in the petition filed in this case.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-third day of July A. D. 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of June in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

TRICKING THE CREDULOUS.

Lures of Gold Brick Schemes For the Small Investors.

Will persons with money never learn how to take care of it? Will they never guard themselves against the horde of tricksters who make a business of taking advantage of the credulous and especially of credulous women?

Bear in mind that no one will make money for you when he can make it for himself. If he offers to give you the key to wealth, suspect him, for such keys are kept by their possessors and are not given away to strangers.

The postoffice a year or two ago showed that over $150,000,000 had been lost by persons who listened to the gold brick schemes, but the game still goes on despite the vigilance of the postoffice department and the passage of protective measures, known as "blue sky laws," by many states.

Will the people never learn to discount the alluring literature which these shysters send out and which is written for them by some of the sharpest and brightest writers of our day, whose services can be easily obtained for a few dollars?

I advise my readers who receive these tempting propositions to send them at once to the postmaster general at Washington for investigation. That is the business of the postoffice department, and it will be only too happy to take up such matters.

Small investors are particularly the victims of these bunko schemes, for the false notion prevails that a man or woman with a small amount of money cannot buy high class investment securities such as successful investors prefer. This is erroneous. An investment can now be made in the best of paying securities with as small an amount as $10 through the partial payment plan, which is readily understood, though the term may sound formidable.—Leslie's Weekly.

A LITTLE PIECE OF LEAD.

The Costliest Thing This World of Ours Has Ever Known.

Just think of one small piece of lead, probably weighing less than an ounce, that cost the world some $100,000,000, $20 in money, probably $200,000,000 in property, more than 11,000,000 lives and individual suffering and loss impossible of computation—a bit of lead that embroiled in war Germany, Austria-Hungary, Britain, France, Belgium, the United States, Turkey, Siberia, Italy, Montenegro, Roumania, Bulgaria, Albania, Egypt, Canada, Australia, China, Japan, South Africa, India and Russia and brought every other nation to the brink of internal trouble or outward disaster, the consequences of which are being felt by every human being, civilized or uncivilized, white, black, yellow or brown!

That small piece of lead was fired from a pistol in the hands of a crack-brained youth of Serbian nativity into the body of the heir to the Austrian throne. The troubles arising from this mad act and its punishment set fire to the powder trains in Europe and led to hostile act after hostile act and finally and suddenly to open war in 1914.

That little piece of lead should be preserved as a memorial to all future generations and as the costliest thing mankind has ever known. It would become the greatest silent teacher the world has ever seen. It would teach restraint for the weak minded and violent; it would teach the importance of minor acts and things; it would teach peace as no costly monument, no book of horrors, no painting of tragedy could ever teach it.—Detroit Free Press.

Ox Bones.

Ox bones have a considerable value. The four feet of an ordinary ox will make a pile of neat's foot oil. The thigh bone is the most valuable, being useful for cutting into toothbrush handles. The fore leg bones are made into collar buttons and parasol handles. The water in which the bones are boiled is reduced to glue, while the dust which comes from sawing the bones is turned into food for cattle and poultry.—Exchange.

Fine Canal Locks.

Some of the locks in the New York barge canal are the finest in the world, the five at Waterford being the greatest series of high lift locks in existence. They have a combined lift of 163 feet, one foot less than the total lift of every lock in the Panama canal. The upper gates weigh forty tons and the lower about 100 tons.

Dislocation of the Hip Joint.

The photograph was beginning to yellow even under its protecting glass.

Katherine noticed this sorrowfully as she sat holding it before her, under the shaded light, regarding with tender, wistful eyes the little pictured face.

If he had only been spared her she could have borne the loss of husband, fortune and position. The protecting love of this her only son would have sustained her, comforted her, through everything.

She had nothing now to look forward to. There was none to care, so why not? Yes, why not?

Laying the photograph in its rich frame carefully upon the table beside her, Katherine Ware once again picked up the letter whose receipt had so shattered the dull tranquillity of her day and, turning to the second page, began to read:

If you decide to go with me I will so arrange that, until we reach England, no one will know that you and I are together. Once on the continent the risk of meeting those whom we know will not be great—I never follow the beaten path of travel.

I have so arranged my affairs that I can safely remain abroad for two years. In proposing that you accompany me it is with the idea that we shall each benefit and not lose by the arrangement.

Knowing you to be deeply unsatisfied and unrestful in the present narrow, monotonous restrictions of your life, I such sharp contrast to that which you have known prior to the death of your husband, and—forgive me!—realizing that the chances are not many of your meeting any one with whom you could form a congenial and successful marriage, situated as you now are, and realizing also that you are a woman not to be shocked by the name of a thing, but one who can look a situation in the face, weigh its advantages against its disadvantages and thereby make a decision and abide by it.

I do not hesitate to ask you to become my cherished and welcome companion. You will not lose by it, let me assure you, and at the expiration of this time—that is, at the end of my holiday, we can make some decision regarding the future.

Am I too blunt, too frank with you, dear Katherine?

Then forgive me on the score that I am trying, desperately, not to deceive you in any particular. You and I have been good friends—we know each other.

Of you, Katherine, I am very, very fond; you know how congenial are our tastes; you know that no wish of yours will be left ungratified while you are under my protection. That, in so far as I am able, I will guard you from every disagreeable or unpleasant thing.

You know me to be a man of my word, and these things I promise you.

Will you come?

If so, telegraph me at the Royal not later than 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, as I shall have many things to attend to. The Nomadic sailed at noon on Wednesday, remember. Ever devotedly yours,

DAVENPORT.

Katherine Ware laid the bulky epistle in her lap.

Crossing her long arms back of her shapely head, she fixed her eyes on the iridescent, beaded fringe of the bronze lamp on the center table before her and fell into a deep study. Ever since the arrival that morning of the letter from Richard Davenport the woman had thought of nothing else, and now at evening she was still thrashing out the question: Should she? Should she not?

Occasionally she would recur to different portions of his letter, vainly trying to find some reason for declining.

For a moment Katherine intended to decline.

It was 4 o'clock in the morning. The dull, gray light was just beginning to creep through the dirty window of the small room on the top floor of a tenement house on the east side.

This was the third place Katherine Ware had been to give assistance to the sufferers during this long, awful night.

Most of those employed in the burning factory had been foreigners, with all the average foreigner's dread of ambulances and hospitals, so it was that if by their own efforts or the assistance of those in the throng there they could manage to crawl to their homes, however miserable, they did so.

It was to these unfortunate the settlement workers were giving succor in whatever way they could.

Katherine, wearied almost beyond endurance, was seated near the open window with a child huddled to her breast. He was asleep, his blue eyes closed and his fair, softly curling hair falling back from his forehead. One little, moist hand lay nestled against Katherine's neck.

The woman's arm was numb and strained from the weight of the sleeping child, but she would not have laid him down just then for worlds. She was gazing raptly down at the little face—surely there had never been such a resemblance before!

The child seemed a veritable reincarnation of her own dead darling—the eyes, the hair, the very shape of the head! How could it be? And how came this fair, beautiful child to be among those swarthy faced Russian Jews, one of whom, a young girl of about sixteen, had been badly injured by leaping from a fire escape?

She had been picked up by some one and carried to this room, which represented the home of a family of five, exclusive of this child, whom Katherine had observed crying softly by himself in a corner, after she had done what she could to alleviate the sufferings of the young girl.

The patient, moaning softly occasionally, was otherwise resting quietly. So Katherine had taken the little boy in her arms and hushed him to sleep.

"Muvver," he had muttered sleepily once, cuddling closer in the arms in folding him.

"Who can he be, the blessed lamb?" Katherine had thought as she gathered him closer to her heart. "He certainly doesn't belong to these people."

At 5 o'clock a step sounded on the

One child had come to them—a boy who lived to be six years old, then had died most distressingly of scarlet fever.

The loss of this only child had been the one supreme sorrow of Katherine Ware's life. After that she had thrown herself into the vortex of social life and had ruled right royally.

When Frederick Ware died, some five years ago, it was discovered, to the surprise of his friends and the consternation of his wife, that he had managed to dissipate nearly the whole of the large fortune he was known at one time to have possessed.

At the end Mrs. Ware found herself with but enough to live on very comfortably, if she were careful.

After one or two changes she had settled down in this pretty suit of apartments in a quiet but thoroughly good neighborhood. And here she had come to a stop.

Through her pride she had gradually dropped away from the associates of her prosperity, until but few remained to her of her old time friends.

Therefore, with no active interest to hold her attention, Katherine Ware's existence was about as dull and aimless as one could be imagined. She herself was unhappy, "unsatisfied and restless" in the extreme.

Secretly, she wished to marry.

So when Richard Davenport, a man of high intellectuality, enormous wealth, but great eccentricity, had renewed the acquaintance of other days and had showed a quiet pleasure in her thoughtfully appreciative society, Katherine had done her utmost to hold his continued interest.

Now, after a year of their perfectly innocent intercourse, this was the result!

Davenport could not offer her marriage. He had been, as was his invariable custom, absolutely frank with her, and as for her own position, she felt that without some break in the deadly monotony of her life she would go mad.

Well, she had decided!

She had begun a feverish, sorting out process of her wardrobe—selecting this to be taken, that to be packed away, when a knock sounded on her outer door.

Hastily snapping out the lights, she hurried out into the reception room and opened the door.

A young woman of pleasantly attractive appearance, but laboring under controlled yet very apparent excitement, stood without.

"Mrs. Ware, do excuse me for coming to you, but I've just got word on the telephone of a big fire downtown, close to our settlement house, and I learn that many of our people—children chiefly—were caught in the building and seriously burned or hurt. This means a great deal of work for those who can come. You spoke the other day as though you were interested in the work down there, so I've come to see if you will go with me tonight. There will be so much to do and so few to do it. Won't you come, Mrs. Ware? You are so capable, I know, and you could help so much."

For a moment Katherine quite intended to decline. She would be very busy herself this night. Then something in the girl's anxious, quivering face made her hesitate.

"Please," the girl murmured.

"Very well, Miss Porter, I'll get ready at once," Mrs. Ware said, her decision instantly made.

A quarter of an hour later the two had started on their way across town.

It was 4 o'clock in the morning. The dull, gray light was just beginning to creep through the dirty window of the small room on the top floor of a tenement house on the east side.

Most of those employed in the burning factory had been foreigners, with all the average foreigner's dread of ambulances and hospitals, so it was that if by their own efforts or the assistance of those in the throng there they could manage to crawl to their homes, however miserable, they did so.

Katherine, wearied almost beyond endurance, was seated near the open window with a child huddled to her breast. He was asleep, his blue eyes closed and his fair, softly curling hair falling back from his forehead. One little, moist hand lay nestled against Katherine's neck.

The woman's arm was numb and strained from the weight of the sleeping child, but she would not have laid him down just then for worlds. She was gazing raptly down at the little face—surely there had never been such a resemblance before!

The child seemed a veritable reincarnation of her own dead darling—the eyes, the hair, the very shape of the head! How could it be? And how came this fair, beautiful child to be among those swarthy faced Russian Jews, one of whom, a young girl of about sixteen, had been badly injured by leaping from a fire escape?

She had been picked up by some one and carried to this room, which represented the home of a family of five, exclusive of this child, whom Katherine had observed crying softly by himself in a corner, after she had done what she could to alleviate the sufferings of the young girl.

The patient, moaning softly occasionally, was otherwise resting quietly. So Katherine had taken the little boy in her arms and hushed him to sleep.

"Muvver," he had muttered sleepily once, cuddling closer in the arms in folding him.

At 5 o'clock a step sounded on the stairs outside, the door opened gently, and the young ward physician, Dr. Brun, entered. His face was pale, and black circles showed under his eyes.

He had met Katherine before during that night, so nodded to her pleasantly and, observing the sleeping family, motioned for her to follow him out on to the landing.

After giving him an account of Rosa's condition and the treatment she had administered Mrs. Ware asked abruptly:

"Do you know anything about the child—the little boy—who is in there? He certainly isn't one of them—the Lavinskis."

"No," answered her companion. "It's rather a sad case, that, and one with a bit of mystery about it. He, the younger, was the child of a young American woman who had a back room on the floor below this. The other tenants are all Yiddish and speak no English of any account."

"Why she should have come here is the mystery. However, she did and managed to keep life in herself and the boy by making willow plumes until she fell ill ten days ago. Yesterday—no, the day before—she died, leaving no word behind as to the child—little Johnny."

"Under her pillow I found a small pocketbook containing 21 cents and a marriage certificate dated five years back giving the names Mary Stevens and John Smith of Chicago. Not very much to go on, eh?"

"Well, Mamma Lavinski, our stout friend in there, heard the child crying, went down and, learning somehow the state of things, gathered up the kid and brought him along with her, quite as a matter of course, although it would appear that the Lavinski domicile was somewhat overcrowded and underfed without adding another to its numbers. But that is the grandest thing of poverty—the solidarity—the brotherhood of man—existing among the very poor."

"But there! I'm riding my hobby again, and you are nearly worn out, Mrs. Ware."

She had heard many times of this young fellow, rabid Socialist and earnest settlement worker, who was giving himself so unsparingly to the cause he had espoused.

"Dr. Brun," she continued, "I want to take Johnny—Johnny Smith—home with me for a few days. Do you think it will be all right? They are so upset in there with Rose so ill she must really go to the hospital, you know, that I think it would be best."

"I don't see any objection to that," Dr. Brun replied thoughtfully. "It's a good thing—for the kid, I mean. Well, I must be off. Hope to see you with us again in the future, Mrs. Ware. We need women like you in our business."

Katherine and Johnny were back in the former's apartment again.

She had given her four-year-old guest a bath in the big, white enameled tub, and to his unbounded amusement turned the shower bath on his squirming little back and legs.

Katherine, after her own bath, had slipped into a silk negligee and was preparing to lie down also when her eyes fell on the letter lying in her bureau drawer, which she had received (could it be? only yesterday morning!)

She took it up with a strange feeling of aloofness upon her. Then she glanced at her little French timepiece. Only 10 o'clock!

She still could telegraph Davenport that she would go with him, but—could she?

Some change was working in her she had a different viewpoint on life than had ever been hers before.

There was work to be done in the world—good work for men and women to do. Even she could have her share and do it well!

Then there was her baby! Just then a voice called out "I want a link, please!"

With a little hysterical laugh, Katherine hurried to fulfill this request. As she returned to the room she was struck by the change in her apartment. It didn't seem lonely any more with that little bundle of cheap clothes and those tiny, worn shoes on the chair! Already she was planning the pretty clothes she intended to buy for Johnny.

Once again her eyes fell on Davenport's letter. Swiftly she went to her desk, seated herself and wrote rapidly for a moment.

Rising, she went to the telephone and rang for a Western Union messenger boy. As she waited she reread what she had written; it was addressed to Richard Davenport:

Letter received and understood. Am grateful, but cannot go. Important business here. Best wishes. K. W.

A PAINT TEST YOU CAN MAKE

YOU yourself test the white-lead you've bought to paint your house. Blow a flame on a bit of the material with a blow-pipe. If the white-lead is pure, the heat will reduce it in a few moments to metal lead. If it's adulterated, the change will not take place. Then you can read in the flickering flame a sad prophecy of cracking, scaling paint and costly repair bills.

Both this test and the test of time will prove the purity and protective quality of

Combined with pure linseed oil, it long resists the ravages of snow, rain and sun, and wears uniformly without cracking or scaling.

Such paint is waterproof even as metal lead is waterproof. It is tough paint able to stand blows of time and weather. It spreads easily, and long holds its brightness. Any color desired may be mixed in.

Visit or phone this store for reliable painting requisites and advice.

PATRIOTIC GIRLS.

Stoneham furnished a practical suffrage argument when the principal of the eighth grade school, Mr. Whittemore, called for volunteers to arrange a program for Memorial Day. Not a boy responded, but the girls patriotically offered their services. This lack of interest among the boys prompted the principal to express a cogent reason for votes for women.

"Boys," said he, "do any of you know why women want suffrage? Well, I'll tell you. Not one of you came forward to help, while many of the girls did; and boys, that's why women want suffrage, because they are sick and tired of waiting for the men to do the things they are supposed to do! Women are behind every good cause, every reform and everything worth while in the world, and they don't just talk about it—they stay with it till they get something accomplished. And that, boys, is the way women do things and the reason why they want a chance to do them!"

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Roll of Honor of Local Men Serving Their Country.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions. The names have already been published at various times, but in order to make the roll as complete as possible it is again printed, with the request that our readers inform us of any omissions, changes or errors which they may note. Winchester should have a record of every man doing service who is a resident of this town. All information to this end sent to this office will be properly filed and recorded.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Mid-Summer Finds the Board Busy With Many Matters.

July 16, 1917.
The Board met at 7:30 p. m. with Messrs. Metcalf, Jewett, Laraway, O'Connor and Clark present.
Custodian Town Hall Building: The Board voted to grant Edward J. Callahan a vacation for the first two weeks in August and appointed John E. Callahan as substitute custodian during said time.
Firemen: The Board voted to approve the appointment made by the Chief of the Fire Department of William A. Nowell to the permanent force of the Fire Department to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John H. McCarthy.

Special Police: At the request of Mr. Davidson of the Park Commissioners, and under suspension of the rules, Lawrence Smythman was appointed a Special Police officer to serve until April 1, 1918.

Curbing, Washington Street: Mr. Fred Joy appeared before the Board and suggested that a curbing be laid on the easterly side of Washington street between Myrtle street and the Mystic Valley Parkway, and he was asked to have the abutters present a petition for the same.

Richardson Street: A letter was received from John M. Cullen asking that repairs be made to the lower end of Richardson street and to the sidewalk on the southerly side of said street, and the matter was referred to the Committee on Ways and Bridges.

Street Lights, Kenwin Road: A letter was received from Anna Winn Lochman, representing the Winn family, requesting that an additional light be placed at the easterly end of Kenwin road, opposite the residence of Mr. Perkins, and the matter was referred to the Committee on Street Lights.

Street Lights, Ridge Street: A letter was received from the Town Engineer stating that Mr. Locke believes the new light recently installed on Ridge street does not seem to be

O'NEIL—DOWD.

Popular Winchester Girl Weds Dorchester School Master.

There was a large attendance of friends and relatives at the O'Neil-Dowd nuptials on Tuesday morning, the ceremony being the most important social event in this town of the month. The bride was Miss Marcella Frances Dowd, daughter of Mrs. Mary J. Dowd of Main street, a well known teacher in the Lawrence School at South Boston. Joseph A. F. O'Neil, the groom, is a Harvard man and is a sub-master of the John Winthrop School of Dorchester. He is the son of Mrs. Katherine O'Neil of South Boston.

A solemn nuptial mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church at nine-thirty. Rev. Francis E. Rogers was celebrant, Rev. Hugh Maguire, deacon, and Rev. Edward Maguire, sub-deacon. On the altar were Rev. M. E. Doherty and Rev. Fr. Coughlin of South Boston, and Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt of St. Mary's.

The music was under the direction of John Dethier of Boston, and Gounod's "Sanctus" was sung by Charles Forrester and Holden's "O Salutaris" was rendered by Joseph Florian. The church was decorated for the ceremony with palms and pink gladioli.

The maid of honor was Miss Anna L. Dowd, sister of the bride, and Mr. Thomas W. Hopkins of Concord, was groomsmen. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William J. Dowd. The ushers included William J. Butler of Dorchester, Stephen Higgins of Dorchester, Edward J. Voke of Chelsea, Charles S. O'Connor, Henry Curry and Frederick Murphy, all of South Boston.

The bride wore for her wedding dress a most becoming creation of white satin en train with overdress of white net and trimmed with silver. Her veil was of tulle and was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms, and her bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley and orchids. Her only ornament was a pearl and diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor wore a gown of French organdie over pale green satin and trimmed with silver embroidery. Her bouquet was of pink sweet peas.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother on Main street which was largely attended by friends of the couple, guests being present from most of the surrounding towns and cities. The couple were assisted in receiving by their mothers. The decorations at the residence were very effective, giving a pink and white background for the reception. Quantities of cut flowers, with an abundance of smilax and roses, made a very attractive setting.

The bride is a graduate of the Lowell Normal School and a teacher in the Lawrence School in South Boston. The groom, who is sub-master of the John Winthrop School of Dorchester, is a graduate of Harvard University, class of 1903, and a member of the Harvard Club, the Boston City Club and the Catholic Alumni Sodality. He is a past grand knight of South Boston Council, K. C., and a district deputy of the order.

The wedding tour will include a trip through Canada and Nova Scotia. St. Anne de Baupre and Niagara Falls. While in Nova Scotia Mr. O'Neil will exemplify the major degree for Sydney Council. On their return they will reside in Dorchester.

LECTURE ON EVAPORATION.

The custom of drying fruits, vegetables and herbs, which was so common in the days of our forefathers in New England, has become nearly a lost art.

Housewives could not do better than revive that old habit today, when the need of preserving and conserving is so great. Evaporation does away with the use of glass jars of which there is a shortage.

Miss Nellie Ewart will give a demonstration lecture under the auspices of the Special Aid Society, on July 26th, Thursday, at 3 p. m., at the Small Town Hall, upon the subject of Evaporation. Everyone will be welcome and probably a small, practical and economical evaporator will soon be on the market so that it may become a device used in every household.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The Board of Health report the following cases of contagious diseases for the week ending July 18: Whooping cough 2.

TWO CHANGES IN TRAINS.

Two changes in the recently instituted summer train schedule went into effect Monday, one train each way being affected. The train formerly leaving Boston for Winchester at 7:45 a. m., now leaves at 7:35, arriving here 9 minutes earlier than previously. The inward train formerly leaving Winchester at 3:11 p. m., now leaves at 3:25 and arrives in Boston at 3:41.

The morning train is the Concord express, and the change will probably prove a welcome one to the numerous persons using it. The afternoon change makes a wait of an hour and five minutes from the train leaving at 2:20.

WANTED.

Immediately for surgical work and supplies, old pieces of white or colored cotton, linen or woollen cloth. Scraps of the smallest dimensions to any size. Send to Mrs. John P. Marston, 30 Everett avenue. Tel. 590, or telephone any of the following and they will be called for. Mrs. A. T. Hunnewell, Tel. 830; Mrs. W. M. Weston, Tel. 288-M; Mrs. F. L. Avery, Tel. 948-M; Mrs. F. E. Hovey, Tel. 155-R. Jel, 14

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by William F. Pynn of Lochwan street and Gladys M. Green of Revere.

TRADERS' DAY OUTING.

Aug. 8th the Date—Salem Willows the Place.

The annual Traders' Outing of the Winchester Merchants, as announced last week, will be held this year on Wednesday, Aug. 8th. On account of the advance of the rates on special cars and the high cost of living, the Committee in charge abandoned the usual Canobie Lake trip this year, and selected Salem Willows for the place of the outing. By so doing a much more favorable price was secured.

The field connected with the picnic grounds has been secured for the usual base ball game and sports, and reduced rates for the boat trips to Marblehead and Baker's Island, and for admission to the theatre secured. The place has many other attractions, including the merry-go-round, dancing, roller skating, bowling, etc.

By special arrangement two band concerts will be given at times during the stay of the Winchester party. There are also excellent arrangements for fish dinners.

Merchants should arrange at once to secure their tickets from the members of the committee, which has been organized as follows:

Chairman and Treasurer, J. Albert Hersey.

Soliciting, Walter Tibbets, E. H. Butterworth, Albert B. Seller.

Sports, J. Christopher Sullivan, John Piccolo, Herbert B. Seller, George Gordon, Edward T. Wolcott. Transportation and Advertising, A. C. Robinson, J. A. Hersey, Everett A. Smith.

BAND CONCERT TOMORROW.

The second band concert for this summer is to be given on Manchester Field tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon beginning at 3:30 and ending at 5:30. The music this week will be by the Malcom Band, a new organization to be heard here. Leslie Norman Leet is conductor.

Following will be the program:

- |  |                |

DRAFT HEADQUARTERS AT ARLINGTON.

The exemption board for the Military Draft for this district has met and organized as follows: Judge James P. Parmenter of Arlington, Chairman; Philip A. Hendrick of Arlington, Clerk; Dr. George N. P. Mead of this town, Medical Examiner.

The headquarters of the Board will be at the Arlington Town Hall, to which place all eligibles who are drawn must report for examination, exemption, etc.

ASSESSORS' BOOKS OUT.

The list of Assessed Polls, commonly known as the Assessors' Book, compiled each year by the Board of Assessors and printed by the Town, is now ready for distribution. Copies may be obtained free as long as the edition lasts at the Star Office, Town Clerk's office and the drug stores.

The book this year is more pretentious than previous issues, containing a map of the town and other valuable information and data, besides the usual list of assessed polls arranged by streets and alphabetically.

WARNING SIGNS AT CROSSING.

Complying with the recent law requiring warning signs 300 feet distant from every grade crossing, signs will shortly be placed in the centre on each side of the crossing on Main, Church and Mt. Vernon streets. The Selectmen placed the matter of locating them in the hands of the Town Engineer at their meeting Monday night.

FRUIT JARS.

The fruit jars ordered through the Winchester Branch of the Middlesex County Farm Bureau have all arrived and are at the Prince School Building. If possible, they must be delivered this week as it is not certain how long the office will be open. Prices: pints per dozen, 71 cents; quarts per dozen, 77 cents.

NOTICE.

The "red ink" or new military draft numbers for this district were sent to the Exemption Board this morning. The STAR has a clerk now at work copying the list and it will be posted at this office within a few hours.

Winchester is in District 30, Boston Division.

The headquarters of the Exemption Board are at the Arlington Town Hall.

JOHNSON LOST.

Constitutional Convention Reports Leave to Withdraw.

Jasper N. Johnson of Medford has lost his case against Charles F. Dutch of this town, whom he petitioned to unseat as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention because of alleged irregularities at the election. These charges, preferred by Mr. Johnson, were printed in full in the STAR at the time they were made. Two weeks ago the election committee of the convention gave a hearing at which witnesses for both sides were heard. After deliberation this committee reported to the convention "leave to withdraw" and this report was sustained Wednesday by the convention.

Previous to taking the vote the convention was asked to refer the matter back to the committee. This was refused.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Western Electric here tomorrow. For the benefit of those "fans" who do not keep track of semi-pro base ball, we will say this team is one of the crack semi-pro teams of Massachusetts, being in the same class as Queen Quality, Marblehead, Manchester, and such strong teams as these. They have lost very few games this season, one of them being a 1 to 0 shutout by Marblehead; so you can see what they are liable to do to us tomorrow. But Manager LeDuc took them on and as we were never known as quitters, we will play our string out, and once again let me impress upon you fans who have not seen Manager LeDuc's "Colts" perform, to come down tomorrow and see the liveliest crowd of ball tossers we have had on Manchester Field for many a day. Ask some of your friends about the game with the Riversides, how this crowd came from behind and breezed home a winner by good fast playing and hitting. Personally, I think the Western Electric team is in for a beating. If we do not I suppose you will be looking for my alibi in next week's STAR.

UNION SERVICE.

The Union Sunday Service for July 22d, 29th, and August 5th, are to be held in the First Congregational Church. The coming Sunday the Rev. Professor Benjamin T. Marshall of Dartmouth College, will preach both morning and evening. The Professor has during the past few years been heard frequently in Winchester, always with unquestioned acceptance. An invitation is extended to the public to attend the services.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

What people fear is, not mere death, but separation. The longing is not for eternal life in itself—which is usually thought of as mere endless duration—but for reunion in an actually realized fellowship. The desire is that the old life, purified and glorified, shall go on, with its old and precious relationship. There must be either endless separation or endless fellowship. William Watson puts it thus:

Ah, but the Apparition—the dumb sign—
The beckoning finger bidding me forego
The fellowship, the converse and the wine,
The songs, the festal glow!

And ah, to know not, while with friends I sit,
And while the purple joy is passed about,
Whether 'tis ampler day diemeter lit
Or homeless night without;

And whether, stepping forth, my soul shall see
New prospects, or fall sheer—a blinded thing.
There is, O grave, thy hourly victory,
And there, O death, thy sting.

There is no man in Winchester or elsewhere who is able to put these thoughts from him or quite to quench the hope that he sometimes feels stirring in his heart. Even Mr. Ingersoll, who courageously faced and accepted the consequence of his own logic, could not bring himself to deny the possibility of immortality. The words spoken by him at his brother's grave are familiar: "Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud—and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the dead there comes no word. But in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustling of a wing." A cold and cheerless picture this is, but there is love in it—and hope—and so the gloom is lightened. Man must hope and love, or he will die. Can he die while he continues to hope and love? Life conceived in faith is not "a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities," but rather a great enterprise or a splendid adventure. And this conception conforms to and satisfies the hope and love that abides in every soul, and through which the great orator got the glimmer of revelation that came to him. Hopes, it is true, are often unrealized, love betrays, and faith is often nothing more than the blind acceptance of authority of supposed truth. Nevertheless, life would be impossible without them. With them it may and ought to be a triumphant experience. Naturally it is no easy matter to free men from the grip of what some believe to be a mere superstition. Perhaps these latter are right, but hope and love will not be denied, and faith, though often feeble, refuses to surrender. It is nothing to the purpose to say that these are childish, since it is to the childlike spirit that the great revelation is promised. Perhaps, our wise men are, after all, a bit oversophisticated.

Men think of their future, and of the broken and interrupted—and apparently defeated—lives of those with whom they were once associated. But this phase of the subject cannot be discussed—except in the most general way—precisely because it is personal and sacred. It is enough to suggest it. There are two convictions—or hopes—that possess most thinking Winchesterites; they believe that it is well with those whom they have lost, and also that they will one day meet them again and be with them. Those who hold this view ought to be dealt with tenderly by those who are unable to hold it. Out of the fundamental idea—which surely has in it something for all—should be born a deep sympathy. At least there have lived on this earth who were the truest in sense saints—saints and heroes of whom the world was very often not worthy. They should be revived and kept in grateful remembrance. It was of these that Lowell wrote:

Saints—the unknown good that rest
In God's still memory folded deep;
The bravely dumb that did their deed,
And scorned to blot it with a name,
Men of the plain heroic breed,
That loved heaven's silence more than fame.

Thus it is possible to give a greater respect and reverence for the race, and for humanity as a whole. Each generation has been the servant of the one that came after it. Civilization has been made possible only by the sacrifices and martyrdoms of millions of men and women. Most of them are unknown and forgotten. The more we read history, the more easy it is for us to imagine, and even realize and usualize, their sufferings. What the world needs is not only loyalty in service, but loyalty to those who have served, and reverence for them.

The Spectator.

MARSHALL JONES ENGLAND ENGAGED.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Grace of Culbertson avenue, Zanesville, O., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ethel, to Marshall Jones England of Winchester. Miss Grace for some time attended Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and is prominent in musical circles in that city, being a very active member of the Thursday Morning Music Club. She has always been interested in philanthropic matters in Zanesville and since the outbreak of the war has been quite active in the work of patriotic organizations. Mr. England is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Heber England of Zanesville, Ohio, and for the past nine years has resided in this town with his uncle, Marshall W. Jones of Highland avenue. He has been connected with the firm of Jones Brothers Company, wholesale granite merchants in Boston.

Mr. England has enlisted as a volunteer transport driver in the American field service in France and sails from New York next week with a unit of about 250 men. The entire contingent will go into active service in the war zone, soon after its arrival.

Mr. and Mrs. Grace will entertain with a family dinner on Friday evening.

ONE CHILD, THREE DOLLARS.

To the Editor:

Children are the world's most precious possession. There are no brighter or more beautiful children anywhere than the little Armenians, the victims of Turkish cruelty, many thousands of whom are now on the very brink of starvation. The Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief tell us that three dollars will feed one child for a month. Will not everyone whose means permit it, sacrifice some small luxury, and buy the life of a child?

The whole need is too vast to be met. Many of the children will perish. But every gift means that some child will live who would otherwise die. Contributions should be sent to the Treasurer of the Armenian Relief Fund, Henry D. Forbes, National Shawmut Bank, Boston, Mass.

The New York Sun says:—The Smiths are tasting the bitter dregs of defeat. The mighty clan of Cohen has for the first time in the history of civilization boosted them from their exalted place at the head of the city directory. R. L. Polk & Company's new book, just issued, contains but forty-six and a half columns of Smiths, while the latest champions monopolize forty-nine and a half columns. The Levys battled bravely against the Browns for third place, but the Browns refused to relinquish their ancient rights. But if all family honors go to the Cohens, individual honors are divided equally between Emil Aaby, who leads off the 1,860 pages of names, and Ingatz Zzisko, who comes just before the end.

WINCHESTER PEOPLE INTERESTED.

Since the tremendous success of "The Birth of a Nation" throughout the world of filmdom, it has become a habit to compare any big motion picture production with this great success to prove its merit to the public. As big as "The Birth of a Nation" has been frequently used, but up to the present, none have offered with the promise of excelling this great success.

Now, however, comes the film drama of the decade, not with the claim "as big as," but bigger, more spectacular, more thrilling and sensationallly interesting than anything that has yet met the eye of the amusement loving public.

"The Whip" is a tremendous production of the famous play which ran for two years at the Drury Lane Theatre, London; one year in New York, six months in Chicago, six months in Philadelphia, two months in Boston, and two years in Australia. The play has been witnessed by over fifty million people, yet it has never appeared in more than a dozen theatres in the world, owing to the magnitude of the production, which prevented its appearance in any but the very largest theatres in the world.

Now, however, the motion picture camera has been utilized to bring out this exceedingly melodramatic story in a bigger, better, more exciting and realistic way than it has ever been shown upon the spoken stage. The public is now so familiar with the possibilities upon the spoken stage over the limits of a stage production that it is easy to realize that the motion picture production of "The Whip" might be one that would excel anything that has yet been shown upon the screen.

Months of patient effort, a fortune in expenses, a mighty cast of "type chosen" actors and actresses, and all under the leadership of the greatest of modern producers, Maurice Tourneur, have served to bring about such a massive and an awe-inspiring production of "The Whip" that there isn't the least possible shade of a doubt but that this will be the most talked-about film production that the world has ever witnessed.

Local patrons may well look forward to its engagement at Woburn Theatre on next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, for it can safely be said that never before have the photoplay lovers been presented with such a gigantic, spectacular and genuinely fascinating picture story as "The Whip."

The production is shown in eight reels, consuming two hours' time upon the screen, and during all that time there is not a single dragging moment. Thrill follows thrill in rapid succession, not minor thrills that have been done again and again in motion pictures, but new sensations presented in a new and more exciting way. Wonderfully beautiful photography and scenes only add to the glamor of the entertainment, while such scenes as The Fox Hunt, the tour of the Eden Museum, the thrilling auto wreck, the railroad disaster, the spectacular horse races and a hundred other sights, leave the spectator in a turmoil of uncontrollable excitement.

"The Whip" is not alone well worth seeing; it must truthfully be said that it would be self-fraudulent not to witness it.

The Park Board has done a good job in returning the worn spots in the grass along the edge of the walks across the Common. It is now in order for all of us to remember that the sidewalks are made to walk upon, that we should all cultivate the habit of not stepping on the grass along the edge of the walk except in cases of necessity.

There is such a thing as municipal patriotism. One of the last funds for which a private citizen should be asked to subscribe is one to provide a United States flag for a public building. If the Fire Station needs a new flag, and judging from the appearance of the one swinging from the building's flag-pole, it does, the Town of Winchester ought to buy it. It ought not to be made a semi-forced contribution for a few of its citizens. Incidentally "the flag" should be displayed every day on all public buildings.

We hope that our citizens generally read the official report on Infantile paralysis accompanying the letter of the Chairman of the Board of Health in last week's STAR. Too much emphasis can hardly be placed upon the fact that the investigations and studies made during the year have all tended to confirm the wisdom of the course followed by the local Board of Health and the School Committee in the epidemic of last summer. If there should be a recurrence of this dread disease this year, we hope that parents will remember the advice given by those who probably know the most about the matter: "Where poliomyelitis occurs in a school, your committee advises that the school be not closed, but that daily medical supervision be instituted."—Extract from the Committee report adopted by the State Board of Health at the thirty-second annual meeting held at Washington, D. C., May 2, 1917.

After the unsatisfactory conditions of years' standing and the promises of last season of adequate remedy, many people are expressing considerable dissatisfaction at the filthiness of our river this summer. Conditions today are not only as bad as they are every summer, but a good deal worse. As yet we have heard not one word regarding the matter other than the numerous complaints. Apparently the Town is now about to start all over again in the matter, for the only hope of relief appears to lay in Rep. Kneeland's bill passed by the Legislature late in the spring calling for investigation by the Park and Health Boards. Meanwhile the children's recreation place on Mystic Lake—Sandy Beach—remains closed and the recently completed attractive grading of the shores of the Mill Pond furnishes a setting for little more than an open sewer. The two boat clubs on Mystic report the biggest falling off in attendance in years, due wholly to the fact that members will not use the foul water, offending alike to sight and smell.

The sign on the tree in Church street in front of the Winchester Trust Co., warning traffic to pass to the right, was removed last week. Traffic now has the privilege of passing any way it desires. This is an outcome of the refusal of the Wo-burn Court to recognize the Town's traffic regulations a few weeks ago when two local men were taken in for allowing their teams and autos to stand in the centre for more than the prescribed period. The Town should take the proper steps to have its traffic rules properly recognized. As matters appear to stand now the police have little or no power to enforce any convenient or proper regulations, and there is no question whatever but that the traffic regulations when first put into effect benefited previous conditions in the centre immensely. The rule requiring northbound traffic to pass to the right of the tree has proved its usefulness, and not an accident has been recorded since it has been in force. It was this same rule, by the way, that was previously up-held by the Woburn court. If all that is needed is a proper recognition of the traffic rules by the State and Highway Commission, the matter should be taken up immediately.

THE LAWSON TAXES.

The Town of Winchester and Thos. W. Lawson have been receiving considerable notoriety during the week past through the former's efforts to collect back taxes owed by Mr. Lawson, and having invoked the aid of the law to assist its endeavors. In a typical Lawson interview given Boston papers, Mr. Lawson denied that he owned property here, a statement both correct and misleading, for the property was presumably held in the name of Mrs. Lawson and at her death was in the name of the Lawson Heirs. That Mr. Lawson's personal tax is payable here appears unquestioned. The sum involved amounts to $5806.36, being the 1916 taxes with interest.

The Town secured a warrant for Mr. Lawson's arrest and he in turn sought to have the court issue injunction of restraint; which was denied.

To avoid arrest Mr. Lawson paid the tax bill, serving written protest at the same time, and starting suit against the Town and Chairman of the Board of Assessors George H. Carter. The Town is being sued for $10,000 for the recovery of the sum paid, and Mr. Carter is sued for $10,000 for slander, it being alleged that he made statements regarding Mr. Lawson's property and the lack of value of his holdings in Winchester in an interview published by one of the Boston papers.

Mr. Carter states that the "interview" contains many statements which he did not make. Mr. Lawson offers to give any sum recovered from Mr. Carter to the Red Cross.

The only regrettable feature has been the public argument over what Mr. Lawson "has ever done for the Town." He has owned—or controlled—considerable property here, most of which very probably has not contributed greatly to make Winchester what it is today. On the other hand for many years at Thanksgiving and Christmas time he has remembered the needy of the town in a lavish manner by many baskets of good things. As these gifts were always given anonymously it is quite likely that he has never received the credit rightfully due him, but his act has always been thoroughly appreciated by Town officials, and probably no one had any more distaste over the present job of collection than they.

BASEBALL.

Winchester Wins a Great Game in 13th.

The game Saturday on Manchester Field was an illustration of why the game of baseball has such a hold on the American people. It was a combination of everything that goes to make the game interesting. Fine hitting, great fielding, and errors sandwiched in kept the crowd on the field until Winchester drove over the winning run in the 13th inning by some great hitting. The Riverside team was the fastest crowd of players we have seen on the field this season, and for speed we have not seen any team show to better advantage in the six years we have been having baseball on Manchester Field. By that I do not mean that they were the best team we have had here, but for fine outfielding and sensational infielding they could not be beaten. The third baseman and short-stop had fifteen chances between them, and some of them would have gone for hits with ordinary fielding. The game as a game should have been Winchester's in 9 innings, but a couple of wild heaves together with wild pitching put the Riverside team in the lead 3 to 0 in the 7th, but we tied it up in our half and went into the lead in the 8th only to have the Riversides come across with the tying run in the 9th. From then on until the 13th it was mostly Winchester and it looked as though we were going to win any minute, and then in the 13th some consecutive hitting by McQuinn, Smith, and Harkins put over the winning run with no one out. The Riverside team had a good crowd of hitters, but did not seem to be able to do much with Smith, and to say Smith pitched a good game, is only doing justice to him, but he was surely off in his fielding, due no doubt to his anxiety to win, but as the game progressed he seemed to get better and seemed more sure of himself. Buchanan and Gleason were the only players to hit him safely, Buchanan getting 3 and Gleason 2 hits; and tell your friends this Gleason is the best

AUTOS CRASH ON HIGHLAND AVENUE.

Residents in the vicinity of Highland avenue and Eaton street were aroused Monday night at 9:30 by the crash of two automobiles who came together head-on at that place. The noise of the accident was so great that people as far away as Washington street heard it and hastened to the scene.

While it is said that both machines were travelling slowly, it would appear that there was some speed somewhere. One machine had both its front wheels bent back at right angles and its left side stripped, while the other had its front end badly damaged.

The cars were owned by Arthur J. Kinley of Stoneham, who was travelling towards that town, and Chauncey B. Leonard of Chelsea. According to one version of the affair the Kinley car, a new Hupmobile, was on its right side on the street, while the other car was too far to the left.

In Kinley's car were his father and grandfather, one of whom was thrown through the windshield. The other car contained several ladies. Beyond numerous cuts from broken glass and being badly bruised, none of the occupants were seriously injured, and all were able to go to their homes.

The Kinley car was taken to the Mystic Valley Garage for repairs and the other car was able to proceed under its own power.

MALONEY—ROCHE.

A pretty summer wedding took place Sunday evening at Woburn when Miss Josephine Frances Roche of that city, was united in marriage to Mr. J. Frederick Maloney. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Roche of 22 Wright street, and the groom the son of the late Frederick Maloney of Winchester. He is a well known member of the office force at the Winchester Post Office.

Rev. John P. Gorham solemnized the marriage at 7 o'clock at St. Charles' rectory. The bridal couple were attended by Miss Lillian F. MacDonald of Newton and Mr. William F. Roche of Woburn.

The bride was beautifully attired in white Georgette crepe. She wore a veil of tulle and carried lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore pink Georgette crepe and a black hat, while her flowers were pink roses.

An informal reception to the immediate relatives followed at the bride's home, after which Mr. and Mrs. Maloney left on an extended wedding trip. They will be at home to their friends, August 15, at 89 Parkway, Winchester.

A VACATION EXPERIENCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Farrar of Elm street, who are staying at Hampton Beach, had quite an interesting experience recently. Their cottage is right on the beach and the other morning Miss Margaret Harrold, who is staying with them, heard wood breaking and on looking out the front door, found the waves starting to carry away the steps. She hastily aroused the others and they bundled the two children in blankets, and got them outside, taking them to another cottage.

The water rose till it broke over the roof. It came under the doors and flooded the kitchen, even before the tide was high, breaking off the water pipes and carrying away about 30 feet of the beach.

The cottage was moved back that day by the owners about 150 feet. It was quite exciting while it lasted and they had the pleasure of seeing the sun rise for the first time in years. The trouble was caused by a storm and an exceptionally high tide.

They are having a very enjoyable time and fine weather, also the water is quite warm.

OLD MEMBERS WILL ATTEND.

Several members of William Parkman Lodge A. F. & A. M., who are not now residents of Winchester, signify their intention of returning to town—so as to take part in the Automobile Outing of the Lodge, to the Masonic Home at Charlton, on Saturday, August 4th. That will make the occasion have the nature of an Old Time Reunion, and will add to the pleasure of the event. The automobile ride from Winchester to Charlton is one of the prettiest in Eastern Massachusetts; the roads are all good and the scenery is especially picturesque. The Lodge will meet in Winchester and hold a short session and then go in a body to the Masonic Home, reaching there just before noon. Percival B. Metcalf is Chairman on Committee of Arrangements and George A. Barron has special care of the plans for cars on the outing.

HART—FLETCHER.

Mr. Henry G. Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hart of this town, and Miss Grace Fletcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fletcher of Revere, were married on Sunday, June 24th, at Nashua, N. H., by Rev. Daniel I. Goss of that city.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to our friends for their kind sympathy and for the flowers received at the death of our brother.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tansey and family,
Mrs. Edw. McCraven, and family.

A Buick touring car owned by Thomas M. Howard of 7 Rangeley, was stolen Wednesday night by a clever ruse from a local garage. A telephone call was sent to the garage, presumably from the owner, asking that the car be sent to a certain place. The car was sent as directed and taken by a man waiting to receive it. Later it was found that the owner was wholly ignorant of the transaction. The police are working on the case.

Mr. Frank J. Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cannon of Roanoke, Va., is a guest of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Sullivan, 62 Nelson street.

Miss Gertrude Donovan of Lincoln street, is spending her vacation at Magnolia, Mass.

A GOVERNOR BY COMMON CONSENT.

Since Gov. McCall's announcement on Saturday of his purpose to be a candidate for a third term, sentiment has rapidly shaped itself not only in the Republican party, but among the Democrats, in favor of letting him have it. No Republican is likely to contest with him for the nomination, so far as we can see. No Democrat now seems ready to go in against Mr. Mansfield, and this means that the party will let the contest go by default. Mr. McCall carried the State over Mr. Mansfield last year by 46,000 votes. From all present signs, he will do so by a still larger plurality this time.

It is entirely fitting that this should be so. Mr. McCall has made a good Governor. We ought not to change executives every year, or subject them to the task of running for election with such frequency as this. The biennial idea, now under discussion in the convention, finds favor with serious-minded people. They believe the decision between gubernatorial aspirants rendered last November good enough for two years, and in this they are right. Besides, in time of war and occasions of stress, people gravitate toward leaders of conservatism and sanity, all of which heightens Republican prospects in the old Bay State.

FIRE DEPARTMENT APPOINTMENTS.

William A. Nowell, formerly in the employ of the Water Department of the town, received the appointment to the Fire Department as a permanent member by the Selectmen on Monday. He will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assistant Chief John H. McCarthy and will commence his duties on Monday. As yet no Assistant Chief has been appointed.

George Shaughnessy was appointed a temporary member of the Department last week and began his duties on Monday. He will fill the vacancies during the summer caused by the regular men taking their vacations.

Yesterday Mr. Nowell, who received the appointment Monday night to the Fire Department, reconsidered his application and tendered his resignation, deciding to remain in his present position with the Water Department.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

properly placed and the matter was referred to the Committee on Street Lights.

Bay State Street Railway Company: Mr. C. J. Donovan, Supt., appeared before the Board in regard to the request for change of car stop from present location between Hemingway street and Hill street to Hemingway street, and also to replace one at Canal street, and the Board informed him that they still feel that the stops should be replaced as formerly.

Claims: Through Paton and Robertson, Attorneys, Mr. T. G. Nicol of Mahone Bay, Lunenburg County, Nova Scotia, asks for an explanation of the action of the Town in entering upon his land on Washington and Lebanon streets and constructing a well and closing up and destroying a valuable spring on the property. Referred to Town Council.

Arlington Gas Light Company: A petition was received from the Arlington Gas Light Company for permission to extend present mains on Main street down Lake street, and also on Highland avenue to Mt. Pleasant street, then down Mt. Pleasant street to Summit avenue and on Summit avenue. The Board voted that the above petitions be held up pending favorable action by the Company on the petition for gas main on Water street, and the Clerk was instructed to so write to them and call their attention to the fact that work has already been begun on the re-construction of North Main street and they wish to have the mains in that locality attended to at once.

Signs: In accordance with Chapter 246 of the Acts of 1917, the Board voted to place "Warning Signs" at the railroad crossing in the center of the Town in accordance with the recommendations of the Town Engineer in his letter of July 13, 1917.

Sidewalk, Waterfield Road: Mr. O'Connor reported that the sidewalk on the northerly side of Waterfield road near Thompson street was broken and should be repaired by the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., and the matter was referred to the Superintendent of Streets to see that it was attended to at once.

Sidewalk Pumps: The Board voted to reconsider the vote passed by them on July 9, 1917, in regard to installation of pump at garage being erected on Converse place. The Board then voted to grant the request of Mr. Dean for the installation of a sidewalk pump on Converse place, the same to be installed according to specifications and under the directions of the Town Engineer.

Sidewalks, Converse Place: The Board voted to approve the plan submitted and suggestions made by the Town Engineer for a five foot sidewalk on the westerly and northerly side of Converse place from end of present sidewalk to Main street.

Glengarry Road and Grassmere Avenue: The Board voted that the petition received from Daniel W. Pratt, in behalf of William Firth, for the acceptance by the Town of Glengarry road and Grassmere avenue together with the plan submitted be referred to the Town Engineers for suggestions and report.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The Winchester Exchange and Tea Room will be closed from Aug. 6th until Aug. 20th.

Mrs. George Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Kingsbury and Ruth, all of Fairmount street, have taken a cottage in Portland Harbor, Me., for the rest of the summer.

Miss Doris Gage of Beverly, has been the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Gage of Madison avenue, for the past week.

At the picnic in the Fells Tuesday for the poor children of the West End, Elizabeth Peabodyhouse of Boston, given by the Bethany Society, very entertaining exercises were held under the direction of one of the settlement house teachers, and a Russian lady, a resident of this country. The latter gave a talk of conditions in her mother country and told of the intense desire of her people to be ruled under the American flag. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rie brought beautiful flowers which were arranged into bouquets and given to the children to take home.

Mrs. Hazel Freitch and daughter, Jessica of Winchendon, have been the guests the past week of Mrs. Brainard Coffin of Fairmount street.

Miss Nancy Wilson, who has been away a year at the York School, is home for a few weeks. Later she will go to camp at Alton, N. H.

Sergeant Alexander J. Mullen of the Police Department left yesterday for his annual vacation, Patrolman James V. O'Connell returning.

Associate Justice George S. Littlefield is residing in the 4th District Court, Woburn, while Judge E. F. Johnson is enjoying an outing with his family at Rockport.

Mrs. George Squier and children of Springfield are the guests of Mrs. Squier's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinds of Forest street.

Mrs. Viola Richardson is visiting relatives in New York State.

A pair of horses attached to a hack ran away from the Winchester Hospital on Highland avenue, where they were left standing on Wednesday night, and were not stopped until they fell while crossing Main street at the Parkway. The team ran the whole length of Highland avenue and down the Parkway, one door of the hack being torn off when the hack struck a lamp post at Mt. Vernon street. Fortunately no one was injured. The runaway created considerable excitement.

Dr. Benjamin Lewis has been spending several weeks in the Maine woods.

AMERICAN MADE DYES.

Great Strides in Dye-making in United States and France.

Since the beginning of the present war nearly $200,000,000 has been invested in the organization of dye-making companies, and enormous manufacturing plants have been erected in this country. France also is developing her water powers so that they will be ready for use in many chemical industries just as soon as the war ceases. This country will be so well equipped that it will be able to retain a greater portion of its trade in dyes and dye-stuffs, colors, tints and shades. In 1913 we were consuming about 20,000 tons of dyes and dye-stuffs, out of which only 3,000 tons were made in this country. That shows the opportunity which the American chemical industries have had placed before them.

The solution of the situation precipitated by the stoppage of imports into this country, now seems to be well in hand and it is believed by the great chemical interests which have sprung into being since the beginning of the war, that the supremacy in chemical products so long held by Germany will be finally wrested from her by the American chemists and chemical engineers. Processes which have been discovered and formulated recently by our own American experts and manufacturers, that many products which have come from natural sources in Germany can now be made by electrolytical and chemical processes, and that the recovery of many products, heretofore considered as waste, will keep prices within the range of successful competition for American goods.

Dyes which have never before been made in this country are now common products, although the dye makers have a long way yet to go in order to meet the enormous variety of colors, shades and tints which have come out of Germany to the number of over 40,000. Less than 500 such colors, shades and tints are now made here, yet the formulation of processes continues rapidly, and a thorough codification of the dye products will make it possible for textile and other manufacturers to obtain eventually all shades and tints which they require, and to be sure of the perfect tincture of all. Discussion of the features of codification of dyestuffs will take place at the next American Chemical Society convention in Boston during September.

WHIMS OF A BOXER.

Corbett's Nerves Jangled When He Was About to Meet Jeffries.

Jim Corbett was all nerves when preparing for a bout. Jimmy Coffroth, who promoted the bout between Corbett and Jeffries at San Francisco, told this one on Jim:

"Corbett was an easy man to get along with save that he was finicky about small matters. For instance, he came to me before the Jeffries fight and wanted to know who would be a likely referee. When I told him the man he sought him out and put him through a third degree on boxing.

"There never was a question of ring form that he didn't bring up. A few days before the fight he came to me and asked to be shown the door in Mechanics' pavilion through which he would enter on his arrival. I showed him the big front door, and he said, 'No, too much jostling there; show me another door.'

"I took him to every entrance in the building, but none would suit, and I wound up by having a carpenter cut a special door in the side of the building for him. That was the queerest whim I ever ran across dealing with boxers."—New York World.

A Drop of Water.

Figures are sometimes impressive simply by being so stupendous that the human mind grasps them with difficulty. An instance in point is afforded by the illustration once offered to his hearers by an eminent scientist, who, in order to bring to their comprehension the idea of ultimate particles of water, stated that if he were to empty a tumbler containing half a pint of water, letting out each second a number equal to 1,000 times the population of the earth, it would require somewhere between 7,000,000 and 47,000,000 years to empty the tumbler. Lord Kelvin has assured us that if a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth the particles would be between the size of cricket balls and footballs. If that statement is correct the drops of water in all the oceans are not many times so numerous as the particles, or molecules, in a single drop.

Story of a Dog's Jaw.

The strength of a dog's jaws and teeth were never more exemplified than in the case of a Ross-shire gamekeeper, whose collar was unfortunate enough to be caught in a steel vermin trap. The gamekeeper, gun in hand, was soon on the scene, but in the short time the dog had become quite infuriated with pain. Having nothing suitable for muzzling the animal and fearing to place his foot upon the trap spring with the dog's jaws free, the gamekeeper placed the gun barrels in the dog's mouth and held them there while easing the spring. With a vicious snap the teeth closed on the cold steel ere he regained his freedom. The barrels were holed through—an almost incredible performance—and were examined shortly after.—London Graphic.

Aids to Conversation.

"Books help a man's conversation." Undoubtedly. But the man who says them seldom gets to be as good a talker as the man who sold them to him.

MODERN THEATRE.

"Civilization," dedicated by Thomas Ince, the producer, to that vast and pitiful army whose tears have girdled the universe—"The Mothers of the Dead," will be presented at the Modern Theatre beginning July 16. Heralded as the most daring and stupendous cinema production of modern times, "Civilization" comes to the Modern Theatre from record-breaking run at the Criterion Theatre, New York.

In the vast theatre of the world there is being enacted this very day and hour a carnage that appals the intellect and intimidates the heroic by its universal and blood-curdling savagery. For the reason of putting a stop to this wholesale slaughter and forever relegating such barbarisms to the dead past, this photoplay argues against the common practice of war. It is thrilling beyond description.

Some Weather Signs.

A deep blue color of the sky, even when seen through clouds, indicates fair weather; a growing whiteness, an approaching storm.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The plan of weekly meetings of the local union in order to work for the soldiers and sailors proves to be a wise one as the interest is increasing rather than diminishing with the advent of real summer weather. The last meeting was held with Mrs. Riddle and much was accomplished. A variety of articles are being made and the need of materials is still great. Bright colored pieces for covers for the comfort pillows are in great demand and all kinds of old cloth, white and colored, for various purposes. There should be no accumulation of old things in Winchester rag bags, when the claim is so urgent. On the other hand, there should be no throwing away of articles which still have wear in them, as they also are much needed because of the shortage of all materials for textiles. In the beginning of the war relief work, many good things were torn up in well meaning but unwise zeal to help the sufferers. The members of the W. C. T. U. of all people should set a good example in the way of wise economy. Meantime if you have anything you think will be useful, send it to the home of Mrs. Hamilton, 50 Lincoln street, or call up Winchester 594-M and tell what you have.

WHEN WILL THE WAR END?

Finally wearying of the war, the Kaiser went to a fortune teller and asked her how it was going to come out.

"When were you born?" she asked. "In 1859," he answered. "When was the Kaiserin born?" "In 1858."

"Now, let me have the years in which your children were born." "1882, 1883, 1884, 1887, 1888, 1890 and 1892."

"Very well. We will now add those figures together, so:

"You are?"

"58."

"The Kaiserin is?"

"59."

"Your children?"

"35, 34, 33, 30, 29 and 25."

"Let us then add those together:

58

59

35

34

33

30

29

27

25

Total 330

"Adding to this the first total, we have a grand total of:

16,923

17,253

"Grand total.

"Now," said the fortune teller, "that figure, divided by the number of persons in your family, will give you the date upon which the House of Hohenzollern will come to the end of its reign and the monarchy will collapse."

Pale and breathless, alike terrified by his deserts and awed by the magic of the black art, the Kaiser watched the fortune teller's swift fingers make the calculation: 17,253 divided by nine equals—1917.

Tree Food.

Trees manufacture their own food. The sunlight furnishes the energy to carry on the work. The elements which make up the food on which the tree lives and grows are obtained from the air through the foliage and from the soil through the roots. Their constituents—carbonic acid gas, oxygen, water and mineral salts—combined form the food which sustains the tree. If any one of these constituents is lacking the growth of the tree is checked and its health impaired. As with animal life, the lack of sufficient water is most seriously felt.—Tree Talk.

Experience Teaches.

"I wonder what has happened to Mr. Green?" said Mrs. Brown to a lady friend. "He seems so dismal now, and he used to be a practical joker." "Ah," was the response, "he proposed as a joke to his present wife. She accepted him, and he says he will never indulge in a joke again."

Masticating Food.

When eating learn to masticate on both sides of the mouth. The teeth need to be used to keep them in good condition. Tartar is said to collect more rapidly if only one side is used. Brush the teeth downward, not cross-wise.

CHANDLER SIX

Why Thousands Choose the Chandler

More than thirty thousand Chandler owners have found the extreme of satisfactory performance in the flexible and powerful Chandler motor, "The Marvelous Motor." And thousands more who know how the Chandler excels are choosing this great car every month.

The Chandler now leads all high-grade Sixes in popularity and sales because it provides the finest construction at the lowest possible price. It is distinguished for the extraordinary character of its service on the road in owners' hands.

Summer Comfort Winter Luxury

THE new Chandler convertible sedan offers the most attractive seven-passenger convertible type of body yet produced. This body, Fisher-built, is exceptionally roomy and comfortable. It is deeply upholstered and mounted on springs which absorb all the stress and shock of the roadway. The left side door is immediately opposite the driver's seat so that the driver to get in or out of the car does not have to disturb its other occupants. The auxiliary seats face forward, folding down into the backs of the front seats as in the Chandler touring car, and offer the same comfortable riding qualities. The forward side windows and the door windows lower away entirely by adjustable strap. The rear side windows lower half way by adjustable strap, and are entirely removable as are the window posts. The workmanship throughout is of pleasing refinement.

Chandler Features

include solid cast aluminum crankcase extending from frame to frame and giving perfect rigidity to the engine mounting; silent chains for driving the motor shafts; Bosch high tension magneto; light-running and durable annular ball bearings in transmission, differential and rear wheels; pleasing body designs, deep cushions and finest long-grain hand-buffed leather upholstery.

AMERICAN FLIERS IN NOTED
FRENCH CITY.

"News of the first fatality among the Americans of the expeditionary force in France under Major General Pershing reveals the fact that American fliers are undergoing training in an aviation camp established in one of the most famous cities of western Europe," says a war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society concerning Tours. This town was the scene of the death of Thomas Winch Barrett, a member of the over-seas forces of the United States, who fell 1,000 feet in a blazing airplane while on a trial flight with a French army instructor.

"Situated in the garden section of central France, in the fertile valley of the Loire, Tours is 145 miles southwest of Paris by rail, and nearly 200 miles in an airline northeast of Bordeaux. It is the chief trade and population center of the Department of Indre-et-Loire and stretches for nearly two miles from the left bank of the Loire to the right bank of the Cher, which flows into the Loire a few miles west of the city. Before the war it was a favorite city with English and American tourists.

"While Tours has numerous important industrial establishments, such as iron foundries, steel, cement, pottery, and chemical works, leather, boot and shoe manufacturers, and automobile factories, besides its famous confectionary establishments, its chief interest for American aviation students will be its historic associations.

"The town takes its name from the Gallic tribe of Turones. It was an ally of Vercingetorix, the leader of the insurrection against the authority of Julius Caesar in Gaul in 52 B. C. Thereafter the town was known as Caesarodunum for many years. It fell before the Visigoths just three years prior to the final collapse of the empire of Rome. Early in the 6th century it came into the possession of Clovis, but it was not until 732 that there was fought in this vicinity a battle which takes its name from the town and which saved Europe from the domination of Mohammedans. The Saracens, who had entered Gaul from Spain, which they had over-run, here met and were defeated by Duke Charles, commander of the Frankish forces. The battle raged all day and the Moslem leader, Abderrahman, was slain together with a vast multitude of his followers, estimated by ancient chroniclers at 375,000. In commemoration of his great victory for Christian Europe Charles received the surname of Martel, 'the Hammer,' on account of the mighty blows of his huge battleaxe. This was the grandfather of Charlemagne.

"One of the most interesting medieval treasures of Tours is the Cathedral of Saint Gatien, begun in 1170 but not completed for nearly four centuries. Two famous structures are the towers of St. Martin and of Charlemagne. The first commemorates the deeds of the great apostle of Gaul, patron saint of France, who aided Clovis against Alaric and who in return received many rare gifts for his Tours church from the grateful Frankish leader. The Charlemagne tower is so-called because it marks the burial place of that monarch's third wife, Luitgard.

"A little more than a mile to the southwest of the city rise the ruins of the chateau of Plessis-les-Tours, famous as the favorite residence of Louis XI, the 'bourgeois king' of France, who died here in 1483, surrounded by astrologers. Today there is but little in the crumbling masonry to suggest the famous 'spider's nest' with its many watch towers, so graphically described by Sir Walter Scott in his novel 'Quentin Durwood.'

"Louis XI is supposed to have introduced the manufacture of silk into Tours, and it was during the reign of that monarch that the city attained a population of 80,000. (It had slightly less than 75,000 in 1911). The silk industry, and consequently the whole commercial life of the city declined after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

"Tours was for a number of years the capital of the province of Touraine and as such it was an appendage of Mary, Queen of Scots, yielding that unhappy monarch a substantial revenue up to the time of her death.

"During the Franco-Prussian war Tours was the city in which Gambetta, after escaping from beleaguered Paris in a balloon, established the Delegation of the Government of National Defence on September 13, 1870. In December the delegation was forced by the menacing approach of the Germans to remove to Bordeaux, and the enemy occupied the city the following month.

"Besides St. Martin, Tours had two other famous churchmen—Bishop Gregory, the first historian of the Franks, whose carefully compiled chronicles won for him the pseudonym of 'the Herodotus of the barbarians;' and Berengarius, the theological whose teachings and writings about the doctrine of transubstantiation made him a precursor of Protestantism.

"Honore de Balzac, one of France's greatest literary geniuses, was born in Tours, while Descartes and Rabelais were born in neighboring villages."

Locates Well Trouble.

When a 1,400-foot well in a western town was yielding impure water, the superintendent of the water works wondered how he could locate the trouble. Finally he decided to lower a cluster of electric lights into the well, and to follow them by the aid of a fieldglass. The trouble was located at a depth of 110 feet, where loose packing permitted surface water to enter.

Notes

7 out of 9 for a percentage of .777.

Games that go into extra innings with the home team a winner always put the crowd in good humor, no matter what the short comings were in the early part of the game.

If we lost the game, Smith himself would have to take the blame, but we won, so let's forget all about the errors.

Smith seems to be a mighty good pitcher and will have a real test tomorrow when he faces the Western Electric team.

Manager LeDuc has surely got the best third baseman we have ever had; a great fielder and a swell hitter, and full of the "old pep" that goes to enliven the games. He and his friend, "Bill" Coady, were having it out all the afternoon.

Jack Hevey filled in at short, due to the absence of Burke, who has promised to play out the season with us, beginning tomorrow.

We should worry about short-stops. Jack accepted 6 out of 7 chances, and hammered the ball for .500 for the day.

Barry was the sorest man on the field after making that error. But errors are bound to occur and that was the first one for him in 8 games.

"Mack" made the star catch of the day; that one-hand stab in the 12th. He hit the ball hard but directly at the fielders, although one got away from the third baseman, and was good for a run.

The combined batting averages of the outfield Manager LeDuc has got this season: Hevey, McCarthy and McKenzie are .334. It is the best hitting outfield we have ever had with the exception of Coolidge, Frye and Leland, and they do not have to take their hats off to them either.

Some criticism has been heard about the delay in starting the game, but let me explain. Linehan came out and went up to the dressing room to change his clothes, but for some unknown reason he did not do so and went back to Boston without notifying anyone connected with the team. This left us without a player, so Manager LeDuc filled in with Shaughnessy, the High School catcher, until Duffy, who formerly played with us, could get into a uniform. But from now on Manager LeDuc says there will always be an extra player on the bench for any emergency that may arise.

The absence of a policeman on the field was due to a slight misunderstanding all around. No harm was done, but an officer looks better on the field.

The "Millionaire Sportsman" with ten men on the field, managed to win from Arlington by forfeit. Arlington should have played their string out, umpire or no umpire. They always were a cheap crowd of sports over there in Arlington anyway. Reports say Arlington dropped $150, so you must make allowance for the umpire. The Arlington crowd probably saw his decision with their eyes shut.

But wait until Winchester faces that crowd "The Millionaire Sportsman" has got together. We are due there the 18th of August, and take it from me they will be telling the bell in the Old Belfry that night, and the "fans" will want to drink something stronger than Twin Elm the Sunday following. No charge for this ad.

Hart, the old time United Shoe pitcher, beat Wollaston Saturday, pitching a no-hit, no-run game.

Manchester beat St. John C. C. 6 to 2, Meehan getting 3 hits including a three-bagger. Reports say Meehan is catching a fine game for Manchester and getting good results from Grover, the former Pittsburg pitcher.

Marblehead won from Queen Quality 4 to 2, "Chick" Davies doing the pitching. Marblehead by the showing so far this season should not lose another game. They are undoubtedly the strongest semi-pro team in Massachusetts. Still the writer would like to see Winchester face them with one weak spot in our lineup strengthened.

St. Ambrose were handed the surprise of the season when the Mill-streams of Chelsea beat them 5 to 2.

Bunker Hill won again Saturday. This is a team we would like to see here as they have a fine lineup.

Falmouth beat Goodyear Tire, but on the face of their lineup, we fail to see why Goodyear did not win.

Pere Marquette went out of their class when they faced the Sanford, Maine, team, captained and managed by "Freddie" Parent, the old Red Sox short-stop. Sanford beat them 19 to 5.

AN INTERESTING GERMAN

Spandau, the munitions-factory center of Prussia and sometimes characterized as the "citadel of Berlin," is described in the following war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society:

"It is, of course, impossible to surmise as to the extent of the damage caused by the recent explosion in a hand-grenade factory at Spandau, for the German censorship on news of such disasters is very rigid. There are few richer fields for explosions in the German empire, however, than at Spandau, where, prior to the war, there were more than 200 acres of government arsenals, gun factories, and powder plants employing more than 6,000 workmen. The extent of these military works has, of course, been vastly increased since the summer of 1914.

"When the war began Spandau had a population of more than 85,000, having nearly trebled in size since 1885. The town is situated on naturally swampy ground, at the confluence of the rivers Spree and Havel, the latter having been greatly improved for navigation in recent years. The distance by rail to Berlin, which lies to the southwest, is seven and a half or eleven miles, according to the railway station in the capital at which the traveler detains. As a matter of fact, the two cities are practically continuous, Charlottenburg forming the connecting link. Both the Berlin-Hamburg and the Berlin-Hanover railway lines pass through Spandau.

"Spandau's history begins far back in medieval times. It received its civic rights during the first half of the 13th century, and was strongly fortified in the 16th century, but was unable to withstand an attack from the Swedes in 1635. During the Napoleonic era it succumbed to the French. After the war of 1870 the Germans thought it advisable to strengthen the fortifications, but subsequently many of the defenses were razed.

"Spandau has been one of the military treasure cities of Prussia for more than 40 years, a sum equal to $30,000,000 having been kept here in the Julius Tower ready for instant use in case of 'military emergency.' It is a pathetic commentary that this sum, which undoubtedly was used in launching the treacherous attack upon France through Belgium in the opening days of August, 1914, was a residue of the indemnity which Germany had collected from the French after the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71.

"Four or five miles northeast of Spandau is the famous castle of Tegel, the family home of the Brothers Humboldt.—Alexander, the great naturalist and traveler, and Karl Wilhelm, the diplomatist, philologist, and man of letters—both of whom are buried in the castle grounds.

NOTICE TO BRANCHES OF SPECIAL AID.

In answer to constant inquiry "Is the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness being merged in the Red Cross?" we wish to emphatically state that it is not.

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross wish the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness to be closely affiliated with them in the volunteer service and by joint committees, believing thereby they will be able to meet any emergencies that do not come directly under their jurisdiction, their work being distinctly relief work. In order to further the co-operation of the two societies, the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness has arranged to move its office to 142 Berkeley street, which is the building to which the various departments of the Red Cross have moved.

The following is an account of the activities of the National Special Aid Society at this time:

Mobilizing women for service to their country by means of service pledges.

Patriotic Lectures. Encouraging enlistments in the Army, Navy, Marine and Aviation Corps.

Raising funds to be used for aviation needs. Providing supplies and the necessary equipment and comforts not as yet furnished by the Government to aviation camps.

Naval Militia Hospital donated and fitted up at Bay Shore.

Free French lessons to nurses going abroad from hospitals and the Red Cross.

Employing needy women selected by Social Service Department of Bellevue Hospital to make clothes for children in France.

Knitting sweaters, gloves and mufflers for sailors and aviators. Gardening in all its branches.

Home Economics lectures. No-food-waste committee. Rolling Surgical Dressings.

Wireless and Dressing Classes. Several Aviators sent abroad.

Six motors bought for use of Marine Corps and the Navy for recruiting duty.

Amultery presented to Marine Corps, and funds provided for its upkeep for one year.

One thousand books on Aviation printed and presented to the Aeronautic Division, Signal Corps.

Establishment of technical reference libraries at aviation camps.

Endowment of a bed in the American Hospital in Paris in honor of our naval aviators.

Endowment of a bed in the American Hospital in Paris in honor of our Marine Corps.

Endowment of a bed in the Lawrence Convalescent Hospital for sailors and marines.

Equipping tennis courts for Officers Training Camp, Fort Madison, Sacketts Harbor, N. Y.

Equipping two tennis courts at Aviation Camp, Bay Shore.

A check of $800.00 to President Hawley, of the Aero Club of America, to train two aviators.

Free French lessons to aviators going abroad.

Paying head tax of Neutral Aliens applying for enlistments in the U. S. Coast Guard.

Acting as clearing House for the National Union of Women Workers of England.

Contribution of $300.00 to the Red Cross War Fund.

Flags for Marine Corps going abroad.

Motor trucks for 69th and 12th Regiments.

Sending hospital supplies to the Navy League for Hospital ship given by Mrs. Dewey.

Forming Chapters throughout the country.

Chapters have the same activities and mobilize their members by the pledges.

For example, in case of explosions or accidents a New Jersey Chapter has fifty bed pledges in private houses for occupancy at one-half hour's notice and nurse pledges to attend the injured patients.

The Commission Committee in Chapters outside of New York are ready to see that soldiers are properly cared for while going through the town, and they are ready to supply food to be used en route.

Help us to continue this work by taking out a Life Membership in the Society at $100.00.

That Was Long Enough.

Henry, aged five, had been sent to a store to purchase a pair of stockings. "How long do you want them?" asked the clerk. "I don't want to borrow them," replied Henry. "I want 'em to keep."

"Spandau was at one time the favorite residence of the Hohenzollern electors of Brandenburg. Ten miles to the southwest is Potsdam, one of the principal residences of the Kaiser."

WHY LEAD-AND-OIL PAINT HOLDS

EXAMINE an unpainted board thru a microscope. Observe the innumerable, minute wood pores which once contained sap.

Into these tiny wood pores white-lead paint sinks. When dry it is thus actually rooted or anchored to the wood by thousands of hooks—so firmly anchored that no stress of grueling weather can tear it loose.

For paint to enter the wood pores the particles of white-lead must be extremely fine.

Dutch Boy
Red Seal
White-Lead

Is so fine that by actual test it will sift thru a silk screen having 27,000 meshes to the square inch.

Pure linseed oil holds the particles of Dutch Boy White-Lead together inseparably when dried on the building. Then this paint is a weather-proof protection and a mantle of beauty for your house.

It may be tinted any color desired. For years it will remain smooth as when applied. It will not crack nor scale. It is rooted to your buildings.

Come to our headquarters for good materials.

Mrs. Fred Trombley of Brookside road attended the union service Sunday at the Methodist church, and on the way home discovered that the diamond of her ring had fallen from the setting. She went back to the church with her husband to hunt for it, and finding the church locked and the sexton gone, went to Rev. Mr. Davis. He accompanied them back to the church and assisted them in the search. When about to give up the jewel as lost, Mrs. Trombley discovered it on the floor of the pew they had occupied. They were delighted to find the stone, as it is an unusual thing to find a loose diamond after it once comes from a setting. They were very grateful to Mr. Davis for his assistance and rejoiced over their lucky find.

THE MILITARY DRAFT.

Greatest Excitement of Years Over Drawings Friday.

Winchester showed the greatest excitement in years over the Military Draft drawing Friday. It was not alone in its interest, for similar scenes were enacted in every town and city throughout the country. The interest was not confined to the men eligible for the draft, for whole families were vitally concerned over the outcome. Owing to the many conflicting statements, few really thought the drawing would actually take place on Friday, and when the numbers began to come in shortly after noon the whole town turned out to ascertain who was taken, and not until well into the evening did the crowds disperse. In fact many remained up all night watching for the fateful number which would indicate that a son or husband had been taken. It was rightfully called the greatest lottery this country has ever known.

No "Red Ink" Numbers

Learning early in the week that Winchester would be wholly without information as to its "Red Ink" or draft numbers, the STAR proposed to furnish them. When the information was received that the only public list of "Red Ink" numbers would be posted at the Arlington Town Hall, the headquarters of the Exemption Board, and that none would be sent here, every effort was made to obtain a copy. A stenographer was held in readiness from Wednesday on, waiting for the announcement that they were ready.

They were received in Arlington Friday morning, and at 10:15 the complete list was on view at the STAR office, the whole 776 numbers being copied in a little over two hours' time. From this list a duplicate was sent to the Winchester Town Hall.

Knowing that the public was wholly without information where or how to get the numbers, a notice was published in the STAR stating that they could be had at this office, and when the papers began to reach the people it became quite a problem to handle the work of giving them out. Nevertheless it was done, and two clerks took care of the work to the satisfaction of all. Until almost 11 o'clock Friday evening the numbers were given out by telephone and messenger.

3,000 Circulars Printed

Realizing that many would be anxious to learn if friends had been drafted, work was at once commenced setting and printing circulars giving the complete list of numbers. Owing to the great demand on the list, it was not possible to print this complete list until Saturday morning, at which time 3,000 copies were distributed through the various places of business in the centre.

These circulars all indicated the drawings up to the first 2,500 of this State, thus showing many that they would not be called in the first draft.

Meanwhile the work of tabulating the Winchester numbers drawn was taken care of as fast as the blocks of numbers were received. These were posted in front of the office, arranged in blocks of 50 State numbers, it being stated that the first 2,000 numbers drawn in this State would be called.

This gave Winchester men information down to a close figure of the order in which they were drawn, and that it was appreciated was evidenced by the big crowd constantly before them. Included with this was the information on the District and Town quota.

Saturday night new lists were posted with the numbers and names given in order of drawing in all three phases—Town, District and State, thus furnishing a most complete table. The STAR has received many compliments on the able way in which it handled this big job.

First Man Drawn

The first man drawn in Winchester was Thomas W. Conlon of 24 Border street, a new-comer to Winchester, who previously resided in Woburn. His number—1436—was first in the Town Draft, third in the District and sixth in the State. The first block of 50 State numbers took nine Winchester men.

Taken by blocks of 50 numbers of the State, the largest blocks were the 31st and the 36th, each drawing 11. The smallest blocks were the 39th, with 2 and the 40th with 3. The blocks averaged 7 or 8 Winchester men.

GENERAL LAZELLE DEAD.

Was Retired After Long Service For His Country.

Word was received Monday of the death of Gen. Henry M. Lazelle, U. S. A., retired, of 11 Symmes road. Gen. Lazelle had been in poor health for the past three months. Something over a fortnight ago he went with his wife to Georgeville, P. Q., Canada, where he died. He was in his 85th year.

Brigadier General Henry Martyn Lazelle, U. S. A., retired, was born in Enfield in this State on Sept. 8, 1832, the son of Joseph and Roxana Lazelle. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, in 1855, and entered the United States Army as a lieutenant in the Eighth Infantry, the same year. He served with expeditions against the Indians, for four years, and received a wound in his lungs, through this warfare.

He was in the Civil War from 1861 until 1866 and in this service was for a time a prisoner, and then was assistant commissary general for prisoners of war, and in 1864 became colonel of the Sixteenth New York Cavalry and commanded a cavalry brigade of the Twenty-second Army Corps. He was brevetted major general on Dec. 19, 1864.

In the early seventies, Mr. Lazelle worked on a survey of the Northern Pacific Railroad and later was on an expedition against the Sioux. From 1879 he was commandant of cadets at West Point and then became assistant inspector general of the Department of the Columbia, serving until 1885, when he was sent to India on special service.

He was for two years, 1887 until 1889, editor of Records of the Rebellion, then for two years, till 1891, he was colonel of the Eighteenth United States Infantry. In 1894 he was retired, for disability in line of duty, and was advanced to the rank of brigadier general, by Act of April 23, 1904. He then took up farming in Virginia. He was the author of "One Law in Nature," "Matter, Force and Spirit," and several monographs.

The funeral services and interment took place at Georgeville.

MASONIC TRIP TO BE A "POUND PARTY."

There promises to be a practical side to the automobile trip of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., to the Masonic Home at Charlton, on Saturday, August 4th, as well as the pleasure of a delightful cross-country run. The suggestion was made by J. B. Benton, Master of the Lodge, that it might be possible to do something of a practical nature and establish a "Winchester Idea" which might well be imitated by other Masons, who make trips to the Home to see the institution.

It is a popular place for masons, and by the expenditure of a few cents individually, the Home could be well helped. It is suggested that an old fashioned New England "pound party" might well be imitated, each member of the excursion party carrying a pound of something of a practical nature, to leave at the Home. It would cost each one only a little to take a pound of sugar, tea, coffee, cheese—in short anything that the fancy might dictate, and the members are showing much interest in this feature, and there promises to be quite a friendly rivalry in the matter of ingenuity in choice of gifts, which are to be of a practical nature. Some of the members who will be unable to go on the trip, have sent checks to George S. Littlefield, Secretary of the Lodge, that they may not be omitted in this feature of the outing. The meeting will open early on Saturday morning, August 4th, and the start in autos will be made from in front of the Masonic Hall. Charlton will probably be reached about noon, and a meeting will be held in the afternoon for the benefit of the inmates of the institution.

It is proposed to have attractive pennants made for the event which may be carried by the autos and retained as souvenirs by the members. Any members desiring these pennants should communicate with Mr. George E. Morrill, who has the matter in charge.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending July 25th: Mumps 4, Whooping Cough 1.

BASEBALL.

Loose Playing by Winchester Results in a Defeat in 10 Innings.

After the game Saturday a gentleman stepped up to me and asked me, "What is going to be your alibi this week." Well, for the benefit of that gentleman and several hundred more, we will say that there is no alibi to offer. Of course there must be some reason for losing a game of ball, whether one team does the losing or the other side does it. So in this game we will have to charge it to loose playing, on the part of the infield thrown with poor handling of his thrown back from the outfield. McQuinn had a bad day in this respect as he let two nice throws get away from him, which were good for two runs. Burke and Barry had a poor day in the field, so in the 4th inning on a base hit, a base on balls, and two errors, three runs were allowed to cross the rubber which should never have been scored. Two more came across in the fifth, due to poor handling of throws by McQuinn; so take the game as a whole the loss must be practically charged to poor playing on the part of Winchester, and not very good pitching on the part of Smith. The Western Electric team had a "fine" crowd of players and hitters, and a good battery in Wholley of Boston College, and "Dad" Moulton, the old Mechanic High pitcher. In center field they had McKenney, who covered more ground than a circus tent, this player having no less than 7 putouts, and robbing our players of some drives that were labeled hits. It seems tough to lose games after you have practically won them, and the three games we have already lost could have been won by a little consistent playing and half decent pitching, we have no excuse for losing either one of the games we have lost. In Saturday's game we had the strongest team Manager Le Duc has had

WHO WILL BE FIRST IN NEW BUILDING.

Many Aspire for Postmastership Honors in Winchester.

As the time wears on towards the date for the examination for the appointment of Winchester's next Postmaster the list of aspirants to the position is increased weekly, until at the present time there is quite a good-sized list of men who are said to be preparing to take the test.

Among those who are said to be in line for the position are the following:

Ernest W. Hatch, present incumbent; Frank S. Hills, Martin J. Caulfield, Patrick E. Fitzgerald, Whitfield L. Tuck, A. William Rooney, Thomas H. Barrett, and Arthur E. A. King.

WINCHESTER MEN IN WAKEFIELD ACCIDENT.

Two Winchester men figured in the severe accident at Wakefield last night when four motorcycles crashed into a company of the 9th Regiment marching from the rifle range. Over 30 persons were injured, some of them fatally it is feared.

The motorcycles with side cars containing ladies were returning from a band concert. Henry W. Bennett of 36 Highland avenue, near the North Reservoir, was third in line to crash into the ranks of militia men. Riding with him was Miss Ellen Mattison of Woburn. Neither are reported as seriously injured.

Albert W. Twombly of 26 Clematis street, with a motorcycle alone, followed the four. He was able to stop his machine before running into the men and machines which blocked the road.

The soldiers were the first recruit company of the 9th Regiment. They had been in practice at the Wakefield rifle range and owing to the heat waited until dark before marching to their camp. The accident occurred just at the crest of the long hill on the Stoneham border. It is said that the motorcycles were travelling 35 miles an hour and that the first car ploughed its way through 11 squads before stopping, a twisted mass of junk.

NORTH SIDE CIVIC ASSOCIATION.

Regular meeting of the North Side Civic Association will be held Friday, August 3, 1917, at 8 p. m., at the Rumford School. Members are requested to attend.

Chas. H. Gallagher, Secretary.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Little Business Transacted by Board this Week.

July 23, 1917.

The Board met at 7:30 p. m. with Messrs. Metcalf, Jewett, Laraway, O'Connor and Clark present.

Warrants were drawn for $3,125.15 and $4,971.95.

Cross Street: Letters were received from the Parker & Lane Company and J. O. Whitten Company in regard to dangerous conditions on Cross street, on the easterly side of the Boston & Maine Railroad by the Winchester Highland Depot, where there is considerable traffic, and also concerning speed attained by trucks of Winchester Rock & Brick Company at this point. The Clerk was instructed to send copies of above letters to the Winchester Rock & Brick Company and ask them to remedy conditions at once as far as they are concerned. The whole matter was also referred to Committee on Police.

Salem Street, Gas Main: Letter was received from Daniel Murphy in regard to application made to the Arlington Gas Light Company by residents on Salem street a year ago to be furnished with gas on said street, and the Clerk was instructed to write to the Arlington Gas Light Company to ascertain what action they have taken in the matter to date.

Arlington Street: Letter was received by Mr. Jewett from John Abbott suggesting that a sign post such as is placed in the middle of the street at dangerous corners be placed at the proper spot near the end of Arlington street, and the Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Abbott that the matter was referred to the Board, and as they are going to change the street light at the junction of Arlington and Cambridge streets, they will give this matter their attention a little later.

Street Lights, Curtis Street: The Board voted that the light on Curtis street be removed to the northerly corner of Curtis street and Grassmere avenue.

Street Lights, Vine Street: The Board voted that the light on Vine street at the corner of Park street be moved out to the edge of the sidewalk to a proper location.

Street Light, Cambridge Street: The Board voted that the light on Cambridge street near Arlington street be moved one section southerly to pole G. 2229 J. c 16-2, as recommended by the Town Engineer.

Street Lights, Kenwin Road: The Board voted that a new light on Kenwin road be placed on the last pole easterly, and that the existing light be removed to the second pole easterly from Washington street as recommended by the Town Engineer.

Bay State Street Railway Company, Forest Street: On petition of the Bay State Street Railway Company for an alteration of location and relocation of its tracks on Forest street at Highland avenue, the Board voted that a hearing on the same be held on August 6, 1917, at 8 o'clock p. m., in the Selectmen's Room, Town Hall Building. The Clerk was instructed to advertise notice of this hearing in the Winchester Star on July 27 and August 3, 1917.

Adjourned at 8:55 o'clock p. m.

Mabel W. Stinson, Acting Clerk of Selectmen.

TAYLOR—SMITH.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Smith daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Smith of 14 Porter street, Everett, and Mr. Herbert Cummings Taylor of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taylor of 15 Washington street, was quietly observed at Cambridge on Saturday morning by Rev. Mr. Walton of that city. The ceremony was private and attended by only a few relatives and intimate friends.

The couple were attended by Miss Louise Locke of Boston and Mr. Earle H. Barker of Auburndale. They left on their wedding trip immediately following the ceremony and upon their return will make their home at 11 Buckminster street, Brighton, where they will be at home after September first.

UNION CHURCH SERVICES.

For the coming Sunday the Rev. John Luther Kilbon, Pastor of Park Congregational Church of Springfield, is the preacher. Mr. Kilbon is an able speaker and is held in high esteem in the western section of the State. He is a member of our State Constitutional Convention at present assembled in Boston. His ability as a leader and administrator is recognized.

OUR POST OFFICE BUILDING.

Government's Description of New Federal Building.

The following description of Winchester's new Post Office has been received in answer to the STAR's request for publication. It is printed as received from the Treasury Department, which department sent regrets that it could not furnish a sketch from which a cut could be made.

The proposed new post office building at Winchester is to be located at the corner of Waterfield road and Thompson street, and is to have a frontage on the former street of about 70 feet, with a depth of 65 feet.

In order to meet the local conditions, the building is to be set up on a grass terrace on Waterfield road, from which the public approaches the main entrance. The building is to be colonial in character, to be executed in red brick with stone trimmings. On the main front the public entrance is emphasized by a stone portico which gives access to the entrance vestibule and the public lobby beyond. This lobby is in the form adopted in the modern bank, that is, it has the screen work extended on four sides, at which the public transacts its business with the post office officials, and as the room rises above the general roof level, it has an attic treatment which gives opportunity for lighting by clerestory. In the rear of the public lobby is a large workroom, with the mailing entrance, service stairs, etc., at the rear wall. This portion of the building is approached by a driveway from Thompson street.

The mezzanine story provides space for carriers' swingroom and toilet, while in the basement several offices are provided in addition to the usual space for storage, heating apparatus, etc.

The building will be equipped with carefully selected types of heating apparatus, plumbing fixtures, etc., and when completed is designed to meet the postal needs of Winchester for some time to come.

THE TREE AGAIN.

July 23rd, 1917.

Editor of the Star:

How is it in this enlightened age, that the citizens will allow a tree to stand on Church street, almost in the centre of the road, a menace to safety, and detrimental in all respects to travel, on account of the sentimental motion of a few people, who think it is a nice tree, (that admitted). But it ought not to stand as an obstruction on the road. According to law, no city or town can obstruct the highway or street made for travel, except for repairs, etc.

Will some public-spirited and progressive Selectman, advocate or order its removal; thereby the ridicule will cease, and the laughing stock of the Town be removed. Then the broad and level headed men from other cities will have no more to say.

Respectfully yours,

Wm. T. Henderson,
93 Cambridge street,
Winchester.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Manager LeDuc has secured the fast H. B. Fenno team of Roxbury for tomorrow. This team is one of the best semi-pro teams in Greater Boston, capable of putting up a good game with any team in the semi-pro ranks. It has played such teams as Pere Marquette, Millstreams of Chelsea, Winthrop A. A., and others of this class. We expect to have a new pitcher and he will have to be a good one to hold this crowd.

10 NEW HOUSES TO BE ERECTED.

A report has been circulated about town this week that the Roberts Construction Co. of 22 Chester road, Belmont, is about to begin the construction of 10 wood frame dwelling houses in this town. It is said that the houses will average $9,000 each in cost.

POSTAGE ON ASSESSORS' BOOK.

Residents requesting that Assessors' Books be mailed to them from this office must send 5 cents in stamps with such request to cover postage and mailing. Unless this sum is received no books will be mailed.

COMING EVENTS.

Dates That Should be Remembered When Making Engagements.

July 28, Saturday. Base ball on Manchester Field at 3:30. Winchester vs. H. B. Fenno team of Roxbury.

July 28, Saturday. Winchester Country Club: Medal Play.

Aug. 3, Friday. Have flowers at the Winchester Station before 9 a. m., to be sent to Boston for distribution in the North End.

Aug. 4, Saturday. Band concert on Manchester Field, 3:30 to 5:30. Ives Band.

Aug. 4, Saturday. William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., visits Masonic Home at Charlton.

Aug. 8, Wednesday. Winchester Traders' Outing at Salem Willows.

Aug. 11, Saturday. Winchester Boat Club: Dance.

Aug. 11, Saturday. Band Concert on Manchester Field, 3:30 to 5:30. First Corps Cadets Band.

TAYLOR—GUTTERSON.

Miss Constance Reed Gutterson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Gutterson of 34 Rangeley, and Mr. Horace Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Taylor of Brookline, were quietly united in marriage on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents. They were unattended, and the ceremony was private.

The bride wore for her wedding gown a dress of white Indian mull edged with gold. Her bouquet was of yellow thistles.

A small reception followed the ceremony, it being held on the lawn at the residence and attended only by a few intimate friends and relatives of the couple.

Following a wedding trip, during which Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will tour through New Hampshire and Maine by auto, they will make their home in Cambridge. Mr. Taylor is the head of the nature and science department at the Brown & Nichols School of Cambridge. The bride is a well known young woman of this town, a graduate of Abbott Academy and the Boston Normal School of Gymnastics.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR TRADERS' DAY OUTING.

At Salem Willows, Wednesday, Aug. 8th, are completed, and a big time is in store for those who go. The annual ball game between the married and single traders will be the attraction of the morning. All ball players are requested to report to Capt. J. Chris. Sullivan of married men, or Capt. John Piccolo of single men.

A fine list of sports is arranged for the afternoon, which with theatre parties, boat rides, bowling, dancing, band concert, etc., ought to round out a day of pleasure.

Plan to go with the crowd because you cannot spend a nickel if you stay at home as all the stores will be closed.

Tickets on sale at Butterworth's Jewelry Store, Hersey Hardware Co., Sullivan's Barber Shop, Piccolo Brothers, Sellers' Market, F. C. MacDonald's (at the Highlands).

WELL KNOWN HERE.

Prof. Benjamin T. Marshall of Dartmouth College was chosen President of Connecticut College for Women at New London this week, to succeed President Frederick Sykes, who recently resigned.

President Marshall was graduated from Dartmouth in 1897, and took his degree in divinity at Union Theological Seminary. Later he had Presbyterian charges at New Rochelle and Scarborough-on-Hudson, N. Y. For some years he has had the chair of biblical history and literature at Dartmouth, and he will take a similar professorship at Connecticut College in addition to the presidency.

He has filled the pulpit a number of times at the First Congregational Church, preaching here last Sunday.

WAR RELIEF WORK.

Every Friday morning since last October meetings for work have been held at the Parish House, Church of the Epiphany. The group was organized under the American Fund for French wounded, but after our own country entered the war, it was decided that we desired more freedom in the distribution of our work, and the money contributed has been simply for War Relief, the division to be left to the discretion of the committee in charge. In this way we have been able to cooperate with the Special Aid Society and the Surgical Dressing Group, and have contributed to the individual equipment of Winchester boys who have enlisted in various departments of service. The bulk of the work, however, has gone to the Headquarters in Paris and the bulletins each week have kept us in close touch with the need and the keen appreciation of the nurses in the small French hospitals, and of the wounded soldiers themselves.

Today, Friday, July 27, is the last of 38 meetings, and the average attendance has been 30. Since the close of school young girls between 10 and 15 have helped us and kept up our numbers in spite of warm weather.

The following list shows the work accomplished:

1024 comfort pillows, 115 pajama suits (two pieces), 117 sleeveless vests, 65 day shirts, 12 bath robes, 80 bed-jackets, 405 trench caps, 79 knitted sleeveless sweaters, 145 prs. knitted hospital socks, 80 prs. day socks, 24 prs. over-dressing socks, 80 prs. wristers, 474 knitted wash gloves, 138 eye bandages, 40 wash cloths, 400 surgical sponges and 8 mufflers.

A large number of comfort bags, many of them filled, packages of old linen, and valuable clothing have also been contributed and many knitted squares to be made into warm coverlets.

The work will not be resumed until the second week in September, when all the knitting done through the summer may be turned in.

The treasurer's report cannot be given now, but about $400 has been expended, and with all bills paid there will be a small balance with which to start the work in the fall.

HOW PEOPLE GET BY.

In these high price times, it is certainly a mystery how some families manage to get by. When you consider how prices have risen from 50 to 100 per cent, while wages and salaries have not gone up in that proportion it is a problem how some families manage to exist or keep together. For a great many people it has been solved by the ability of their children to get work and help support the family. There is such a demand for work of all kinds, that almost any young person of the most middling intelligence can find things to do. It sometimes seems foolish for so many girls to train for stenographers; yet the demand for them keeps up. As fast as one lot gets able to take positions a previous group of them have been married. A young man who can't get work today must be either incurably indolent or incredibly stupid. An examination of a leading Metropolitan paper the other day showed about six columns of advertisements of Help Wanted and only a column of Situations Wanted. Usually the proportion is reversed. So when one wonders how the man who is getting $2.50 and $3 a day can get along, it must be considered that frequently he has several children working and turning in money toward family expenses. The whole family may have resources of $2,000 a year. The people who have courage to marry and have children often get the most comforts out of life. Of course, the young married man with a family of little ones has a heavy burden.

WAR TALK AT BOAT CLUB.

The Winchester Boat Club held its second smoke talk of this summer on Wednesday evening at its club house on Mystic Lake. The speaker of the evening was Charles T. Flamand of the French Army, a gentleman who has previously visited this town and delighted many with his excellent and vivid descriptions of the great European war. There was a large attendance of Boat Club members, besides many friends, and the evening was one of the best of the year. At the conclusion of Mr. Flamand's talk refreshments were served.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Hartley of 3 Kendall street, have announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Alta May, to E. Darwin Beach, son of Mrs. E. L. Beach of Newton Highlands.

HOW TO SEND SOLDIERS' MAIL ABROAD.

July 25, 1917.

Editor of the Star:

Sir:—The Post Office Department has established a Mail Agency in France for handling mail to and from the United States Expeditionary Forces and letters, post cards and printed matter may be sent to members of that force at the domestic rates of postage.

The proper form of address would be

John Smith,
Co. X, ..... Infantry,
American Expeditionary Forces, and all mail should bear the name and address of the sender and be fully prepaid by stamps affixed.

As there is no provision at present for parcel post and letters containing money or other valuables they will not be accepted for registration.

Important papers which can be duplicated may be registered, but no indemnity will be paid if they are lost.

Money orders may be sent to the members of the Expeditionary Force at the domestic fees and should always be used for transmitting money, as it is not safe to enclose currency in letters under any circumstances.

Respectfully,

Ernest W. Hatch,
Acting Postmaster.

WHY MARK PRICES UP AND NOT DOWN.

The Christian Science Monitor touches upon a question which will bear looking into when it refers to the query so often raised, why it is that the restaurants nearly always mark prices up when foodstuffs decline. The editor replies by doubting if this can be answered with satisfaction to the restaurant patron, and then poses another question akin to it, namely: "Why is it that when the restaurant people mark up charges they almost invariably cut down quantities?" And yet another: "Why should the restaurant people raise prices and cut rations in order to preserve the level of their profits, when they might reduce their expenses by removing the flowers and the orchestra which, in many instances, their patrons often would like to, but cannot eat?" We give 'em all up as it is altogether too much a mystery to the ordinary man or woman who patronizes restaurants.—[Foxboro Reporter.]

AGATE SHOWER.

An agate shower was given Monday evening by Miss Minnie Mason at her home on Church avenue, Woburn, to Miss Lida Darr of this town. Miss Darr is engaged to Mr. George Driscoll, Bow street, Woburn. The shower really was a complete surprise, Mr. Driscoll having told his fiancée strictly "on the Q. T." that her friends were going to give her a shower next Wednesday. Therefore she was very much surprised when she entered the house and was greeted by her friends and their many useful gifts. She thanked her guests prettily and a delightful evening followed. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Miss Darr and Mr. Driscoll have set August 5th as the wedding day.

WOODS LEAVES FOR FOREIGN AVIATION SERVICE.

Mr. Bryant Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Adams Woods of Sheffield road, who enlisted under appointment from Washington in the aviation section of the Federal Officers' Service, and who was assigned to the government ground school at the Institute of Technology, completed an eight weeks' intensive training course this week. He has been designated from Washington as one of the seven honor men of his squadron and has been assigned to foreign service, leaving Boston Wednesday morning.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

Augustus Howell Seemuller of Winchester, a travelling salesman, has been given permission to change his name to Augustus Seemuller Howell by the Probate Court.

Julia F. Barnes of Winchester is an heir-at-law to the estate of her father, George E. Fowle of Woburn, who died July 17. No valuation of the estate was filed.

Caleb H. Jaquith and Carl W. Jaquith, co-partners and doing business as Jaquith & Co., in Woburn, have been attached for $25,000 in an action of tort by William E. Cummings of Winchester, as administrator of the estate of Harold H. Cummings of Winchester.

The will of Mrs. Elva F. Crosby of Winchester, who died May 10, has been allowed by the Probate Court. Jerome Crosby, husband of the deceased, has been appointed as executor and has given a bond of $10,000. The estate is valued at $7,800; $5,000 in real estate and $2,800 in personal property.

HOME GUARD SEES SERVICE.

A few evenings ago one of our local Home Guards was called to the telephone to hear a childish voice request that he come to her home and stay until the family returned. She had been left with a new maid, who proved very timid, and whose nearest approach to courage was to lament the lack of a hat-pin as a suitable weapon of defense. The child, becoming frightened, recollected she knew a "Home" Guard, and why not call upon him. He responded in true, patriotic manner, remaining at his post until relieved by the appearance of the family.

This is the first case, we believe, where a member has been called into active service, and earned his title.

BOOKS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Editor of the Star:

The response to the appeal for books to be sent the soldiers is gratifying, but the demand will be so great that the Public Library will be glad to receive more.

It is proposed by the Massachusetts Library Commission to install a regular library at all training camps. Pictures suitable for the tents, magazines since Jan. 1916, as well as books will be acceptable.

Please leave at the Public Library, Winchester.

Librarian.

STEWART NEWLANDS LEAVES.

Members of the Winchester Boat Club will learn with great regret that the genial and obliging Stewart of that Club, Benjamin H. Newlands, will end his duties at Mystic Lake tomorrow. Mr. Newlands will go to the fish pier at Boston, where he has accepted an advanced position with the firm of F. E. Harding, wholesale fish dealers.

BASEBALL.

so far this season, especially on the batting end. But batting is not going to win games if the fielding is poor and the pitching worse. In ten games played so far this season we have not failed to hit into double figures but once, and that kind of hitting is bound to tell if we do not fail in other departments.

Notes

7 out of 10 for a percentage of
.700.

This percentage is all right, but it ought to be 1.000.

We had Bangs on the bench during the game. He has been playing in the Blue Ridge League in Maryland, but says he has joined the Cavalry.

Frazier has gone to join the Coast Artillery; here's hoping he does more hitting on that job than he did with Winchester, and that every hit sends home a German where they can't hit.

We had "Charlie" Dickerman, the old Princeton infielder, on first base.
He is a great hitter, but may not be Frazier's equal as a fielder. He is the faculty coach at the Somerville High School.

Burke, the former Goodyear short stop, filled in at short. He did not have a very good day, but hit the ball hard.

"Mack" has been criticised for not going after the second fly ball that was hit in his territory in the 10th.
He might have got it by a little more trying, and then again, he might not, and if he let it get away from him the howl would have gone up "why didn't he play it safe." There are always two sides to a play, and these "kids" are out there doing the best they can.

It is rumored around town and in Woburn that they expect to put a team in the field about the first of August, and for the good of the sport in this section let's hope they do. Harold McDonald says, "he would like to try it, but the crowd up there do not seem to care for him." Well, that may be as he says, but you can take it from me they never had the interest in baseball since the McDonald boys got away from Woburn.
They may not have been the greatest players in Woburn, but they surely put the old life and "pep" in any team they played with.

Marblehead beat the United Shoe, 4 to 0. "Raymie" Skilton was the "big noise" getting 4 hits, one of them a three-bagger.

Russell Murphy, who played second for Marblehead, has been signed by the Chicago Cubs, together with his running mate, Bennie Frieberg of Lynn. They are two of the best schoolboy players developed in years in this section.

Wakefield won from South Lawrence Saturday. Flaherty and Scanlon doing the battery work. Herzog, the old Lawrence pitcher, did the box work for South Lawrence.

Queen Quality put over a win on the Trojans of Newport Sunday, and it must have been a surprise to the Newport fans, as this team beat the Brooklyn National League team a few Sundays before.

Attleboro won again from North Attleboro, making it two straight games in the series. Some of these players are going to get into trouble on account of this series, as Joe Connolly, who manages Attleboro,
Connolly, who manages Attleboro,
is an "outlaw," as far as base ball

The "Millionaire Sportman's" pets had soft "pickings" Saturday, beating the Newton Y. M. C. A. 8 to 2.
Ever hear of this Club? No? Well, we don't believe anyone else ever did either. Some one over in Lexington said this Newton team won 8 straight games. Well, what were they playing? Marbles.

It will be a sad story on the 18th of August when this wrecking crew from Winchester gets to work on the playground at Lexington. We should advise the "Millionaire Sportman" to keep the hay cut out near that tree in center field, because we do not want any excuse for the loss of the game due to balls being lost in the tall grass after being driven out there for hits by our batters.

Reports from Lexington say the "Millionaire Sportman" is worrying considerably, due no doubt to the rash statement of playing Winchester for "100 or nothing." We began to think over here in Winchester, he was "kidding", but the Lexington "fans" say no. Bill, we thought you were a "live one" here in Winchester, but what can we say now.

Excuse me for a few moments while I depart from base ball and take up the financial side of it, as you fans know it takes considerable money to run base ball. That is to pay a $15 guarantee to visiting teams, pay your umpire, your own players, policeman, baseballs and printing. Now then you are furnished with one and one-half to two hours of clean wholesome sport, with a chance to witness it for nothing if you see fit. But in justice to the men that take the time and trouble to put base ball on Manchester Field don't you think you could come across with at least 15 cents every Saturday, especially when you occupy seats. There are certain parties who have been on the ball field for 5 years and to my knowledge have never given one cent, and some of these fellows are the first ones to criticize, but yours truly has got their number and they know it. Think this over and be sports. Come across with a little change once in a while, and the results will be good base ball and good attractions here.

REVERE BEACH.

"The Mecca of the Millions" is a title rightfully earned by Revere Beach with its multitudinous attractions that run the range of almost every conceivable method of summer amusement. Its natural advantages are abundant to the point of profligacy even were there no other enbellishing institutions provided by pleasure purveyors. The proximity of Revere Beach to Boston and surrounding cities and town allowing a five cent fare on either steam or electric road is the strongest argument in its favor for popularity with the multitude. Supplementing the natural advantages are the great number of amusement enterprises that line the beautiful State boulevard which skirts the beach for its entire length. Many of these enterprises are mammoth and costly structures picturesque and even gorgeous to the eye. In the evening they are illuminated with millions of electric lights, and with the boulevard arched over with incandescents, they form a fairyland picture. Among the many places of amusement there may be mentioned the Dragon Gorge, The Pit, Derby Racer, Circus Side Show, Jack Rabbit Coaster, The Passing Show, Revere Theatre, Velvet Coaster, State Bath House, Hurley Hurdlers, Rough Riders, Grant Coaster, Old Mill, The Whip, Panama Canal,
Palace of Wonders, River of Doubt, Maze, Virginia Reel, Hippodrome, Mountain Railway and Nautical Ballroom. The beautiful State Bath House so well equipped is catering to its thousands daily, and for those who wish the more tempered sea baths the Ocean Pier is available.

TWO WINCHESTER BOYS PROMOTED.

Among the promotions announced in Co. G, 5th Reg. of Woburn on Monday night were two affecting Winchester boys, Thomas J. McKee and Charles E. McGondel, who were advanced to the rank of Corporal.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

At the meeting on Friday, which was held at Mrs. Hamilton's, Mrs.
Gleason told of the conference held in Ayer last week, to consider how best to help the men who are to be encamped there. The local committee and the officers of the State W.
C. T. U. were in charge of the meeting and the needs and the opportunities were clearly defined. Mrs.
Thacher, national superintendent of the work for soldiers and sailors, was present and told of the work that had been planned and carried on at other camps and gave many very helpful suggestions. As a result it was decided to take steps at once to secure a house, as near the camp as possible, which could be used as a hospice or rest room for the men, to be supplied with games, reading matter, conveniences for writing, etc. Especially is it desirable that it may be a home-like place where the men may feel that there are good women interested in them.

Such an enterprise will necessarily cost money and it is was decided to ask each member of the W. C. T.
U. in the State to give a dollar and a comfort bag for this work. Outsiders will be glad to assist in this and Winchester is ready to do its share. Full details will be given later but this is an advance notice that this Union may be among the first to respond. There may be Winchester boys there who will be glad of the cheer of such a retreat out of hours.

Mrs. Walter W. Rowe, 45 Myrtle terrace, is the local superintendent of the Flower Mission Department this year and those having flowers or vegetables to contribute are asked to communicate with her. Contributions should be received Friday evening in order to be sent in time for the distribution in Boston Saturday morning. While mindful of those who have been called to the colors we must not forget the sick and poor of the cities who are in great need because of the soaring prices of food and other necessities.

Every Friday, unless otherwise noted, there will be a meeting for work at the home of Mrs. Hamilton, 50 Lincoln street, and all contributions of material for work may be sent there. The thanks of the Union are returned to the givers of several very useful bundles.

Mrs. Ella Hoover Thacher was the guest of honor at the W. C. T. U.
headquarters in Boston last week, being here in the interests of the work for soldiers and sailors. A large number of friends attended and were inspired by her graphic presentation of the opportunities.

IRREGULARITIES AT ELECTION.

Editor of the Star:

Now that the contested seat of Mr. Dutch by Mr. Johnson has been settled it might be well for the taxpayers to get a little hint how their money is spent and how the officials are running elections regardless of the election laws. The hearing brought out many facts and I am sorry that more people were not present to hear the testimony and alibis offered for not complying with the statutes. One election officer drawing his pay from the Town of Winchester was so interested in Mr.
Dutch that he spent hours openly working on the streets, taking charge of the automobiles, and informing the West Side voters that there was an election down to the Town Hall, and recommending that they should do their duty and go down to vote for Mr. Dutch. Is this a sample of what Mr. Ives is trying to uphold and encourage?
The law says that the counters shall be equally divided. At this election it took five Republicans to equal one Democrat. These few facts will be able to hold the whispering ring who have been trying to paint other men, when as a matter of fact, they were covered from head to foot themselves. As my name was used in the first edition of this paper as a witness, I take this privilege of replying for my stand in the matter.

P. E. Fitzgerald.

AUTO STRUCK TEAM.

On Friday afternoon an Inter-State touring car emerging from Converse place ran into the rear of the delivery team of the People's Fish Market which was passing on Main street. Patrick R. Noonan, who was driving the team, was thrown off the seat to the street by the shock of the collision, fortunately escaping with slight bruises.

The auto was owned by Louis H.
Williams of Malden. It is reported that he misjudged the speed of the team, thinking that he would have plenty of room to clear the back of the wagon. The auto caught the rear wheel just at the hub and pushed the wagon along sideways.
Neither wagon nor horse were injured.

It will be a long time yet before the boys who were drafted go abroad, if they ever do.

The registry of automobiles the first six months of this year was 141-851, an increase over the same period last year of 37,363.

The attention of readers is called to the hearing notice in this issue on through cars to Harvard Square.
This is a subject of considerable interest to all residents.

Germany says that she does not consider the United States as a factor in the war. Evidently the leaders of that country are kept fully informed as to what Congress is doing.

As far as Winchester was concerned she was evidently on the "side" regarding the names of those men who were drafted. We tried our best to get the names in time to print last Friday from Arlington, but it was impossible to do so before Saturday.

With a list published in this issue of the STAR of 134 men of this town who have gone into their Country's service in one branch or another, and more yet to be announced, it looks as though Winchester is responding to the call wholeheartedly at least.

The old United States hotel building in Boston has been sold and will be demolished to make room for a modern business block. Thus another of the old time first class hotels has fallen by the wayside. There are many people here who believe never was a better table set than by Tilly Haines.

The suffragists who have been setting such a bad example must soon learn that the methods they employ will gain for them few followers among the thoughtful, cultured, peace-loving women of our country. They are lacking in self-control and before trying to control others should learn first to control themselves.

The sudden change in the river is very gratifying. The STAR can lay no claim to having effected the remedy and is as pleased as anyone in the improved conditions. While still far from satisfactory, the water is now 50 per cent better in appearance and gives hope that it may continue to clear up. The improvement has been much commented on.

At this season of the year many readers contribute personal paragraphs concerning the comings of friends and relatives, leaving or returning on vacations. Such news items are gladly published in the STAR without charge. They should contain the full names or initials of all persons mentioned, the street address of any persons mentioned and the home town or city of any persons visiting in Winchester, or who are being visited by Winchester people.

were not anywhere near as large as usual. Perhaps the great interest over the military draft was responsible in bringing the people out.

An interesting incident was noticed on the Field when the band played the Star Spangled Banner.
Winchester has many boys in the naval reserves, many of whom receive shore leave Saturday afternoon, and are in the habit of attending the ball game. When the national anthem was played all but two sprang alertly to attention and saluted until it was finished. The two exceptions were largely noticed, and one finally came to a sheepish and slovenly salute; the other absolutely ignored the order, and did not even remove his hat. When it is remembered that a man was mobbed recently in Boston for failing to uncover during the playing of the French anthem, it speaks well for the tolerance of Winchester people to allow an American to slight his own country. The greatest regret of all is that it was a Winchester boy.

LOCAL SURETY AGENT.

Mr. Herbert Wadsworth, Jr., has accepted a local agency of the National Surety Company of New York.

The appointment permits Mr.
Herbert Wadsworth, Jr., with the authority of U. S. Government ratings to write single bonds up to $827,000, this being the largest which can be executed by any one company in the United States.

DEFENDING OUR DEFENDERS.

The selective draft is at hand.
Soon hosts of young men will be in training camps. What next? The next step is clear, as General Edwards declares, "it is the very essence of the effectiveness of a command to keep men fit, clean and fine." To this end the Y. M. C. A. has worked in providing recreation centers in the army camps of the United States and Europe. At the Mexican Border, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. lectures, educational classes, concerts and moving pictures attracted great crowds, while volley ball helped to offset the temptations of idle hours.

The boys in the cantonment must have somewhere to rest, somewhere to find a friendly atmosphere and somewhere to go for recreation and wholesome amusement. Our young men have been accustomed to public libraries and to daily contact with news of current events. Every magazine reader and subscriber can easily be responsible for the continuation of this pleasure.

The Y. M. C. A. has given over the collection of its libraries to what is known as the "Collegiate Periodical League," which will superintend the collection, boxing and shipping of the magazines to the various military and naval posts of the United States. A canvass of the town will be made very shortly.
Will you be ready to do your bit?

How to Do Your Bit

1. Subscribers. Have your magazines ready for collection within 10 days of date of issue, so that the boys may receive them in two weeks.
No woman's or fashion magazine is wanted—all literary and news magazines are needed as well as illustrated weeklies and men's magazines, such as sporting, scientific and trade journals.

2. Readers. Books are in great demand for permanent and circulating libraries in the cantonments.
Any decent book is wanted as current fiction and recent books of travel, history and biography.

3. New Subscriptions are greatly desired to secure reading matter for those cantonments not within easy reach of largely populated centers. If you are not a subscriber you may do your bit in this way.

Miriam Foster.

PARCEL POST TO SOLDIERS.

Parcel post packages up to 20 pounds in weight may be sent at the 8th zone rate, or 12 cents per pound.
Such packages should bear the name and address of the sender in the upper left hand corner. They cannot be registered, insured or sent C. O. D.
This supercedes the notice printed elsewhere to the effect that no provision had been made for Parcel Post.

LEFT FOR FRANCE WEDNES- DAY.

George F. LeDuc, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. LeDuc of Thompson street, sailed on Wednesday for France. He went as a member of the 14th Engineers, Railway.

A WARNING.

Editor of the Star:

A general inspection of the milk industry at the source of supply in Central New Hampshire convinces me that we are in immediate peril of the loss of our best food product.

We are in the midst of a great war, conditions are abnormal. By reason of the withdrawal from the labor market of a large number of producers, and the additional reason of the increase in price of material used the farmer is at a great disadvantage. The price of grain has increased more than 400 per cent. Labor and materials have increased correspondingly. The farmer's price for milk has not increased in proportion. In fact the price of milk has not increased more than 10 per cent with the result that the margin of profit is reduced to a very small percentage and in many cases milk is produced at a loss to the farmer.

A condition has arisen within a few weeks which threatens the ruin of the milk industry. A blow is aimed at the dairy industry from which it may take years to recover.

On account of the war demand for meat and especially beef for slaughtering purposes, alluring and tempting offers are being made and fabulous prices are being offered farmers to dispose of their cattle.
The information comes to me from truthful men that car loads of cattle are being sent from New Hampshire villages to be slaughtered.
This is a distinct and vital loss and it is the public to realize the existence of an important industry is at a stake.

This is a serious situation, and one that requires the use of good common sense as well as good business judgment. The farmer can, and he will sell his cows at the high prices now easily obtainable. He prefers to take advantage of the situation and make money by the sale of his cows rather than be engaged in a business which brings but little if any profit to him. The milk consumers can prevent this unnecessary slaughter by paying prices that will give the producer a reasonable and a fair profit in keeping with proper business conditions.

To say that the farmers and milk producers are discouraged and disheartened but mildly expresses their feelings.

The farmer and milk producer is dissatisfied with the small margin of profit, and is unwilling to sustain even a temporary loss under present conditions. Appearances indicate the consumers may be compelled to guarantee the producer a profit nearly equal to that offered by those engaged in the slaughtering business. The consumers must solve this problem by increasing the amount they pay for milk. The value of milk is not as generally understood as it ought to be.

Chemists tell us that one quart of milk is equal in food value to ¾ pound lean beef or 8 eggs, or 3 pounds fresh codfish, or 3.5 pounds ham, or 1 pint oysters. No single food product is at once so nourishing and digestible for both infants and adults.

A condition has arisen which prompts me to write and voice a word of warning lest it be too late, and lest those who desire good nutritive milk may be compelled to pay prohibitive prices.

Maurice Dinneen,
Milk Inspector.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The following permits have been issued during the past week by the Inspector of Buildings:

Bay State Saw & Tool Co. of 30

Addition to present wood frame dwelling on Oxford street, 12 x 14 feet.

The preacher at the Union Sunday Services in the Congregational Church August 5th, will be the Rev.
Charles Herbert Rust, Pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Rochester, New York. Mr. Rust has many warm friends in Winchester, his native town, who will be most happy to hear him. In next week's STAR some special facts as to his work in Rochester will appear.

WOMAN AND THE ARTS.

Why She Excels in Writing and Not in Music and Painting.

The average woman possesses a greater variety of character, as of wardrobe, than does the man. She can more readily lay aside or suppress some important part of her and bring some contrasting feature into view.
She carries in herself a ready wealth that is more applicable to the story than to painting or to music. Thus it is, writes George M. Stratton in the Atlantic Monthly, that in painting and in music she is to be passed by man with ease, but in the story, if at all,
with greatest effort.

In the minor art of dandling and in the nobler work of reproducing the music of the great composers, as in acting the characters of the great dramatists, there are women of high and even of highest rank. But to leave these more interpretive or reproductive arts, only in fiction does she approach the mark of men, for here she must be counted with the great of the craft.

And, even should some crabbed soul insist that the rare company in which are George Eliot, Jane Austen, George Sand, Mme. de Staël and the Queen of Navarre does not include the one who is greatest in the guild, yet there is no discomfort felt in naming these women along with Scott and Dickens, Cervantes, Hugo and Dostoevsky. But speak of the other creative arts and we feel at once the chill. "Chamblaine looks ill at ease in the presence of Beethoven, Joanna Baillie with Shakespeare, Angelika Kauffmann with Michelangelo.

MUSIC FESTIVALS.

They Really Began With the Great Handel's Works in London.

The real "era of musical festivals" begins with the great Handel commemoration, with its festival performances, held in London first from 1784 to 1787 and then again in 1791. Before this there had been music festivals in England, but they were virtually unknown on the continent. It was the efficiency of the English choirs that induced Handel to take up the writing of works for large musical bodies in his oratorios.

The annual production of "The Messiah" in London at Christmas time, with a great chorus and orchestra, naturally aroused the national pride of the Germans, who felt that the great master belonged by birth to them.
Berlin first and then other German cities began to give Handel festivals on the London plan, and soon the works of other composers were added to the festival lists.

So that at the beginning of the nineteenth century "several organizations devoting their energies to the production of any great work, whether choral or purely instrumental, sprang into existence in Germany." Among the oldest of these and among the most famous to this day are the Vienna Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde and the Niederrheinische Musikfeste, which take place each year in some city on the lower Rhine.

The United States has followed the example set first by the English and then by the Germans in their musical festivals, and in several of the larger cities there are yearly festivals of this kind.—New York Times.

London as It Was

Haydn's "London" symphony makes the statement that the old name of the city of London was "Londra." London or Londra, meaning "the city on the lake." An old tradition gives us to understand that London was founded by Brutus, a descendant of Aeneas, and called New Troy or Troynovant until the time of Lud, who surrounded the town with walls and named it Caer-Lud, or Lud's Town. This latter is probably the correct version of the story, if for no other reason, because it is an easy matter to detect a similarity between the expression Lud's Town and London. It is claimed by some writers that there was a city on the same spot 1,107 years B. C., and it is known that the Romans founded a city there called Londinium A. D. 61.

Severe Critics.

Allice—I like Tom immensely, and he's very much the gentleman, but he does like to talk about himself. Grace —Yes, dear, your knight hath a thousand is. Dick.

The Result of a Drink.

Such a slight circumstance as a glass of wine changed the history of France for nearly twenty years. Louis Philippe, king of the French, had a son, the Duke of Orleans and heir to the throne, who always drank only a certain number of glasses of wine, because even one more made him tipsy.
On a memorable morning he forgot to count the number of his glasses and took one more than usual. When entering his carriage he stumbled, frightening the horses and causing them to run. In attempting to leap from the carriage his head struck the pavement, and he soon died. That glass of wine overthrew the Orleans rule, confiscated their property of $100,000,000 and sent the whole family into exile.

Camels.

Unless camels have been especially trained to abstinance they cannot go as long as is commonly supposed without water. When marching near rivers they drink twice a day. They feed largely on the tough, scrubby verdure known locally as camel thorn, which grows throughout Mesopotamia, except on the extreme desert wastes.
Their habits are peculiar. Unlike horses, they seem to feel no fondness for their human associates, though they will seldom wander far from the caravan tents even if left untied overnight.

Spoiled the Compliment.

"Yes," said the voluble crank, "I used to be as bad as you, but I made up my mind to quit smoking and drinking, and I did it."

"Indeed!" remarked Manley. "I guess a man who can quit smoking and drinking could quit almost anything—"

"Oh, yes."
"Except talking about it." — New York Globe.

A Boon.

"I know an actor who wants to rent the haunted house on your hands."
"What does he want with a haunted house?"

"Says he'll jump at any place where the ghost walks regularly." — Baltimore American.

Domestic Note.

Rubbering For a Kiss.

The young husband halted at the gate and retraced his steps.
"Did you come back for another kiss,
dear?" inquired the bride.

"Well, I'd take another kiss, but what I came back for was my rubbers." — Brooklyn Citizen.

SCARCITY OF POTASH.

Natural German Product Produced in United States by Chemical Processes.

Not until necessity forced American consumers of potash to look about for a replenishment of the supplies cut off by the cessation of imports from Germany were the many American sources known which have been suggested, exploited and developed during the past two years. The scarcity in the United States of this most valuable and much sought-for product of chemical recovery has stirred the chemical engineers of the country to examine not only those natural deposits which have been developed, but there have been many sorts of factory refuse analyzed and examined, which before the war, were only nuisances and waste.

Search has been made in the incinerators of lumber mills, but the strong draughts in the present type of incinerators leaves only about 7% of potash in the remaining ashes after the recovery. Efforts are in the making to develop new exhausts, however, which will permit a larger by-product from lumber dust, twigs and branches, and barks and slabs.

The escaping dust and fumes from cement mills, which have always been a menace to the health of the surrounding communities, have been under examination and analysis, recently, attention having been drawn to that enormous waste, amounting to as much as 10 tons or more per kiln per diem. That escaping dust has been caught in settling chambers of large capacity, bag houses, water sprays, and by electrical precipitation. Two kinds of fuel are used in the production of cement in the kilns: coal and oil. The returns of potash in the recovery from ashes taken from the oil-fired kilns is greater than that taken from the ashes of coal-fired kilns, the latter producing as much as 18% less than the former.

Pollution of streams by the oils and fats in the waste from wool washing will probably cease entirely ere long, as enormous separators, washers, and precipitators have been constructed in many mills, where the return of recovered potash and other by-products has warranted the erection of the buildings and machinery.

Potash is used in many ways, such as in medicine, photography, painting, dyeing, laundry work, soap manufacture, refrigeration, preservatives, electrochemicals, fireworks, explosives, matches, paper, glass, aniline colors, metallurgy, and particularly in fertilization. Such a wide range of uses makes it appear that American chemical engineers have a great future in that line if in no other. Up to the time of the war, the Stassfurt potash works in Germany have had a monopoly of the product. At the ensuing convention of the American Chemical Society in Boston, in September, there will be many reports and discussions bearing upon the development of this great branch of the industry.

Woodchucks as Strategists.

The woodchuck shows strategy not only in his fighting, but in the construction of his defensive works—his burrow. If you will take careful note on your walks of all the woodchuck holes you come across you will probably be surprised to find in how many cases the animal can secure an outlook of considerable radius either from the mouth of the hole or a point conveniently near it. It may be in the open pasture, when it is more likely to be on a slope than in a hollow, thus securing both outlook and better drainage. It may be among rocks, but within easy distance of some peak which commands a prospect. It may be in the woods, in or under a fallen log, but the chuck can climb the log to look about. It may be among the scrub growth by an old stone wall, and you will say: "Ha! Here is an exception." But do not be too hasty. Some day, passing the spot, you will see a shrewd face and a fat body up on the wall. The woodchuck "digs in" like a modern army, but, like an army, he also puts his trenches where they can command the approaches. —Harper's Magazine.

The Origin of "Filibuster."

What is the origin of the word "filibuster"? Charlesvoix and others derive it from the occupation of a cruiser in a "filibete," or "Vly-bote," first used on the River Vly, in Holland. Another authority tells us that it was given to the followers of Dominique de Courges, who sailed from Finistère, or Finbister, in France, on the famous expedition against Fort Caroline in 1567. It was long current in Spanish as "filibustero" before its adaptation into English. —London Chronicle.

Drop at a Time Saves Dime.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer says: "In pouring peroxide from the bottle on a small cut or scratch, I noticed that a great deal of it was usually spilled—not always on the injured member. Since using a medicine dropper I have had no trouble in applying it in the right place, even with the left hand. This is a very new 'find of mine, so it hasn't done it yet, but it is going to save me half a bottle of peroxide."

What Becomes of Lead?

Lead was unquestionably known to the Egyptians; the Romans apparently understood its desilverization, yet we still haven't enough of it. The world's accumulated stocks of 5,000 years seem powerless to help us. Dr. D. M. Liddell writes in the Engineering Magazine. How can they when every hunter fires away a portion of the world's stock, when almost every coffin carries a lead lining, while lead pipes or lead joints in iron pipe corrode in the ground and when every plumber's apprentice throws away lead dross and tea is packed in lead foil? In the meanwhile the increasing use of lead in storage batteries adds another possibility of loss. The sludge from these batteries will usually be thrown away when the cells are cleaned. And so the new discoveries of science help to add new methods of waste.

Husband Choosing by Candlelight.

In "A Modern Columbus" R. G. Knowles tells of the many quaint people and customs he has observed. One of the latter is the manner in which the ladies of Rangoon choose their husbands.

"When a single girl puts a lighted candle in her window it is a notice to the marriageable men of that town that she is in the market. As soon as one puts in an appearance two candles are put in to warn the others that there is one suitor on the ground and to give him a chance. If, after a time, three candles appear it is a public notice that she has found the man of her choice. But if he does not come up to her ideas of what a husband should be, then out go all the lights, and after a day or two up comes the single light again. And so it goes on till the lady finds her mate."

Handwriting on Iron.

It was an accident that led to the discovery of the method of transferring handwriting to iron. An iron founder while experimenting with molten iron under different conditions accidentally dropped a ticket into a mold. He presently found that the type of the ticket was transferred to the iron in distinct characters. Following up the idea which this fact suggested, he procured a heat proof ink, with which he wrote invertedly on ordinary white paper. This paper was introduced into the mold before the molten iron was poured in. When the mold cooled the paper had been consumed by the heat, but the ink, which had remained intact, had left a clear impression on the iron.

WHY LEAD-AND-OIL KEEPS WATER OUT?

MIX white-lead and water together into a milky paste. Add linseed oil. The oil and white-lead will run together, driving the water to the top.

It's truly amazing what an affinity pure white-lead and oil have for each other; how the two combine to exclude water.

The case of water is hopeless in the mixing pail—hopeless also against the solid, impenetrable film the lead-and-oil paint forms on the house.

Dutch Boy Red Seal White-Lead

mixed with pure linseed oil is a form of house insurance all householders need every once so often. Such paint is toughly resistant to time and all sorts of weather. It will not crack nor scale.

This armor-sheath will sink into all the tiny cracks and crevices of the wood, anchor there, and harden to a smooth surface. In either its original white, or colored as you desire, it will be a mantle of beauty for your buildings.

WOMEN GIVE HOSPITAL UNIT.

The first mobile hospital unit to be offered by the women of the country to the Government will be that of the New York Infirmary for women and children, backed by the National Woman Suffrage Association.

The director of the unit is Dr. Caroline A. Finley, who is assisted by an Organization Committee on which are prominent women physicians. The unit will have a force which may number eighty—all women. It starts with a nucleus of 12 doctors, 21 nurses and 3 orderlies.

In England the National Union of Suffrage Societies has nine hospital units in charge of women, and the American Suffragists expect to rival this record. An Organization numbering two million members working for a great cause, is a tremendous power.

WORK, WAGES AND VOTES.

So many employees of the General Electric Company have been called to the army that preparations are under way to replace with women the positions vacated by men. About twelve thousand women are expected to be needed in the plants at Lynn, East Boston, Pittsfield, Schenectady, Harrison, Erie and Fort Wayne. Many young women have already been engaged and a host are on the waiting list. Two questions naturally arise. Will there be equal pay for equal work, and why should not these women have the vote to protect their jobs?

OPEN TOURNAMENT.

Big Event at Country Club for Ambulance Fund.

The biggest event thus far of the year was the open tournament medal play at the Winchester Country Club over Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the benefit of the Massachusetts Golf Association Ambulance Fund. There was a big field all through.

The event opened with a qualifying round of 18 holes for three divisions, the first for the Winchester trophy, second for President's trophy, and third for Directors' trophy. In the qualifying round B. K. Stephenson was low scorer by a considerable margin over a big field. His gross of 79 was the only one below 80, and his net of 70 was six below the next card, that of G. H. Pushee of Weston.

The winners on Saturday in each division were R. L. Smith of the local club in the First Division, A. L. Pond of Framingham in the Second Division and J. E. Boyle of Scarborough in the Third.

The qualifying scores:

The first and second rounds of all three divisions were played on Friday. F. L. Hunt, Jr., who paired with Fred J. Wright, Jr., junior State champion, took the honors 2 to 1 in one of the most interesting matches in the first division. Hunt went down before Tewksbury of Woodland in the second round 3 to 2. Stephenson, who took the qualifying round, went to the second round, when Pushee defeated him 2 and 1. H. T. Bond, another well known local man, went to the second round before being defeated by Osgood in the second division. R. L. Smith, drawing a bye in the first round of the third division, defeated Rathbun 5 and 4 in the second round.

At the end of the second round, Tewksbury, Smith, Pushee and Butters remained in the first division, Osgood, Pond and Mulcahy in the second, and McKeon, Boyle, Bond and Smith in the third.

FOUR BALL MATCH.

Saturday afternoon's play at the Winchester Country Club was a four ball match. There was a large field. The event was won by Dana Wingate and F. L. Hunt, Jr., with 71-68.

The results:
D. J. P. Wingate & F. L. Hunt, Jr. 71-68
P. Tewksbury & B. K. Stephenson 77-74
S. Dineen & H. T. Bond 80-74
W. D. Eaton & M. F. Brown 84-74
J. C. Bayley & A. B. Ball 82-74
P. Dewey & R. M. Gardner 82-77
L. D. Liegett & R. T. Young 84-77
H. G. Richborn & J. D. Woodfin 86-79
N. A. Dean & R. W. Rivers 86-79
H. Walters & E. E. Bird 90-79
A. B. Henderson & E. A. Howes 91-80
F. D. Magee & F. B. Cutter 88-82
C. A. Wheeler & W. O'Hara 91-82
E. H. McDonald & F. A. Cummings 99-84
W. D. Richards & A. H. Russell 100-88
G. Netley & F. L. Hunt 102-90
J. P. Carr & M. E. Grush 102-88

Bart Stephenson of the Winchester Country Club, who won the medal with a 79 in the open amateur tournament at his home club last week, played over the same links a couple of days later with Paul Tewksbury as his partner and scored a 78. Stephenson also performed creditably against G. Horton Pushee in the second round of match play in the open tourney held recently. He was 1 down going to the 16th. After being close to this hole for an easy win, the Winchester man was stymied, by Pushee and in trying to hole out with a nibble failed by inches and lost the match.

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Roll of Honor of Local Men Serving Their Country.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions. The names have already been published at various times, but in order to make the roll as complete as possible it is again printed, with the request that our readers inform us of any omissions, changes or errors which they may note. Winchester should have a record of every man doing service who is a resident of this town. All information to this end sent to this office will be properly filed and recorded.

268 In First 2,000

In the first 2,000 State numbers drawn 268 Winchester men were taken, and 706 from the District, Arlington thereby furnishing 438.

Many Well Known Men Taken

Many well known young men were drawn early in the lottery, John J. Sullivan, William I. Coty, Michael McHale and Clarence M. Lingham being taken in the first 50. Parker Holbrook and Edward J. Epsom were taken in the second 50, and Benjamin Hodges, Ernest Evans, Robert Stone, Alfred Little, Marshall Wellington and others were well up at the head of the list.

There have been many enlistments from Winchester, and most of the boys already in the Army and Navy, who cared little how they were drawn, took much interest to see how they stood in comparison with their friends.

The Post Office was hit early in the draft when clerk John J. Collins and carrier Martin J. Caulfield went together as the 122nd and 123rd drawn in this district. John J. Higgins, also of the office stands 144th in the district and Edward J. Martin was considerably farther down in the list. Arthur H. Cameron of the Fire Department was the 186th drawn. Other members who were in the draft but were well down in the list were George A. Shaughnessy and Daniel J. O'Leary. In the Police Department Thomas F. Cassidy was the 194th drawn in the district and in the draft were Joseph T. Connolly and James P. Donaghey, Jr.

The quota for this District is 292 men. An allowance of 156 is made for Military Enlistment, leaving 136 men to be drafted. It is estimated that double the number will be examined to draw the 136 necessary, and 272 will be examined.

These 272 men will be called in order of District Drawal by lots of 1-3 on three successive days and will report on the 5th, 6th and 7th days thereafter to the Exemption Board at Arlington Town Hall.

Men will be notified by mail, but if such notice is not received it will not be considered an excuse for non-appearance.

This list has been corrected to the latest revised list of drawals, but as the master numbers have not been received at the Exemption Board up to the time of going to press, it may be subject to further revision.

BULLETIN OF INFORMATION FOR PERSONS REGISTERED.

Local Boards

In every county in the United States and for every city of over 30,000 there are one or more local exemption boards. Each of such boards is in charge of the registration cards of persons registered in the area over which the board has jurisdiction, and has jurisdiction of all claims for exemption except those based on industrial grounds. Find out what board has your card and where the office of that board is.

District Boards

In every Federal judicial district there are one or more district boards having appellate jurisdiction over a number of local boards and having original jurisdiction of claims for exemption on industrial grounds. If you intend to make a claim on industrial grounds, including agriculture, learn what district board to apply to.

Red Ink Serial Numbers

Every board has numbered the cards in its jurisdiction with red ink in a series running from 1 to the number representing the total number of cards in its jurisdiction. Lists showing the names of persons in the jurisdiction of each board and the red ink number of each card are open to inspection at the office of each board.

Inspect the list and inform yourself of your red ink serial number.

Order of Liability

These red ink numbers are to be drawn by lot to determine the order in which registered persons are to be called by the various local boards. As soon as the drawing is complete lists showing the order in which these red ink numbers are drawn will be published in the press, and will be posted at the office of each local board.

Go to your local board and find out the order in which you stand for call.

Call for Examination

As soon as quotas are assigned to each State and each board, each board will call upon persons whose cards are in its jurisdiction instructing them to present themselves for examination. This call will be posted at the office of the local board and the papers will be requested to print it. A notice will also be mailed to you, but the posting of the list at the office of the board will be deemed sufficient notice to charge you with the duty of presenting yourself. The law therefore makes it your duty to inform yourself when you are called. The mailing is for your convenience, but if the letter never reaches you, you can not make that an excuse.

Watch the lists at the office of your board and see when you are called for examination.

Physical Examination

You must report for physical examination on the day named in your call.

(a) If you are found physically disqualified the board will give you a certificate which will explain to you what your further duties are.

(b) If you are found physically qualified and file a claim for exemption within 7 days after your call you will be given 10 days after filing your claim of exemption to file proof in support of your claim of exemption. See below.

(c) If you are found physically qualified and file no claim for exemption, or if you do not appear for physical examination, your name will be posted to the district board as one was called for military service and was not exempted or discharged. On the eighth day after call, or within two days thereafter, copies of the list of persons so posted to the district boards will be given to the press with a request for publication, will be posted in a place at the office of the local board accessible to the public view, and notice will be mailed to you at the address on your registration card.

Therefore watch the notices posted in the office of the board about 10 days after the day you were called and make arrangements for the prompt receipt of mail.

Seven Days to File Claims of Exemption or Discharge

[Except for industrial or agricultural reasons.]

Note. (a) No claim of discharge on account of the industry in which you are engaged can be decided by a local board. (See Par. below.)

(b) Whether you file a claim of exemption or not, you must present yourself for physical examination on the day named in the notice.

From the day notice that you are called is mailed and posted you have seven days in which you may file a claim of exemption or discharge. The form for filing this claim is simple. If you wish to file such a claim—

(a) Go to the board and get Form 110 for exemption or Form 121 for discharge. If the board has not the printed forms ask to consult the form pamphlet and copy the form shown there.

(b) Fill out the proper form and file it with the board.

(c) Do this within seven days of the posting and mailing of notice to you to present yourself.

The following are the only grounds for exemption:

1. That you are an officer, legislative, executive, or judicial of the United States, a State or Territory, or the District of Columbia.

2. That you are a regular or duly ordained minister of religion.

3. That you were on May 18, 1917, a student preparing for the ministry in any recognized theological or divinity school.

4. That you are in the military or naval service of the United States.

5. That you are a subject of Germany, whether you have taken out papers or not.

6. That you are a resident alien who has not taken out first papers. In addition to claims for exemption claims for discharge may be made on any of the following grounds, which are the only grounds for discharge by a local board.

1. That you are a county or municipal officer.

2. That you are a customhouse clerk.

3. That you are employed by the United States in the transmission of mails.

4. That you are an artificer or workman in an armory, arsenal, or navy yard of the United States.

5. That you are employed in the service of the United States (under certain conditions.) See paragraph (c) of section 20, Regulations.

6. That you are a licensed pilot regularly employed in the pursuit of your vocation.

7. That you are a mariner actually employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States.

8. That you are a married man with a wife or child dependent on you for support.

9. That you have a widowed mother dependent on your labor for support.

10. That you have aged or infirm parents dependent upon your labor for support.

11. That you are the father of a motherless child under 16 dependent upon your labor for support.

12. That you are a brother of an orphan child or children under 16 dependent on your labor for support.

13. That you are a member of any well-recognized religious sect or organization organized and existing May 18, 1917, and whose then existing creed or principles forbade its members to participate in war in any form and whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein in accordance with the creed or principles of said religious organization.

These are the only grounds for exemption or discharge by a local board.

Another person can file a claim in your behalf, but must use different forms in filing the claim.

Ten Days After Filing Claim to File Proof

Your claim of exemption or discharge must be filed within seven days of the day on which notice to you that you are called was posted and mailed. But after you have filed your claim for exemption or discharge you have ten days within which to file proof.

The method of proving claims is very simple but it is rather exact. If you follow the rules given below you will have done what is required of you.

First. Go to the local board and consult the regulations to find out the form number of the affidavits that you must submit for your particular claim.

Second. Ask the board for the blank affidavits that are necessary in presenting your proof; if the board has not the forms, ask to consult the pamphlet of forms.

Third. Have the affidavits properly accomplished and return them to the board within the time limit assigned you—10 days from the filing of your claim.

Remember:

(a) You must submit your proof in the prescribed form and the board has no authority to exempt or discharge you unless you submit all the affidavits required by regulations.

(b) There will be no argument before the board and no proof other than the prescribed affidavits unless the board calls for other proof which it will do in only a limited number of cases.

When Claims Are Decided

Every claim for discharge or exemption will be decided by the local board within three days after your affidavits have been filed.

Certificate of Exemption or Discharge

If your claim is allowed a certificate of exemption or discharge will be issued to you.

Remember: (a) This certificate may be recalled at any time.

(b) If it is temporary or conditional, it becomes of no effect when the time or the condition named are fulfilled.

(c) You have been drawn for military service and when the condition that has postponed your posting to the colors ceases you may be recalled at any time.

(d) Remember that your case may still be appealed to the district board by the Government and on this appeal your certificate may be withdrawn at once. When so withdrawn you stand precisely as though you had been selected for military service by the local board.

Adverse Decisions on Claim

If your claim is disallowed by the local board your name will be certified and sent by the local board to the district board as one who has been called for military service and not exempted or discharged. Within two days thereafter, if practicable, a list of those so certified to the district board will be given to the press with a request for publication, will be posted in the offices of the local board accessible to the public view, and notice will be mailed to the address on your registration card.

Therefore, if you have filed a claim for exemption and proof in support thereof, watch the notices in the office of the local board beginning about five days after you have filed your proof to see what disposition was made of your case and make arrangements for the prompt receipt of mail.

How to Claim Appeals to District Boards

Claims of appeal may be made by a person within 10 days after the day when notice has been posted and mailed that such person's name has been certified to the district board as one who has been called for service and not exempted or discharged.

Therefore if you desire to appeal:

1. Go to the local board and get or copy Form 153 or 154 for filing your claim of appeal.

2. Get or copy also Form 151 or 152 for notifying the District board of appeal.

3. File your claim of appeal (153 or 154) with the local board.

4. Send your notice of appeal (Form 151 or 152) to the district board.

5. Do this within 10 days from the day when notice that your name was certified to the district board was posted and mailed.

Remember:

1. You can only appeal the final order of the board exempting or discharging or refusing to exempt or discharge you. You can not appeal other orders or action of the local board.

Proving Your Appeal

You have five days after the district board receives your notice that you have filed a claim of appeal in which to file evidence additional to that filed by you in the local board, but all such evidence must consist of affidavits.

Decisions On Appeal

The decision on your appeal must be made within five days of the closing of proof, and you will be notified by mail of the action of the board on your appeal.

Claims for Discharge on Industrial Grounds

Only the district board can receive claims for discharge on the ground that you are engaged in industry, including agriculture found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency.

Such claims must be filed with the district board on or before the fifth day after the mailing and posting of notice that you have been certified by the local board as one who has been called for service and not exempted or discharged.

If you desire to file such a claim:

1. Get or copy at the local or district board Form 161 or 161a.

2. Fill the form out properly.

3. File it with the district board within five days after the mailing and posting of notice that your name has been certified from the local board to the district board.

See section 44, Regulations.

Proof in Support of Industrial Claim

Only affidavits can be filed in filing proof before the district board of a claim for exemption on industrial grounds. All such affidavits must be filed within five days after the filing of the claim.

Decisions of District Board on Industrial Claim

Within five days after the closing of proof in any industrial claim the district board must decide the claim.

If the decision of the district board is in favor of the claim the board will issue a certificate of discharge. If the decision is against the claim the district board will so notify you.

Remember that you have been called for military service and that the certificate of the district board is only conditional on your remaining in the kind of industrial service on account of which you were discharged. No such exemption shall continue when a cause therefor no longer exists and your certificate of discharge may be withdrawn or modified by the district board at any time that the district board shall determine that the circumstances require it.

Appals of Industrial Claim to the President

Only claims of district boards on industrial claims for discharge can be appealed.

If you desire to appeal the decision of the district board to the President, you may do so within seven days of the date of mailing to you of the decision of the district board. To perfect your appeal:

1. Get or copy from the district or local board Form 163.

2. Fill out the form and file it with the district board.

3. Do this within seven days after the mailing of notice to you of the decision of the district board in your case.

How You Will Be Notified that You Have Been Selected for Military Service

As soon as your case is finally disposed of, the adjutant general of your State will notify you by mail that you have been selected for military service.

Your local boards will post a list of all persons selected for military service in a place at the office of the local boards accessible to public view. The local board will also give lists of persons selected for military service to the press with requests for publication.

Notice that you have been selected for military service will not necessarily order you into service.

The notice to report for military service will come when the Government is ready to receive you.

Owing to the fact that a woman residing on Oak street neglected to open the drafts of her stove when she built a wood fire yesterday noon, neighbors thought the house on fire when the dense smoke came through the roof and windows. An alarm of fire was rung in from Box 38. There was no damage.

An old time sight was that of a man pedaling a velocipede on Washington street Wednesday. He went about as fast as a man running, and considerably slower than a passing electric car. The front wheel of the velocipede was about five feet high, while the rear wheel was about six inches in diameter. It was a comical sight and people wondered how the man got on top of the contraption. And yet this wheel was a wonder when first brought out.

EDGAR M. YOUNG.

EDGAR M. YOUNG DEAD.

Mr. Edgar M. Young, a former well known resident of this town, died at Los Angeles on Wednesday of last week, July 25th. He had been in poor health for a considerable time and went to Los Angeles a year ago last spring, for a time remaining at a sanatorium and later with relatives. He was 46 years of age.

Edgar Morrison Young was a native of Somerville. He received his education in the Somerville schools and upon entering business life was for many years Boston manager for the firm of B. Altman & Co. of New York. He moved to this town from Somerville about 15 years ago and made his home on Glen road, where he purchased a residence. Later he built a residence on Wedgemere avenue.

For many years he was treasurer of the Calumet Club, retiring from that office about two years ago when he left town. He was a former secretary of the Winchester Boat Club and served for a number of years on the board of directors. He was a Mason, being formerly a member of the William Parkman Lodge.

His parents were Thomas and Barbara (Morrison) Young. He married Eugene E. Givens of Boston, who survives him, together with one son, Raymond M., now serving in the French Army as a driver in the ammunition service. Two brothers, Wilfred and Thomas Young of Somerville also survive him.

Mr. Young's death was due to an abscess on the brain. He had been under treatment for a considerable period and this spring his condition improved so that his family had hopes of a complete recovery. In June his son sailed for France, and the news had a depressing effect, he failing immediately. A consultation of doctors five weeks previous to his death resulted in the calling of his wife to his bedside and the announcement of his critical state.

The funeral services were held at Los Angeles on Friday. The remains were cremated and will be interred in the Cambridge Cemetery.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

The Revere Athletics will be the attraction here tomorrow. This will be the first game this team has played away from home this season, and for that reason will try hard for a win. They have only lost three games since the season started, and last Saturday won from the Battleship Virginia 5 to 4. They have Curran, the old Portland N. H. pitcher, in the box with Smith of Lawrence, behind the bat. On first base is Tengreson, who caught and played first base for Woburn two seasons ago. The rest of the team is comprised of well known semi-pro players and they have promised us a lively game.

TRADERS' OUTING.

All Stores Will Be Closed Next Wednesday.

Lay in a stock of groceries and provisions for Traders' Day, for next Wednesday, August 8th, no stores in Winchester will be open and all the Traders will be at Salem Willows on their annual outing.

The program for this season has been carefully laid out by the large committee in charge under the direction of the treasurer and chairman, J. Albert Hersey of the Hersey Hardware Co. Assisting Mr. Hersey is the Soliciting Committee: Walter Tibbets, Albert J. Sells and E. H. Butterworth; the Sports Committee: J. Chris. Sullivan, John Piccolo, Geo. Gordon, Herbert Sells and Edward T. Wolloff, and the Transportation and Advertising Committee: A. C. Robinson and Everett A. Smith.

The special electric will leave the centre at 8.15, so everyone who is going should be on deck ready for a prompt start.

The program for the day will be as follows:

8.15 a. m. Start from centre.

10.30 a. m. Ball game between Married and Single Men. Cigars for winners.

The lineup of the teams will be as follows:

Married Men	Single Men
J. C. Sullivan ss	A. Loftus
L. Blanchard 1b	O. Luccia
H. Sells 3b	W. Rogers
G. Gordon 2b	J. Hogran
J. Sherman cf	R. Hargrove
A. Hersey p	J. Piccolo
C. Crawford c	F. Piccolo
R. Noonan lf	H. Moynihan
J. Richardson rf	A. Dyson

The traders of the towns of Stoneham and Melrose will also be at the Willows, they holding their annual Traders' Day on the same date. Arrangements are under way for a match game between the Melrose traders and Winchester, the winners to play Stoneham. This game will be in the afternoon and in addition to the regular schedule of events.

12.30 p. m. Luncheon.

2 p. m. Sports.

100 yd. dash, boys under 18. 1st prize watch; 2nd necktie.

100 yd. dash, Traders. 1st prize pipe; 2nd $1 grocery order.

50 yd. dash, girls. 1st collar and cuffs; 2nd collar.

Hop, step and jump, boys under 18. 1st bat; 2nd base ball.

Hop, step and jump, Traders. 1st box cigars; 2nd cuff links and tie clasp.

Potato race, married ladies. 1st $1 cleansing order; 2nd box chocolates.

Broad jump, open. 1st pocket knife; 2nd shirt set.

Doughnut race, girls (old and young). 1st croquet set; 2nd manicure set.

Doughnut race, boys. 1st flash light; 2nd pocket knife.

Special Prizes

Heaviest man: belt.

Heaviest woman: 1 doz. fruit jars.

Oldest man: Pair slippers.

Oldest woman: Pocketbook.

The Sports Committee will have full charge of deciding and awarding the prizes.

5.30 p. m. Homeward bound.

In addition to the attractive program arranged by the committee, the usual Salem Willows' attractions may be enjoyed. Among these the boat trips to Marblehead and Baker's Island should not be forgotten, as well as the theatre, bowling, roller coasting, merry-go-round, roller skating, dancing, etc.

The tickets have been selling far ahead of former years and it is evident that the gathering of Traders and their friends will be the biggest ever turned out by this town. All desiring tickets should apply at once to any member of the committee.

WANTED.

Immediately for surgical work and supplies, old pieces of white or colored cotton, linen or woollen cloth. Scraps of the smallest dimensions to any size. Send to Mrs. John P. Marston, 30 Everett avenue. Tel. 590, or telephone any of the following and they will be called for.

Mrs. A. T. Hunnewell, Tel. 830; Mrs. W. M. Weston, Tel. 288-M; Mrs. F. L. Avery, Tel. 948-M; Mrs. F. E. Hovey, Tel. 155-R.

LARSON—JONES.

Mr. Harold I. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Larson of Main street, and Miss Helena May Jones, daughter of Mr. Robert Jones of Shelburne, N. S., were married on Tuesday evening at the parsonage of the Methodist church by Rev. C. Harrison Davis. There were no attendants. Following their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Larson will make their home in this town.

BASEBALL.

The H. B. Fenno Team is Easily Beaten by Winchester.

We had as an attraction here Saturday, the H. B. Fenno team of Roxbury. This team has been playing together for the past three years, but it has yet to come up to the standard of the strong semi-pro teams of the State. They went out of their class facing Winchester and the result was a bad beating. In fact they never had a "look in." The battery was the best part of their team, for in Hucksion, the catcher, you "fans" saw about the best thing in the way of a visiting catcher that has been on the field this season. Pellegrinan, the boxman, is what is called in baseball terms a "slow ball" pitcher, and for four innings our batters could not seem to gauge his delivery, but in the fourth they discovered what he had, and put the game on ice. Someone "tipped" the Fenno outfielders about playing out for our hitters and they surely did, with the result that they lost several flies that might have been putouts. At short they had a young colored fel-

THE PREACHER FOR THE UNION SERVICES NEXT SUNDAY.

The Rev. Charles Herbert Rust has been pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Rochester for twelve years, during which time the membership has increased more than 125 each year. It numbers upward of 1,600 at the present time with a Sunday School of more than 1400. The church is thoroughly organized, having a corps of twenty-four deacons, a Director of Religious Education with the Sunday School divided into seven departments, each of which is presided over by a competent superintendent.

The church supports fourteen Missionaries of whom eight are in India, two in China, one each in Japan, West Africa and Mexico, with one Home Missionary located in Oklahoma.

A church thus organized and officered has constantly before it an "Objective" formulated as follows: "To awaken humanity to worship; to stimulate each other to Christian faith and service; to fellowship together in a joyful religious life; to secure man's allegiance to Jesus and his religious and ethical ideals; to vitalize human society with spiritual power; to establish the Kingdom of righteousness, love and peace among men, and to hold mankind to the fundamental and eternal realities of life."

With the Second Baptist Church thus established and prospering under the guidance of a faithful pastor, sustained by a united body of workers, it will seem singular that during the past ten months it has consented to unite with the other large Baptist church of the city, the Park Avenue, thus forming a church styled the East Avenue Baptist church—to be located at North and Franklin streets, the membership of which will be upwards of 2,200, with Mr. Rust as the pastor. The new church edifice now being erected is planned after the most approved methods of accommodation of all departments of work, having in view the requirements of the future, also with the intention to make it the centre of Baptist work in Western New York. There will be few other churches of the denomination in the country of equal size.

This minister of unmistakable ability, recognized as God's approved servant, honored after years of labor in a large city, is a native of Winchester, and returns to visit a sister, Mrs. Arthur Winn, and to occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church the coming Sunday. An invitation is most cordially given to all to hear this gifted preacher.

It is an opportunity to prove that a prophet can be honored in his own country and in his own house. Mr. Rust will preach both morning and evening.

BAND CONCERT TOMORROW.

Following is the program for the band concert to be given on Manchester Field tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon by Ives Band. The concert will be held from 3.30 to 5.30.

Program
1. March "Hall of Fame" Allen

THE DRAFT.

Complete List of All Winchester Drafts.

The master list of draft numbers was received by the Exemption Board for this district last week and notices were at once sent to the 272 men of Arlington and this town who will be called for examination beginning tomorrow. The master numbers showed no change in the list published in last week's STAR, and as stated last week, the number of men to be called were divided into thirds of 90 each and summoned respectively on August 4th, 6th and 7th. Therefore Winchester's first names in the draft will go to Arlington tomorrow for examination, and they will be printed each week until the Board completes its work.

As there is considerable interest in the standing of all the men in the district subject to draft, we print this week the complete list of Winchester men registered in their relative standing in the district and town as compiled from the posted list taken from the drawing of the master numbers by the Exemption Board. This list gives the complete drawings of all the Winchester men. They will be called in this order for any additions needed in the present draft.

This list has been carefully compiled from numbers furnished by the Exemption Board. The STAR does not, however, guarantee its absolute accuracy.

Greetings:

To the Winchester Fans

My Dear Mack:

Thanks for your suggestions in today's Star—Have made arrangements with the Fore River Nine scheduled to play in Lexington September 1st for a release—As Manager LeDuc did not favor me with the courtesy of a reply before, let us see if he will reply as promptly as you think.

Manager LeDuc,

My Dear Sir:

It affords me great pleasure to invite the Winchester Nine to play in Lexington against the Minute Boys, on Saturday Afternoon, August 18th (weather permitting) game to be called at 3.30 p. m. Both teams to use only present lineups—If you win you will receive $100.00; if you lose $0.—Mr. Coady to umpire the game.

As a part of this invitation the Minute Boys will play a return game in Winchester, Saturday Afternoon, September 1st (weather permitting) game to be called at 3.30 p. m. Both teams to use only present lineups—we to receive $100.00 if we win and if we lose $0.—Mr. MacDonald to umpire the game.

One Hundred Dollars is now at the Star Office with Mr. T. Price Wilson. If you accept, put up on or before noon, Monday, August 7th, 1917.

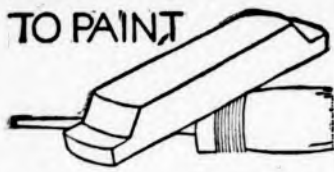

To avoid any misunderstanding, if it should rain and prevent the game being played in Lexington, the Minute Boys will play at Winchester just the same—if it should rain and prevent the game being played in Winchester, that game would be called off.

J. WILLARD HAYDEN, Jr.
Mgr. for the Minute Boys

Lexington, August 3, 1917.

FROM 'PIGS' TO PAINT

THE pigment or "body" of long-wearing house paint was once pigs—chunky bars of metal lead like that shown above. A chemical process, known as "corroding," changes them into white-lead.

Upon the purity of the pig lead depends to a great extent the purity of the white-lead. Its purity in turn determines the life of paint.

So don't buy "a pig in a poke" when in the market for paint. Specify a white-lead of known purity, such as

which is made from the purest pig lead obtainable.

Thinned with pure linseed oil, Dutch Boy White-Lead makes paint that costs no more in the beginning and much less in the end. What's more, the paint stays good to look at. There is no unsightly and costly cracking or scaling. It is waterproof, in fact, all-weatherproof. Any color suitable for inside or outside work can be secured.

Headquarters for all painting necessities and bureau of information on all painting problems.

THROUGH CAR SERVICE.

A Movement Started to Bring Delay.

The Public Service Commission gave a further hearing on the question of the connection of the Winchester electric at Arlington with the tracks of the elevated, Monday forenoon at their rooms on Beacon street. The commission, it will be remembered, some weeks ago ordered that this connection be made, but up to the present time nothing in the matter has been done. And now the Bay State Railroad comes forward, and at this hearing asked for by them, petitions the commission to do nothing further in the matter and that the work of making the connection be postponed, for how long was not stated at the hearing. It might be for a year, or it might be forever. The reason given by the vice president of the road was the high expense cost.

The hearing did not last much over ten minutes. And the attendance was almost nil. Arlington was not represented, and the only citizen of that town present was Mr. Lester Langley of Morningside, who was present to urge immediate connection of the tracks. Winchester was represented by Selectman Laraway and Mr. W. L. Tuck, who both spoke in favor of through cars and that the commission adhere to the fulfillment of their order as soon as possible. Mr. Laraway said that if the Bay State road had made the connection when first ordered to do so a long time ago, there would not now be the plea of excessive costs. This was the extent of the hearing.

The Elevated does not want through cars, neither does the Bay State, while Arlington has fought the project at every stage. That is three against one. Despite this, the Public Service Commission recognizing the justice of Winchester's request, has ordered the connection for the second time. Will it have to do so for a third time? And what about Winchester? Is she losing interest in the matter? The hearing Monday looked a little in that direction, as it only had two Winchester men present on this most important matter. There should have been a roomful, if the town really desires through cars to Harvard Square. It was a bad time of the year to hold this hearing, when about everyone is absent from town. Yet it was held, and what the outcome of this small Winchester attendance may have upon the Commission is problematical. Winchester is into this thing, the people have been strongly in favor of through cars, and now there should be no weakening. The Selectmen, through the Town Council, should send the Commission a vigorous protest against any further delay regarding through car service to Harvard Square.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The work on surgical dressings continues steadily and many of the members who cannot come to the meetings are knitting for the soldiers, but the most imperative work now is to provide comfort bags for the boys who have been called to the colors. For that reason the meeting this week will be devoted to starting the bags and friends are asked to assist if possible in making or filling them. Pieces of denim, cretonne or other suitable materials are needed and a variety of articles for filling. The latter can be best purchased in quantity and donations of money for the purpose will be very gladly received. Those who are willing to help may learn of a way to help in raising the money by inquiring of any of the officers. Contributions may be sent to the president, Mrs. G. M. Hamilton, 50 Lincoln street, as the treasurer expects to be out of town during August.

MASONS GO TO CHARLTON TOMORROW.

Members of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will meet for a special session in the Masonic Hall, Saturday morning, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be a brief one and it is expected that by 8 o'clock the members will be able to start on the automobile run to Charlton, Mass., where they are to visit the Masonic Home. They will have dinner upon their arrival at Charlton, and after inspecting the institution, will hold a meeting for the benefit of the members of the Home. It is anticipated that nearly a hundred Masons of Winchester will participate in the outing, together with some distinguished guests from out of town. The committee in charge of the outing consist of Percival B. Metcalf, William M. Belcher, Benjamin T. Morgan, Amasa Harrington and George A. Barron.

NOT TO BE A CANDIDATE.

Mr. Thomas H. Barrett, whose name was mentioned last week as one of the several Winchester residents who are planning to take the coming examinations for the local Postmastership, has informed this office that he will not seek the office and that he has no intention of entering the examinations.

(47) Forty-eight (48) Sixty-two (62) Sixty-four (64) Sixty-eight (68) Sixty-nine (69) Seventy (70) Seventy-two (72) Seventy-three (73) and Seventy-four (74) on a plan of Pine Grove Park, Winchester, Mass., which plan has been duly recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, and containing all told 41,067 square feet of land.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, tax titles, and municipal assessments, if any. Two hundred dollars ($200) required at sale.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY

Lecture on Evaporation.

The lecture on evaporation (Thursday, July 26, at the Town Hall) was given by Miss Nellie E. Ewart of Arlington, Mass., lecturer for the Massachusetts Special Aid Society, who besides demonstrating the drying process, exploited her own clever invention—a three tiered wire rack made to fit into any oven.

Although Miss Ewart does not advise the drying of all products, the advantages claimed for the evaporation process over the cold pack are cheapness and comfort. Neither sugar nor jars are required and the product may be left two hours in a slow oven with but little attention from the housekeeper.

As to the actual cost: In a gas range, one burner turned on one-quarter will cost 3/4 c an hour. In range where two burners light at same time turn on as low as possible. The range door must be left ajar two inches to allow moisture to escape; drop door one inch. In a coal range, drying may be done with draughts closed. The temperature required, 130 degrees to 140 degrees permits the pressure of the hand at all times with no feeling other than of warmth.

The Oven Dryer holds 4 quarts of string beans or 2 pecks of spinach or 4 dozen sliced peaches or 1 quart of blueberries to each tray.

The steps in the process of evaporation are as follows:

1st. Blanch the product the same as for cold pack; that is, boil from six to ten minutes in cheese cloth bag to remove acid and reduce bulk, and plunge into cold water to set color.

2nd. Pin the cloth-bag on line and allow product to dry for one-half hour.

3rd. Spread pieces of cheese cloth over mesh of Dryer (a cake cooler serves the same purpose in a small way) and spread product thereon.

4th. Dry in oven at temperature from 130 degrees to 140 degrees leaving door ajar two inches.

5th. Place dried product in paper bags and shake occasionally for two days.

6th. Pack in boxes of any kind and store in dry, warm place.

Small fruits, peaches, string beans, peas, chard, spinach and dandelions are successfully dried.

Notes

8 out of 11—for a percentage of 727.

We are beginning to see the crowds on the field once again. The team has been playing good ball all the season, but had bad days when we lost the three games.

If there are any particular teams you fans wish to see on the field step up to writer or Manager Le Duc and if possible they will be brought here.

Of course some of the "fans" would not be satisfied with the Red Sox, and if we had them out here and they beat us, the same "bunch" would want to know "What was the matter with you fellows anyway?"
Managing a semi-pro team is some job.

Harkins left us to play with the St. Ambrose team of Dorchester.
He tried to put over a "hold up" on Manager LeDuc, but he refused to stand for it. The days of "hold ups" have gone by.

Certain teams when they have an important game and want to strengthen a certain position will go after players on other teams with big inducements; after that game is played the player can take his choice of either playing for what they want to give him or quit the team. Rather than be a "goat" he sticks with the team and plays for less money than what he was getting from the team he originally played with.

We had a new outfielder in left field, due to Harkins' desertion, and new arrangement of our batting order and owing to his fast (?) fielding, the Fenno team got three runs that never should have come across.

Manager LeDuc took him out in the 5th and shifted the outfield, putting "Honoy" Shaughnessy in right field. Shaughnessy was the High School catcher last season and got a good reputation from the "fans." He was one of the best batters on the school team.

Burke played third base, and he can play there as well as short, and he is some hitter as you fans are probably aware of by this time.

Barry made the best play of the game when he stopped the ball with his gloved hand and made a fine play at first base without stopping to recover himself.

The Fenno team had a good shortstop in Thomas, the young colored fellow. He "booked" one, but played good ball nevertheless.

Wakefield fell down before the Converse Rubber Co. 3 to 1 in ten innings. A man hit by a pitched ball and a "boot" by "Buster" Young lost for Wakefield. Somerville pitched fine ball for the winners.

The Minute Boys had a hard time winning from Western Electric, 3 to
2. This Western Electric game should have been a hollow victory for Winchester the previous Saturday, only for poor ball playing.
How do you account for it?

Pere Marquette and Bunker Hill had a disagreement owing to the umpire, Pere Marquette withdrawing from the field. Without knowing anything about the merits of the case we should say it is poor sportsmanship to quit the field when decisions go against you. They take your umpire when they visit you; then it is up to the other side to do the same when they go away, but we will also admit some umpires ought to be shovelling coal instead of being behind the bat.

Winthrop A. A. and the Mill-streams of Chelsea also had their troubles. Queen, the Winthrop pitcher, being robbed of a no-hit, no-run game, owing to the poor sportsmanship of the Millstreams. They refused to play unless a run was allowed, and rather than have the game go by forfeit, Winthrop agreed.

That is one thing they all get here in Winchester, good umpiring; even the visiting teams ask if Coady is going to umpire, knowing they will get all that is coming to them.
You cannot beat Bill and he stands for no argument from anyone.

Queen Quality beat Manchester, 6 to 2, in a light hitting game. Queen Quality used two pitchers, Murray and Hastings.

Hyannis won from Wollaston, 4 to 0. Falmouth beat St. John C. C.
1 to 0. Falmouth got 10 hits off Fitzgerald, but owing to good fielding were unable to make them count.

Marblehead beat the Trojans of Newport, 3 to 0. Bailey, who beat us in a couple of games for Woburn, held Marblehead to 4 hits, but bases on balls were his undoing.

Peabody is represented by a good team this season, and a great many of the players are well known here in Winchester: "Decker" Thornton; Silva, who played 3rd for Wakefield;
Manley, the former Arlington and Minute Boy shortstop; Reardon, who played second for Arlington and Woburn; "Dick" McGinn, the Arlington and Minute Boy catcher, and Morgan, the old Roslindale player.
It looks like a good lineup.

It looks now as if we will not play the Minute Boys this season. The following will explain: On July 6th, Mr. Hayden, the President of the Lexington Athletic Association and Manager of the Minute Boys, sent a letter to Manager Le Duc offering him the 18th of August as the date
Winchester could have in Lexington.
Admitting that Mr. LeDuc should have done him the courtesy of answering his letter, there was a long time between July 6th and August 18th to arrange the game, and due allowance should be made for this.
Mr. Hayden knew well enough when he sent this letter that Manager Le Duc would only be too glad to play the game in Lexington and that the "fans" in both places looked forward to these games. But Mr. Hayden, not hearing from Manager Le Duc, called him on the phone on July 26th and asked him "What he was going to do about the game in Lexington?" Mr. LeDuc said "he was perfectly willing to play this game, but what would Mr. Hayden give in return?" Well, it seems that was another story. Mr. Hayden could not possibly think of playing at Winchester as his schedule was all filled for the season. Well, be that as it may, we do not see where he had such important games on his schedule but what some one of them could be cancelled in favor of the best attraction that could possibly be booked for Lexington, and if he stopped to ponder for a minute he might very easily see that no town team will go away for a game without getting a game in return, and bear in mind, you "fans" of Lexington and Winchester, we are perfectly willing to play Lexington the first game over there; we were never known as quitters whatever else may be said of us. Mr. Hayden has sent the writer the correspondence between himself and Manager Le Duc, also a letter explaining his stand in the matter. But it is the writer's opinion and he thinks it will be the opinion of most of the "fans" in both towns, that games should be played in both places, or it will look as though the Manager of the Minute Boys was afraid his team could not win in any place but in their own back yard, and that is a mighty poor reputation to have among other managers. We had that reputation

PARKWAY WALL WRECKED.

Monday morning at 7.20 a big Mack truck pulling a trailer met with trouble at the foot of the Main street hill at the Parkway, the trailer breaking away and smashing about 15 feet of the stone abutment wall at the corner of the Parkway and the Mill Pond.

The truck and trailer were loaded high with big bales of wool. They were owned by Youlan, Smith & Hopkins of Boston and were on their way to Lowell. James R. Harnish of Armory street, Cambridge, was driving and his helper was Herbert Keefe of Columbia road, Boston.

The trailer broke away from the truck in some unexplained manner, and the first the driver knew of the accident was when someone hailed him as he was crossing the bridge.
By that time the damage was done,
the trailer having travelled across the street and crashed into the wall. The force of the blow must have been terrific, for the two foot stone and cement wall with its large square end post capped by a big granite slab was completely wrecked down to the ground, the trailer traveling across the sidewalk and stopping just at the edge of the pond wall. The trailer had six of the big bales on it, two of which were spilled into the street before it struck the wall.

Outside of the damage to the wall the property loss was small, for the trailer was comparatively little damaged and the wool not injured at all. It was fortunate that there was no automobile or persons on the sidewalk at the place, for in that case the results might have been much more serious.

RIVER BEING WATCHED.

It is reported that the State Board of Health is watching the Aberjona River closely and that it is constantly taking samples of the water for analysis. In addition to this the Metropolitan Park Board is interesting itself in the matter.

The recent condition which excited renewed comment was due, it is said, to the fact that chemical solutions were poured into the ground and drained through into the water.
In thus passing through the ground what iron was in the soil was liberated, thus causing the peculiar reddish color.

While it is said that all of the chemical was neutralized and that the iron is not harmful, the Town still desired a better looking stream, and one which will not foam like a cake of soap.

Further investigation is under way.

Who is the man that will predict our tax rate this year?

Wakefield, Stoneham and Reading are considering the project for the erection of a local hospital. A prominent Wakefield physician is the father of this most sensible proposition.

The wave of "flag patriotism" which swept over this section seems to have abated and the absence of flags is noted, especially on the Town Hall and Fire Station. By the way, has the price of flags gone down yet?

The people who predicted that this was to be a year without a summer, have another guess coming. We have had the longest continued and hottest spell of weather for years, and one of the most destructive thunder and lightning storms for a long time was that of last Friday afternoon.

The exemption boards have many difficult problems to solve, and it is to be hoped that they will work them out in a spirit of fairness and impartiality to all the young men. The only real complaint in the draft is the inequality induced by the census estimates, which reckons the ineligible population with the eligible citizens.

A campaign with considerable push for people to take their purchases home from the city is on, says the Reading Chronicle. There is some suspicion it emanates from the department stores. The stores largely built up their trade by the delivery system. And now having the trade they would be pleased to step from under. They would have the people "educated" so this considerable expense be minimized.

Gov. McCall is going to have a third term. There is no question about that. The voters are not going to change the Governor in the midst of this war at the request of politicians. Gov. McCall has measured up to the full standard, and will continue to do so as long as he is the chief executive of the State. The smooth running machinery of the State should not be interrupted, especially at this time. Massachusetts is fortunate in having a statesman and not a politician as its Governor.

Base ball to the fore! With all consideration for the home team, no one can deny that J. Willard Hayden, Jr.'s, letter in this issue is a sporting proposition. It is of course regretted that Winchester did not reply to his first invitation for a game, even though our management does not play away from home without a return game. His proposition offers a 50-50 match, one here and one in Lexington, and he backs it up with a $100 deposit; certainly a fair offer. He even goes farther on the weather, and offers to call either game off if it rains, which it appears to give Winchester the advantage. Come on now Winchester!

With the closing of Mystic Lake for bathing owing to the filthy water Winchester boys have only one place left—Wedge Pond. The swimming at this place during the intense hot spell has been greater than has ever been previously recorded. Not only boys but many grown-ups have visited the pond for a dip. What a fine thing it would be if town officials could find sufficient funds available to slope off a proper place for the boys to bathe. Wedge is fed by springs and the water is in fairly good condition. With the large number now using that place there should be some protection there too. Such work appears to be fully as important as our playgrounds, about which we hear so much. It is to be hoped that the next step in the park or playground direction will be to make Wedge Pond suitable for bathing. Surely no better location can be found, for it is handy, yet secluded.

HEAT WAVE BREAKS RECORD.

Most Intense Hot Spell Extends Through Week.

Following the hot spell of last week, the town has been in the grip of a wave of heat since Sunday which exceeds anything experienced in recent years. Last week was a scorcher, but hardly comparable with this. Saturday opened as one of the finest summer days of the year, but it did not last, and by Monday everyone was sweltering again. No rain of any kind came to aid matters, and even an east wind which Boston felt on Wednesday, did not reach Winchester.

The temperature in the centre, taken at the north side of the gate-men's house where the sun does not strike at any time during the day, was 102 Monday, 100 Tuesday, 104 Wednesday and 104 yesterday.

Although heat prostrations were numerous in all surrounding places, Winchester escaped without a fatality.

The Post Office carriers gave up trying to make an afternoon delivery on Tuesday and a number of the shops closed down. At the Winchester Laundry the outside fire sprinklers were turned on each day, materially reducing the inside temperature.

The Highway department has had a busy time covering "bleeding" streets, the heat bringing the tar to the surface in great quantities to the discomfort of all. In fact it was reported that streets built as long as six years ago and never known to "bleed" were covered with pools of tar. In all such places fresh stone was spread over the surface.

Tuesday afternoon the Woburn electric were held up for a time by the bending of a switch point on the west side of the steam road cross-over. It was said that this was due to the heat softening the steel and allowing it to bend under the weight of a car. As long as not proved otherwise this may be accepted as the cause, and it is certain that the "point" was easily bent back into shape under a sledge hammer.

Yesterday noon, under the supervision of Selectman Laraway, the streets about the centre were thoroughly wet down and flushed, greatly improving conditions. This will probably be continued until the weather breaks.

WINCHESTER AMBULANCE.

Aug. 1, 1917.

To the Citizens of Winchester:
Although we did not get the desired amount for two ambulances, we nevertheless appreciate the fine spirit and generous support we received from the people of Winchester in subscribing toward an amount sufficient to one ambulance and its equipment together with running expenses for one year or more.

We are very sorry to learn that the Winchester Ambulance will not be in service for sometime as unforeseen circumstances have arisen that make it impossible. However, we are sailing for France on August eleventh where we go into training and then enter the transport service, carrying men, ammunition and supplies, until the Winchester Ambulance is completed.

We trust this delay will not be long as it is our plan to have the Winchester Ambulance make a fine showing and keep up the good work already established in the American Ambulance Service in France.

Thanking you again for your generous support, we remain
Very truly yours,
C. N. Eaton
C. C. Rogers, 2nd.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The following cases of contagious diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Aug. 1: German measles 2.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

The Board met at 7:30 p. m. present Messrs. Metcalf, Laraway and O'Connor.

Police Examinations, 1917: Notice was received from the Civil Service Commission of a competitive examination for policemen to be held on July 31st.

Winchester State Guard: The Clerk was instructed to send a letter to Captain Maurice C. Tompkins stating that the Company Call to be given on the fire alarm will be 88 repeated once.

Arlington Gas Light Co.: The Board voted to grant the petitions of the Arlington Gas Light Company to extend its mains on Water, Canal and Salem streets.

Arlington Gas Light Co.: The Board voted to grant the Arlington Gas Light Company permission to extend its mains on Main street, down Lake street, and also on Highland avenue to Mount Pleasant street, then down Mount Pleasant to Summit avenue and on Summit avenue.

Street Railway Investigation Committee: Notice was received from the Street Railway Investigation Committee, appointed under Chapter 129 of the Resolves of 1917, in regard to holding another public hearing on all matters for the problems relating to Street Railways, of Massachusetts, at the State House, on August 1, 1917, at 11 o'clock a. m. The Clerk was instructed to write the Town Counsel and request that he be present at this hearing.

Swanton Street Bridge: A letter was received from Henry C. Robinson, Supt. of the Southern Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad, in regard to the Road placing a sidewalk on each side of the Swanton Street Bridge. In this letter Mr. Robinson states that the matter is now in the hands of the Legal Department and undoubtedly a reply will be made to the Board in the near future.

Street Lights, 1917 Petitions For: A petition was received from James C. Mitten of Dunster Lane signed by himself and 14 others petitioning the Board for the installation of street lights on Dunster Lane. The Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Mitten that as the appropriation for street lights is now exhausted the Board cannot take any action in regard to this matter this year, but will consider this petition in the recommendations for street lights which they will make for next year.

Licenses, 1917 Explosives and Inflammables: On petition of the Winchester Country Club to install a gasoline tank on the parking space near Arlington street, the Board voted to hold a hearing in the Selectmen's Room on August 20, 1917, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Licenses, 1917 Explosives and Inflammables: On petition of S. A. Vanner for permission to install a gasoline tank at 51 Parkway, the Board voted to hold a hearing in the Selectmen's Room on August 20, 1917, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Cross Street: A letter was received from Frank Lawrence Blood, Trustee for the bond holders of the Winchester Rock & Brick Company, stating that the drivers of the trucks who serve the Winchester Rock & Brick Co., and also those serving the Winchester Brick Company had been spoken to in regard to speeding their trucks on Cross street, and that the matter would be remedied as far as these companies were concerned.

Street Lights, 1917 Ordered: The following report was received from the Town Engineer: "I have given Mr. B. B. Howard, representing the Edison Company locations for 44—60 c. p. street lights, 2—80 c. p. street lights, 2—100 c. p. street lights. These lights are to be in Main street between Park street and the Woburn Line. "I have also told him that your Board ordered the discontinuance of 9—600 c. p. lamps, and 2—40 c. p. lamps within the limits of Main street, as above.

The Clerk was instructed to write the Edison Company to install these lights in accordance with the recommendation of the Town Engineer.

Bacon Street Sidewalk: A letter was received from the Supt. of Streets stating that he inspected the water shutoff in the sidewalk on Bacon street reported to the Board by Mr. C. E. Barrett; that he found it simply a matter of adjusting it to the proper grade when the new sidewalk is built.

Dumps: Letter was received from the Supt. of Streets stating that in response to the Board's order to stop dumping on the Gleason lot on Washington street, he had stationed a man there for the present to burn the rubbish that has been dumped, and to prohibit any further dumping there; also to instruct any persons attempting to dump there as to where the proper dumping place is. The letter further stated that the department carpenter has started work on the boom and that the boom was placed on the dump Saturday, July 28, 1917.

HEAVY STORM FRIDAY.

Friday was probably the worst day of the summer, and while the temperature was not so high as on previous days last week, the humidity made life almost unbearable. Winchester appeared to be right on the edge of a severe electrical storm during the afternoon which did considerable property damage and cost a number of lives in this vicinity. In fact there appeared to be three storms, none of them passing directly over the town.

The display of lightning and the thunder claps were terrifying, but the rainfall was comparatively light. The worst sufferers were the telephone and electric light companies, the current burning out fuses and bringing down wires. The new fire alarm system worked admirably, not a single trouble item being recorded. The electricity time and again entered the house, but was always arrested by the safety appliances before it could reach the big switch board.

Lightning struck the band stand on Manchester Field, burning out the lighting fuses and slightly splintering one post support. A big tree at Wildwood Cemetery was struck and splintered clear to the ground, and other trees were struck in the woods about town.

A house service wire on Church street fell across the trolley wire, which tied up the electric until a repair gang could remove it, and on Washington street a feed wire of 2,600 volts fell. The electric light service was uncertain until well into the evening, many houses remaining without lights until almost ten o'clock.

The lightning did not do much damage considering the number of places struck. Probably the most severe damage was to the residence of Mrs. A. T. Donahue on Highland avenue, where a bolt struck the chimney, making a hole in it, and then went through the roof, ripping up some shingles. The residence of Mrs. H. F. Chapin on Everett avenue was not struck as first reported, but a clothes dryer in the yard was hit, doing little damage. A big tree on the Parkway at the foot of Mystic avenue was struck and badly splintered.

DIED.

At Georgeville, P. Q., Canada, on the 21st inst., General H. M. Lazelle, U. S. Army, retired in his 85th year. Funeral at Georgeville. New York papers, please copy. Jy20,2t

Relaxation.

The Hatters' Lickship has an ever reputation among government employees. Anchored as it is off that stormy point, life on board is so unquiet that men are given a rotation of three weeks on the ship, alternating with a full week's rest. A certain son of Sweden was employed on the lightskip for some time. When he gave up his job he was accosted by a friend:

"Well, Ole, how was your job?"
"Oh, das jobb bare fine."
"I suppose the government gave you the regular rest every three weeks?"
"Oh, ya, I have you week to rest."
"What did you do while you were off duty?"

"Oh, I bare have fine time! I hire sailboat, en I bare sail oop en down das bay, oop en down das bay, all das week!"—Judge.

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Additions to Roll of Honor of Local Enlistments.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions.

The list as filed has been printed for the past two weeks. The following names have been received and added during the past week:

KILL LOUSE ON POTATOES.

The aphid, or plant louse, which is attacking potatoes and other crops in such unprecedented numbers can be most easily and effectively checked by spraying with a nicotine sulphate solution such as "Black-leaf 40," but a supply of that material may not be available at all times so it is well to know of other possible remedies.

"Black-leaf 40" is a 40 per cent solution of nicotine sulphate and should be diluted with water at the rate of one teaspoonful to one gallon or one-half pint to 50 gallons. It may be added to Bordeaux Mixture or Pyrox at the same rate. When diluted with water it is well to use soapy water so the solution will spread better.

Whale-oil soap is a trade name for fish-oil soap. A solution of one pound to four gallons of water is an efficient contact insecticide though rather disagreeable to handle.

Kerosene emulsion is effective but will burn the foliage if not thoroughly emulsified. Dissolve one-half pound of hard soap or one quart of soap in one gallon of boiling water. Pour this into 2 gallons of kerosene and churn with a force pump back into itself for about 10 minutes or until the oil is thoroughly emulsified. Do not attempt to emulsify by stirring. Some drug-gists are equipped with emulsifying machines and doubtless arrangements can be made to have them prepare kerosene emulsion as above. Dilute with 10 parts of water for aphids spraying.

With all these materials the spray must be so directed that it will actually wet the aphid. Most of them will be found on the under side of the leaves so the plants must be bent over or the spray directed upward from near the ground.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION OF BUSINESS WOMEN.

This Convention was held in Chicago the middle of June. Mrs.
Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, sent a letter of greeting in which she said: "The example which you have set in your business and professional careers has notably helped suffrage make its tremendous strides of the last few years. It has been an inspiration to suffragists generally to know that 95 per cent of the business women of the United States are on record in favor of suffrage."

The following resolutions were passed by the Convention: "Whereas,
We women in Convention assembled, representing the business and professional women of America, feel disfranchisement as a great added handicap in a business world specially ordered for men; and

Whereas, women are responding to the call of business and profession because of the world's economic need and are entitled to the same protection and enjoyment of the same political rights as men;
therefore be it

Resolved, that this Convention protest, as unfair and undemocratic, a governmental attitude that discriminate against women in favor of men, while requiring of women tasks of equal purport to men's;
and be it Resolved, that the members of this convention pledge themselves to support and work for the passage of the Federal Suffrage Amendment which grants universal suffrage to the women of America without the long-drawn battle necessary to obtain suffrage through State referenda; and be it further Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the President of the United States and that a copy be spread upon our minutes."

THE HIGHWAY DEMON.

"The motorcycles were going at excessive speed." So read the accounts of the frightful accident in Wakefield, and naturally enough.
How rarely you see a moving motorcycle on country highway or suburban street or city parkway that it is not moving at excessive speed. The chief business of the motorcyclist is apparently to pass every automobile that he sights. Automobiles traveling well beyond the conservative limit of twenty miles an hour are left behind as though they were standing still—and with an excessive noise as demoniacal as the excessive speed. The driver of the motorcycle—or rather the rider, for he rarely gives the impression of guiding it—is commonly a boy, and two out of three of the utterly irresponsible sort, a joy rider of the worst type. Small wonder that the motorcycle figures all out of propoportion to its numbers in the highway tragedies that mar our Sundays and holidays. At Wakefield, so we are told, the motorcyclists were racing home over a dark highway from a band concert—traveling 35 to 50 miles an hour without lights!

Undenably the motorcycle has its uses—commercial, police, military and even pleasure of a certain kind —but how long is the abominable abuse of it to be tolerated? With the side car attachment its possibilities as a pleasure vehicle are vastly increased. For years the rural highways of England have known such vehicles in numbers far greater than the automobiles, but with no such recklessness of speed and utter disregard of the lives and rights of others as in this free and easy land. Are our laws helpless in this matter? Is it not possible for outraged public opinion to waken some dormant glimmer of sanity in the speed-crazed consciousness of the motorcyclist?—[Boston Herald.

"SMILE LIKE A MAN."

A Winchester Sailor's Thoughts
Put in Verse.

July 23, 1917.

To the Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: Each and every man at this Station has a chance to do something or write something so as to have the people of his home town know what kind of men they have serving their Country. Charles Gainey has composed this little piece of poetry and I take great pleasure in asking you to publish it in your paper.

Thanking you for the same in advance I am,

Very thankfully yours,

E. F. Roe,

1st Sergeant Guard.

Smile like a man and just cast off your gloom.

This Navy is large, and has plenty of room.

Don't think that your knocks or your kicks or your woes,

Are half so severe as first you suppose.

Remember that others have oft'
times too.

A far bigger bushel of troubles than you.

When given a duty don't turn in disdain.

Or think that the purpose behind it is vain.

If they set you to swab with a slimy old mop.

Just go ahead with a smile and a hop.

If you kick and get sore when they put you to work.

You soon get the name of a "No-account shirk."

But if you are willing to do a man's share.

And do of your best, you'll make good anywhere.

You'll have friends and well wishers
as onward you go;

And you'll cut right in two all worries and woe.

That hang around us morals from greatest to small.

So smile like a man and you'll conquer them all.

Charles Gainey.

Blue Jacket Guard.

DON'T YOU WISH YOU WERE A CHIPPEWA SQUAW?

Lo the free Indian! His democracy puts to shame the Great White Father at Washington.

In Council at Bemidji, Minn., the Chippewas gave suffrage to women on July 12, by a vote of two to one.

There is nothing eighteenth-century about the democracy of the Chippewa. Not only does it recognize that the principle of government by the people is a travesty unless women are admitted to be people; it goes further, and shuts out from the voting prerogative the high muck-a-mucks of the tribe, the chiefs who hold their jobs by tricks of prestige that modern democracy refuses to countenance—whether the application be made in Russia or the land of the Chippewas. Australian women, New Zealand women, Norwegian women, Danish women, Icelandic women, Finnish women, Russian women, Canadian women, English women, Scotch women, Irish women, Welch women, French women, Chippewa women—are all the women of all the lands to out-distance American women in the race toward real democracy! We ask it of the 65th Congress.

S. 80° 31' 39" E. 215.08 feet to a drill hole in the westerly side line of Forest street, said drill hole being S. 36° 16' 40" W.
36.37 feet distant from a stone bound in the westerly side line of Forest street, thence by the said westerly side line of Forest street S. 36° 16' 40" W. 253.66 feet to a stone bound S. 41° 01' 40" W. 352.75 feet to a stone bound, and S. 44° 38' 40" W. 68.71 feet to a stake at the point of beginning and containing 297,352 square feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-seventh day of August A. D. 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear as said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

CHANDLER SIX

Chandler Records Are Owners' Records

Not to our knowledge has a professional motor car driver ever made a record with a Chandler Six.

But all the thousands of owners of Chandler Sixes, every day, are making the kind of records that count. Records of satisfactory service.

The Chandler Company has never built a racing car. Chandler owners do not want racing cars.

The 55 to 60 miles per hour speed that every Chandler car will do is speed much greater than you would ever ask for.

The Chandler Company has never built a special mountain-climbing car with short wheel base and low gear ratio.

The ease with which every Chandler climbs steep grades on high gear is satisfying to the Chandler owner.

The Chandler Company has never supplied any Chandler dealer anywhere with a special gear ratio for demonstrating purposes.

What any Chandler Six does your Chandler Six will do.

The manufacturer of one six can make just as big claims as the manufacturer of any other six. But

The Chandler is a Fact-Car, Not a Claim-Car, and These Are Facts, Not Claims

There is no other six more flexible in control, more responsive to your every demand, than the Chandler.

There is no other which will pull hard grades on high with greater ease.

There is no other so economical in operation.

There is no other which embodies in its design and construction so many features characteristic of high-grade high-priced motor cars.

There is no other of more beautiful body lines or greater riding comfort.)

THE MARSEILLAISE

French National Anthem

By Rouget de L'Isle

Ye sons of France, awake to glory,
Hark, hark, what joys are before you rise,
Your children, wives and grandsons hourly,
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Behold their tears and hear their cries!

With hissing bolts, a ruffian band,
Affright and desolate the land,
While peace and liberty lie bleeding!
REFRAIN
To arms! To arms, ye brave!
The avenging sword unsheath!
March on, march on, all hearts resolved
To victory or death.

Now, now the dangerous storm is scowling
Which treacherous Kings, confederate, raise;

The does of war, let loose, are howling,
And let our fields and cities blaze,
And let our fields and cities blaze,
And shall we basely view the ruin,
While lawless force, with guilty stride,
Spreads desolation far and wide,
With crimes and blood his hands embroiling?

With luxury and pride surrounded,
The vile, insatiate despots dare,
Their thirst of power and gold unbending,
To mete and vend the light and air;
To mete and vend the light and air;
Like beasts of burden would they load us,
Like gods would bid their slaves adore:
But man is man, and who is more?
Then shall they longer lash and goad us?

O, Liberty! can man resign thee?
Once having felt thy generous flame?
Can duceon, bolts and bars confine thee,
Or whips the noble spirit tame?
Or whips the noble spirit tame?
Too long the world has wept, bewailing
That falsehood's dagger brands wild;
But freedom is our sword and shield,
And all, their arts are unavailing.

NORTH IS BEING MADE THE "GOAT."

It certainly does look as though the "South is in the saddle," judging from the favoritism which is being shown in Washington to Southern cotton growers. Now the Southern cotton mill men say that they will hold indignation meetings in every State in the south to protest vigorously against the proposed cotton tax, which again is excessive, in the war revenue bill. They term as "shocking" the excess profits tax and the tax on undivided profits in the war tax measure. Now there are many Northern industries which will severely feel the heavy war taxes, but no such "howl" is made as these cotton mill men of the South are making. From the way things look now, it is planned to nail the North at every twist and turn and eliminate so far as possible the Southern industries. That is sectionalism with a vengeance and well justifies the feelings which have been aroused in the North. It appears that Northern capital must more than foot the war bill and with Southerners at the head of most all Congressional and governmental departments the North must sit back and take a new kind of medicine.—[Banker and Tradesman.

MASONS AT CHARLTON.

William Parkman Lodge Visits Masonic Home.

Saturday was a banner day for William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., when through a special dispensation of the Grand Lodge almost 150 members and guests visited the Masonic Home at Charlton and worked the third degree upon five candidates. The trip was made from Winchester by auto, 30 machines conveying the party over and back. One of the most perfect days of the summer made the trip one to be thoroughly enjoyed from every viewpoint, and the outing proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the Lodge. The trip was in charge of Messrs. Percival B. Metcalf, William M. Belcher, Benjamin T. Morgan, Amasa Harrington and George A. Barron.

The Lodge opened in its rooms in the Brown & Stanton Block at eight o'clock, continuing at Charlton. Through special permission of the police department the 30 odd automobiles conveying the party were allowed to lineup on each side of Mt. Vernon street, with the leading car stationed at the entrance to the Lodge.

The start was made at 9 o'clock with a run to Wedgemere avenue on Church street. Here a stop was made long enough to take account of those attending and place the order of the procession, which was headed by W. M. Jay B. Benton and J. D. Percival B. Metcalf, driven by Bro. Oakes Elden. A most enjoyable ride of about three hours brought the party to Charlton and the Home, a most delightful and comfortable building situated in a location so slightly that it excited the admiration of all.

Accompanying the party was a peaceable. The visit was made in the form of a "pound party," each visitor taking a pound of something to the Home. The packages were numerous and varied, and included water-melons and prunes, rice, coffee, butter, and in fact almost enough provisions to keep the Home supplied for the duration of visit by the Winchester members.

Lunch was served in the beautiful and shady pine grove near the Home at one o'clock by caterer Randall and an efficient corps of assistants, who had earlier in the day made the trip and prepared for the feast.

The work was resumed in the beautiful lodge room of the Home at two o'clock with an attendance which taxed its capacity, the number including the 50 odd members at the Home, who were given places of honor in the ceremony. Assisting in the work in addition to W. M. Jay B. Benton were W. Bro. George S. Littlefield and W. Bro. Benjamin T. Morgan of William Parkman Lodge, and W. Bro. William C. Corey of Temple Lodge, Wilmington, Del., who raised his brother, Preston E. Corey.

Besides the donation of pound packages, over $30 was contributed in cash by the members of the Lodge, this being used for the purchase of needed paraphernalia. The Lodge also presented the Home on behalf of Mrs. Everett C. Benton of Belmont, a set of white aprons made by her for use in the lodge room.

Following the closing of the Lodge a base ball game was played on the diamond in front of the Home by teams composed of the Lean Men and the Fat Men among the visitors. This game proved one of the events of the visit and brought out some excellent playing and numerous exciting incidents. Especially noticeable were the one-

Notes

To the "Fans" of Winchester:

I have been in no way connected with the Winchester Base Ball Team this season and have been merely writing the games and giving you "fans" what little information I possessed. In doing this I thought I was furnishing you with some enjoyment during the baseball season, but it seems my baseball copy does not please the head of the Winchester Baseball Association. Therefore, I will refrain from publishing any more. But before doing so, I wish to say a few words in regard to the Minute Boy—Winchester games.

Mr. Hayden, the President of the Minute Boys, is one of the wealthiest and most prominent man in Lexington, and what is more, a good sport. He is in baseball for sport only. Now in sending the communication to Winchester as he did, he was entitled to all the consideration the Winchester Baseball Association could give him. But instead of answering his letters or doing any-

MILITARY DRAFT.

Men Accepted and Rejected—Action on Exemptions Today.

The Exemption Board for this District in the military draft completed the physical examination of the first call of 272 men on Wednesday and will turn in for service the names of 89 as being physically satisfactory and not having filed claims for exemption. Of this list 38 are Winchester men, out of a total of 101.

The medical examination opened at the Arlington Town Hall on Saturday, and so expeditiously was the work done by the efficient corps of physicians under the direction of Dr. G. N. P. Mead, that some of the men who had received notification to appear on Tuesday and Wednesday were called up earlier and passed upon. None of the men were required to remain before the Board but a short time and practically none suffered any inconvenience whatever. The 89 men who have passed the physical test will now await further instruction, and if they are mustered into service will again be examined. Many of the men who were passed have already received notice to report at Lawrence.

Many Exemptions.

Many of the 272 men called have filed claims for exemption, and the Board will begin to sit on these claims this (Friday) morning. They will announce the result of their findings each day and will continue to sit until they have passed upon all claims. The claims for exemption, however, are not all made to the local Board, for claims on industrial grounds must be passed upon by the District Board, so-called. The results of the findings of the Board upon these claims will be posted at the STAR office as fast as they are received.

Rejected

Comparatively few of the men examined were rejected for physical disability, Winchester having but 11 out of the 101 called from here.

Some Excused

Some of those examined who were aliens, and who filed a claim for exemption, were excused by the Board. Their cases may come up later, but for the present they are not counted in the draft. The majority of these cases are from Winchester and are among the Italian population.

Three Fail to Respond

Three men from this town failed to respond to the call and appear before the Board for examination. These cases are in the hands of the Police.

Of these three, one, William I. Coty, has already enlisted, and is stationed at Fort Slocum, N. Y. Olson left three weeks ago for Sweden and cannot be reached, and Hicks has been located at Scituate.

A WINCHESTER BOY IN FRANCE.

Interesting Letter From Chester R. Tutein.

The following letter from Chester R. Tutein of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Arthur Tutein of Wildwood street, who is in the transport service of the French Army, was received by his folks last week. Mr. Tutein left with the intention of entering the ambulance service, and in common with many of the other boys was placed in the transport service owing to the lack of sufficient ambulances. His letter is the first word received outside the cable message announcing his safe arrival. It contains much of interest to his friends and considerable information of value to local boys who expect to enter the European war zone.

Today is Thursday, the twelfth of July, 1917. I hope I have not worried you very much by my neglecting to write. I am in the "camion," or transport service training camp and will probably stay here for a week longer. We got here on July the 5th. Of course, you know that I am in the war zone and cannot tell you exactly where. We stayed in Paris only three nights and two days and did not have a chance to see much because we were very busy being examined and registering and also I had to (along with all the rest) get more equipment. In fact I should have got everything except shoes over here. I could not take my duffle bag out of Paris and my trunk is too large to go into the compartment in the camion. However, I think I can make it work. Those light shoes we got in Boston, are fine for dry days, but oh my! Most of the fellows wear great big hunting shoes.

The first two days were fine and dry and then we had three of rain. The mud was something fierce; not just mud such as we have at home, but clay. It sticks to your shoes like glue. Just today, when my shoes are perfectly dry, I had to take my jack-knife and almost whittle the clay off. I just put a good application of that waterproofing paste on and I guess they will be fine. The sunny days are fine, not hot at all except in the sun, and the nights are cold as the devil.

Of course we sleep in tents. I am in with 27 other men in a large wall tent and so we get plenty of air. We each have canvas beds that set up about one foot from the floor. I have four thicknesses of blankets over me and under me, with a canvas ground sheet all around that. Beside this I wore my heavy pajamas.

TRADERS' OUTING.

Event Marked by First Fair Day in Years.

The annual outing of the Winchester Traders, held on Wednesday, was marked this year by the first fair weather in years, all of the recent outings having been held in a downpour of rain. In fact it looked at the start as though the usual conditions would prevail this year, for after a fortnight of dry, hot weather, the day opened with heavy fog and lowering skies.

The party was not daunted, however, by any weather forecasts, and when the two special electrics arrived at the centre to convey the Traders and their families and friends to Salem Willows, where the outing was to be held, there was a crowd on hand which more than filled them. This was due in a large measure to those who failed to purchase their tickets or signify their intentions of attending in time to allow the transportation committee to add more cars.

All were eventually taken care of however, one of Erskin's large auto trucks, together with numerous private cars, providing room for everyone, while still others left town on later electrics running on the regular schedule.

The outing proved one of the most successful Winchester Traders have yet held. The addition of Traders from Stoneham and Melrose, who held their picnic at the same place, made the old Willows take on an air which certainly must have been a surprise to it.

Everyone enjoyed himself to the utmost. The ball game and sports gave entertainment to most of those attending, but the usual attractions were well patronized. Some took their lunch with them, others ate at the Willows' restaurant, while still others chartered the steamer and went to Marblehead for dinner.

The ball game in the morning between the Married Men and Single Men furnished great enjoyment to the crowd if not to the players. While the Married Men out-hit the Single Men almost two to one, they did not know what to do with their hits when once on base. Chris Sullivan got a fine three-bagger, but he immediately fell asleep on reaching third, and was thrown out by the catcher. Roger Noonan pitched a good game for the Benedicts and struck out Winchester's great batter, "Jack" Hevey, but the less said about his support the better, as we do not wish to create any hard feeling. "Mack" umpired the game, and not only had some umpiring to do, but had to keep tabs on the Married Men as well and tell them when to play. Even with his kind assistance, at the end of the game, they accused him of giving the match to the Bachelors. The latter won the game by the score of 8 to 3.

Next year, the Married Men say, will be different, and it will see a reversal of the score even if they have to get some ringers in to win.

service car of the Winchester Laundry Co., which carried regalia and baggage, together with the necessary tools to handle any minor repairs which might be needed by the cars in line. Through the courtesy of Bro. Edward T. Wolloff, manager of the Winchester Garage, all of the drivers were assured prompt and efficient assistance in any car trouble, and this was much appreciated in the instance of some four tire blow-outs and one instance of clutch trouble.

Trouble with the leading car at Worcester placed the second in the position of pilot, with Messrs. Benton and Metcalf as passengers, the first car being left to be taken in charge by the service car. The trip was made without accident of any kind, and except for a substitution of hats by Dr. Nutter, was most handed catch of a foul tip by catcher Sharon and the wonderful stop of a drive off Smith's bat by shortstop Perkins. In the latter play the ball simply couldn't get by, Perkins was too much for it, and it was handily fielded by Pitcher Newman.

Chester Kelley threw his knee out of joint at the conclusion of a speedy sprint to First. It was reset by the "first-aiders" just as a doctor reached the field, and unfortunately for the Lean Men's team, Kelley was forbidden to continue the game.

Ferguson's bat had wings, and took him for a little "spin" at the sight of the first ball pitched, and Tutein made one of the cleverest back throws of the afternoon immediately after. The absolute fairness of umpire George E. Willey's decisions was a real feature of the game.

On account of the lateness of the hour, the game was called off at the end of the third inning with the understanding that if later, when the teams had recovered sufficiently, and it was thought best, it might be finished on Manchester Field.

RESIDENCES OF REFINEMENT.

Will Be Constructed in Restricted Sections of Winchester.

Discriminating persons seeking admirably located home sites or modern dwelling now under construction and contemplated in a desirable and restricted residential district, are afforded advantageous opportunities for excellent purchases by the Edward T. Harrington Company, reputable realty brokerage firm, which is developing the former Edwin Ginn estate property bordering Winter Pond in the Wedgemere section of Winchester.

The tract, comprising 65 acres, is adjacent to the most exclusive section of Winchester and the reasonable building restrictions placed on the 80 single dwellings to be constructed will create a refined aspect in the neighborhood which will be comprised entirely of dignified residences. Horn Pond boulevard, an exceptionally smooth stretch of road passes very close to the property, which was formerly the Winchester golf links. The Woburn parkway is not far distant.

Woodside road, adjoining Wildwood street, runs through the property, and the east and west basins of Winter pond enhance the beautiful environments of the attractive district. Three new streets—Ardley road, Chesterford road and Wickford road—are to be constructed, and the landscape will be otherwise beautified by the Harrington Company.

Well known builders have purchased 10 of the lots and will shortly construct residences averaging $7500 in building cost. The Harrington company already has several dwellings nearing completion. No house to be constructed on the property will cost less than $6000 and many of them will cost $7000 and $8000. Plans are ready for three dwellings in addition to the four under construction.

Home seekers may purchase building sites and construct houses according to the restrictions, or the Harrington company will erect residences to suit purchasers. The ideal location of the property, with excellent trolley and train service to Boston and other features, should recommend it highly to persons wishing to purchase or construct homes in a well-planned neighborhood, combining rural atmosphere and city conveniences.

Development of the tract is meeting a long existing want of Winchester and other greater Boston folk wishing to dwell in a desirable locality without having to build expensive homes. The property is already assuming the aspects of a fine neighborhood, and when the streets are all completed and the restricted construction of 80 single houses is well underway the locality will surely prove an ideal residential district. The Edward T. Harrington Company will furnish any required information.

DRISCOLL—DARR.

The wedding of Miss Lida J. Darr of this town and Mr. George Driscoll of Woburn was solemnized at the rectory of St. Charles' Church, Woburn, on Sunday night by Rev. Walter A. Fegan.

Miss Minnie Mason of Woburn was bridesmaid and Mr. Christopher Driscoll of this town, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a wedding dress of white crepe de chine with large black picture hat, and the bridesmaid wore blue taffeta with hat to match.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the groom on Bow street, which was largely attended by many friends of the couple. The groom's gift to the bride consisted of a string of pearls, the bridesmaid receiving a string of pearls from the bride and the best man a set of gold cuff links from the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Hampton Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Driscoll will make their home in Woburn, where the groom is employed by Soles & Towse.

MILITARY DRAFT.

Three Names Added

Three more names have been added to the local district, one from this town and two from Arlington, thus bringing the number of registrations in the district up to 2105. Winchester's addition was Mr. Robert H. Hale of Back Horse terrace, whose draft number has been given as 2103. The addition of these names will probably affect the order of drawal of some in the district from one to three as the case may be.

272 More May be Called

The prediction given last night by the clerk of the Board was that a second call will be made in this district to fill the vacancies caused by enlistments, physical rejections, exemptions allowed, and also for any rejections which may be made by the officers holding the second physical examination. It is therefore estimated that a second 272 men from this District will be called before the local Board. This lot will consist of the next 272 in order of drawal in the District. These names can be ascertained from the complete list published in last week's STAR. A copy of which should be secured by every man in the draft for future reference.

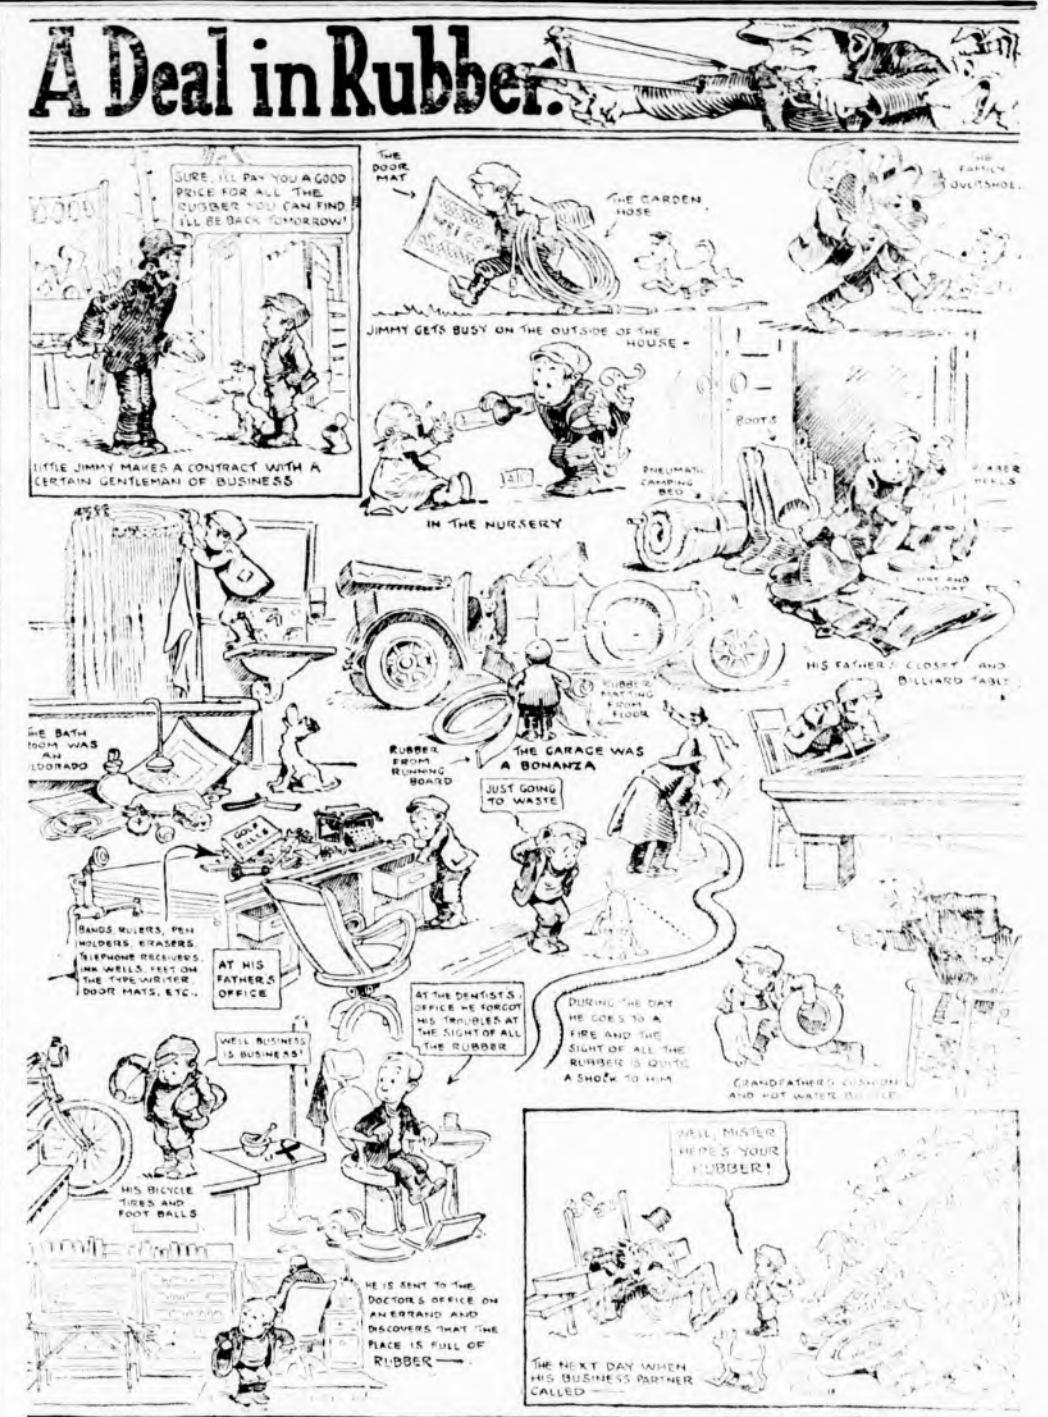

Just when these men will be called has not yet been decided, but it is thought now that they will not be called until the Board has finished passing upon the claims for exemption now in hand. This matter, however, remains still to be decided.

Enlistments

A considerable number of the men who were included in the first 272 called before the Board have enlisted in one branch or another of the service. These men in many cases were excused from passing the physical examination and their places too, will have to be filled from the next call.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WINS.

Remington Clark Fans 18 Men With No Hits, No Runs.

The Meadowbrooks of Lewiston, Me., were defeated 6 to 0 by Mere Point team in a no-hit game Saturday. Remington Clark, besides allowing no man to connect safely, struck out 18, although Wessenger of Meadowbrook, made 14 whiff the atmosphere, fanning ten in the last four innings. It was easily the feature game of the season. The score does not indicate the closeness of the game since Wessenger permitted but one earned run, his own wildness being responsible for three.

The Meadowbrook team is a competitor for the City Title in Lewiston.

The batteries were Clark and C. McKenney; Wessenger and Menneally.

MOTOR CYCLE WRECKED.

A motor cycle driven by Clem Gunn, a sailor at Fort Warren who was visiting in this town, collided with a touring car owned by Dora Williams of Boston Sunday night on Cambridge street at the foot of Wildwood street. A side car was attached to the motor cycle in which a young woman was riding. Gunn received a dislocated shoulder and numerous cuts and bruises. His companion was only slightly hurt.

According to reports the auto was standing at the side of the road near the tea garden and crossed directly in front of the motor cycle, which was unable to avoid it. Gunn had been riding with his brother, Claude Gunn, the two men having girls in their side cars. Claude Gunn had passed the auto before it started.

The side car was badly wrecked and Gunn was taken to the Winchester Hospital after treatment by Dr. Simon.

TEN DOLLAR COAL

Nothing could be more pleasing to the coal manipulators than the advice issuing from committees, supposedly acting in behalf of the consumers, that the latter buy their winter supply of fuel now. Of course, the more consumers buy coal now, the firmer will the present extortionate coal rates remain, and the more certainly will these extortionate rates be increased as the season advances. It is just a trifle strange that the public is almost invariably without friends on such committees. [Christian Science Monitor.]

TROUBLES OF A SEASHORE LANDLADY.

By Miss Marion Nichols, 10 Hillside Avenue, Winchester.

The following story was written by Miss Marion Nichols of Hillside Avenue, daughter of Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols. It was published last week in the "Short Story" section of the Boston Post. No doubt many of the young lady's friends will be interested to read it.

You say you have only 10 cottages to let. How absurd! But I dare say it will be enough to look at this morning.

Cottage No. I.—Mercy, what a narrow piazza! But you don't mean to say this is the living room? Where is the piano? I've got to have one, because I'm cultivating my voice. It will be necessary for me to sing a great deal. No, I won't see the rest of this house, for I could not get along without a piano.

Cottage No. II.—What a funny gas stove! Why I couldn't do a thing on it. Of course, I could have a maid if I wanted one, but they are always eavesdropping, and then they tell the neighbors' maids everything you say. Ye-es, I'll see the upstairs. Oh, land sakes! A tin bathtub. Never. I hate them.

Cottage No. III.—Only three rooms. No, that won't do. I intend to have a great deal of company. My husband is altogether too tame. It took me a long time to settle on him. I had as many as a dozen proposals, but refused them all. There was one man that wasn't bad. He was short and fat, with blue eyes that were too lovely for words. But one day I wanted to go into an ice cream store, because I saw a lady with a crocheted handbag which I wanted to copy. The pattern, I mean, not the bag. We'd just had two ice creams in other stores, and James, that was his name, wouldn't get me another. I tell you I left him right off. If a man won't get just an ice cream for you before you are married, what would married life be like? Not for me, thank you.

Cottage No. IV.—Oh, yes, it's very nice, but the stairs are too steep. I never could go up those stairs the way I have to go. Henry, my husband, never does a thing like going up stairs for me, and it's so hard to think of everything at once.

Cottage No. V.—This one isn't bad, but it's too isolated. I like to be near people and be neighborly.

Cottage No. VI.—No, I won't go in. The color turns me sick. I never could ask people to come to a house like that, and besides it's hard to match your clothes to a house like that. I always like clothes that match the house. Don't you?

Cottage No. VII.—See all the children next door! Why, they'd be on top of you every minute. Besides, the houses fairly touch. I could never live as near any one as that. It's bad enough to smell your own cooking without having to smell your neighbors, too.

Cottages No. VIII and IX, both lacked something.

Cottage No. X.—My, but this is perfect. Yes, just what I wanted. Piano, gas range, porcelain bathtub, everything. Yes, I'll take this for a week, and if I like it perhaps more. I don't think so, though. I'm never happy in one place for longer than a week. I like to meet new people all the time. Of course it is tiring to look at houses. Why, last week I visited 20, and then took rooms at a mountain hotel instead of the seashore. I always pay in advance. It puts you on good terms with the landlady. Fifty dollars for one week! Why, it's an outrage, a robbery, a crime. I said for "a week," not a month. Are you insane? I knew from the beginning that I wouldn't like your houses, and now I've spent the whole forenoon all for nothing. Oh, dear, oh, dear, landladies are so provoking.

Good bye!

ONE GUESS ON THE TAX RATE.

It is said that one man's guess is as good as another on the coming tax rate for this town. One who is in the "know," and who has quite a reputation among the wisecracks, says he predicts it will be an even $2 more than last year. As it was $18.40 then, his figures bring it up to $20.40 this year.

It is interesting to note that the Assessors' figures show that the Town has appropriated $18,184.33 more this year than last, and that the State tax indicates an increase of from $10,000 to $12,000, making a total increase of about $30,000.

BASEBALL.

thing, they utterly ignored him and at the very last minute Mr. T. Price Wilson had to chase around town to find out what Winchester intended to do, only to find out there was nothing doing.

Now you "fans" of Winchester know I have stood up for this team year after year, writing and doing what I could to put it in the good grace of all concerned, but in this case Winchester is dead wrong and I cannot see where they have a leg to stand on.

The fans of this town know what they want in the way of a game and are entitled to it. It is not a question of dignity or principle in this case, it is just a matter of quitting "cold," and there is no excuse for it.

As far as the $100 to nothing goes, I from my own personal knowledge know the arrangement could be made so it would be satisfactory to both sides, but Winchester has been in the habit of telling most of these managers where they "get off." In this particular instance they struck the wrong man, and the result was a proper showing up of the management. Of course, we all understand that the Baseball Association was formed to furnish entertainment (?) for Winchester, but I would not insult the intelligence of the Winchester baseball "fans" by telling them what they could see or not see in the way of baseball; they are entitled to the best there is when it can be had.

The temper of the "fans" in this case is not very sweet, and they want no alibi or excuses. They do not care what happened last year or the year before, but want to know why did not the management of the Winchester baseball team do something in regard to this challenge?

A baseball team in any town represents that town, and when the "powers that be quit cold" it leaves a very unfavorable impression and it hurts everyone in the town. We all regret the reputation of being "quitters" and we all know Winchester is not that kind.

Thanking you "fans" for the kind consideration you have given me the last five years, and knowing that you all feel as I do, that nothing is too good for our own town and the Winchester people, and at the same time if you feel that the STAR should continue with my articles, let Mr. Wilson know and I will be satisfied.

Yours for Sport,
"Mack."

PRESIDENT MAY HONOR McCALL.

Gov. McCall's arrival in Washington Monday to keep an appointment with President Wilson lent color to the rumor current for several weeks that he is being considered by the President for a place on the enlarged interstate commerce commission. Ever since the proposal to increase the membership of the commission was first advanced there have been strong representations made to the White House urging the appointment of a New England member.

Gov. McCall declined to discuss the matter, other than to say that he had not yet received any intimation of the President's intention to appoint him, and, under the circumstances, he thought it would not be in good taste to talk about such a possibility. He admitted that he did not entertain any ambitions for a place on the commission, but he declined to say whether or not he would accept if offered the post.

Besides seeing the President he will confer with Secretary Baker regarding matters affecting the Bay State National Guard.

CALL TO WOBURN A MISTAKE.

Through a mistake in ringing two alarms from box 65 in Woburn Wednesday night at 7:30 for an insignificant fire at the rear of the Woburn freight yards, the Winchester apparatus responded, the Woburn call, 451, being sounded on our whistle. The motor pump responded in accordance with the system arranged, but was back in the Winchester house in 20 minutes after running to Woburn and ascertaining that it was not needed.

NEW LIGHTS ON GATES.

The Boston & Maine Railroad is trying a new experiment in lighting the centre crossing gates. Fixed lanterns containing a red bull's-eye on the side facing the road-way have replaced the former white lanterns. That portion of the lantern showing up or down the track and seen by the engineers of the trains is still white. The new lighting appears very satisfactory, the red light showing up plainly when the gates are lowered.

EXPRESS CAR SERVICE FROM SULLIVAN SQUARE.

Many people have been greatly pleased the last few days to learn of the express car service from Sullivan Square to Medford Square. Such service quickens the journey from Boston appreciably, and best of all, enables Winchester people to at least stand a chance of obtaining a seat in the cars through the elimination of passengers who have been using the cars between these two points.

The credit for the improvement, which has been ordered by the Public Service Commission, is largely due to the efforts of Mr. Harry F. Lunt of this town, who has interested himself in the matter and taken it up with the Commission. It is to be hoped that the arrangement will continue.

The following letter to Mr. Lunt is self explanatory:

Massachusetts Public Service Commission
1 Beacon Street,
Boston.

July 27, 1917.

Mr. H. F. Lunt,
185 Parkway,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

With reference to your complaint of June 23d concerning service between Sullivan Square and Winchester and Woburn:

The Boston Elevated Railway Company has agreed to arrange the schedule so that the Lowell-Winchester cars will run express to Medford Square during the afternoon rush hours on week days, including Saturdays, until after Labor Day. On Sundays it will be left to the discretion of the station master as to whether or not the cars will run express. After Labor Day this schedule will be discontinued under the supposition that with the departure of the summer residents the riding will be materially decreased. If, however, the riding should warrant the continuance of this service we will take the matter up again.

Very truly yours,
Philip Scott, Assistant Inspector.

CORNETT-DWYER.

The wedding of Mr. Frank H. Cornett of this town and Miss Elizabeth R. Dwyer of Woburn, daughter of Mrs. James Dwyer, took place on Sunday evening at Woburn, being performed by Rev. Patrick H. Higgins of St. Joseph's Church at the rectory.

Miss Margaret Dwyer, sister of bride, was bridesmaid, and the best man was Mr. John Deneen of this town. Miss Stella M. Davis, the little niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The bride wore a wedding dress of white Georgette crepe and tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's dress was of mode colored silk taffeta and she carried pink sweet peas.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, which was largely attended by friends from Winchester and Woburn. There was a handsome display of gifts, testifying to the popularity of the couple.

Following a wedding trip to York Beach, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Cornett will make their home in this town on Hemingway street, and will be at home to their friends after August 20th.

Some rain! Is your garden still

You should be glad that you are not a Congressman as then your

Certainly the names of those Congressmen whose letters were opened are not of German origin.

That the Massachusetts Highway Commission is determined to force owners of automobiles to tone down headlights to conform with the glare light law, which went into effect last January, was emphasized this week when at least 10 owners received summons to appear in the Brookline Municipal Court Monday to answer to charges of violating this law.

Some two years ago, a German statesman, speaking to his constituency, said: "Why must Germany be victorious, why must she have her place in the sun, why must her frontiers be extended, why is all opposition to Germany shameful, not to say devilish; why must Germany become a world empire, why ought Germany and not Great Britain, to become the great colonial power? Why? Because it is through the medium of Germany that the world is to be healed; it is upon Germany that the salvation of the world depends. Germany is the rock selected by the Almighty upon which to build His Empire." And yet Germany says she was forced to go to war. What rot!

There are many instances that owners of automobiles are not conforming to the law passed at the last session of the Legislature regarding the lowering down of headlights. The Massachusetts Highway Commission is determined to force owners of automobiles to conform to the law. Many glaring lights are seen on Highland avenue. The law reads, "Any light thrown directly ahead or sidewise shall be so arranged that no dazzling rays from it or from any reflector shall be at any time more than 3½ feet above the ground on a level road at a distance of 50 feet or more ahead of said vehicle, and said light shall be sufficient to enable the operator of the motor vehicle to see any person, vehicle or substantial object upon the roadway or side thereof, for 10 feet on each side of the motor vehicle 10 feet ahead of said vehicle."

The offer, or challenge, made last week by J. Willard Hayden, Jr., manager of the Lexington Minute Men, received no official acknowledgement from the Winchester management. This is to be regretted.
The controversy between the two managements may be decided as one chooses, but aside from "sidewalk" argument and discussion based on memory from verbal conversation of months' previous, Mr. Hayden must be given credit by all for publicly stating his position, making his chalenge and backing it up. In judging any controversy, written statements bear first weight. In transacting business a written document is always necessary. From such a viewpoint Mr. Hayden has vindicated himself. The minor matters relating to "professionalism" and "in case of rain" could probably have been arranged satisfactorily. The STAR assumes that Mr. Hayden has no fear of the outcome of a game with Winchester.

ADVICE FOR HOME GARDENERS IN WINCHESTER.

Residents of the town who have gardens and are anxious to get practical advice as to how to reach insect pests and to best conserve their growing crops will be able to secure this through a visit from Mr.
R. M. Upton, the garden specialist of the Middlesex County Farm Bureau.
Mr. Upton visited Winchester sometime ago and gave a garden demonstration. If enough people are interested now, it will be possible to secure a second visit from him.
This will mean calling personally upon home gardeners and looking over their crops.

If you are interested, drop a card, giving your name and address, to J. P. Murphy, 12 Symmes road, Winchester.

SWAM ACROSS SENECA LAKE.

Osgood Pitcher of Rochester, who is spending the summer at the Pitcher cottage, "Klondyke", and Jack Smith of Winchester, Mass., who is a guest of John Salyer, at Lone Pine cottage, performed a feat Tuesday that as far as is known has been duplicated but once before.
The two boys swam across the lake from Klondyke to Long Point, a distance of about four miles. On account of the unrelenting and the very cold water, Seneca Lake is classed as the most treacherous of the inland lakes, and there are not many to try such an experience.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wixom are now at their home at Auburn, N. Y.

NO GAME WITH LEXINGTON.

Winchester Fails to Reply to Mr.
Hayden's Challenge.

As no member of the management of the Winchester Base Ball Association answered the offer of Mr. J.
Willard Hayden, Jr., of Lexington, made in last week's STAR, the check for $100 deposited at this office by Mr. Hayden as a guarantee was returned to him with regrets. It appears that there will be no ball game between Winchester and Lexington this season.

As the time for the expiration of the offer approached without any recognition being made by members of the local organization, our reporter visited the management himself and requested information regarding their attitude. He was informed that Winchester had no idea of taking Mr. Hayden up. The reasons advanced were that the local team could not play under the conditions imposed by Mr. Hayden. The amateur players on the team could not jeopardize their standing by playing for the $100 guaranteed; the cancelling of games in case of rain was opposed as unfair, and the management felt that Mr. Hayden was late in making his offer of a return game.

As there was no desire for a conference with Mr. Hayden, and as no official acknowledgement was made of his offer, his check was returned without comment, he being informed of the verbal statement made, to the effect that Winchester would play two games with the Minute Men, one in Lexington and one here, on a $50 guarantee each way. To this Mr.
Hayden replied that a $60 guarantee would at least be necessary to pay the expenses of his team, and under the circumstances this was not negotiated further.

Many local fans would have liked to have seen a series between the two teams, and some fail to see the point of Winchester's refusal. This is, of course, a matter to be settled by the local management alone, for no outsider could step in and dictate their decision.

August 7, 1917.

Mr. Theo. P. Wilson,

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I appreciate your sentiment, and can assure you that it helps one, when trying to do what he feels is square. If it had not been for the squibs, about the Millionaire Sportsman, and the expression in the STAR that the Winchester Nine were to play in Lexington, I doubt if I should have followed the matter up—but it looked to me as if someone was bluffing, and I did not want either you or others to think it came from Lexington.

Only the best of feelings have,
and do now, exist between us all,
and I do not want to do, or have anything done, that might be misunderstood.

With kindest regards,

Respectfully,

J. Willard Hayden, Jr.,

President.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Rivinius returned this week from Lake Boone.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Short Session Held by Board This Week.

Aug. 6, 1917.

The Board met at 7:30 p. m., present Messrs. Metcalf, Jewett, Laraway and O'Connor.

The records of the meeting of July 30 were read and approved.

Measures of Leather 1917: Under suspension of the rules, the Board appointed James V. Haley a measurer of leather, to serve until June 30, 1918.

Fire Department, Assistant Chief:
The Board nominated Mr. John J.
Gorman to serve as Assistant Fire Chief. His nomination to hold over one week under the rules.

Through Car Service to Harvard Square: Letter was received from Andrew A. Highlands, Secretary of the Public Service Commission, acknowledging receipt of the Board's letter under date of July 31. This letter stated that the Board was opposed to any further delay in having through car service to Harvard Square.

Sheridan Circle: Mr. Christian Everson appeared before the Board in regard to a petition signed by himself and ten others which he had submitted to last year's Board, and which had been referred by them to this year's Board. The Board voted to accept this petition in place of a new one, and the Clerk was instructed to ask the Town Engineer to report to the Board what requirements are necessary to put Sheridan circle in condition to be presented by the Board to the Town for acceptance.

Bacon Street Bridge: The Clerk was instructed to send a letter to the Metropolitan Park Commission calling their attention to the fact that no reply had been received by the Board to their letter of June 27th, 1917, and incorporated in the Selectmen's Record of June 25th, 1917.

Street Lights, 1917: Another letter was received from E. L. Phipps of 25 Cabot street in regard to changing the location of a street light at the corner of Cabot and Warren streets. This matter was again referred to the Committee on Street Lights.

Church Street, Tree: A letter was received from James Nowell in regard to the lack of red lanterns on the big elm tree in Church street, near the Home Market. The Board voted to have these placed on the tree again.

Surface Drainage, 1917, Symmes Road: A letter was received from Fred A. Pope addressed to the Superintendent of Streets in regard to a certain change which he felt ought to be made in the culvert now located in front of Mr. Frederick E. Hollins' residence on Symmes road. Accompanied with this letter was a report from the Town Engineer recommending what was necessary to be done in the matter. This matter was referred to the Committee on Ways & Bridges.

Sidewalks, 1917, Walnut Street:
A letter was received from the Town Engineer in regard to the unsafe condition of the driveway at the property of Mrs. A. M. Stark, 79 Walnut street. Mr. Metcalf of the Board reported that this driveway had been properly fixed.

The meeting adjourned at 9:45 p. m.

George S. F. Bartlett,

Clerk of Selectmen.

GEORGIA'S IDEA OF JUSTICE.

Two news items from Georgia show how they do things in that State. First item is dated July 20th and says: "The House Committee on Constitutional Amendments overwhelmingly voted its disapproval of a bill to allow women to vote in Georgia." Four days later this significant item from Savannah was published: "Asks women to Give Blood. Capt. Wm. B. Orger, medical officer of the army recruiting station here, is compiling a list of Georgian women who are volunteering to give their blood by transfusion to save the lives of wounded sailors and soldiers who may be brought to Savannah hospitals. Cap-Orger declared today that this is the most practical sacrifice the women of the country can make during the war." Georgia will take women's life-blood, but denies them the privilege of expressing an opinion in the government for which they sacrifice themselves!

M. E. Allen.

JOHN J. GORMAN ASSISTANT CHIEF.

John J. Gorman was appointed to the position of Assistant Chief of the Winchester Fire Department by the Selectmen at their meeting on Monday night. Mr. Gorman has been with the department a number of years and has done much active service, having been in charge of the chemical since its installation. He succeeded the late J. W. McCarthy.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

The Middlesex County Convention of the Special Aid Society, held in Cambridge recently, was a meeting of inspiration and interest to everyone present. Several branches of woman's work were explained and all the speakers made a strong appeal for patriotic cooperation and self-sacrifice and told what had been done and what can be done by members of the Special Aid to provide for comforts and necessities of the soldiers and sailors and to conserve the food supply of our country.

Winchester members of the S. A.
S. A. P. felt proud of the exhibit which was sent as a specimen of what has been done here.

A box of fresh vegetables from a garden showed what can be done by a woman; canned fruit and vegetables were sent and much interest was displayed in this food exhibit.

A sample of each knitted article such as are made by our knitting committee was shown. Also the afghans made of blocks of scraps of yarn.

A complete set of surgical dressings, compresses, bandages, pads and pillows reflected much credit upon the ladies who have been busily engaged in that work.

The kit committee sent three kinds of kits: the army, navy and hospital bags. The contents showing how they are filled.

Many were heard to remark that Winchester had sent the finest exhibit and it was gratifying to see the interest shown in our fine specimen of work.

Leaflets entitled "Canning by the Cold Pack Method" are for sale by Miss Curry at Hallanday's. Experts consider this pamphlet one of the best on canning.

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Additions to Roll of Honor of Local Enlistments.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions.

The list as filed has been printed for the past two weeks. The following names have been received and added during the past week:

Hustis, J. H., Jr.

Lieut. 14th Engineers

MARRIED IN NEW HOME.

The wedding of Miss Lillian Mildred Martin, daughter of Mrs. Helen Martin of Brookline, and Mr. Gerald Rockingham Stark of Boston, which was solemnized July 30th by Rev.
William S. Packer, took place in the new home of the couple on Chester-ford road. Little Miss Vera Louise Harrington of this town was flower girl.

The ceremony was performed at four o'clock. Miss Helen Thomas and Miss Mabel V. Perry of Brookline were bridesmaids, and Mrs. Austin Norris of Penally, N. J., sister of the bride, was matron of honor.
Mr. Richard J. Davis of Boston was best man.

The bride was gowned in white satin with her tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of sweet peas. The bridesmaids wore Georgette crepe, the matron of honor pale gray and the flower girl white tulle and yellow satin.

The residence was attractively decorated for the ceremony. The wedding was performed before a curtain of yellow in the living room and beneath a yellow wedding bell, canary birds being hung at each side.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Howard Martin, and the wedding march was played by Mrs. Herman Wheeler of Winthrop. There were about 60 guests present from Brookline, Providence, Winthrop, New York and Winchester, and many beautiful presents were received.

The bride is well known to many Winchester people and is prominent in musical circles, being a singer of considerable note. Following their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Stark will reside in their new home on Chester-ford road.

MR. ROGERS DINED.

Mr. Charles C. Rogers, 2nd, who with Mr. C. N. Eaton, sails tomorrow for France to enter the transport service in the French army and later to drive the "Winchester Ambulance" in the Field Hospital Service, was given a farewell dinner by a number of his friends Tuesday evening at the Georgian. This was followed by a theatre party.

Messrs. Rogers and Eaton will undergo a six weeks' training course before entering the service. They are taking to France with them 10,000 cigarettes, which they expect to distribute among the American boys at the front.

NEW NATIONAL BANK ON MAIN STREET.

It is reported that the management of the new Winchester National Bank has contracted for a location for the banking rooms in the new block on Main street adjoining the river. The new bank, it is said, will open for business in October.

The application for the new bank's charter was approved June 17th, but the charter has not yet been issued.

DIRECTORS OF THE BOSTON AND LOWELL RAILROAD CORPORATION, PETITIONERS FOR THE ALTERA-TION OF THE CROSSING AT SWAN-TON STREET, IN THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER.

To the Honorable the County Commissioners for the County of Middlesex: Represent your petitioners, the Directors of the Boston and Lowell Railroad Corporation, that a public way in the Town of Winchester, in said County, known as Swanton Street, and the right of way of the Boston and Lowell Railroad cross each other; that the Selection of the Town of Winchester, in a letter under date of May 16, 1917, a copy whereof, marked "A", is annexed to and made a part of the original petition, have requested the Boston and Lowell Railroad to make certain alterations in the bridge at said crossing; that your petitioners are of the opinion that it is necessary for the security and convenience of the public that an alteration which does not involve the abolition of a crossing at grade should be made in the said bridge.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that your Honorable Commission, after public notice, hear all the parties interested, and if it decides that such alteration is necessary, shall prescribe the manner and limits within which it shall be made and shall forthwith certify its decision to the parties and to the Public Service Commission.

Dated this 25th day of July, 1917.
DIRECTORS OF THE BOSTON &

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of West Daggett Eldredge, late of Winchester, in said County, deceased.

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for probate, by Carrie Lewis Eldredge, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her, the executrix therein named.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Pro-

PLUNDERING THE PATRIOTS.

There is a growing feeling among the people with whom we have recently come in contact, that the patriotic impulses aroused by the entrance of this country into the great world contest for democracy and human rights, are being traded upon and robbed daily by those in control of national affairs.—Congress and the departments,—especially in the necessities and comforts of life, says the Arlington Advocate. The charge would not hold that these influences are wholly to blame, but it must now be apparent to everyone that delays in legislation and manipulations winked at by those in high stations have permitted combinations of capital (they seem to be still in control) to pile price on price, fattening already bursting treasuries by trading on necessities of the people.

Repeatedly during the past two weeks well informed men have expressed to us the opinion that the delay in passing the food control bill was simply to allow these robbers to corner supplies. From a gentleman perfectly familiar with the flour business through long association with it, we have received the following, which clearly shows what the public is thinking about:

"Mr. Hoover is reported to have said that with Government fixed price of wheat at two dollars per bushel, the price of flour should not be over $12 per barrel. Five bushels of 'No. 1 hard wheat,' are required to produce a barrel of patent flour, like 'Gold Medal.' Five bushels of wheat weigh 300 pounds. A barrel of flour weighs 196 pounds. The remaining 104 pounds goes into screenings, bran, feed, middlings and low grade flour,—all of which sells for proportionate price to wheat and patents. Now these by-products will pay all expenses of milling and marketing; so that with wheat at two dollars per bushel, the patent flour should not cost over ten dollars per barrel in car lots, laid down in Boston. Saturday's Board of Trade quotations from Chicago market, give price of July wheat at $2.50 to $2.55 per bushel, and it would be no higher in Northwest milling markets, so that $12.50 to $12.75 should be the price of flour in car lots at present time."

The average price that the farmers in this country received for 1916 crop of wheat was not over $1.75 per bushel. All above that price has been middleman's speculative profit.
While Congress is trifling with that food bill, the ripening crops are being rapidly secured by speculators' selfish personal politics.

CENTRALIZATION OF POWERS

There is a strong effort being made in certain quarters towards centralization of power in state government.
Advocates of this movement paint alluring pictures of the beauties of the idea. They seek for the abolition of the governor's council, advance argument for a short ballot, wish to do away with the county commissioners and have county business run from Boston. Biennial elections is another of the centralization of power cult's pet schemes. The Gazette and Courier is not favorably inclined to centralization of power. The nearer the people the better will be the government in the long run. The people as a whole can be trusted. They make mistakes it is true but those mistakes are rectified all in good time and act as a preventative of other errors. Centralization of power takes the government further away from the people. It is all very well to say give the governor power to appoint the remainder of the state ticket, the county officers and so on, and make him responsible to the people with the recall held over his head as a cudgel to enforce the right sort of appointments, but how would it actually work out? Take the county commissioners for instance. They are a very important group of officials.
Does anybody believe that the county of Franklin would get better service than is given by Eugene B. Blake and his associates? Certainly not. Why abolish boards of men who do such good work? We venture to say that there is not a county in the Commonwealth which has not upon its board of County Commissioners at least one man of unusual ability and who is peculiarly fitted for the work. With county commissioners abolished and Boston running the county business can anyone fail to see what would result? It would simply mean more plums for political preference. Some commission would be created of men who neither knew nor cared what was done or not done in any particular county unless perhaps there was a chance to make their own jobs secure. By all means retain the county commissioners. Let the county elect them and if they do not give good service the remedy is at hand without any legislative investigation.
The voters see to it that good service is rendered and also know who are the men in the county qualified to make the best commissioners. Take the other county officers. Would the county of Franklin be better served if the governor appointed them than it now is by Messrs. John D. Bouker, Clifton L. Field, John C. Lee and Eugene A. Newcomb? It is foolish to consider such a proposition. Appointments are influenced altogether too much by policy. High public officials who have appointive powers are hounded by politicians seeking berths for favorites as pay for personal services rendered. We say keep the selection of county officials in the hands of those people whom they directly serve. The voters of Franklin and the other counties with the object lessons before them daily illustrated in state affairs entertain no desire to have their officials appointed nor their business done from Boston.
Let the people rule. [Greenfield Courier.]

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

Life, we have been assured, is dramatic, though no one, apart from revelation, knows what the climax is to be. At least it has an end to which all things tend. And growing old is simply part of the drama, marking the progress of life toward its goal. The world may be a stage, but life itself is a process, and the life of a man is but part of the general life. The whole universe is on the march, and it is no great matter that every individual should "each night pitch his moving tent a day's march nearer home." What disturbs, it must be presumed, is that as the years go by each day's march becomes shorter and more difficult as we grow weaker. But that, too, is part of life's drama or process. There is always a sort of proportion between the powers and the demands made on them. "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." There are, it is to be feared, right here in Winchester, people who are disposed to trade on the immunities which advancing age brings, and to hold themselves to a less strict accountability. There is a middle-age theory of life that is most demoralizing. To accept and even to seek exemptions is a great mistake from every point of view. That Winchesterite keeps young the longest who puts more rather than less of himself into his work each day, and acts on the theory that more rather than less is expected of him. Tennyson sums up the case, speaking for Ulysses: Though much is taken, much abides; and though

We are not now that strength which in old days Moved heaven and earth that which we are, we are—
One equal temper of heroic hearts, Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will

The Greek hero managed to unite the life of contemplation and memory with the life of action and adventure. Others, though they are not heroes, but simply plain, hard-working men, may, if they will, do the same thing. The mere attempt will prove helpful, strengthening and stimulating. That Winchesterite is surely old who has made up his mind that it is no longer worth while to try experiments.

But when does a man become old—or, perhaps better, when does he realize the fact? There can, of course, be no general answer. Few can pass from one decade into another without suspecting that they are at least in the way of ceasing to be young. Turning the 60 mark is quite an experience—and yet the half-century mile post, as one flashes by, is not without its significance. But these are mere arbitrary diversions, and may mean much or little. Perhaps it may be said that a man begins to realize some very important facts when he notes the shortening roll of his college classmates, and observes that those whose deaths are chronicled in the papers are generally younger than himself. Another symptom is the comfort which, at a certain stage in our pilgrimage, we derive from the fact that others whom we know—much older than ourselves still seem to be getting a good deal of happiness out of life, and to be strong and sturdy. And we conclude that we are not so very old after all. But we have our suspicions—else we should not indulge in such speculations or make such comparisons. Of course the really old man is the one who is proud of his great age, and boasts of it. In regard to him there can be no doubt. Nor as a rule can there be much question about the case of the man who insists that he can do as much work as he could 20 or 30 years ago. Perhaps he can, but the mere fact that he feels called on to insist that he can, seems to indicate that he is not so sure of himself as he would have us think, and that there is a doubt—or at least a suspicion of it—in his own mind. For if he was really as young as he used to be—and felt that he was—why should he find it necessary to say that he can do as much work as he used to do? His very declaration throws a cloud on his title to youth. Of him it must at least be said that he is approaching the deadline between youth or middle age. Of course attempts to hide the marks of old age are infallible proofs of a consciousness that it has been attained. Here there can be no mistake.

IRELAND—ERSKINE.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Erskine at No. 4 Linden street, Winchester, was the scene of a quiet wedding on the afternoon of Saturday, August the fourth, when Miss Margaret Erskine and Mr. James Kittle Ireland were married. The wedding was a strictly family affair. The groom was born in San Francisco. For the past five years he has been in the service of the United States, and is now a Corporal in the Marine Corps. He is stationed at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, but expects an early summons to service abroad. He wore his uniform, the sleeves showing the chevrons of his rank. He had only a furlough, lasting until Monday morning. The officiating clergyman was Rev. S. W. Adriance, who used the service of the Episcopal Church, including the giving and receiving of the marriage ring.

MRS. ANNIE L. BELCHER.

Mrs. Annie L. Belcher, wife of Charles L. Belcher of Medford and mother of Mrs. R. D. A. Thompson of Black Horse terrace, this town, died at her home last Saturday after an illness of over five months. Mrs. Thompson was an only child. Her mother had made her home in Winchester for a time and was known to a number of residents here.

The funeral services were held from the residence, No. 164 Washington street, Medford, on Monday. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

THE WINCHESTER AMBULANCE.

Why Our Boys Will Do Transport Service For a Time.

The following letter is self explanatory of the reasons why Messrs. C. N. Eaton and Charles C. Rogers, 2nd, will devote the first part of their time in France driving transport trucks while waiting for the "Winchester Ambulance":—

July 24, 1917.

Mr. C. C. Rogers,
1 Calumet road,
Winchester, Mass.

My dear Mr. Rogers:

Upon my return to the office I find record of the generosity of the people of Winchester in sending us $2,000 for an ambulance and its maintenance in the Field Service at the front in France. I need hardly tell you that we deeply appreciate so fine a tribute of friendship for our effort. As the rapid growth of the service during the past few months has meant, of course, an additional increase in the cost of maintenance, we are particularly grateful for the additional sum above the maintenance of the ambulance.

I only wish that I might tell you that this ambulance would very shortly be doing the fine part for which it is intended, but instead I have to advise you that owing to sudden and unforeseen complications, both as regards the shipment of chassis from this country and the construction of bodies in France, it will probably be several months before the Winchester ambulance will be fully equipped and sent into the field. You will realize, I am sure, how inevitable is this delay when I tell you that after using every ingenuity to secure space for fifty Ford chassis a few weeks ago, the ship on which they were being taken to France was torpedoed and sunk. I assure you we are using all energy and effort to overcome these conditions, and as the "Winchester Massachusetts" ambulance has already been reported to our Paris headquarters, it will be constructed and sent out as expeditiously as possible.

I feel sure that the donors of this ambulance will be interested to know how fine a part it is bound to ultimately achieve in the Field Service. Each of our cars, on a low average, carries ten men a day, or thirty-six hundred a year, and our experience for the past two and one-half years has proved that by the quickness and efficiency with which they get the wounded from close to the trenches to the first dressing stations, surely half that number are saved. We have since the beginning of the war carried more than half a million wounded.

France—ever quick to show appreciation—has nearly fifty times cited our sections and section leaders for distinguished service, has given to one hundred and twenty of our men, the Croix de Guerre for bravery; has conferred upon four the Medaille Militaire, the highest honor for military valor in France, and upon two the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

With remembrance always of our debt to the people of Winchester, believe me,

Sincerely yours,

Henry D. Steener,
American Representative of Field Service.

WINCHESTER TOWN TEAM HAS A FINE PITCHER.

Few pitchers in the State have anything on Gene Smith of Somerville, who is now twirling for the Winchester team, and who was at one time connected with the old Crescents of Somerville, and later saw service with the Fall River Club of the Colonial League. From 1911 to 1913, when he was with the Crescents of Somerville, he won 60 games and lost only 10.

In 1914 he joined the Fall River Club of the Colonial League, and during his stay with that club he made good without any trouble. He also played with the Taunton Club of the same league and did great work there. He was the second smallest player in the league. One who was shorter was Denny Gearin of the Pawtucket team.

During the spring of 1916 Smith was given a tryout by Danny Murphy's New Haven Club of the Eastern League, but failed to land a regular position, and returned home. He did very little pitching last summer owing to a lame arm, but is working in first-class style now.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Work on the comfort bags for the soldiers and sailors progressed rapidly at the meeting of the Union held last Friday at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, where meetings will be held every other week for the present, the next one being Friday the 17th. The alternate week will be given to the surgical dressings at the home of Mrs. Hamilton.

The goal set by the Winchester Union is $125.00 and one hundred and twenty-five comfort bags, which cost filled about a dollar apiece. The bags are made of some heavy material such as cretonne, and require a piece of cloth eight inches by twenty-two or sixteen by eleven. Anyone having pieces suitable for the bags will give real help by sending the same to Mrs. Adams, 14 Dix street, or to Mrs. Hamilton, 50 Lincoln street. A number of contributions of money and material have already been received but only a fraction of what is needed and further contributions will be very welcome, either from members or others who may wish to do their bit in extending home influences to the boys who are offering their lives to make the homes of America worth while.

James and still I was cold last night.

You know they have set all cocks in France just one hour ahead to save daylight so compare our daily schedule with your time. We wake up at 6, have setting-up drill at 6:05 and have breakfast at 6:30. This consists of coffee without sugar or milk, dry French bread and some jam. You know the plain French bread we get is quite sour tasting, nothing like your bread. At 7 we have roll call, and start either 2 1/2 hour of French drill (commands in French) or detail work such as kitchen duty, etc. Then we have a lecture on the Pierce motor trucks and Dejeune at 11:30.

Some mornings we go out for individual instruction in driving and handling trucks. Dejeune (lunch) we have boiled (cheval or beef), one dish such as macaroni or beans, bread and jam and wine or coffee. In the afternoon we drive—sometimes individual instruction and sometimes in convoys. This last means eighteen trucks divided into three "rams" of six trucks each. There are two drivers for each truck and a mechanic and lieutenant who acts as guide with each convoy.

It is quite interesting work, but you cannot conceive of the white dust. It is fierce. After a little while on the road it stops your nose and then fills your throat. I, with two Cary cousins, and a Louis Mudge from Baltimore, a Yale man (Moreland) and Ken Pote, a Harvard graduate and classmate in Tech, have one truck for instruction. The first two (Cary cousins) are Haverford College graduates and Mudge a Lehigh graduate.

We have the best Frenchman instructor of the bunch (Maurice Dutell). We fit with him and he fits with everybody on the place, so we are well fixed. He got a good shoulder of lamb for tomorrow night's dinner for us. The lamb was only killed yesterday. Also, he has fixed it so that I can get milk for the six of us at six cents a liter. I am the only one in camp of the fellows who can get it.

Father thought that there would not be much chance to spend money, but it is impossible to do without jam, chocolate and things like that. Outside of this we have to buy smokes (fierce French tobacco). I smoke quite a bit now have washing done and everything. When we take a long trip, we buy pastry at every big town we stop at.

I cannot say enough about the beautiful country and interesting villages over here. I haven't seen a bit that I haven't liked. You could spend a whole summer touring here and then want more. We have driven over roads built by the Romans and seen these very old castles and very comfortable chateaux. Every bit of the country is either fully cultivated or in perfect woodland. I am on the most interesting old farm you could imagine. It is a great big one with the central building and lawn and gardens for the owner. Then the outbuildings and stables, etc., just as you read about in stories. Every night the shepherd with his two dogs, bring in about 300 sheep, there are three peacocks (without tails), several turkeys, ducks, geese, all sorts of hens, rabbit hutches, oxen, horses and everything.

Over here you know they raise their own beef. Also I have not seen a single wooden building in this part of the country. Everything is in stone and cement; no red brick. We took one long ride from two in the afternoon till one-thirty in the morning and saw a lot of the people, country and soldiers. Honestly, I couldn't have a better vacation except for food if I paid a lot of money. You see the town and village people turn out to see us Americans and treat us fine, while they would not pay much attention to tourists.

This started, here, Friday morning, the thirteenth. They give out the mail here every night at 6:30 from the front steps of the house and I have attended every one, but have not used any Camion to bring the mail up to my tent. If you haven't written yet, please let me hear how everything is. And tell everyone you see to drop me a line. I have not heard from the States since June 20—nearly a month.

Every day there are lots of aeroplanes throbbing all through the air right over our camp. Yesterday I was standing in the courtyard and a Frenchman came shooting directly down for me and just swooped around in time to miss the tops of the buildings. Russ Potter, on account of his experience on the border, has been appointed Sergeant and so he drills us. He is very good and we have the best company in camp, at both drill and driving. We drive these big 5 ton Pierce trucks and believe me, when we ride in back, it is no soft seat. They are governed to a speed of 15 miles an hour. We take them out, have to turn them around in a narrow road, back up for a distance, turn very sharp corners, line up in a square and so forth. It is great stuff.

We have two fellows here who are a scream. They are both quite deaf and one has a slight impediment in his speech. They are both about 27 or 28, which makes them appear so much more funny. They have the whole bunch roaring at them all the time, especially when they try to turn a truck around. I am in the French army now and therefore get paid the same as a soldier (5 cents a day).

Tomorrow is the fourteenth of July, the big French National Holiday. To celebrate it, we get butter and champagne for dinner and have no work tomorrow. When we finally get out in the regular service hauling ammunition, etc., we start in the early afternoon, go and load up, wait till dark and then drive out. We get in about 2 a. m. and sleep till noon. This happens, however, only once in 3 days. We also have to oil and grease these big trucks and have them ready for inspection every day.

We had a review this morning by the commanding officer of the camp, and he complimented us, saying that we were the best company sent out of the camp. This afternoon we take a trip "en convois" to a big town where I expect to get a little pastry and fruit; something we miss very much. The camp is about 2 kilometers (a mile and one-fourth) from the little village center where we buy butter, jam and cheese. I bought a good pipe the other day and have smoked it about four times; it has made me nearly sick every time.

You know the French derive a lot of their revenue from tobacco and matches, so we only get "tobacco" and cigarettes far inferior to American. I get seven days off in Paris every three months or so, and I have heard that we get a month every year.

When we go out we carry rifles, steel shrapnel helmets and gas masks—regular soldiers. I have a kakhi uniform made in the English style. It cost $15. It is very good looking with those wide sewed leather belts with hooks and rings on the belt. We had to buy insignia and buttons (French cavalry buttons) for our uniforms and it is more expensive than you think.

I, by mistake, brought over two Durhams Duplex razors, but no new blades, and I can't get any in the surrounding towns, so will probably get a good-hollow ground. You would be surprised to know how hard it is to get milk chocolate around here. None of the stores have it, but do have the sugary chocolate.

Please let me hear quite often, and until I let you know, send thru Paris office (21 Due Raynourd, Paris, France). Also if you want me to get any souvenirs or anything over here, let me know. Since we are on camions and sometimes clean out trenches we will have a great opportunity to collect relics. Two of the fellows are going to get a full Bosche skeleton and uniform, and set it up.

We get awfully dusty and feel rotten dirty all over on our trips and then when we return we have only a cold bath by throwing basins of faucet water over each other, so we don't bother about cleanliness an awful lot. Most of the fellows have either shaven their heads or had their hair clipped off. I may in a little while.

Regards to all,
Chester.

P. S. Please remember I get your mail just about one month after you mail it so—

COUNTY COURT NEWS.

Mrs. Kate Kelley has filed a petition in the Probate Court asking to be appointed as administratrix of the estate of her husband, William Kelley, who died July 2. The estate is valued at $800, all in personal property. An heir-at-law is Jennie E. Kelley of Randolph, a daughter. The petition is returnable at East Cambridge September 11th. Attorneys Littlefield & Tilden, 1107, Old South Building, Boston, represent the petitioner.

Inventories Filed

Inventories of the following estates have been filed in the Probate Court:

Elva F. Crosby; $6,774.74; $2,274.84 in personal property and $4,500 in real estate. Susan F. Mason, $29,396; $11,221 in personal property and $28,185 in real estate. Helen F. Snow, $26,139.63; $19,414.63 in personal property and $6,725 in real estate.

GIVE A THOUGHT TO THE SCHOOLS.

Editor of the Star:

September is just ahead of us. It brings school and it calls the children from the marvelous out-doors of Winchester into crowded rooms, into conditions detrimental to physical and mental health.

In Winchester where so much time and thought are given to beautiful and healthful homes, to exquisite home surroundings, where wonderful natural features are enhanced by everything lovely in flower, tree and lawn, the visitor is entranced with beauty on every side,—until he is brought face to face with the grade school. Then he comes down from his enchanted state with a thud, and several perplexing questions quickly present themselves.

Which do the grown-ups in this town care more for, themselves or their children? Do material values over-balance spiritual? Isn't it a parent's duty to try to give his child advantages superior to his own? If he were doing this, would he not give careful thought to systems of education and to most advanced principles in school architecture? Do these school buildings reflect the civic pride of the citizens?

Suppose each father or mother in Winchester should go to the Wadleigh or Prince, or Wyman school, look it over carefully, and ask himself or herself, "How much thought have I given to this school building? Have I ever considered whether it is fitted to keep my children's bodies healthy? Are there schools in other places better adapted to this purpose? If so, have I ever seen them and compared them with our buildings? If my home showed no more thought on my part for the welfare of my family than does this school where I send my children, shouldn't I feel disgraced? If I feel so about my home, should I not feel so about the building in which my children spend so much of their time? I read with a sigh of over-crowded city schools, and yet those conditions prevail here in my own town. Am I doing anything to remedy them?"

If grade schools in Winchester were the beautiful, commodious sanitary structures that the children deserve, no one need fear undue puffing up with pride on the part of the citizens. On the contrary a sober and just feeling would prevail of having met a crying need for the betterment of the school life of the children.

PRESERVING AND COOKING OF VEGETABLES.

String Beans.

String the beans, and cut in small pieces. Put in cheese cloth bag and boil 10 minutes, then plunge into cold water. Let drip, in the sun if possible about 1/2 hour. Spread on racks, covered with cheese cloth, and dry very slowly, suspended over the stove, or placed in a very slow oven. In about 2 hours or when no water will press from the pieces, pack in paper bags or boxes, or in glass jars. Shake occasionally the first two days, then store in a warm dry place.

Left Over Beans.

Spread on piece of cheese cloth on wire cake cooler, or in a granite pan. Set on back of stove and dry slowly.

Cooking of Beans.

Soak one cup of dried beans over night in a quantity of cold water, in the morning, drain and boil rapidly, uncovered in boiling salt water until tender. 1 cup of dried beans will yield about the same quantity for serving, as 1 quart of fresh string beans.

Spinach.

Cut the leaves from the roots, wash thoroughly, and steam in a cheese cloth bag in its own juices for 10 minutes, then plunge into cold water. Drip in the bag, about 1/2 hour, to remove surface moisture. Spread on cheese cloth placed on a rack, and heat slowly to about 150 degrees then reduce the heat, the last 1/2 hour. Dry about 2 1/2 hours or until crisp. Pack in bags and hang in a warm dry place. Dandelions, or Swiss Chard may be dried by the same method.

To Cook Spinach.

Add 6 cups of cold water to 2 cups dried spinach. Let soak about 3 hours; then cook slowly until tender. Will yield about the same amount for serving as 1/2 peck of fresh spinach.

Corn.

Cook corn about 10 minutes in boiling salted water, then plunge in cold water, or use left over corn. Cut from the cob. Spread on racks covered with cheese cloth, and dry slowly in the oven, 3 or 4 hours, or until the corn will rattle when shaken. Pack in paper boxes for storage, then put in bags and hang in a dry place. Corn may be dried out 1/2 hour in oven, then placed in the

LAND COURT.

To Peter A. Brown of Lynn, in the County of Essex, and said Commonwealth, William G. Richardson of Woburn, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Mary J. Watt, of Winchester, in said County of Middlesex, Elizabeth B. Thompson of Pompey, Pillar, in the State of Montana; and to all whom it may concern, I, David J. Esquire, Judge of said Court, do hereby give notice in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake in the westerly side line of Forest street at land of Mary J. Watt, the line runs by said Mary J. Watt N. 44° 18' 54" W. 238.66 feet to a stake and N. 59° 52' 17" W. 309.90 feet to a drill hole in a stone wall at land of William G. Richardson, thence by land of said William G. Richardson N. 35° 14' 37" E. 41.75 feet to drill hole in a stone wall and S. 23° 19' 22" E. 256.50 feet to stake at land of Elizabeth B. Thompson, thence by land of said Elizabeth B. Thompson S. 45° 02' 22" E. 22.45 feet to a drill hole in a stone wall S. 74° 54' 57" E. 135.80 feet to a stake, and S. 89° 21' 33" E. 215.08 feet to a drill hole in the westerly side line of Forest street, said drill hole being S. 38° 15' 40" W. 36.37 feet distant from a stone bound in the westerly side line of Forest street, thence by the said westerly side line of Forest street S. 36° 16' 40" W. 238.66 feet to a stone bound, and S. 44° 38' 40" W. 68.71 feet to a stake at the point of beginning, and containing 257,952 square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-seventh day of August A. D. 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this thirty-first day of July in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen.

SECOND DRAFT CALLED.

More Men To Appear Before Exemption Board for Examination.

The Exemption Board at Arlington issued a second call in the Military Draft yesterday, 178 more men being called out for examination. Of this number 63 are from this town. The list contains several prominent and well known young men of this town. The men will appear at Arlington on Monday and Tuesday, the first half of 89 on Monday and the second half on the latter day.

123 Now Drafted

An additional list of decisions on exemption claims was given out by the Board yesterday, which added to the list given out Monday makes a total of 123 men who have been passed as satisfactory for service. This second list contained the names of 16 men, five of whom were from this town. To make the required Draft of 136, 13 more men must be secured. The Board has still several names in the first Draft to act upon with regard to exemption claims.

The second draft is as follows:

TROTT—GRUNDRELL.

Mr. Edgar Payson Trott of this town and Miss Ruth Margaret Grundrell of Roxbury were quietly married on Wednesday evening at five o'clock at the residence of Mrs. William Elliot, 24 Grove street, sister of the groom. The ceremony was private and was performed by Rev. S. Winchester Adriance.

Mr. Trott received his commission as Captain in the Engineers Corps last week and is to be stationed at Ayer for the present. He is a well known member of the Winchester Boat Club and before entering upon Army training was in the employ of the Stone & Webster Co.

The couple left after the ceremony on a trip to the Rangeley Lakes.

COUNSEL DUTCH PROTESTS.

Urges Public Service Commission To Take Action in Matter of Through Cars.

As a response to the recent hearing on through cars to Harvard Square, concerning which Winchester residents have expressed much criticism, Town Counsel Charles F. Dutch has submitted the following remonstrance on behalf of the Town and at the request of the Selectmen.

The Public Service Commission,
1 Beacon street,
Boston, Mass.

Re Petition of Bay State St. Railway Co. to Postpone Construction of Location in Arlington.

Dear Sirs:—

I submit this remonstrance on behalf of the Town of Winchester at the request of the Board of Selectmen against the granting of the Company's petition.

After being favorably passed upon by public officials for several years, the request for through service between the Companies at Arlington was finally granted by an order of your Commission May 18, 1917. This order was a mandate to each of the companies. In view of the previous delay, neither company should have permitted further delay, but, on the other hand, particularly in view of the steel market should have ordered the necessary materials forthwith. We and you had a right to assume that they would do so. Engineer Hayes expressed to me his opinion that they would not seek delay.

After two months the Bay State has the effrontery to come to you and confess that it has not ordered the necessary materials and it desires a year of delay. The testimony shows that its chief reason is the rise in prices. It failed to disclose the fact that considerable of the rise has taken place since May 18th.

The Town of Winchester is on record as taking the position that, while it believed the Company was not operating efficiently and not making use of all sources of income, nevertheless, if it was proved necessary, our people would pay an extra cent for the sake of getting decent service. We have done so, but have not received better service. The Company is losing income every day because of poor, inadequate service. As a public service company, it is bound, so long as it holds its franchise, to serve the public. Your order did not call for a luxury. It did not call for a non-productive convenience. It called for a comparatively small bit of construction which is essential to decent transportation facilities on a through route, suffering in patronage for the lack of such facilities, and which is, therefore, certain to result in greater revenue.

We, therefore, submit that the Company has no right to delay further this constructive work. Market and transportation conditions are such now that with all possible despatch exercised by both Companies, through service will not in fact be enjoyed except after considerable further delay. This is now unavoidable, but we protest strongly against the granting of the petition and, furthermore, request that a supplementary order be issued requiring the Companies to proceed forthwith to comply with the order of May 18th.

Respectfully submitted,
Town Counsel.

MILITARY INFORMATION.

A copy of the "National Service Handbook," issued by the Committee on Public Information at Washington has been received at this office and may be consulted by any residents desiring information relative to military matters. The book is published for the purpose of furnishing reliable information on all branches of service, military and non-military.

WANTED.

Marston, 30 Everett avenue. Tel. 590, or telephone any of the following and they will be called for. Mrs. A. T. Hunnewell, Tel. 830; Mrs. W. M. Weston, Tel. 288-M; Mrs. F. L. Avery, Tel. 948-M; Mrs. F. E. Hovey, Tel. 155-R.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Considerable Business Transacted By the Board This Week.

August 13, 1917.

The Board met at 7.30 p. m., all present.

In the absence of Mr. Metcalf, Mr. Jewett was elected temporary chairman of the Board.

Fire Department, Assistant Chief: John J. Gorman, nominated August 6, 1917, was appointed Assistant Chief of the Fire Department.

Town Hall Building, Steam Boiler: A report was received from the chief inspector of the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation Limited, in regard to the steam boiler in the Town Hall building. In the report the company suggest that certain repairs be made to the steam boiler. This matter was referred to Mr. Laraway of the Board.

Knights of Columbus: A request was received from Mrs. William H. Vayo of 13 Arthur street for a permit for a Tag Day on Tuesday, August 21st, in aid of the Knights of Columbus War Fund. The Board voted to grant the Knights of Columbus permission to have this Tag Day.

Town Hall Engagements, 1917: The Board voted to grant a committee of Winchester women the use of the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, the 21st of August, for the purpose of conducting an entertainment, whist and dancing party in aid of the Knights of Columbus War Fund.

Gardens: A letter was received from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission asking the Board to inform the people of Winchester through the local newspaper that the Commission will send, free of charge, to any citizens, a manual on Home Canning and a manual on Home Drying of vegetables and fruits, on receipt of a two-cent stamp for each.

Through Car Service to Harvard Square: A copy was received from the Town Counsel of a remonstrance which he sent to the Public Service Commission at the request of the Board of Selectmen against the granting of any further delay in the matter of through car service to Harvard Square.

Bay State Street Railway Company, appeared before the Board in regard to the relocation of tracks on Forest street.

Ordered, that the petition be granted, subject to all the conditions of the original grant of location, subject to the general provisions of law applicable thereto.

Sidewalk Pumps: Mr. Curtis Nash appeared before the Board in regard to the petition of the Oscar Heitler Company for permission to install a gasoline tank and operate a sidewalk pump at 536 Main street. Mr. Heitler was also present. At its meeting July 9, 1917, the Board voted not to grant this petition. On the motion of Mr. Laraway, the Board voted that the Board's vote of July 9, refusing this petition of Mr. Heitler's, be reconsidered at the next meeting when all members of the Board are present.

Swanton Street Bridge: A notice was received from the County Commissioners of a hearing to be held in the Selectmen's Room, Town Hall, Winchester, on Wednesday, the 19th day of September, 1917, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon in regard to certain alterations which the directors of the Boston & Lowell Railroad Corporation wish to make at the request of the Board of Selectmen.

Glengarry Road and Grassmere Avenue: A report was received from the Town Engineer in regard to the petition of Mr. D. W. Pratt, acting for Mr. William Firth, for the acceptance by the Town as public ways, two private ways known as Glengarry road and Grassmere avenue. This matter was referred to the next meeting of the Board when all members are present.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

The Goodyear Rubber Co. team will play here tomorrow. This is a return game and as we have a victory over them earlier in the season they are out to win. Since playing us before they have been greatly strengthened and have played in Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut against the strongest teams in these States. They also played against the Minute Boys at Lexington and wiped up the field with them, winning 8 to 0. Chester Arthur will pitch Saturday and as he has been going like Walter Johnson, Winchester has its work cut out in advance.

BASEBALL.

Winchester Shuts Out Saugus in a Slow Game.

Mr. Edward P. McKenzie has been appointed Base Ball Editor for the STAR. Mr. McKenzie's appointment is wholly independent of the management of any local teams and he is not connected with them in any way, his writing being expressly for the STAR and his criticism unbiased.

For several years past Mr. McKenzie has written base ball news for this paper, a part of the time he being connected with the management of the local team. Feeling that he was not in accord with the management of the team this year and that perhaps his base ball news was not thoroughly acceptable to all concerned, he made the statement last week that unless request was made to the contrary, he would discontinue his notes and base ball articles.

We are pleased to record that this statement has resulted in a storm of protest, not only many of the prominent base ball fans, but numerous interested residents, taking pains to voice their disappointment at his retirement.

Mr. McKenzie has been reluctant to again take up the work, but when shown the communications requesting his continuance and the many expressions of satisfaction in his articles, he has agreed to continue at the request of the Editor.

His article on last Saturday's game follows:

By "Mack"

In one of the sleepiest games of the season Winchester won from Saugus Saturday, 4 to 0. This team came here with a fine advance reputation, but must have left the greater part of it in Saugus, or lost it on the way up. Outside of the battery and second baseman there did not seem to be much to the team. The manager said two of his best players failed to show up, and as one alibi is as good as another when you lose, we will have to accept him. They have had a fairly good record up to the present time, playing a 4 to 2 game with Marblehead and beating the strong Cornets of Lynn. But without any exaggeration they were the worst appearing "bunch" that has appeared on Manchester Field this season. It seemed as though they went through every ash can in Saugus to get a uniform. This might do down at the Saugus Navy Yard, but they should not be allowed to offend the "aesthetic" taste of Winchester "Fandom." "Oh, sit down Bill, you said enough." Well, outside of what I have written about them they were all right. Read the notes for further particulars.

Notes

Now that the "fans" and the STAR have decided that we can still write baseball without any official censoring, we will proceed on the even tenor of our way.

The day was ideal for baseball.

"WINCHESTER DAY."

K. of C. to Have Big Event for War Fund.

Preparations are rapidly assuming shape for "Winchester Day," the big event to be held here on Tuesday next, August 21, for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus war fund. Under the chairmanship of Miss Elizabeth T. Cullen, who heads the general committee, it is planned to make the event one of the biggest in years, and to turn over to the national committee a sum which will show without doubt that the Winchester members of the order are behind them and are doing their full share towards the success of the enterprise.

As now outlined there will be a "tag day" all day, all over town, the tags to be sold by High School girls. The concert and dance will be given in the Town Hall in the evening and will be the biggest thing in town of the summer.

The large hall is to be given over to dancing, with music by a well known orchestra which has volunteered its services and which will be assisted by professional talent. The whist is to be held in the small hall with prizes for all.

All kinds of novelties will be held in connection with the evening's program, they being of interest to both young and old.

The following will head the various committees: General Chairman, Miss Elizabeth T. Cullen; novelties, Mrs. John M. McCarron; refreshments and tag day, Mrs. William Vayo; soliciting, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, tickets, Mrs. Thomas Barrett.

SCHOOL GARDEN CELEBRATION AT LEXINGTON PARK.

The automobile rides which were promised by the Mothers' Association to Winchester boys and girls who had the "First Prize Gardens" last year, will be given Wednesday, Aug. 22nd, and will include the School Garden Celebration at Lexington on that day. The program at Lexington Park will open at 10 o'clock a. m., with a talk to School Gardeners by George H. Farley, director of the work in this State. Afterwards there will be pig and poultry judging contests, canning demonstrations, athletic sports and a general good time, followed by a basket lunch which each member of the party is expected to bring. Since some of the prize winners are out of town at present, those who are here and can take the ride on next Wednesday should send their names at once to Mrs. Woodside, 30 Lebanon street, in order that enough automobiles may be provided. The party will leave the Winchester Town Hall at 9.15 a. m. sharp.

LETTER FROM ERNEST POLLEY.

July 31, 1917.

Editor of the Star: We enjoy the STAR even more since coming to Alaska, than we did in Winchester. We are enjoying the sort of weather you likely wish for at this time of year. The registration period is now on in Alaska, and by January conscription will begin. Several men have already gone from Juneau into the various branches of the service.

We are all enjoying the best of health and have been on two fishing trips this month. The middle of August the season opens for deer and I expect to have a few days camping. I have just been looking for an article I clipped from the paper a few days ago, but am unable to find it. It was an item telling of the first potatoes of the season in Juneau, so you see the climate is a little in advance of the New England climate.

Remember me to all my old friends, I am

Ernest M. Polley.

STATE GUARDS TO TRY CAMP LIFE.

It is reported that the State Guards will go on a camping trip next week to aid in getting them into condition. Leaving town Saturday, they will march to Wakefield, where they will engage in maneuvers and rifle practice and go into camp, returning Sunday night.

During the twenty-four hours from 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, four babies were born at the Winchester Hospital. These, together with the one born last week, make a total of five youngsters now at the Hospital.

COMING EVENTS.

Dates That Should be Remembered When Making Engagements.

Aug. 18, Saturday. Winchester Country Club; four ball match.

Aug. 18, Saturday. Base ball on Manchester Field at 2.30. Winchester vs Goodyear Rubber Co.

Aug. 21, Tuesday. Whist and dance in Town Hall for the Knights of Columbus War Fund.

Aug. 24, Friday. Have flowers at the Winchester Station before 9 a. m., to be sent to Boston for distribution in the North End.

Aug. 26, Sunday afternoon. Concert at Winchester Boat Club.

TAX RATE $19.10.

The Board of Assessors announced this morning that Winchester's tax rate of 1917 would be $19.10.

FREDERICK W. SANDS.

Body of Winchester Man Found in Newport Harbor.

The body of Frederick W. Sands of this town was found floating in Newport Harbor last Friday. The young man had been on his vacation and how he came to be drowned is a mystery, although it has now been decided that his death was due to an accident.

Mr. Sands was 33 years of age and had passed practically his whole life in this town, having graduated from the Winchester schools. He was born in St. Johns, N. B., his parents being William and Margaret (Fletcher) Sands.

Upon leaving school he secured employment with the hardware firm of Dodge-Haley Co. of Boston, with whom he had been associated as bookkeeper for the past 17 years. He leaves a father and one sister, Miss Jennie Sands of the Bowser & Bancroft dry goods store.

He was of a quiet disposition and was loved by all who knew him.

The remains were taken in charge by undertaker Kelley and brought to Winchester, and private services were held at the residence, 711 Main street, Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. Winchester Adriance. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

CHANCE FOR GAME WITH LEXINGTON.

If the base ball enthusiasts so desire, Winchester may still have another chance to meet the Lexington Minute Men in a match, for Mr. J. Willard Hayden, Jr. manager of that team, has informed us that after the close of his season he will probably play some games away from home.

The Lexington season closes Labor Day. Already the Minute Men have received a number of invitations to play at neighboring places, and they have accepted a game at Marblehead on Sept. 8th.

Should Winchester desire to have the Minute Men come here for a game at the close of the season, no doubt it could be so arranged.

STATE GUARDS WILL TRAIN DRAFTED MEN.

Men who have been called to the United States Service, and who will be drawn by Sept. 5th, or later, can receive preliminary training through the courtesy of the Winchester Home Guards.

Capt. Tompkins, at the request of Governor McCall, has offered the services of the Home Guards and will have instructors at the Town Hall Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week. Each man should avail himself of this opportunity in order to be in as good shape as possible.

Anyone desiring to receive this training will kindly notify Capt. Maurice C. Tompkins, 136 Federal street, Boston, Mass.

Winchester Public Safety Com.

His Ambition.

"I'll be glad when I get big enough to wash my own face," said little Bobby, as his mother finished the operation. "Why so, dear?" she asked. "Cause then I won't wash it," he replied.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

From the days of the cave men people have moralized and sermonized over the commonest phenomenon that life presents—unless it be birth or death—namely, growing old. The subject is interesting nevertheless. For though the experience is shared by all, it is new to each one who participates in it. The fact that every one that ever lived was born does not make the birth of the particular individual less important and marvelous to him. It is so with death. Nothing is more natural—nothing so inevitable. Those Winchesterites who remember their Shakespeare will recall the discussion of the subject in "Hamlet." The queen mother says:

Thou know 'tis common: all that lives must die.

Passing through nature to eternity.

Here is the old commonplace with which we are so familiar. "Ay, madam," Hamlet replies, "it is common." Surely, but what of it? Such miserable consolation never lightened the burden of any griever and bereaved soul. For all have "that within which passeth show." Men easily think of the death of others, but it is hard for them to realize that they themselves are mortal. Others lose friends and relatives everyday, but it is by no means easy for any individual to think of himself as likely to suffer such a catastrophe. So though we may say of growing old that "tis common," we do not thereby lessen the solemnity of the experience in the life of any individual. Nor does it matter that there is not a time when a man is not growing old. The thing is important and impressive only when he begins to realize it. And this is impossible till time begins to "rattle," and the years are felt at least something of a burden. Yet it is, after all, not the fact that is important but rather the attitude of the man toward it. We may face the thing without bravado or self-deception, and yet with a cheerful courage, resigning only such part of life and its activities as one cannot retain with dignity. Nothing is gained by pretending to be young when one is, as a matter of fact, old. That is a species of graveyard whistling. No good can come of it.

In this case, as in all other cases, The Spectator would point out, much depends on personality. Some people seem always—perhaps even to themselves—to be old. And we have all known young old men. Those Winchesterites who have any philosophy get much consolation out of the fact that the evil of advancing years—and it is not wholly an evil—is one for which they are not responsible, and which they cannot help. Out of such reflections as these is born at least a spirit of resignation—which is no mean stay. There is no weakness in being resigned to an unescapable fate. Indeed, only strong natures can develop that frame of mind. But it is better to see the good in evil, and to make the most of it. The difference between a little in France and the battle of life is that the latter must always, as far as this world is concerned, issue in defeat. But even so there may be a triumph—that which crowns a clean and honorable life. Men have fought gallantly on the battlefield even though they knew that there was no possibility of victory, and that death was almost certainly their portion. It may be so in the wars of peace. It is within the power of any man to strike his flag gallantly. The thing is not easy, but it is not beyond human capacity. It is well to think of life occasionally from this point of view. In a sense no man who does his duty can be defeated, and he can, in spite of advancing years and increasingly felt weakness, keep up the fight to the last. To fail to do this is to fail in duty—and that indeed is defeat. But nothing else is. Men may, and perhaps it may be said that they as a rule do grow wiser as they grow older. This will be admitted even by those who resent the attempt to find compensations in what they regard as an evil, if not a curse—old age, and the consciousness of it. There are compensations, and this surely is one of them. Whatever comfort a man can get out of it he is fairly entitled to. We are all conscripted, and in this case there are no exemptions.

The Spectator.

IS ENGAGED TO A DARTMOUTH '14 MAN.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Davis Hall of Winter Hill, Somerville, of the engagement of their daughter, Marion, to Theodore Main, Dartmouth, 1914, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Main of Winchester. Mr. Main is in the Quartermaster's Corps and is stationed at Charlotte, N. C.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

Editor of the Star:

At first thought it may seem a bit early to bring up a matter which is not to be passed upon for two months and a half; but when we consider the importance of the subject, its far-reaching consequences, the more or less permanent effect of whatever decision is made November 6th, and the need of acting only upon the fullest knowledge and after the most careful deliberation, the time may really be all too short.

First of all, though it may not be of any special moment, let me make my own position clear. My attitude is as formerly: favorable to certain modifications in our form of town government, but emphatically opposed to the radical and sweeping changes which this Act contemplates; and believing, as I do, that the defects of the measure outweigh its merits, and as the Act must be accepted or rejected as a whole, it should, in my opinion, be defeated. If, however, it is approved by the voters in November, then, I am equally sure, we ought, all of us, to contribute each his part toward making its operation successful. The furthering of the welfare of the Town should prevail over the carrying out of the ideas of any individual.

In order to act wisely and correctly, we must be provided with all available information and arguments; and primarily we ought to be informed why there is a necessity for a change anyway, and especially such a wholesale change in our organization. If there is no convincing reason for overturning the methods and practices of generations, the Act deserves to be rejected on that ground. If, on the other hand, investigation has shown the desirability of a new order of things, then we may, secondly, consider whether the plan submitted is likely to accomplish the end sought.

The original Committee of Fifteen was in existence for nearly two years; it may be assumed in that time to have made a study of the actual workings of our existing form of government in recent years. We, the voters of the town, who are to vote yes or no in November, can reach a more intelligent decision if we have laid before us a summary of what the Committee found out, what it discovered in the shape of incompetency and inefficiency, wastefulness and extravagance, or the opposite.

Incidentally we might like to be informed as to how thoroughly the Committee studied the various departments. There are a dozen lines along which such investigations can be made; I may be allowed to inquire concerning one or two.

Did the Committee learn how much cooperation there is already between different departments in the making of purchases, thus utilizing the supposed advantages of concentration in buying claimed for town managers?

Did it find out to what extent the existing boards secure bids for the furnishing of supplies, so that when for example, two members of that committee were chosen selectmen, they would have known of contracts that existed and could take advantage of those contracts, and not purchase elsewhere at considerably higher prices?

In other words, what can the Committee lay before us in the way of actual facts throwing light upon the question of the need of a change in the form of our town government? It is essential that we be provided with our information early, in order to afford ample opportunity to weigh and consider, and to vote only after careful thought.

The Town Government Plan is so thorough-going in its provisions and possibilities, that it deserves to be accepted or rejected on its merits, and not win or lose through impulse, or insufficient discussion and deliberation.

The specific provisions of the Act merit careful investigation; but in the meantime the original Committee of Fifteen, or its successor, the Committee of Five, can render a real service by informing us why there is need of a change.

Charles F. A. Currier.

FOR SECOND PLATTSBURG CAMP.

THE OPEN-AIR SCHOOL ROOM.

Editor of the Star:

If open-air school rooms are of benefit to delicate children, why would they not be of benefit to strong children? If close-air school rooms are unwholesome for delicate children, why would they not be unwholesome for strong children? Or are close-air school rooms bad for delicate children but good for strong children? If they are not good for strong children, then why do we put children of any kind into them, especially since so many children are compelled to sit together in the close-air room?

Since the difference between a close-air and an open-air school room is simply a matter of swinging the window sash in the center; and all windows could be swung thus at small expense, why not have all the schools open-air instead of close-air schools?

STATE GUARDS READY.

The Winchester State Guards were invited to take part in the parade and farewell to Co. G at Woburn on Wednesday forenoon and planned to participate, but on Tuesday night word was received that Co. G would remain in camp until further orders. As many of the men as could be reached by telephone were informed by the officers of the change, but a number appeared in uniform Wednesday morning prepared to march. It is not yet known when Co. G will leave, but arrangements have been made to sound the fire alarm when such orders are received. Meanwhile the plans made by Mayor Gray and patriotic citizens of Woburn to send the boys off with a celebration are indefinitely postponed.

HAS RESIGNED.

Mr. Frank MacGillivray who has managed the great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Store, has resigned his position. ## ATTRACTIVE BILL AT WOBURN THEATRE.

Two of the most distinguished stars of the photo-dramatic stage, Kathlyn Williams and Theodore Roberts, will be seen at the Woburn Theatre next Monday and Tuesday in the Lasky-Paramount production of Beulah M. Dix's thrilling story, "The Cost of Hatred," which was produced under the direction of George Melford.

In her recent Morosco-Paramount productions, Kathlyn Williams has established herself as one of the foremost dramatic artists in the country. Co-starring as she is with Theodore Roberts, it is felt that this combination will prove most popular.

Theodore Roberts has been hailed as a pastmaster in villainy, although he redeemed himself as the kind Pudd'nhead Wilson, and the lovable American Consul, in "The Cost of Hatred."

The story of "The Cost of Hatred" has to do with Sarita and Justus Graves. Graves, a stern, harsh man, seeing his wife, Elsie, in the arms of Robert Amory, shoots Amory and flees with his little daughter, Sarita, to Mexico.

Miss Williams has two unique roles in this thrilling drama: at first she is seen as Elsie Graves, the mother, and later as the charming young Sarita Graves, the daughter. Supporting Miss Williams and Mr. Roberts in the cast are Tom Forman, J. W. Johnston, Jack Holt, Charles Ogle, H. B. Carpenter, and others.

Elliott Dexter plays the part of a young doctor in support of Blanche Sweet in the Lasky-Paramount adaptation of F. Hopkinson Smith's story, "The Tides of Barnegat," which will be seen at the Woburn Theatre on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 24 and 25.

As the young doctor, Mr. Dexter is suddenly called upon to resuscitate a drowning child, who, in this case, is no other than Little Billy Jacobs. The scene was taken on location and there was no opportunity to call in a physician to advise Dexter how it was done. Quickly it occurred to Dexter that in the Paramount Pictograph he had seen a motion picture showing how persons who were nearly drowned were brought back to life. This was impressed upon his mind so vividly that he followed the instructions as they were shown on the screen, several months before, and when the picture was displayed it was stated by a physician that Mr. Dexter's reviving methods were absolutely correct.

Others in the cast are Tom Forman, Harrison Ford, Lillian Leighton, Norma Nichols and Walter Rogers.

HIGH TAX RATE.

Editor of the Star:

After reading the STAR last week the readers received their first news in regard to the increase of about two dollars on every thousand. Some increase, considering the valuation for a Town like Winchester. I have done business in this Town from 1889 to the present time. Early last spring I submitted a proposal to the Town officials to do all the blacksmith work for the sum of one thousand (1,000) dollars. This was to furnish stock and labor. After waiting some little time, to my surprise, they hired a blacksmith and paid him twenty-one (21) dollars per week, or one thousand and eighty-two (1,082) dollars per year, adding the stock, say four hundred (400) dollars, making a total of about fifteen hundred (1,500) dollars. If this is a sample to go by, do you wonder at an increase of from two to four dollars for 1918 in your taxes.

BASEBALL.

but why the players on both sides should act so sleepy was a mystery to the spectators on the field.

The real live men on either side were Muller and Dawson, the battery for Saugus, who without question put up the best exhibition of battery work seen here this season.

Muller is the old General Electric twirler, and what he does not know about pitching is not worth knowing. He has a good head, a fine change of pace, and watches the bases closely, and is the best hitter on the team.

Dawson, his partner, is also an old General Electric player, and one of the snappiest catchers in the semi-pro ranks, as his exhibition Saturday proved. Now when you tell your story about these two players it tells all there is about Saugus.

At short Winchester had a new player, Ed Duffy of Boston College. He played with the Riversides in their game against Winchester, and put up a good game Saturday.

The tall young player whom a great many on the field did not recognize when he started off at first base, was Goldsmith, the old Winchester High pitcher and first baseman. While "Goldie" was a little rusty, he put up a good game and his one error did no damage.

Dickerman notified the management at 2 o'clock that owing to illness he could not come.

Smith seems to get better every game he pitches, and 9 and 10 strikeouts to every game proves it. Bill Coady told the writer that Smith is about as good as they make them.

Joe Fahey, pitching for the Converse Rubber Co., beat Arlington 3 to 1. Joe got 16 strikeouts and Flinn 11. This Converse team seems to be able to hand any of the teams around a "trimming". For particulars ask Lexington.

Wakefield and Pere Marquette put up a great game Saturday. Wakefield winning 2 to 1. Pere Marquette pulling off a triple play, something unusual for a semi-pro team. Wakefield was booked to play Peabody, but owing to financial difficulties, Peabody canceled the game.

"Charlie" Flaherty is catching fine ball for Wakefield, and he told the writer that Waite, who formerly covered second for Winchester, is putting up a "slashing" game for Pere Marquette. Waite is now playing third, his regular position, with the best results. Murray is at short.

Pere Marquette is anxious to play here, but at the time they were talking to Manager LeDuc they were looking for a $30 guarantee, and that is out of the question. As an attraction they are worth about half that amount and now that they have lost McMahon they will probably play for less.

Manchester beat the United Shoe Co. 1 to 0, a home run in the 9th with 2 down winning the game. McMahon and Meehan were the battery for Manchester, and they also had three other old Woburn players: Ford at short, Holt at third, and Connors in the outfield.

Marblehead beat the Sanford, Me., team, but I did not get the score. Leland is no longer playing there as he has been drafted, together with O'Mara, the old Tufts pitcher.

The Riversides and St. John's Catholic Club are playing a series for the Championship of Cambridge, and St. John won the first game Saturday 2 to 1.

Some team from Woburn played at Maynard Saturday and were beaten. Briggs and Doherty were the battery for Woburn. But I could not get a line on the rest of the team.

The Minute Boys and some team from Lowell had an argument Saturday, with the Lowell team leaving the field and forfeiting the game to Lexington, 9 to 0. At the time they quit, it was tied 2 to 2. This is the second time this season a ball team has quit the field at Lexington, due to a ruling of the umpire, Arlington being the team on the other occasion, although from what I saw from witnesses last Saturday the Lowell crowd were in wrong. Afternoon, as they started to "kick" from the time the first ball was pitched. The only way to put this class of managers out of business is to refuse to give them a game and it would soon put an end to taking teams from the field.

Wollaston has secured the services of Henry Mathews for the balance of the season and last Saturday he pitched a tie game for them against the Standish Club of Dorchester at the Fore River field day.

As there has been considerable discussion during the season about Mathews' pitching ability, one crowd of "fans" claiming one thing and the other crowd claiming something else, the writer without any personal feeling in the matter would suggest that Manager LeDuc book up a game with this team at an early date and give each crowd a chance to "root", and see for themselves what kind of a team Wollaston has got. It would prove a good attraction anyway.

Remington Clark is pitching great ball during the summer at Casco, Me. There is a city series on at Lewiston, and last Saturday he pitched his team to victory, getting 18 strikeouts. Since leaving Winchester he has put on 10 or 12 pounds in weight, and with his natural ability as a pitcher, he is going great. The writer has had it on good authority that one of the Eastern League teams was more than anxious to get him to sign up, but as he will enter Amherst this fall he could not accept, besides it is doubtful about his caring to play professional ball.

WINCHESTER BOYS RECEIVED COMMISSIONS.

In the list of Plattsburg men who received commissions, given out Saturday, the names of several Winchester men appear. Norman T. Hunnewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Hunnewell of Ravenscroft road, received his commission as 2nd Lieut. in Battery 3, 1st Regt. Charles W. Morrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. William Morrill of Rangeley, was commissioned as Lieutenant in the Quartermaster's Corps; Charles D. Case of Wedgemere avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Case, who was Captain of Co. D of the Harvard regiment, and who left college in May to attend the Plattsburg Camp, received his commission as Captain; Robert M. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hamilton of Lincoln street, was commissioned 2nd Lieut. in the Quartermaster's Corps, 1st Conn. Infantry. This young man saw service at the Border and had been assigned to give instructions in marksmanship at Plattsburg.

Another man to receive a commission as Second Lieutenant in the Officer's Reserve Corps at the Leon Springs, Texas, Training Camp, was Arthur Warren Mudge, Jr., of this town. He has been assigned to duty with the Regular Army.

Among the students who studied at Washington at the American University engineering training camp, who have been awarded commissions, is Edgar P. Trott, who will hereafter be a Captain.

WINCHESTER BOY AT ANNAPOLIS.

Joseph R. Barbaro, son of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Barbaro of 43 Oak street, has passed his physical examination and was this week appointed to the naval academy at Annapolis. In the recent competitive examination held in this District for the appointment to the academy Barbaro was an alternate, Edward A. Neiley of Wolcott road being the principal. Neiley failed to pass the physical examination owing to a bad arm, which he had the misfortune to break some time ago. Following this he dislocated the elbow and splintered the bone.

Mr. Barbaro graduated from the Winchester High School this year. He was a member of the class base ball and basket ball teams and played on the school basket ball team, and was class prophet. He went to Annapolis Thursday and took his examination Friday, remaining at the academy.

ALONZO F. WOODSIDE GIVEN A SILK FLAG.

Alonzo F. Woodside, superintendent of general delivery in the Boston post office, who is going to the second Plattsburg camp Tuesday, has been presented with a silk flag by the employees in the engineering division. The presentation was made by Major Charles H. Alameda, an old Grand Army man. Mr. Woodside has seen service in the Coast Artillery, and resides on Lebanon street.

Even if the United States has not entered the war, you are surely paying war prices. And probably more later.

Did you notice that your dark bread during the wheatless week cost you any less than the wheat bread?

The United States has had thirty-eight vessels sunk by the Germans.
And yet many people are ignorant of the fact that we are really at war with Germany.

Now is the time to make sauerkraut, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Yes, but that is a German dish, and it will prove unpopular with many Americans. Nevertheless, pass up your plate for a second helping.

Nineteen trolley passengers were killed and between 40 and 50 injured when two cars came together at North Branford, Conn., Monday afternoon at a high rate of speed on the Shore Line Electric Railway.
Both cars were crowded. The cause of the terrible accident was a motor-man trying to steal a switch.

The success of the community market in a number nearby towns and cities is a notable incident in these days of requested economy and high prices. Several of our residents have been heard to express a desire to see the idea tried out in Winchester. With our numerous farms the scheme might prove a success. Have we a committee to take charge of the matter?

Large numbers of draft registrants, included in the first call, who have been discharged for physical defects will be re-examined by local boards, and many will be accepted for the new national army under the new physical rulings. The early strict interpretations of many of the physical standards caused the boards to reject many physically fit in every way except for minor teeth conditions.

One way has been found by soldiers and sailors to get prohibited liquor. At Nantasket beach they put on bathing suits which enabled them to get all the liquor they wanted. The chief of police at Hull saw through the move and promptly prohibited the sale of liquor to all bathing-suit patrons. The liquor sellers didn't like this suppression of the liquor, but they had to do as the police ordered.

An interesting placard, gratefully acknowledged by many teamsters is that which has been recently placed at the residence of Mr. Harrison Parker on Main street announcing that water for horses can be obtained at the side of the house.
With the removal of the last horse trough in town at the corner of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets a few weeks ago, teamsters fare pretty badly when passing through Winchester.

A Paris newspaper suggests that the United States prohibit the throwing of rice at weddings as a means of food economy. It estimates that five pounds are thrown at every marriage, totalling thousands of tons wasted yearly, enough to feed all the refugees here. This gested a substitute. Old shoes and slippers have hard corners, and besides, but little is left after we get through with our footwear these days.

It is now more than two months since the Constitutional Convention was first called to order, and yet little has been really accomplished regarding the important matters before it. It will be necessary to "speed up" if the convention's work is to be finished before the November election. Already there is talk of a special election, but this would not result in a true consensus of opinion, as many will not take the trouble to vote. The Convention's recommendations should be acted upon at the November election when practically three-fourths of the voters go to the polls.

Mr. Hoover will fight to the finish on speculators and profiteers in wheat and flour by the food administration in a campaign to cut down the high cost of living. That much has been made clear in an announcement issued by Herbert C.
Hoover, in whom the President has placed practically unlimited power in this phase of the war program.
Wheatless week proved a money-maker for the bakers, who charged about double what they ought to for rye, graham and other dark bread. It was a species of robbery, but Mr. Hoover, it is to be hoped, will make such a condition impossible again.

In considering the attendance at the playground this summer it is said that several factors tend to detract from its popularity and use by the children. Some residents feel that its location on Manchester Field might be improved. The children who attend it are not those who live in the vicinity, but mostly come from a fairly long distance. In this connection it has been suggested that its location might prove more useful to the town as a whole if it were located in the vicinity of the Chapin School. The removal of the playground to the lower end of the field is also said to detract from its former attendance, some of the children staying away rather than walk the half-mile in the hot sun.
Another factor is its uninviting appearance, the long grass and patches of gravel river bed dredged up on the bank not furnishing a particularly attractive spot, although the pine trees and other surroundings seem very suitable. As regards its location on Manchester Field it appears much more desirable than the former site in the vicinity of the base ball diamond with its attending dangers, but in considering its location south of the centre, it would seem that a change might be made to advantage in moving it to a location nearer the homes of the children it is designed to benefit.

A visit to the playground on Manchester Field this week found eight boys playing base ball and twelve small girls employed at knitting or basket making under the direction of the instructor, Mr. Glennon, and his assistant, Miss Trott.
From observation, without recorded attendance figures, it appears that the attendance at the playground has fallen off considerably over former years. At the same time a visit to Wedge Pond gave a count of 37 boys and 4 girls in the water at various places. This does not include the boys who were dressed and on the shore. As this comparison was taken during the average summer weather and not on any especially warm day, it may be taken as an average in both instances. The figures provide considerable food for thought in the minds of those interested in the welfare of our boys and girls. At one place, probably as safe a spot as any in town, 20 boys and girls played under the direction of two competent instructors; at the other, where safety may not even be reckoned, 41 boys and girls found amusement without overseer-ing of any sort. As generally understood our playground furnishes instructive amusement under proper supervision for the stay-at-home children during the summer months.

But if the provisions only provide for a small portion of such children, what then? Would it not be wiser to enlarge the scope of the work, or change its method? Probably all of the children on the playground would welcome a swim, and those who were swimming and had their choice, preferred that to playground activities. It would seem that the time had arrived for the Town to actively take up the matter of a bathing beach. Probably no other place in this vicinity is so bountifully endowed with abundant water accommodations, yet with all our trumpeted improvements and advantages, we make no provision for its use by our youth. If nothing can be done this year, this matter should by all means be given serious consideration in providing for next year's program, and if sufficient funds are not available, the necessary amount should be taken from the park appropriation and converted to providing a suitable bathing beach at Wedge Pond. One by one the available bathing places have been closed through polluted water until "Wedge" is the only one left, and unquestionably it is by far the most suitable for a bathing spot
—handy to the centre, yet secluded, and above all, the property of the Town of Winchester.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Public Markets: Letter was received from the State Board of Agriculture stating that under the provisions of Chapter 119 of the general Acts of 1915, as amended by Chapter 79 of the general Acts of 1916, all sites for public markets in cities and towns of over 10,000 inhabitants, must be approved by the State Board of Agriculture, and regulations governing the same must be approved by the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture.

Crescent Road, Cement Apron: A petition was received from Philip J.
Blank for permission to build or construct an apron over the gutter on his premises on Crescent road.
The Board voted to grant Mr.
Blank's petition provided the cement apron is laid in accordance with lines and grades to be given by the Town Engineer, and the work is done under supervision of the Superintendent of Streets according to town specifications.

High Street Extension: A letter was received from H. L. Cox in regard to repairing High Street Extension. The Clerk was instructed to notify the Superintendent of Streets to have this street repaired.

Street Lights, 1917, Glen Road:
Board voted to request the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to remove the shield which they ordered (under date of August 1, 1917) placed on a light on Glen road, located between Mr. Charles Lane's house and Mr. Robert Stone's house. They further voted to have the light arm so removed as to have the light at right angles to the road.

Drinking Fountain, Centre of Town: The Clerk was instructed to write a letter to the Water Department asking them to send to the Board at its next meeting, Monday, August 20, 1917, an estimate of the cost of placing the drinking fountain in the centre of the Town in a satisfactory and proper condition.

Outside Work, Wildwood Street:
The Board voted to build a cement apron for Mr. J. C. Folts, Wildwood street, on receipt of a deposit from him of $22, covering the estimated cost of construction.

The meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

WHAT IS "T. N. T."?

With the fall of Liege in 1914 the world heard of a new and exceedingly powerful explosive which had helped to blast the most modern of fortresses into mere powder, resolving the cement gun shelters into masses of cracked debris. To that explosive was applied the cabalistic title "T. N. T." and every reference to that now familiar sign carries a thought of fear with it. The initials stand for the name trinitrotoluid. That chemical product was known to chemistry as long ago as 1863, though only as a laboratory product. In 1891 Germany developed it as a military explosive, and from then onward it became known to other countries. Like picric acid, it does not explode of itself, but is always used with a fulminate. Its basis is toluol, a water-white liquid, and a chemical cousin of benzol—both derived from coal tar, which is treated with nitric acid, the result of which is three-classes of compounds, two of which are used in making dyes.

Picric acid, which is made from carboic acid, has not been industrially made in Germany, in great quantities on account of natural conditions. Toluol, however has been one of the principal German natural products, so that the making and use of this new explosive has been a more natural result of physical conditions prevailing in that country.

The world now knows to what a marvellous extent a coal tar business can aid national defense, and it has come to pass, that the countries of the allies have found the value of T. N. T. in the manufacture and success of their own explosives and munitions. Chemical engineers will no doubt discuss many advanced theories and formulas for the preparation of munitions, at the next convention of the American Chemical Society, and further developments in the line of medicinal remedies, disinfectants, dyes and dyestuffs, will play an important part in the advance of the chemical science and industrial progress of this great branch of manufacture.

Peculiarities of Lichens.

The lichen is remarkable for the great age to which it lives, there being good grounds for believing that the plants endure for 100 years. Their growth is exceedingly slow, almost beyond belief, indicating that only a little nourishment is necessary to keep them alive. In a dry time they have the power to suspend growth altogether, renewing it again at the fall of rain. This peculiarity alone is enough to make the lichen a vegetable wonder, as it is a property possessed by no other species of plant. Another interesting fact about lichens is that they grow only where the air is free from dust and smoke. They may be said to be a sure indication of the purity of the air, as they are never found growing in cities and towns where the atmosphere is impregnated with dust, soot, smoke and other impurities.

Queer Drunken Manias.

An English sheriff who died some years since kept a record of the curious cases of drunkenness that came under his observation. Several habitual cases had developed odd manias. One woman who had been arrested 167 times for drunkenness in twenty-eight years had a mania for breaking wine down when she was intoxicated. An old soldier, suffering from a wound in the head, always stole Bibles when he was tipsy. Another man stole nothing but spades, while one woman's fancy ran to shawls and another's to shoes. A man named Grubb was imprisoned seven times for stealing tubs, although there was nothing in his line of life to make tubs particularly desirable to

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Additions to Roll of Honor of Local Enlistments.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions. The list as filed has been printed for the past two weeks. The following names have been received and added during the past week:

MISS AMANDA F. TAPPAN.

Miss Amanda Frances Tappan, an old resident of this town, aged 77 years, died at the Home For Aged People this morning. She had been in poor health since January and her death was due to heart trouble. Miss Tappan was the daughter of Elbridge and Sophia Tappan and was a niece of the late S. D. Sanborn, with whom she made her home for many years. She had been at the Home For Aged People for the past three years.

In past years she was active in a number of town organizations and at the time of her death was a member of the First Congregational Church. The funeral services will be held on Monday at 9 a. m., at the parlors of the First Congregational Church, and the burial will be at East Kingston, N. H.

Cost of Misdirected Letters.

Do you know that 40 per cent of the mail handled by the postal department is wrongly addressed? Business men are chiefly responsible for the receipt and dispatch of improperly addressed mail. This statement applies to the dealer in the small interior town as well as to the business men of the larger city.

In the larger cities letters are sent without writing the street address on the envelope. In the smaller towns an equally great mistake is made in not more definitely designating the location of the town. These errors result in an enormous expenditure of time and money for the postal department in looking up addresses and going through volumes of indexes to find the proper address and costs the postal department as high as $85,000 a month in some of the larger cities alone. This expense is proportionately large in the smaller places.—Farm Machinery.

Concerning the Doorway.

You can tell as much about a house from its doorway, if you really study the matter, as you can about a man from his handshake. Just as you often intuitively feel after a handshake with a stranger that you are or are not going to cultivate his acquaintance further, so you will or will not instinctively be made desirous by a house's entrance of knowing its interior. A doorway is the most and most intimate thing I know. And if for no other reason than because of its natural prominence, the front entrance of a house should be made as attractive as architectural style and good taste will permit. It is usually the first detail to be observed by passersby and therefore creates the most lasting impression.—Charles Alma Byers in Country-side Magazine.

Tingling Ears.

If your ears burn, people say, some one is talking about you. This is very old, for Pliny says, "When our ears do glow and tingle some do talk of us in our absence."

Shakespeare in "Much Ado About Nothing" makes Beatrice say to Ursula and Hero, who had been talking of her, "What fire is in mine ears?"

St. Thomas Aquinas ascribes this concert to the superposition of gnatlike angels, who touch the right ear if the talk is favorable and the left if otherwise. This is done to cheer or warn. One ear gratifies some there be that are listening now at me!

Greenwood and Holly.

The greenwood tree of English song and story is now said to have been the holly, which retains its bright dress the year round and is supposed to have stood Robin Hood and other outlaws in good stead when, clad in lincoln green, they sought its shelter, depending on the law of protective coloration to escape the laws of Nottingham town and other troublesomely inquisitive municipalities.

Origin of "The Marseillaise."

Strange as it may seem, neither the poem nor the music of the French national hymn, "The Marseillaise," was written by Marseillais, and the original title in fact had no suggestion of the great seaport on the Mediterranean. It was in translation "War Song of the Army of the Rhine," and it was composed in the city of Strasbourg by a civil engineer three years after the fall of the Bastille.

Word had come that the South German states had combined with France against Prussia and Austria, and in the home of Mayor Friedrich of Strasbourg the new song was sung. The music was arranged for military band and was widely disseminated. On the 30th of July, 1792, a company of soldiers from Marseilles entered Paris singing Rouget de Lisle's song, which was then about nine weeks old. To this same time they marched to the attack on the Tuileries on the 10th of August. It had been intended as a marching song for the army of the Rhine, but the people of Marseilles pre-empted it, and it has always borne their name.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

ADVANTAGES OF SHARE HOLDING.

Co-operative Bank System Aids the Prospective Home Builders.

The co-operative bank is the people's bank, and offers to both depositors and borrowers advantages unequalled by any other system of banking in the world.

The object of the co-operative bank is to enable members to become the owners of their homes. This is accomplished by a system of monthly payments upon principal and interest, the payments being about the same amount as it would cost for rent. The bank combines the savings of many depositors and safely and profitably invests them in first mortgages on the homes of the shareholders and the profits are distributed equitably among all the shareholders.

Any person desiring to deposit should first determine the amount of money he can save regularly each month, and then purchase as many shares as he can save dollars per month; that is, if he wishes to save $1 per month, he can take out one share, and so on up to the limit of 25 shares, which is the largest number of shares that any one member may hold.

The money received in this manner is loaned to members, who give first mortgages on real estate as security for the loan, and he begins making his monthly payments. For example, on a loan of $2,000 at 5 per cent, payments would be as follows:

Dues on shares ..... $10.00
Monthly interest ..... 8.34

Total ..... $18.34

This payment is made each month until the shares mature, which takes about twelve years. The mortgage is then discharged, and the shareholder becomes the absolute owner of his home, which he has had the privilege of living in, and enjoying, while paying for it, and the payments cost him no more than rent during the same period.

The prospective buyer or builder should go to the Winchester co-operative bank for information regarding a co-operative mortgage. The examination and title fees are nominal, and all the titles are looked up by the bank's attorney for a fee fixed in advance. No other form of savings bank can compare with the co-operative bank for economical management, nor equal the return of profits to the depositors. It enables the borrower to own his home, encourages thrift and the practice of economy, and educates the members in the management of their affairs.

The money deposited in the banks is safe, as they are incorporated under the laws of the State. The books are audited annually by the board of examiners from the office of the State bank commissioner, and most banks have an accountant who makes a monthly audit of the books.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

Through generous donations the Chairman of our Winchester Branch has been able to purchase warm flannel for twenty-four night shirts, for which there is great need in the hospital in France. An urgent appeal has come to us for these garments and they will be conveyed to France by the Red Cross. If our own boys need them they can have them, if not, there is abundant need among the French.

Mrs. E. L. Dunning, 469 Main street, has charge of the making of these night shirts, and any who are desirous of helping may get one from her.

Miss Curry, at Hallanday's, has pamphlets on "Canning by the Cold Pack Method," also free leaflets on "Drying of Fruits and Vegetables."

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Carpenter, the dryers, for preserving food for future use, will be upon exhibit at the Winchester Exchange next week.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

The opening of the season for the Park Square Theatre, Boston, is set for Monday evening, August 20, when the attraction will be a return engagement of Oliver Morosco's delightful musical comedy, "Canary Cottage." Local theatre-goers will remember that when this attraction filled an engagement at this theatre last season it was allotted but a four weeks' stay. There are many song hits in the comedy which have been sung, whistled and played in nearly every home, they being some of the best sellers on the graph lists. The same cast of actors will return in the comedy being headed by Trixie, a Charles Fugles and Henry Corbelle. And the famous California Chorus of beauties will be seen. Seats are now selling, and all mail orders will receive most careful attention.

HINTS ON CANNING.

Home Economics Department of the Special Aid Society.

String Beans by Cold Pack Method

Young and tender beans are preferable. String, cut into lengths to suit taste and wash. Put into cheese cloth bag and blanch (that is plunge into boiling water) and let boil hard five minutes. (Blanching is not absolutely necessary.)

Remove and dip quickly into cold water. Drain, pack in jars which have been taken directly from boiling water and fill with boiling water. (Do not allow the packed product to stand, but place at once in boiler. Failure to do this causes a deterioration of the product.) Add one level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Put rubbers and covers in position without sealing air tight. (Temperature of water in boiler should be about the same as that in the jars to avoid breaking.) Have wooden rack or cake coolers or Turkish towel in bottom of boiler. Sink jars in water to within an inch of tops. (Supply boiling water if necessary to keep at this height.) Sterilize (boil hard) not less than two hours, three hours if beans are not especially tender or if blanching has been omitted. If water evaporates jars may be refilled with boiling water (though this is not necessary) covers sealed tight and product allowed to remain ten or fifteen minutes more in boiler before removing. Avoid draughts or rapid change of temperature in handling jars. Invert and examine carefully to make sure that sealing is perfect. A long-handled button-hook will be found useful in lifting jars in and out of boiler.

Beets by Cold Pack Method

Small beets that run forty to the quart are the most suitable size for first class packs. The older the beet the more chance there is for loss of color. When preparing the beet, wash thoroughly with brush (being careful not to break skin) leave on one inch of stem and all of the root while blanching. Blanch not more than five minutes and cold dip. Remove skin, tail, and stem from the beet and if possible pack whole in the jars. Add level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. (For sterilizing see directions given under Beans.) Leave beets in boiler from ninety minutes to two hours depending upon size and quality.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

Fred A. Pultar has been sued for $200 in an action of contract by Elich Lodgen of Malden. It is alleged that the defendant owes $121.50.

John C. Haartz of Winchester has been sued for $2,000 in an action of tort by Dennis J. Collins of Somerville. Collins alleges that on June 8, while driving his automobile in Davis Square, West Somerville, his car was damaged when the defendant's machine collided with it.

Jaquith & Co. of Woburn, have been sued for $25,000 in an action of tort by William E. Cumings as administrator of the estate of Harold H. Cumings of Winchester. It is alleged that on April 19, 1917, while at a fire in the company's plant the deceased was killed by a falling telephone wire.

Mrs. Carrie Lewis Eldredge of Winchester has filed a petition in the Probate Court asking to be appointed as administratrix of the estate of her husband, West D. Eldredge, who died July 9. No valuation of the estate was filed.

"NEW CARS FOR OLD."

The Bay State Street Railway Company has filed with the Public Service Commission a statement of equipment to be replaced. The company has 200 new double truck cars which will be placed in commission as fast as they are received from the manufacturer. The first of these cars has arrived and will soon be placed in service in Lynn. In the interests of better service 297 old cars will be scrapped. These cars, together with 41 horse cars and 39 snow plows which will also be scrapped are valued at $989,507.00. Recently 37 reconstructed cars were placed in commission, and as soon as the financial condition of the road will permit other cars will be reconstructed and changed into prepayment cars, which will bring the total number of reconstructed cars up to 200. This is part of the Bay State's general betterment plan which will result in the giving of better service.

THE PUBLIC PRODUCE MARKET.

Monday evening the Reading Committee on Public Safety voted to follow the example of Quincy and other places and establish a public market for the sale of green vegetables.

This conforms to the suggestion made the Committee by Henry B. Endicott, executive manager of the State Committee.

The Committee has secured the services of Garden Inspector J. H. Robinson to oversee the work.

An outdoor mart with wooden benches will be located between the Old South Church and the Centre School, where the surplus vegetables raised by Reading gardeners will be put on sale. The market will be open on Wednesdays and Saturdays. A nominal price will be charged for space.

The Committee were advised results in Quincy are very satisfactory. Objections were made in that city by established business but, it was stated, it had proved a stimulus there rather than a restraint of trade by bringing more people to the Centre and the vendors largely spent in the stores the money they took in.

The intention is to try the new venture for a time to demonstrate whether there is a field for it here. If the project does not appear successful it will not be continued.

It is essentially a movement to conserve the food supply, supplementing the planting campaign by creating a market for the produce.

It is thought likely a large sale to autoists passing through town will result.—[Reading Chronicle.]

The plan of creating a public market is a most commendable proceeding. Such a market at this time of the year and throughout the fast-approaching fall season would be a boon. Citizens would be given an opportunity to sell their surplus amount of garden truck inside the town limits without a license and at low prices. With the vast amount of produce being raised this year, because of the fear of war famine, there is bound to be considerable waste, unless this surplus amount is disposed of. A public market, located, perhaps, on the playground in Winchester would fill the bill to a nicety. It would cost no more than $100 to set up a market of this character, and the results obtained are certain to justify the price laid out for its institution many times over. The market might well be placed under the supervision of the Public Safety Committee, who would appoint a controller, in the person of some public-spirited citizen, and have general management of the workings of the open-air produce clearing house.

Many of the surrounding cities have already opened public produce markets. Quincy has a well-organized one from which excellent results are being obtained. Brockton is another prominent Massachusetts city to adopt the idea with enthusiasm.

In towns and cities where such markets have been formed, the retail dealers are the biggest boosters of them. At the best, retailers sell garden truck at very small profit, when their overhead expense, loss of perishable commodities, and the like, are taken into consideration. The resulting loss of trade from a public market would mean little to them.

The market might well be open perhaps two days a week, and on those days housewives could come with their market baskets and purchase their vegetables at the lowest prices.

FINED $15.

John H. McLaughlin of this town was arrested by officer Rogers for speeding a Ford delivery truck on Bacon street and in the Woburn court Tuesday morning was fined $15. On a charge of recklessly operating a machine he was fined $25, for overspeeding he was fined $15 and for not stopping upon a signal from an officer he was fined $5 more.

McLaughlin was arrested a short time ago for not operating his auto in accordance with the law and was fined, he appealing his case, which is at present unsettled.

According to the story told the court by the police, McLaughlin was driving a Ford truck along Bacon street. Officer Rogers saw the machine approaching with McLaughlin and three companions within. The machine was being driven rapidly, he said.

Another machine was approaching and the Ford cut in ahead of it into Church street barely avoiding a crash, Rogers said. He shouted to the Ford driver to stop but the latter continued on his way. Rogers jumped into the other machine and pursued the Ford, overtaking it some distance down Church street. Rogers testified that McLaughlin was driving at a high rate of speed.

The Chief a Victim of His Own Brutality

By ALFRED DAMON RUNYON
Copyright Frank A. Munsey Co.

"I don't like to hit you, John," said the chief, fondling a piece of thick, solid rubber tire and glancing down at the man who cowered at his feet. "I don't like to hit you at all. You come in like a good fellow, and it will be all right."

"I ain't got nothin' to come in with, chief," whined the man. "I'm tellin' you true. I wasn't there. I couldn't a been there. I hadn't got in town."

The chief, a huge fellow, who seemed about ready to burst out of his gold bedecked uniform, reached down and poked the man up by the collar.

"I gave you a chance, John," he said, his voice almost soothing.

He raised his free arm and snapped it sharply in the air. The piece of tire swished forward like a buggy whip and struck the man in the face with a brisk slap.

The chief released his grasp, and the man dropped to the floor and rolled over and over like a shot rabbit. It was not a hard blow; it was a blow struck with the knowledge of long experience.

The man was "out."

The chief sat down at his desk and glared at the silent form. A firm believer in the efficacy of physical punishment to break a man's nerve, he took a savage delight in such scenes as this. And yet yet he afforded him a problem that he had puzzled over many times.

"Why should a man be afraid of a little beating?" he had often remarked. "The average criminal has a good deal of courage; there is no doubt about that. They are certainly not afraid of death, because they face it in a hundred different forms every time they undertake a crime."

"Then why is it that the toughest, most hardened criminal cannot take a little physical punishment? I've seen men who had reputations from coast to coast as man killers and daring crooks break down the moment they get a ship in the face. And ten minutes before, or ten minutes afterward, they would go out and kill an innocent person with no more thought of it than eating their dinner."

"They're not afraid of death in here. They know we won't go so far as to kill them. They know—or they ought to know—that if they took their beating and kept their mouths shut we couldn't, in nine cases out of ten, convict them."

The chief was a brave man, too—physically, at least. He had won promotion through personal daring. He had jeopardized his life a score of times in the performance of his duty. He was becoming a trifle angry, for the prisoner was unusually obstinate.

"Now, John," he said, his voice a little harder than before, "I don't want to hurt you, but you've got to come in. That's all."

He rose and dealt the man a kick. "Oh, don't, chief," whined the man, his voice rising. "Please don't, chief!"

Slowly the chief twisted the wrist, and the man's face grew purple. His voice rose to a scream.

"Oh, please don't, chief!" he shrieked.

He tried to fall to the floor, but the chief held him upright. Suddenly the officer's left hand shot out, and there was a sharp smack as it came in contact with the man's jaw. Again the man dropped to the floor, unconscious, and the chief sat down.

"Faking it, eh?" growled the chief, jumping to his feet.

The chief seized the limp form in both hands and commenced pounding

"I'll come in, chief!" he yelled.

It up and down on the floor, kicking at it when it rebounded. The man screamed in agony.

"I'll come in, chief!" he yelled dismally. "Oh, please don't; please, please stop!"

Breathing somewhat heavily, the chief sat down again and touched a bell. A uniformed sergeant appeared at the door.

"Send in a stenographer," said the chief. "John's decided to make a confession."

The warden of the state penitentiary was an earnest man and a man. He made a long trip to see the chief.

"I tell you, Sullivan, Kinzie must have had wings to get here in time to turn that trick. I didn't spring him till the day before the murder. You know it's hardly probable, even if it is possible, for a man to make that trip under forty-eight hours."

"Well, he says he did. You can't go back of that," replied the chief.

"Was he drunk?" asked the warden. "Well, he'd been drinking a little," said the chief. "He wasn't drunk when he came through."

"There's something strange about it," remarked the warden. "If he says he did, I guess he did, but—"

The warden took his departure, not so much puzzled as annoyed, because the warden had talked with many prisoners who had been through the chief's "sweating" process and had dropped a good many pounds in weight at it too. The warden had his suspicions, but it wouldn't do to express them.

In the meantime the newspapers were paying much attention to John Kinzie, former convict, who had confessed to the murder of a prominent citizen, shot down in cold blood because he resisted a holdup.

"Hub!" remarked big "Red" Simmons, after he had laboriously read an account of the confession. "If it was raining money that guy Kinzie'd be under a shed somewhere. He's the unluckiest stiff I ever see."

"Small" Gordon wrinkled his fox terrier nose into an appreciative grin.

"He fell for the third degree fine," continued Simmons.

"How do you s'pose they come to light on him?" asked Gordon.

"How? Why, the chief gets his little list of guys released from the big skookum every day, don't he?" said Simmons. "Kinzie happened to be the only one sprung just before this job, and so the chief tells his fellows to fetch in Kinzie the moment he lands in town."

"Too bad you had to croak that guy," said Gordon.

"Too bad for Kinzie," answered Simmons briefly.

Simmons, a giant fellow, with a strong, massive face and fierce eyes, rolled a cigarette with calm fingers, and Gordon, little and rat-eyed, ate in business-like fashion.

"Well, they do to Kinzie?" asked Gordon between mouthfuls.

"Oh, they'll only swing him up a little," replied Simmons sarcastically. Gordon shivered.

"They can't prove he did it," he suggested.

"And he can't prove he didn't," said Simmons.

They walked out into the brilliantly lighted street and were sauntering slowly along, when Gordon nervously clutched at the arm of his companion.

"Nix! Nix!" said Simmons between his teeth. "I saw him. Wot's the matter with you, anyhow?"

The chief of police, in civilian clothing, passed them with a number of women and a couple of children. The chief was carrying a big suit case in either hand, and the women bore grips and bundles.

"Going to the depot," remarked Simmons, after the party passed. "That woman in black is the big guy's wife. Saw her at headquarters once when I was in explaining."

The two turned into a saloon, rather notorious for the class to which it catered, and ordered drinks. As they were standing at the bar a flashily dressed individual approached them. He was known as "Boston Carey" and was a pickpocket of some renown among his kind, but an object of some contempt to Simmons and Kinzie, who dealt in more hazardous enterprises.

"Just in time," said Simmons. Carey ordered beer.

"See they picked up John Kinzie for that hill job," he remarked casually. Simmons merely nodded.

"I used to know him in the east," continued the garrulous Carey, not noticing Simmons' frown. "He was going back there and be decent, I heard, but I guess his foot slipped."

Still Simmons and Gordon remained silent.

"He's got a wife and kid here," said Carey.

"What?" demanded Simmons and Gordon together.

"A wife and kid," repeated Carey, pleased at having roused some interest. "They came on here to meet him. Kinzie made a little money peddling these horsehair brushes while he was up yonder, and they were all going back together."

"Where are they now?" demanded Simmons.

"Oh, somewhere round town," said Carey carelessly. "I guess it's all off with Kinzie, ain't it? Wot'd the stiff want to give up for, anyway?"

Simmons finished his liquor and nodded to Gordon.

"See you later," he said to Carey, and Gordon followed him out into the street.

"Jemmy," said Simmons, linking arms with his little partner, "if we was like these guys you read about wot'd go to the chief and tell him the low down on this business?"

Gordon looked alarmed.

"Let's don't," he said.

Simmons laughed so loudly that passersby turned to look at the pair.

"Don't get scared," he said reassuringly. "But if we was story book crooks wot'd do something grand and noble for Kinzie and his wife and kid."

"Wot could we do, anyhow?" asked Gordon.

"Well, we could—"

Simmons and Gordon had decided on the city of Mexico as their next stopping place. Red looked at his under-zeal partner in amused fashion and laughed the subject.

Along toward midnight frequent vibrations had put them both in a very amiable mood. Gordon, the cautious, reverted to the proposal which Simmons had forgotten.

"Let's go see the chief, Red," he suggested finally. "We've got an hour and a half yet to make a little call—and I owe him one."

Without reply Simmons turned and led the way up a side street.

The chief in a huddle of bedclothing awoke to the grip of a strong hand clutching the neck of his pajamas.

"What—what?" he gurgled sleepily, opening his eyes.

"Keep still," commanded Simmons, taking an extra twist.

"What the?" growled the chief.

"Shut up!" said Simmons, slapping him again. "And get up," he added, hauling the big man out of the covers as a boy jerks a ground squirrel from its hole.

The chief knew both Simmons and Gordon. He knew them as desperate crooks. He knew that human life was one of the things they held very cheaply indeed. And yet they were the very type he held in contempt because he knew their weak points.

"What's the matter with you fellows?" he asked quietly.

"We come to tell you Kinzie didn't do that hill job," said Red.

"I know it," replied the chief. "But that's no skin off you, is it? I don't doubt you guys know something about it, but I didn't have nothing on you."

"Remember the time you dumped me for the Carson robbery that I didn't do?" demanded Simmons. "Beat me up a little, too, if you recollect."

"Now, Red"—began the chief in a conciliatory tone.

Red slapped him so viciously that the big man almost fell over.

"We're going away, chief," said Simmons. "We're going away for good."

THE CHIEF STOOD "TRANSFIXED."

but we thought wot'd pay you a final call just to tell you that you've got the wrong man in Kinzie."

He was looking himself into a rage, and the chief trembled, but it was from the chill of the room.

These men were displaying something entirely foreign to all his years of criminal observation. He did not fear them personally, but the new and unknown element in their composition disturbed him.

The chief did not fear death. He did not believe the men intended killing him. In fact, he felt certain they did not.

What was it, then, that he feared?

He did not know it, but in his eyes was the same expression that had been in the eyes of the man on the floor of his office that morning.

Simmons suddenly began moving toward the chief, his great hands working like claws and his lips parted in a vast snarl. No word was spoken. The chief stood transfixed, unable to utter a sound. He felt himself wondering what the big man intended doing.

A great fear stirred within him. He wasn't afraid of Simmons; that was certain. He was simply afraid because he did not know what the man meant to do. Something seemed to suddenly give way inside the chief's breast as Simmons moved toward him. Expression dropped from his face like a mask, and he backed up, laughing hideously.

Simmons stopped. Gordon peered around his leg like a little dog.

"Let's get out of here!" yelled the small man, with a backward leap. "Look at that face!"

Squealing in terror, he fled, and Simmons lumbered after him, while behind them they heard the horrible chattering laugh of the chief.

In a cafe in Mexico City Red Simmons and Small Gordon sat at a table piled high with American newspapers.

"Here you are!" announced Red after another silence broken only by the rattling of the papers. He read:

"John Kinzie, who once confessed to the murder of John Moore, a prominent citizen, and afterward repudiated the confession, claiming it was obtained under duress, was today acquitted by a jury in the criminal court after a short trial. The inability of former Chief of Police Sullivan to testify is declared by the district attorney to be the principal reason why he could not produce evidence sufficient to convict Kinzie, but the prisoner proved a complete alibi through the testimony of Warden Pierce of the state penitentiary."

"Yes, but listen here," said Gordon so excitedly that Simmons gave him a warning look.

"Former Chief of Police Sullivan, whose unfortunate and very mysterious case has roused great sympathy, was last night removed to the state insane asylum at Corbin. The physicians declare his reason has gone forever."

"When you pay more than Fisk prices, you pay for something that does not exist."

ECONOMY—WHERE, WHEN, HOW?

A while ago we anticipated that the Government would reduce the cost of living by cutting prices. Now we are informed that lowering of the cost of living must be brought about by greater economy in consumption. Whereas one ate oatmeal and an egg for breakfast, now we cut out the eggs; whereas some people ate meat once a day, now they can only have it every other day; whereas extravagant folks bought the best of everything, now they are besought to buy less expensive grades and cuts and learn how to make them first class by preparation. Without question housekeepers can cut down expense by studying these problems and not feeding the family, especially the husband, too variously. We eat too much, some of us, and we spend our treasure for fancy goods instead of being content with the things that make us strong. It is surprising how many things we can get along without—in food and dress—if we resolve to do it.

Of course it may be a question how far the rich people should cut down their expenses in food and dress (let course we are a no license town) lest they throw needy people out of employment, and demoralize the trade of the country. Multitudes live on the passion of the rich, and occasionally the poor for luxuries. But in this time of war it is easy to practice the simple life, and give the unexpended balance to the Red Cross or to keep alive the destitute of the famine stricken lands.

And this spasm of economy is well worth while. Some of us are making the great discovery that we have been eating too much, or too many things of the same kind. Hereafter the frugal repast will not be an occasional indulgence and there will not be any waste, and prices will tumble perhaps?

Yet may it not be that the men who control the produce and the production of the land will get on to this and corner our simplicity? May not the forty or more thieves see through our movement for economy and meet it with a scheme (over which they have no control?) by which simplicity becomes luxuries in cost? If one substitutes oatmeal for an egg, may not oatmeal become a luxury regulated by cold storage, and the poor man be compelled to put up with sawdust? Even in the matter of sawdust there is no safety from high prices.

The captains of production and consumption command the Ship of State and fix prices. Congress is strenuously trying to prevent high extortionate prices by prolonging legislation until the big men of corporations have gathered in all the shekels, and there is nothing left but an empty purse. Our statesmen are going to lock the stable door, but not until the horse all the horses, are stolen. To a victim of high prices it looks as if our statesmen—our Congressmen we mean—were doing their level best to protect the men who are making millions out of the millions who pay several times more than a thing is worth. Some day the consumer will get mad—raging mad—and then the thieves will be dealt with without mercy. It might be good statesmanship to do justice beforehand and present an economic revolution and perhaps something more.—[Arlington Advocate.]

GLOBE THEATRE.

A theatrical project giving the greatest of promise is revealed in the announcement that the Globe Theatre, Boston, is to have its own stock company, which will open the new season Saturday evening, Aug. 18. The management has assembled a company of players who were chosen with great care for their ability, experience and the faculty of working with fellow players in working union. Thus under good direction they would display that great desirability of a theatrical stock company, team work. Matinees will be given daily except Mondays and Tuesdays, and there is to be a weekly change of bill. The plays to be chosen will come from the great metropolitan successes with now and then a new play of promise. And as it is all for the good enjoyment of local theatre-goers, a prosperous and popular season for the Globe Theatre may happily be looked forward to. The first week of the engagement will be Red Cross Week, the entire net receipts being donated to the Metropolitan Chapter of the Boston Red Cross to be devoted to the families of those left behind. The prices afternoons will range from 15c to 50c, and evenings from 15c to 75c. Seats are now selling four weeks ahead, and subscription reservations may now be entered.

EFFICIENCY CARS.

The Bay State Street Railway Company has filed with the Public Service Commission a request for permission to operate Efficiency Cars, sometimes called one-man cars. These cars are equipped with folding doors and steps operated by air, with safety air brakes and with special safety control features. Cars similar to these have recently been put into operation most successfully in Fort Worth, San Antonio, Dallas, Seattle; Quincy Ill., and other western cities, and in Lockport and Ogdensburg, N. Y. The cost of operation is very much less than that of the two-men cars and the service given is every bit as satisfactory.

"We are especially interested in these cars," said President P. F. Sullivan, "because they will enable us to give satisfactory service economically. They are smaller, lighter, use less power, and are operated by one man instead of two. The use of cars of this kind is in line with the suggestions of the Public Service Commission and with our policy to give the best service at the lowest possible cost. We are trying in every way to cut down expenses—something these one-man cars will help us to do."

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Owing to the probable absence from town of Mrs. Hamilton, the meeting for work next week will be held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, 14 Dix street, and as many as possible are urged to come and help finish the comfort bags for the soldiers which are in process of manufacture. One hundred and twenty-five are promised from the Winchester Union, as well as a dollar from each member for the welfare work of the Ayer cantonment.

A number of the members and friends have responded to the appeal and it is hoped that the full amount necessary will be in hand within the next few weeks. Each bag contains a variety of things, necessary sewing materials, literature, first aid package, writing materials, and other conveniences. The cost at present prices is well over a dollar, even with liberal discounts for buying in quantity, so contributions will be very gladly received. The bags are made of bright colored cretonne and are attractive.

The surgical dressings workers met last week Mrs. Hamilton's and accomplished much, considering the day. And again the friends of the work are reminded that old cloth of any kind, if clean, can be used, even scraps being used for the filling of comfort pillows. For the covers of these pillows bright hued cottons are also needed.

Mrs. Hamilton, president of the Union, is visiting her son, Robert, in Manchester, Conn., who returned from Plattsburgh with a commission as lieutenant in the Quartermaster's Department, and is therefore subject to immediate call to service.

ATTRACTION AT REGENT.

A story that deals with a man's affection for his younger brother and the things that came to pass when this man tried to extricate his young brother from an affair with a woman of the world, is "The Family Honor," the newest World Picture Brady-Made which comes to the Regent Theatre on Aug. 22 and 23. Robert Warwick and Miss June Elvidge are seen in the stellar roles and they are supported by a splendid company, including several film folks who are prominently known. Exciting moments, thrills and interesting scenes make this a feature well worth while. See it.

FOOD CONSERVATION FIELD DAY.

At Lexington Park of Interest to Winchester People.

The Food Production and Conservation Committee of Lexington is arranging a Field Day at Lexington Park Wednesday, August 22nd. There will be for the women a speaking program which will cover the subjects particularly interesting to women on the line laid down by Mr. Hoover in his campaign for food thrift throughout the country. Experts on their particular subjects have been engaged to give these lectures. There will be demonstrations of the latest methods of canning and drying perishable foods, and also a demonstration showing typical meals for the entire family for a day.

For the boys and girls there will be a meeting on canning and gardening clubs, and sports for them in the afternoon. For the little children, if necessary, instructors will be provided.

A special program of interest to men will be arranged for the evening.

The Lexington Committee is anxious to have Winchester families visit the Park on this day.

COLORADO LIKES IT.

Resolutions testifying to the good effects of equal suffrage have been passed by the Legislatures of California, Colorado, Wyoming and other communities where women vote. In some of them such resolutions have been passed over and over again—always by a unanimous vote, or very nearly so.

This year two different resolutions in favor of equal suffrage came up in the Colorado Legislature. One was accepted and the other was not. A resolution failed to pass that called upon Congress to adopt the Federal Amendment for nationwide suffrage—a measure to which there is opposition on the ground of States' rights from some men who are strongly in favor of woman suffrage as a general principle. The opponents of equal rights in the Maine campaign and elsewhere, are making much of the fact that this resolution did not pass, and are dishonestly suppressing all mention of the other resolution, which was adopted. It reads:

Whereas, our Western States have already enfranchised a large portion of the womanhood of our nation, and the results of equal suffrage in its practical operation have fully justified the wisdom, patriotism and fairness of its adoption, and have enabled the women voters, by the refining influence of their womanhood to fulfill the lofty ideals of those who favor the increased purity of the ballot and the application of a clearer conscience to our public affairs; be it

Resolved, that we hereby declare our unwavering allegiance to the cause of equal suffrage as a fundamental principle of enlightened civilization; that we further declare our gratification at the steady progress which has been made in the extension of this principle through the various States adopting it; and that we welcome with unqualified approval the evident onward march of this same principle until the system of taxation without representation shall cease to be.

The opponents of equal rights for women are welcome to all the satisfaction that they can get out of this.

MILITARY DRAFT.

Complete List Not Known For a Week or More.

Additional information was given out Wednesday and last night on the Military Draft for this district by the Exemption Board at Arlington. This included the names of those men in the second call who have been passed as satisfactory, they having not filed exemption claims and being physically accepted. The complete draft list, however, will not be known for a week or more, this being passed by the District Board and given to the local board for announcement. It will be published when ready.

All of the Winchester men included in the first call have now been finished with, they either being drafted, exempted or having enlisted, but a few from Arlington still remain to be acted upon by the Board. It is thus possible (although not by any means probable) that the Draft may be filled without taking any of the second call men. It is probable, however, that but a comparative few of the second call men will be taken.

Additional Decisions in First Call Claims

The Exemption Board at Arlington gave out additional decisions Wednesday on exemption claims made by men in the first call which had not been previously acted upon. As a result the total of accepted men passed as satisfactory for service was increased by four more, two from Arlington and two from this town. This brought the total number drafted up to 127, leaving 9 more men to be secured to reach the required total of 136.

The two Winchester men who were refused exemption were:

Order drawn	Draft No.	Name
*55	24	1682 Hultgren, Nils A., 27 Loring ave.
*255	99	1873 Nutting, Lawrence T., 17 Garfield ave.

In addition to slightly increasing the Draft, the Board granted 11 claims of exemption made from the first call and not previously acted upon. Of these 11 men four were from Winchester, they being:

Order drawn	Draft No.	Name
*3	1	1436 Conlon, Thos. Wm., 24 Border st.
*39	16	1546 Epsom, Edward J., 15 Elmwood ave.
*168	64	1843 Marano, Domenico, 40 Florence st.
*178	67	1611 Giacalone, Francesco, 57 Harvard st.

There still remain two or three men in the first call whose exemption claims have not been passed upon.

Draft Appeal Agent

To look after the Government's interests in the Draft, Gov. McCall announced on Wednesday morning the appointment of special agents for various cities and districts. The duty of these agents will be to appeal on behalf of the national government doubtful exemption cases from the jurisdiction of local exemption boards. There is one agent for each division which comprises a number of towns.

Charles F. Dutch, Winchester's Town Counsel, has been appointed for District 30, embracing Winchester and Arlington.

The agent is expected to examine carefully the exemptions granted and will take such cases as he deems proper to the required board.

Second Call Men Who Have Passed Physical Examination and Not Filed Claim for Exemption.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Winchester will face a strong team tomorrow when the Brighton K. of C. team appears on the field. This club is composed of some fine players and has been putting up a great game all the year facing such teams as St. Ambrose, Pere Marquette, Bunker Hill, Marblehead, Breezy Hill, and in fact most of the strong teams in Greater Boston and have come under the wire the winner in a majority of the games. They have a young pitcher named Shea, in the box for them, and he has been doing some fine pitching. So that on the strength of what they have done so far this season it looks as though the Winchester "fans" are in for a treat when this crowd appears tomorrow. It is said they carry quite a bunch of rooters with them, so an early arrival at the field will enable you to get seats, "nuf cel."

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Board Accomplishes More Business Than Usual.

Aug. 20, 1917.
The Board met at 7.30, all present.

The records of the meeting of August 13 were read and approved. Licenses 1917, Hawkers and Peddlers: On report from the Chief of Police that Gordo Horn, 33 Loring avenue and George Pappas, 173 Main street did not want licenses of this class, the Board voted to revoke the licenses which had been granted them under date of April 30, 1917.

A letter was received from Sister M. Hilda, Superior of the St. Ann's Hospital of Treadwell, Alaska, appealing for financial help. This need for financial assistance is due to the recent disaster to the Treadwell mine located at Treadwell, Alaska, the hospital having to provide adequate and up-to-date accommodations for the sick, and injured miners.

Primarys 1917: The Board, Ordered: That at the State Primary to be held on Tuesday, September 25, 1917, the polls shall be opened at 5.45 a. m. and remain open until 4 p. m.

After passing this order the Board signed the warrant.

Cross Street Bridge: The Clerk was instructed to ask the Town Counsel for a report as to the desirability from a legal standpoint of continuing the matter of removing the piers under the Cross Street Bridge.

Pickering Street: The Clerk was instructed to ask the Town Engineer to report to the Board what requirements are necessary to put Pickering street in condition to be presented by the Board to the Town for acceptance.

Street Lights 1917, Petitions For: A letter was received from W. M. Gordon, 359 Highland avenue petitioning for a street light on Lawson road between the residence of Rev. Joel H. Metcalf and the corner of Lawson road and Highland avenue. This matter was referred to the Committee on Street Lights.

New Streets: The Clerk was instructed to send a letter to the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Arlington asking them if they cared to do anything in regard to their letter of January 20, 1917, sent to last year's Board. This letter requested that the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Winchester meet with the Board of Selectmen of Arlington for the purpose of considering plans then being prepared by Arlington for the opening of a new street connecting Massachusetts avenue and Mystic street.

SCHOOL GARDEN CHILDREN AT LEXINGTON.

A number of Winchester children attended the School Garden Celebration at Lexington on Wednesday, going over and back by automobiles through the generosity of Winchester ladies. The children who took the trip were those who had "First Prize Gardens" last year and who had been promised auto rides as a reward by the Mothers' Association. The trip was made Wednesday morning and the children had a fine day with much enjoyment.

The boys and girls who attended the celebration were:

Atherton Gleason, Edson Laraway, Ernest Seller, Olive Seller, Paul Nelson, Bradford Stacy, Francis McMillan, Mildred Barrett, George Kilcoyne, George Swymer, Stuart Eldridge.

Others who were entitled to the ride but because of absence from town, or for other reasons could not attend were:

The ladies who contributed the use of the cars and to whom the boys and girls are indebted for their most interesting outing are Mrs. C. M. Crafts, Mrs. Bertram Bernard and Miss Elizabeth Downs.

WANTED.

Immediately for surgical work and supplies, old pieces of white or colored cotton, linen or woollen cloth. Scraps of the smallest dimensions to any size. Send to Mrs. John P. Marston, 30 Everett avenue. Tel. 590, or telephone any of the following and they will be called for. Mrs. A. T. Hunnewell, Tel. 830; Mrs. W. M. Weston, Tel. 288-M; Mrs. F. L. ## K. OF C. WAR FUND BENEFIT.

Successful Tag Day, Concert and Whist.

The whist and dancing party held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus War Fund was without doubt the most successful affair of its kind ever held in this town. The hall was donated for the occasion and an orchestra, assisted by professional singers—Messrs. Harold Budreau and Harry Romaine—furnished an interesting program of music.

Under the able chairmanship of Miss Elizabeth T. Cullen, who directed and systematized the affair, the following sub-committees worked with a will, adding quite a few hundred dollars towards a very worthy cause—that of the welfare of our boys at the battle front.

General Chairman, Miss Elizabeth T. Cullen.

Refreshments, Mrs. William H. Vayo; Music and Entertainment, Mrs. Frances Sullivan; Novelties, Mrs. John McCarron; Tickets, Mrs. Thomas Barrett; Publicity, Miss Mary Kenney; Cards and Tables, Mrs. P. E. Fitzgerald; Score cards, Mrs. J. C. Cassidy; Door Committee, Mrs. H. E. Brown; Candy sale, Mrs. John Holland; Soliciting, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose.

The members of General Committee were:

Mrs. A. E. Poland
Miss Margaret Cullen
Mrs. P. Lynch
Mrs. Chas. H. Gallagher
Mrs. Frank Corcoran

PERRY-AITKEN.

Mr. Edward A. Perry of 12 Thompson street and Miss Isabel Hill Aitken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Aitken of the same address, were united in marriage last Friday afternoon at four o'clock by Rev. Henry E. Hodge at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church.

The bride was attired in a wedding dress of blue satin and wore a white traveling hat. Her bouquet was of pink roses. She was attended by Miss Mary H. Aitken, her sister, who wore a dress of pink silk with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white roses. Mr. John Perry, uncle of the groom, was best man.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the residence on Thompson street from five until eight o'clock, following which the young couple left on their honeymoon, which will be spent in Maine.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hill of Peebleshire, Scotland.

WINCHESTER GIRL IS FINE SWIMMER.

Miss Brenda Bond, a 15 year old Winchester young lady, who is summering at Marmion Way, Rockport, is making quite a reputation as a long distance swimmer. She recently swam from the old Garden Beach to the Hobbs Landing and is now thinking of trying a longer distance from Gully Point to the breakwater. Her father will accompany her in a boat to render assistance if needed. Miss Bond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Bond.—[Gloucester Times.]

BASEBALL.

Smith Wins For Winchester in a Great Pitcher's Battle.

By "Mack"

In the greatest pitching duel of the season, Winchester managed to squeeze out a victory over the strong Goodyear team of Boston last Saturday. It was one of the best games of the season to watch, and as the Goodyear players were anxious to win they did not play the game they are capable of putting up, and several costly errors during the game helped Winchester in the scoring. Smith and Arthur had a great battle, but Smith had the better support, as shown by the score. Twice he had the bases filled with no one out, a triple play pulling him out of a hole at one stage and a remarkable stop and throw by Burke helping him at another stage of the game. Smith was very wild and gave six bases on balls, but with all he kept the Goodyear players going after the bad ones and got eleven on strikes. I do not think Smith is entirely to blame for the bases on balls, as McQuinn has a habit of calling for a waist ball with men on bases and also for one on the outside after Smith has the batter in the hole for two strikes. This boy, Arthur, is a remarkable pitcher, and had a tryout with Connie Mack after leaving school. He had his old battery partner, Mahoney, for a catcher in this game. Let me say a word about the Goodyear team. They are without exception the best and cleanest crowd of players that have appeared on the field this season, and in the games here have shown the true sportsmanship that goes with any good ball team and the few "rooters" that accompanied the team act in the same spirit.

The score:

Notes

Another big crowd, but I understand a poor paying one. What seems to be the matter? The team is delivering the goods.

Six costly errors by the Goodyear were life-savers for Winchester, while Winchester had three, and they did almost as much damage as the six by Goodyear.

Our old college chum, Walter Kelley, deserves a rising vote of thanks, as his "Sam Wise" throw to first base helped out a lot.

Tom Duffy at short, also continued on Page 6

WINCHESTER VETS IN LINE.

Winchester was represented in the big G. A. R. parade in Boston Tuesday by Commander Henry S. Brookings and four other members of A. D. Weld Post, 148. Those who marched included Adj. Henry Smalley, and Comrades Henry J. Richburg, James Dunnell and Charles Thurston.

A detail from John T. Wilson Camp, Sons of Veterans, acted as color escort for the veterans, the flags being carried by Alfred O. Weld, H. Maynard Johnson and J. N. Bennett.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

How Can A Town Manager Save Money?

Editor of the Star:

A leading advantage of the town manager system is said to be that it means a considerable economy in the cost of government. One of numerous such examples in my collection is contained in the latest report of the Norwood town manager, who enumerates twenty-seven items, with total savings of $14,790.60. Two phases of this question occur to me as worth considering, one of which I propose to take up today, reserving the other for a possible subsequent communication.

It is a mystery to me how a town manager can obtain better prices than can the regulation town departments; but this claim is so often advanced by managers and their champions that one is almost driven to believe that there must be some magic in this newly discovered office. Advocates and opponents might argue the matter from now until the sixth of November without getting anywhere; and as we have already had a surfeit of theory in the printed and oral outpourings of the Committee of Fifteen, it may be helpful to seek a little light from ascertainable facts. In order to avoid guessing at what might be done, and to get clear-cut statements as to what could and would be done, I submit the following as a reasonable test.

Let us suppose that, in securing plans and specifications, and in receiving bids and awarding contracts for erecting and equipping a library building, Winchester had its choice of granting full power of a building committee, either to a town manager, on the one hand, or to the library trustees, on the other; would Mr. Thomas Quigley for the excavating and grading, or Mr. Frederic C. Alexander for the construction, or Mr. George T. Davidson or Mr. Jonas A. Laraway for the heating and plumbing, or Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson for the electric wiring, or Mr. Daniel B. Badger for copper conductors, or Mr. George S. Cabot's firm for the furniture, submit lower figures to a town manager than to the library trustees? And if so, why?

Would George W. Blanchard & Co. sell lumber, or Parker & Lane sell coal, cheaper to a town manager than to the Selectmen and School Committee? And if so, why?

MRS. IDA D. HOLDEN.

Mrs. Ida D. Holden, a long and respected resident of this town, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. Wadsworth Hight on Swan road on Sunday. She was 58 years of age. Her death was caused by cancer.

Mrs. Holden was the daughter of Josiah and Harriet Dunning and was born in New York City. She came to this town with her husband, the late George S. Holden, and for many years resided at the corner of Cambridge street and Glen road. Her husband died nine years ago and she continued to make her home here up to three years ago, when she moved to Hopkinton, N. H. Her death occurred as the result of her sickness during a visit to her daughter last November.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. H. Wadsworth Hight, and one son, Frank A. Higham of Salem, Ill. A brother, C. M. Dunning of Concord, N. H., also survives her.

During her residence here Mrs. Holden was a member of The Fortnightly and was still a member of the First Baptist Church at the time of her death.

The funeral services were held from the residence on Swan road Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, and were conducted by Rev. Henry E. Hodge of the First Baptist Church. The remains were interred in Wildwood Cemetery.

THE SCHOOLS.

The schools will open for the school year 1917-1918 at eight-thirty a. m., on September fifth, the Wednesday after Labor Day. The regular class work will begin at once, that is on Wednesday, hence pupils who are entered late will be at some disadvantage.

Pupils in the High School who wish to remove conditions incurred during the school year 1916-1917, will report at the high school building at eight-forty-five a. m., on September fourth, Tuesday, for the required examinations.

COMING EVENTS.

Dates That Should be Remembered When Making Engagements.

Aug. 25, Saturday. Base ball on Manchester Field at 3.30. Winchester vs. Brighton K. of C.

Aug. 26, Sunday afternoon. Concert at Winchester Boat Club.

Aug. 31, Friday. Have flowers at the Winchester Station before 9 a. m., to be sent to Boston for distribution in the North End.

Sept. 1-3, Saturday-Monday. Winchester Country Club: Medal play, 36 holes; 18 holes Saturday, 18 holes Monday.

Sept. 3, Labor Day.

Winchester Country Club. Morning: Medal play; Afternoon: Mixed foursomes—flag tournament.

Sept. 5, Wednesday. Schools open.

BIDS REJECTED.

Post Office to be Cut Down to Meet Appropriation.

All of the bids sent in on the construction of the new Post Office have been rejected it was reported this week, and the Department is now at work revising the plans to reduce the cost.

It is said that all of the bids were in excess of the amount of money available for the erection of the structure.

After the plans have been cut a second set of bids will be asked.

DEATH OF PAUL NELSON.

Paul Nelson, 11 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Nelson of Water street, died at the Mass. General Hospital Wednesday night after a short illness. The boy was one of the "garden prize winners" and on Wednesday took the automobile trip with the other children to the Lexington Garden Celebration. He returned home at about 4.30 and complained of a headache. He did not appear particularly ill and his mother thought he was simply tired out from the day's pleasures. His condition became rapidly worse however, and a physician was summoned, who ordered his removal to the hospital, to which he was taken at 10.30. His death is reported due to lockjaw.

The boy was one of two children and graduated from the Chapin School this year. He was to have entered the Gifford School this fall. The funeral will be held from the residence, No. 24 Water street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley. The burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

MORRILL-TILLINGHAST.

Miss Marion Tillinghast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Tillinghast of Natick, R. I., was married Thursday to Lieut. Charles William Morrill of Rangleys. The Rev. Edwin C. Bowles, D. D., LL. D., of Tufts College performed the ceremony at his residence. Lieut. Raymond Redfield of Lynn was best man and Miss Adelaide Knights of Providence, R. I., was bridesmaid.

Lieut. and Mrs. Morrill will spend a few days on an automobile tour of the North Shore, after which the Lieutenant will report to Ayer camp, where he is attached to the quartermaster's department. He recently completed his Plattsburg course.

STATE GUARDS AT WAKEFIELD.

The Winchester Co. State Guards will leave town tomorrow afternoon and hike to Wakefield, where they will go into camp. This is the first real camping trip the Guards have yet undertaken, and many of the Company who have been allowed leave of absence have been ordered to report for the trip.

It is planned to give the Company its first rifle practice at the Wakefield range, as well as to give the men a taste of real camp life. The tents and other necessary equipment was issued this week.

The Company will probably return to Winchester Sunday night, although it is possible that it will remain over and make the march early Monday morning.

AN INVITATION.

On the afternoon and evening of Sept. 3rd, 1917, we cordially invite our friends and neighbors to call on us at our home, 40 Hillcrest Parkway, Winchester, Mass. The occasion being the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of our marriage.

The reception will be entirely informal. We are sending no individual invitations, but hope to greet as many friends as possible.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Hartson.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

It is a wonderful thing, when we consider the structure of the tongue and its many uses, that every human being learns to make of it so valuable a servant. Yet it is this same servant, so willing, so useful, that is declared to be untamable. No beast of prey, no venomous serpent, causes the loss of so many human lives and of so much peace and happiness as is laid to the charge of this seemingly innocent member. No disease, however dreaded a scourge it may become, causes half so much pain and sorrow. The grief and suffering do not come to those alone at whom the tongues' bolts are aimed. The words heedlessly uttered come echoing back again long afterward to torment the one that spoke them. The evil that seemed at the time so slight because it left no mark that could be seen grows the more fearful just because the effect is something of such a nature that it cannot be blotted out. The unwise word, the unkind saying to another's face or behind his back, lasts long after paper has mouldered away. Taming of the tongue, like the taming of any wild animal, is to be brought about by kindness in the heart of the one that undertakes the task. It is himself over which the tamer must win the victory. It is because the tongue voices so exactly the heart of its owner that it is so dangerous. Were it not for such a danger signal, fatal evils might remain unsuspected. As the tongue tells its story as to the health of the body, it is an index also of the health of the soul.

Was it not Correggio who said aloud, as he was transfixed with admiration in the contemplation of a masterpiece of art, "I, too, am a painter"? What Winchesterite will venture a calculation of the influences of that sublime utterance upon his after life? Was not Disraeli's threat that he would yet make the deriding House of Commons hear him a factor in his subsequent success? A falsehood told. How its echoes go ringing through the hours! A harsh word uttered. How its thunderclap disturbs the Winchesterite who has spoken it for weeks to come! An unclean jest made. How its vileness continues to smirch the character! An oath flung out on the air. How its crash of broken commandment startles the memory long after many other things have been forgotten! The tongue! The tongue! Be careful how you use it. The orator feels the cumulative power of words. As he begins his effort, whether in the pulpit, on the hustings, or before the jury, he utters moderate truth, generally self-evident truth. To plunge headlong into his subject, especially if it be controversial in character, will be to ruin his cause. But as he proceeds he warms to his work; and when he finishes, he bursts upon his audience with all the splendor of his peroration. All successful speakers work toward climaxes, not only because their art requires it, but because they are carried along by the torrent of their own speech, and must gather intensity of thought and utterance as they proceed. Then how noble an instrument the tongue may be, and how increasingly effective it may become as it feeds and becomes strong on its own energy! It is this power of cumulation that makes the habits of profanity, ribald jesting, and common lying such tyrants over the soul. At first the tongue is easily tamed or regulated. If neglected, then there will surely come a time when to oppose its despotism will provide resistance unto blood. Words are thoughts set in language. Keep the fountain pure, then the stream will be always limpid.

Weigh each word before you commit it to another's ears. Prune your utterances of all extravagant and misleading phrases. There is often deceit in adjectives. Be as careful not to understate the truth when speaking of another's virtues as you should be not to overstate another's foibles. Let kindness cast its gentle mantle over all you say. Love is the best clothier in the world. O, let your speech with charity be blest, That all your words, pulsing with love's intent, May bear the truth, exalt the Christ, and find Their sacred work in showing forth his mind.

"Temper" is a valuable possession, but it is one that requires careful handling. Its wise use or its misuse is a test of its user rather than of itself. "I confess that I lost my temper," said one of the parties in an unpleasant discussion. "And I confess that I found my temper," said the other party. It is well to know that we have a temper which requires watching, so that we shall not find it out unexpectedly. And when we know that we have a temper which needs watching, it is important to be on our guard, lest we lose its control at a critical moment. We cannot have too strong a temper, if we know its existence, and never lose control of it.—Editorial in "Sunday School Times." Words are mighty, words are living; Serpents with their venomous stings, Or bright angels crowding round us, With heaven's light upon their wings. Every word has its own spirit, True or false, that never dies; Every word man's lips have uttered Echoes in God's skies. —Adelaide Procter.

In this life . . . every duty is made up of certain parts. These it is thy duty to observe, and, without being disturbed or showing anger towards those who are angry with thee, to go on thy way and finish that which is set before thee. . . . And let this truth be present to thee in the excitement of anger, that to be moved by passion is not manly, but that mildness and gentleness, as they are more agreeable to human nature, so also are they more manly; and he who possesses these qualities possesses strength, nerves, and courage, and not the man who is subject to fits of passion and discontent.—Marcus Aurelius Antoninus.

Nor let us murmur at our stunted powers When kindness, love, and concord may be ours. The gift of ministering to others' ease To all her sons impartial heaven decrees; The gentle offices of patient love, Beyond all flattery and all praise above; The mild forbearance at a brother's fault, The angry word suppressed, the taunting thought. —Hannah More.

Observe, as well as thou canst, the very ways in which thou yieldest to the sin,—thine anger, impatience, or whatever else it be. Observe the very acts or words thou most often usest in giving vent to it. Thou wilt find, very likely, that it is some one or some few ways of acting or speaking, into which thou fallest again and again. If thou art on thy guard, thou wilt often be able to stop the usual vent of thy sin; if thou stopp'st, thou wilt have gained time, by God's grace, to stop the sin, too. Fix, by God's help, not only to root out this sin, but to set thyself to gain, by that same help, the opposite grace. —E. B. Pusey, D. D.

We have careful thought for the stranger, And smiles for the sometime guest; But oft for "our own" The bitter tone, Though we love "our own" the best Ah! lip with the curve impatient, Ah! brow with that look of scorn, 'Twere a cruel fate, Were the night too late To undo the work of morn. —M. E. Sangster.

Our conversation need not always be of grace; but it should always be with grace.—Matthew Henry.

The evil word—and O, remember this—is a step, a long step, beyond the evil thought; and it is a step toward the precipice's edge.—Archdeacon Farrar.

Never a word is said, But it trembles in the air, And the true voice has sped To vibrate everywhere; And perhaps far off in eternal years The echo may ring upon our ears. —Henry Burton.

Many a man's success in business has been limited by a too free use of his tongue, concerning his own business affairs or those of his employer. But if it is important to keep one's mouth shut in a physical sense and from a business standpoint, what a positive virtue does such an accomplishment become in a spiritual sense! David understood this when he prayed, "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips." . . . The tongue is indeed an unruly member; and if we cannot completely tame it, we can at least accomplish a great deal in that direction by the conscientious practice of keeping our mouths shut at such times as we are tempted to give utterance to words of "anger, wrath, malice, railing, shameful speaking."—H. C. Ware.

GOV. MC CALL WILLING.

To Take Another Term if People So Desire.

Gov. McCall made public the following statement concerning his candidacy for a third term this week:

"I have been unable to see any other course open to me in this unparalleled crisis than to comply with the formalities of law so that my name may appear upon the primary ballot as a candidate for Governor. Finding myself in a position of responsibility when this tempest broke upon the country, a willingness to retire now would in my opinion be an impugment of my patriotism.

"In such a crisis one's personal inclination affords no criterion of duty, but his course is determined for him by the march of events. From the moment when our relations with the German Empire were severed, I have used every power at my disposal to put the Commonwealth in a condition of defense and of helpfulness to the Nation.

"By naming a strong Committee of Public Safety, taking counsel with my fellow-Executives of the New England States and the National authorities, making repeated calls upon our Legislature to which they generously responded, and co-operating with the President of the United States in performing the important duties which the laws put upon me under his direction, I have tried to keep the Commonwealth where she has ever been, in the forefront in times of National peril.

"The Chief Executive would, in my opinion, set but a sorry example to our young men who are buckling on the armor and who are citizens of every age and clime animated by a patriotic desire to do their bit for the Nation, if he should willingly step from his post at such a time.

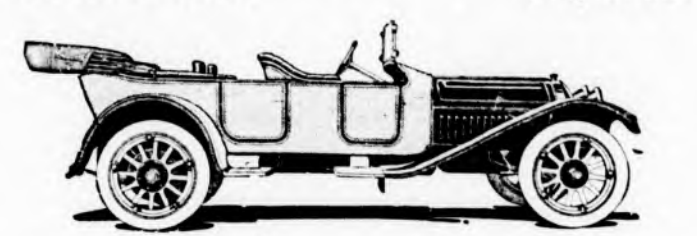

"Willingness to serve, however, does not imply impotency to be chosen. When in the midst of arms even laws are silent and the voice of partisanship is stilled and when all the energies of the State are massed to secure its preservation it would be little less than uncanny for one to ask the State to pause and adjudge his personal claims.

"Personal claims I have none and if I had I should not be heard to plead them now. To do so would be wholly out of tune with the times. It would do little justice to the spirit of a great and patriotic party. I have, therefore, filed my nomination papers and thus indicated my willingness to serve, and have thereby put the responsibility upon the party for the decision."

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

Would Mr. James J. Fitzgerald charge a town manager less than he would the highway department for putting in granolithic sidewalks? And if so, why?

Would Mr. Edward O. Clark, who represents one of the big school supply firms, sell supplies to a town manager less than to the School Committee? And if so, why?

Would Mr. Lewis Parkhurst or Mr. Robert B. Metcalf, who are connected with the two largest school book publishing houses in the United States, ask less for text books of a town manager than of the School Committee? And if so, why?

The above list might be indefinitely extended, but it is already long enough to serve its purpose.

If I were alone in my ignorance, it would not be worth while to occupy space in the STAR with this topic; but I find that many others, including successful business men, are just as unable as I am to understand the extraordinary financial advantages possessed by a town manager, and we would like to be enlightened.

Let me add that I have not discussed this aspect of the subject with a single one of the foregoing individuals and firms, and therefore have not the remotest idea of the answer they might give. But I am willing to state, for my own part, that if they say they would quote lower figures and prices to a town manager than to the usual town boards and committees, and will advance even a semi-plausible reason for so doing, then I will throw up my hat and both hands for the town manager proposition.

Let us drop theory for a while and get at a few facts.

Charles F. A. Currier.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR DRAFTED MEN.

Two weeks remain for the men of Massachusetts accepted for the Draft Army of the Nation, to gain instruction at hands of commissioned officers of the Massachusetts State Guard, which will fit them for non-commissioned ratings in the new army, with the not remote possibility of gaining commissioned berths.

Last week the general order, from Brigadier General Butler Ames' office, calling upon State Guard Officers to volunteer their services as preliminary instructors to the drafted and accepted men, and from all quarters of the State have come favorable reports of the work, with several companies spending virtually every night of the week in giving to the drafted men the fundamentals of military drill and regulation as prescribed in the regular army today.

The benefit of the State Guard to the communities in which its units exist now is being generally commented upon. The physical helpfulness of military drill to men who long since had given up regular forms of exercise, is unquestionable, and in many communities large groups of citizens, for the first time in their lives, have become associated in an effort for the good of their respective towns and cities.

The State Guard which has grown to twice the size of the National Guard, now in Federal Service, and which is organized into 11 regiments, a motor corps, a hospital corps and a cavalry troop, and formed in three brigades, all well officered and becoming more and more familiar with the trade of soldiering, today stands ready for any service the Governor may call upon it to perform, and such a force will prove invaluable to the Commonwealth in the event of any possible emergency or catastrophe.

HIGHLAND AVENUE HOUSE

ROBBED.

When Mr. and Mrs. John S. Blank, Jr., returned to their home on Highland avenue Sunday night after a stay at Little Boars Head, N. H., they found that their house had been entered during their absence and practically everything in the way of jewelry and cash taken. Many valuable articles were stolen, including rings, two watches, gold chains and cash.

Entrance was gained by the thief breaking the glass in a window on the piazza just over the catch and slipping his hand inside and opening the window. A mahogany bureau which had been left locked was ruined by being forced open.

It is reported that there have been almost two dozen similar breaks in town this summer.

Only to Trust.

Only to trust, and do our best, and wear a smiling face as may be for others and ourselves.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

LETTER FROM COLORADO.

Cedaredge, Colorado,

Aug. 15, 1917.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: My trip through the mountains and valleys of this State has been so different from anything ever before undertaken in my life that I cannot resist the temptation to write and tell you about it. If you think this letter of sufficient interest perhaps you may find space to publish it. All day yesterday we were on the train which left Salida at 6.30 a. m., and climbed slowly over the Marshall Pass and down the valley of the Gunnison. After lunch at Cimarron, the train left the river just above the Portal to the Gunnison tunnel and slowly pulled up Cimarron Creek to the crest of a great range, and then sped down the Montrose Valley to Delta. This great valley, in some places is thirty miles wide, is now green with fields of alfalfa, beans, potatoes, sugar beets, and orchards of apples, peach and cherry, made possible by the waters of the Gunnison brought through the mountains in the tunnel. The adobe hills and mountains on all sides are bare and forbidding. On some of the highest peaks snow can still be seen. The whole great mass of mountains looks to me like some colossal work undertaken by the forces of nature and never quite finished. At many of the railway stations young men in khaki are on their way to camp. One woman whose son had gone, expressed her opinion that the President should have called the men above forty-five years first. These mountain men of this age are like the old grizzlies, "cunning and dreadful hard to kill." "Moreover if they are killed there is not so much harm done." But one sure thing is that when all these men reach the front, that some front line will be moved forward.

In this valley where I am stopping, about twenty miles north of the railway station at Delta, several streams of cold water rush down from the Grand Mesa, several thousand feet higher up and several miles from this ranch. The elevation here is about six thousand feet, yet everything is green and fresh in the fields which yield enormous crops. We have sweet corn now just as at home. The early apples are ripening and also apricots and peaches. Young turkeys are running in every door-yard and field. Many cattle and sheep are all about the valley, but the large herds are now high up on the ranges. I am going up on the plateau for a few days' trip, but cannot go without a guide and camp outfit. I am looking forward with pleasure to this new experience.

PLAYGROUND CHILDREN AT-TENDED BRAVES' GAME.

About 35 children, accompanied by the Playground Instructor, through the courtesy of the Braves Management, attended the Braves-St. Louis game Monday afternoon and witnessed the wildest, but still the most interesting game of the season, which went to the St. Louis team by the score of 7 to 6. The children were actually thrilled by the wonderful playing of "Rabbit" Maranville, whom the children adore as they fairly wonder at the marvelous playing of such a diminutive player. Such a plan as the one employed by the National League management deserves unlimited commendation as it gives the child an opportunity to see professional baseball in order that he might educate himself a little better in the National pastime, which is indeed an asset to the physical development of the child as well as a world of pleasure. Among the children who attended the game are the following:

William Dwyer, William Titler, Thomas Smitherman, James Smith, Clarence and Carl Prime, Gordon and Gleason Ryerson, Fred Smith, Geo. Foley, Hollis Clark, Joseph Mathews, Joseph Tansey, James Cummings, Robert Foster, Benjamin Edwards, Hubert Smith, Edward McKee, Fred Snodgrass, Walter Kirby, John and Thomas Cummings, Joseph Callahan, Harry Chitel, H. Goode, Jeff Flaherty, Richard Walsh, James McAdams, and Andrew Callahan.

AUTO STRUCK POLE.

A touring car driven by Mrs. George C. Ogden and containing several members of her family ran into a pole at the corner of Swanton and Washington streets Wednesday noon, badly damaging the front end. The wheels were sprung and the windshield broken. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured.

Nor the Dreamless Kind.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION NAMES GILBERT SECRETARY.

John C. Gilbert of Euclid avenue, this town, has been appointed by the civil service commission, Secretary, to take the place of the late Secretary Warren P. Dudley. His connection with this office began March 1, 1895, when he was appointed clerk, his name standing No. 1 on the eligible list for the state clerical service. He was later made stenographer and was the official stenographer of the commission till 1902. May 1, 1902, he was appointed first clerk of the commission, and July 1, 1907, was appointed registrar of labor to supervise the administration of the civil service rules applicable to the public labor service of the State and cities. He has held that position until now, making his total service for the commission over 22 years. In June 1913, he received the degree of bachelor of law, cum laude, from the Boston Y. M. C. A. evening law school, and in July, 1913, passed the Massachusetts bar examination, and was admitted to the bar in September following. He was born in Fall River, Sept. 16, 1872.

The Winchester Star, $2.00, in advance

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

"Mark" issues his challenge.

Winchester ought to feel satisfied with its tax rate, $19.40 on $1,000, as announced last week. The wonder is that it was not larger.

The Winchester State Guards made a fine showing in the Woburn parade last Friday and were highly complimented upon their appearance.

Now that Mr. McCall has consented to run for a third term, Winchester is again assured of having the Governor among its residents.

The Winchester State Guards will leave sometime soon for somewhere in Wakefield to engage in an important mission greatly affecting the welfare of numerous of our citizens.

It is extremely difficult to understand war conditions in Europe. Both the Allies and the Central powers claim victories in battles that have been fought, and it is rather uncertain which claim is true.

Provide a place in Winchester where our boys and girls can have a chance to learn to swim. We have the place and the water and only a little "push" is required to put a swimming beach in order for the comfort of bathers.

Our Selectmen have confined themselves pretty close to town business thus far this summer. Would a paid Board have done the same? Winchester is fortunate in the public spirit shown by those citizens who give so freely of their time without compensation.

It is reported that following the severe epidemic of glanders in this State several years ago the old style horse drinking troughs were ordered closed, and the only style allowed since are bubblers—a fact not generally known. Perhaps we may see a modern horse "bubbler" in our town sometime (?) How would Cambridge street do for a location?

We agree with Mr. Currier that the time is not so far distant to enter into a discussion of the proposed change in the form of the local town government. A large majority of the voters understand but little what such a change in our existing conditions would mean. The STAR freely offers its columns for such an interchange of opinions.

Gov. McCall has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election. That means that he will serve another term. He has been the right man in the right place during these trying times, and it has been many years since a Governor of this Commonwealth has been called upon to meet so many big and trying problems. And he has solved them to the satisfaction of the people.

The assessors of Arlington have announced that the tax rate for the coming year will be $25.50, an increase of $1.70 over last year. This rate is probably one of the highest in the State. The increase is attributed to the big town grant at the annual town meeting, amounting to $460,961.19. The State tax is $40,700; county tax $18,613.95; sewer tax $16,274.29; water tax $20,544; park tax $7,409.48; Charles River Basin tax $1,789.34; Alewife Brook tax $2,453.18; and fire prevention tax $204.77. The income of the town is: corporation tax $20,000; water tax $20,544; polls $9,942; income tax from the State $37,392.86, leaving $483,071.54 to be raised by general tax.

Appreciative comment is due the engineer and train crew which lay over on the side track by the Playground. This train picks up cars at Winchester at five o'clock, and on Saturday afternoons the trainmen are interested spectators of the base ball games, they being stationed directly beside the diamond. Their action on Saturday afternoons when a west wind is prevailing, and the smoke and soot from the locomotive blows across the ball field, of backing their train down the track far enough to free the field of the objection should be appreciated. Probably few, if any, on the field have taken notice of this courtesy, but it has been done even during the progress of a game, at times when the wind has shifted. In common with all Americans these men no doubt take much interest in a ball game, and their consideration deserves appreciation.

Few people realize the enormous amount of work which has fallen upon the shoulders of the members of the various Exemption Boards throughout the country in the now nearly completed military Draft. It is doubtful also if the members of the Boards realized themselves when they assented to undertake the work what a volume of labor they had ahead of them. Their labors may justly be termed patriotic in every sense of the word, and few who are now at all familiar with what has, and is, being accomplished by these men have any desire to occupy their place. Winchester has been exceptionally fortunate in the personnel of its Examining Board. So far as has come to our notice its judgments have been the acme of fairness and impartiality, and it has interpreted its orders in a manner satisfactory to all. While worked to the limit, its members have been always ready to give personal consideration to every claim upon its attention and are always approachable. A membership upon such a board is in itself a difficult position, and that our Board has accomplished its labors in such a satisfactory manner is gratifying to everyone in the District.

STATE GUARD TRAINING DRAFT.

Up to last night eight men from this town who have been selected for the military draft have availed themselves of the opportunity of receiving instruction from the Winchester Co., State Guards. These men are now drilling at the Town Hall under the direction of Lieut. Smalley and members of the Guards. Such instruction as the men can gain before being called out will be of considerable value, and more of those selected for the draft should avail themselves of the privilege of training under the local State Guards. Those now receiving instruction have made remarkable progress.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY MARRIED.

Lieutenant Charles W. Laurence, formerly of Winchester, and Miss Lois Halway of Machias, Me., were married at the Hotel Lenox, Boston, on Wednesday, Aug. 22. Rev. Wm. L. Laurence performed the ceremony, members of both families only being present. Lieutenant Laurence leaves for France next week.

ENDORSES OUR BASEBALL EDITOR.

No. 5 Bacon street,
Winchester, Mass.,
Aug. 19th, 1917.

Editor of the Star:

Permit me to congratulate you on having secured the service of Mr. Edward P. McKenzie as Base Ball Editor of the STAR.

I do not know Mr. McKenzie, but in common with the large number of "Fans" who at every game they can possibly attend, and in reading the account of same as follows in the STAR, have so generally agreed with his comments and criticisms.

I have no desire to find fault with the Base Ball Association for their management of the games, no doubt they do as well as they can and as they see the light. The outcome of the "Lexington controversy" was unfortunate, and as a "Fan" I think we showed poor sporting blood, but in the employment of Mr. McKenzie who comes with no fear or favor to his new position, I am in hopes it will revive interest and spice to be shown in future games and support on the part of Winchester people and patrons of the game.

If a suggestion to the Management would be in order, it would be that a closer collection of money be looked after. In several of the games I have noticed arrivals after the collector had passed down the line, and gentlemen ready and anxious to pay for seeing the game. Last Saturday a man was seen to approach a former employee and ask where he could leave his money. There are several dollars missed each game for want of closer collection.

Good luck to you and your paper, to Mr. McKenzie, and the Base Ball Management.

"Fremont,"

Chas. F. Maxwell.

FINES IN TWO AUTO CASES.

Two Winchester auto cases were heard in the Woburn court Monday. Dominick Laungo being fined $5 for allowing his 12 year old son to drive his auto delivery truck and Johna Contas of Lowell being fined a similar amount for oversteering a large truck on the Main street hill.

WINCHESTER BOYS WITH CO. G.

17 Left Friday For Framingham Camp.

Seventeen Winchester men were in the ranks of Co. G of Woburn last Friday morning when it passed through this town on its way to camp at Framingham. Owing to the postponing of the departure of the company last Wednesday the final celebration was not as complete as had originally been planned, little time being left to perfect arrangements after the order to leave was received at Woburn Thursday afternoon. Nevertheless the boys got a rousing send-off, and as they passed through Winchester on three Boston & Worcester special electric they were cheered all along the route, while the factory whistles and bells were kept sounding until the town had been left behind.

The Winchester Company, State Guards, marched to Woburn early Friday morning under command of Capt. Tompkins and took part in the farewell parade.

Many Winchester boys left with the Woburn Company, among them being the following:

In addition to the above list is First Lieutenant William H. Mobbs of Wilmington, formerly of Winchester.

BOY HURT BY AUTO.

William Bond, the young son of William T. Bond of Clark street, while playing on Main street in the vicinity of his home Wednesday afternoon, ran or was pushed by a companion into a passing automobile.

Fortunately the car was travelling slowly at the time, and the boy was not badly hurt, his injuries being mostly bruises and scratches. The car was owned and driven by Benjamin H. Pond of Somerville, who took the boy in and carried him to his home.

LIGHTNING STRUCK FIVE TIMES.

News from Wayland states that an electrical storm of great violence passed over that town on Friday of last week. During the storm lightning struck a house occupied by A. S. Morse no less than five times. Mr. Morse, Mrs. Small of the Back Bay, widow of the late S. C. Small of this town and sister of Mr. Edward A. Smith, and Mrs. L. M. Dixon of Boston were in the house at the time. The first bolt struck the back of the house, shattering the sideboard and throwing it over at the feet of Mrs. Small, causing her a severe shock. Mrs. Dixon was rendered unconscious for a short time.

By the time the storm abated the house was half demolished, but three rooms, being untouched, together with half of the kitchen. It is considered a miracle that the ladies escaped with their lives.

HEAVY STORM TUESDAY.

Although this town experienced an extremely heavy shower Tuesday afternoon, with much lightning and a downpour of rain, it apparently escaped very lightly from reports of the damage done in surrounding places. There was considerable hail, some of the stones being of unusual size, but very fortunately this part of the storm was of short duration. But one place in town was struck by lightning, a house on Swanton street occupied by an Italian family. The shingles on the roof were torn up and some glass in upstairs windows broken, but no one was injured.

"HERE COMES THE BRIDE"

Selected for the reopening of the Hollis Street Theatre Monday, Aug. 27, is an up-to-the-minute American farce-comedy written, staged, acted and managed by some of the distinguished personalities in the modern theatre. The cast is composed of hand-picked, expert players of farcical comedy including Otto Kruger, Francine Larrimore, George Parsons, Maude Eburne, William Holden, Inez Buck, Franklin Ardell, Mildred Booth, Mario Majeroni, Albert Reed, Walter Fenner, Thomas Meegan, William Lennox, Frank Walsh and Kenneth Keith. There are wildly absurd complications with the thrill of suspense and unexpected surprises and a love story typical of full-blooded, ardent American youth.

There are bewildering suspense complications that keep an audience making wrong guesses until the final climax of adroitly suspense farcefulness.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Bay State Street Railway Company: The Clerk was instructed to write Mr. C. J. Donovan, Superintendent of the Bay State Street Railway Company, Woburn Car Barns, Woburn, Mass., asking him to let the Board know whether or not the Bay State Street Railway Company is going to replace the car stops at Hemingway street and Canal street.

Sidewalk Pumps: The Board voted to reconsider their vote of July 9, 1917, which refused the Oscar Hedtler Company permission to install a gasoline tank and operate a sidewalk pump at 536 Main street. After considerable discussion another vote was then taken in regard to this petition. Permission was again refused the Oscar Hedtler Company to install a gasoline tank and operate a sidewalk pump at 536 Main street.

Glengarry Road and Grassmere Avenue: Mr. D. W. Pratt, acting for Mr. William Firth, appeared before the Board in regard to having Glengarry road and Grassmere avenue accepted by the Town as public ways. This matter was held up pending the receipt of a detailed report from the Town Engineer.

Licenses 1917, Explosives and Inflammables: The Board granted the Winchester Country Club, Cambridge street, a license to store gasoline in an outside tank and pump of a capacity not to exceed 300 gallons at the edge of the parking space near Arlington street about 100 feet distant from Cambridge street.

Licenses 1917, Explosives and Inflammables: The Board granted Samuel A. Vanner, 51 Parkway, Winchester, a license to store gasoline in an outside tank and pump of a capacity not to exceed 200 gallons at 51 Parkway, Winchester.

Both these licenses were granted subject to the regulations adopted and described by the Fire Prevention Commission of the Metropolitan Park District.

Washington Street: A letter was received from the Town Engineer in regard to the bad condition of travel at the junction of Washington street and Forest street. This matter was referred to the Committee on Ways and Bridges.

Licenses 1917, Explosives and Inflammables: A petition was received from T. Quigley, Jr., asking permission to install a 250 gallon tank for the storage of gasoline at 22 Lake street, Winchester, Mass. The Board voted to hold a hearing in regard to this petition in the Selectmen's Room on September 10, 1917, at 8 p. m.

The meeting adjourned at 11.05 p. m.

orge S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

WINCHESTER BOYS AND GIRLS CANNING CLUB.

Since many of our School Gardeners have become interested in canning and have done excellent work in this line the formation of a canning club seems advisable. In order that those who wish to can fruits and vegetables may have practical experience in the work all School Gardeners who wish to join the Canning Club are requested to meet at the home of the garden supervisor, Mrs. Woodside, 30 Lebanon street, any day during the week of Aug. 27, at 9 o'clock a. m.

Workers only are eligible in the club and all who come should bring with them a large apron, one good quart jar with new rubber, and enough good fresh fruit or vegetables (green included) to fill the jar when cooked.

Since the process of preparing and cooking the vegetables sometimes requires several hours, club members are requested to bring basket lunches for a noon-day picnic on the porch. Canning is the legitimate outgrowth of School Gardening for boys as well as girls. Those who think that canning is "a girl's job" should remember that most of the world's canning is done by men, and that in hundreds of canning clubs throughout our land many boys are doing better work than their mothers and sisters. Every wide awake Winchester School Gardener will be expected to can something for the School Exhibition, in September. Some boys and girls already have several jars to their credit. If you have not done your part, bring your working equipment, including notebook and pencil, and come prepared to work.

INTER-CITY PLAYGROUND SERIES.

A series of 3 games have been arranged between the Winchester Playground team and the Rindge Playground team of North Cambridge, champions of the Playground league of Cambridge for the championship of the two cities. The first game was played at Winchester last Friday afternoon and although the home team lost, they gave the Cambridge champions one of the hardest contests of the year. It was only the clever pitching of Cote at the critical moments which prevented Winchester from carrying away the honors. The features of the game were the playing of Shea and McGovern for the winners and the hitting of McAdams for the losers.

Winchester and Cambridge Playground Teams Play a Tie.

Rain and darkness stopped the second game of the Inter-City Playground championship between Cambridge and Winchester Tuesday afternoon with the score tied at 2-2, at the end of the tenth inning. It was a pitcher's battle from the start between Flaherty of the Winchester team and Davis of the Cambridge team with the former having a little on his opponent. The Cambridge team scored their first run in the second inning when Shea walked, Davis sacrificed and McCrehan singled to left field. The Winchester team scored their two runs in the fifth inning on a pass to Tansey, and singles by Flaherty, Callahan and Hamilton. The Cambridge team evened matters up in the sixth inning and this ended the scoring for the rest of the game, which seemed destined to continue until one of the pitchers weakened, but for the inclement weather which made the continuance of play impossible. The features of the game contributed by the Winchester team were a one-handed catch by Tansey of a hit which was surely labeled for a home run and a double play manipulated by Walsh unassisted. Clark, Callahan and McAdams also fielded well for Winchester while Cleary and Cote excelled for the Cambridge team.

WHAT DR. SHAW SAID.

The following statement has been circulated through the Press Bureau of the Association opposed to Woman Suffrage:

"Dr. Shaw struck a blow at patriotism when she said: 'What is the American Flag but a piece of bunting?'"

Quotations detached from their context are usually meant to misrepresent. This is a most glaring instance.

What Dr. Shaw really said was: "This is the American Flag. It is a bit of bunting, and why is it that, when it is surrounded by the flags of all other nations, your eyes and mine turn first toward it and there is a warmth at our hearts such as we do not feel when we gaze on any other flag? It is not because of the beauty of its colors, for the flags of France and England which hang on either side of it, have the same colors. It is not because of its artistic beauty, for other flags are as artistic. It is because you and I see in that piece of bunting what we see in no other. It is not visible to the human eye, but it is to the aspiring soul. We see in every stripe of red the blood which has been shed through the centuries by men and women who have sacrificed their lives for the idea of democracy; we see in every stripe of white the purity of the democratic ideal toward which all the world is tending; and in every star in its field of blue we see the hope of mankind that some day the democracy which that bit of bunting symbolizes shall permeate the lives of men and nations; and we love it because it enfolds our ideals of human freedom and justice."

This eloquent tribute was given in the presence of President Wilson and several members of his cabinet, and since then President Wilson has appointed Dr. Shaw Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense. The reader will draw his own conclusions.

BASEBALL.

tributed his little bit to help make the affair a Winchester success.

Tumquist on first base, is a great ball player, but oh so lazy. He fell down on a couple of plays that were easy.

The two Duffys, Tom and Steve, are brothers, and it is a strange coincidence that both should play the same position, namely short. Tom may be a little better fielder, but for all round work, Steve, the man on our team, is the better player.

That was some triple play by McCarthy, Dickerman and Burke, and to settle a number of arguments that have arisen since the game, I will say that this is the second time this play has occurred on Manchester Field. A few seasons ago, with the Lincoln Club of Somerville for opponents, one of their players drove a liner to Murray, who was then covering third base. No one expected him to get it but he did, forcing the man at third and throwing to second for the third and final put-out. With just a little thinking he could have completed the entire play himself. This game happened the day of the big explosion up at the Rock & Brick Company's plant.

Dickie, who formerly did the catching for Winchester, and did some good work with Tift, paid us a visit and Manager LeDue asked him to put on a uniform. But Dickie said he had not had a bat or ball in his hand for a year, and when he struck out the last time up he had to smile at himself, he was so out of practice.

"Mack" was obliged to stick at his job on the B. & M., which accounts for his not playing, but will be on the field as usual tomorrow.

The two ladies who occupied the players' benches on both sides of the field were neither Beatrice Fairfax or Dorothy Dix. So I will give you fellows another guess. A reserved seat for the correct answer.

When it comes to hitters you have got to hand the palm to Hevey; here is a consistent hitter all the season with an average around .400 for games played.

Henry Mathews, pitching for Wollaston Saturday, beat the St. Joseph's of Somerville 5 to 2. "Dann" Martis was the opposing pitcher, and you "fans" remember him when he pitched for Wakefield and Stoneham.

Converse Rubber Co. went to Sanford, Me., and were handed a good beating; the score 8 to 1. Ray Somerville pitched for Converse Rubber.

The strong Harbor View team of East Boston, beat the Naval Reserve Saturday, 5 to 2. This Harbor View team has a great pitcher in Anderson, and they found him in a queer way. They were playing Winthrop and their pitcher got injured, with no one to take his place, when one of the spectators offered his services. Well, the man is Anderson, and when he went into the box there was nothing to it but Harbor View, and he has continued since then to pitch great ball. This Harbor View team would also like to play out here.

There are a great many "fans" who are also anxious to see this Naval Reserve team, as there are a great number of fine players on it well known in the pro and semi-pro ranks.

Arlington had a great day Saturday, having the U. S. S. Virginia with their band. A number of Arlington boys are on the ship and several played in the games which Arlington won. "Jiggs" Donahue, one of Stallings' pets, is doing the catching for Arlington.

Wakefield beat Lexington 2 to 0, but had a "swell" time doing it. The Wakefield team was leaving the field and going to forfeit the game rather than stand for some of the work the umpire was getting away with, but in justice to the Lexington fans I will say they did their part to see that Wakefield was used right, and the game proceeded with Wakefield the winner. In conversation with a great many "fans" during the season I have repeatedly said that The Minute Boys were a good team, but from what I know and heard from spectators I had come to the conclusion they were greatly over-rated and that something was wrong in the way of umpiring. This man, McDonald, and he is the second umpire they have had this season, is a well known football and baseball coach. A man may be a great baseball coach, but at the same time he may be the worse umpire in captivity, and this seems to be the case with McDonald. The Wakefield Item says he gave every close play to the home team. It seems to me with all the money the Lexington A. A. has they might get a good man for umpire, for instance Frank Hardy of Woburn, but you cannot get him for thirty cents.

Now you "fans" here in Winchester listen! The Minute Boys are willing to play a game here in Winchester, but want a sixty dollar guarantee. Well, it seems the head of the Winchester A. A. thinks this is too much money. Well, possibly so. But the writer is willing to take the Winchester team off their hands for this game, give the Minute Boys $60, pay all the necessary expenses connected with the game, players, etc., and turn over twenty-five dollars out of the receipts to the Winchester Hospital. Now you fans who have got the sporting blood (?)

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

Winchester has many generous hearted citizens who are doubtless wondering where gifts for the comfort and happiness of men in the Navy may be sent. Articles may be forwarded at any time through the Special Aid Headquarters, 142 Berkeley street, Boston, or to U. S. S. Paulding, care of G. P. O., London, England.

Lieutenant Anderson has made some suggestions upon request, as follows:

Subscriptions to some of the New York or Boston newspapers, and to some magazines, preferably fiction.

Victrola records (preferably I imagine, some of the latest stuff, musical comedies, etc. From what I hear I imagine they are fond of Hawaiian music.)

Smoking material (real American tobacco.)

Warm clothing, socks, sweaters, knitted trousers, such as aviators wear under their leather outfits, etc., are very acceptable in this climate.

Home-made candy will fill an aching void both for'd and aft.

The knitting committee announce that they have wool on hand at present for distribution.

FOURFOLD TIE.

The first two pair were tied at the Winchester Country Club in Saturday afternoon's four ball match for best net last week, each pair finishing with 77. Stephenson and Hendricks, playing from 81, tied Bufford and Barta, playing from 83.

The scores:

B. K. Stephenson & P. A. Hendrick	81-77
P. T. Bufford & L. W. Barta	83-77
N. H. Seelye & G. M. Brooks	84-77
E. A. Bradley & R. F. Hibsham	87-77
C. A. Wheeler & H. A. Norton	92-82
C. P. Whorf & Irwin Hilton	93-81
C. H. Cummings & F. A. Cummings	101-88

Ropes of Camel Hide.

In biblical times the strongest rope was made of strips of camel hide, as still used by some tribes of Arabs.

KENNY'S DEBT

Tragic Tale of the Rough Justice of a Mining Camp.

By WALTER DUNCAN

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The theory of Kenny's defense was that Bilek was first to draw. Clearly no one believed it—not one of those silent, rugged men who formed a semicircle in front of Frisco's saloon. Against Kenny's word was his reputation—in the mining camp he was known for a bad man, quick on the draw and quicker on the trigger—and there had been bad blood between the dead man and him who now stood in the center of the semicircle.

If in those days the laws of that out of the way place, such as were defined, were administered summarily with little dignity and less ceremony justice was the quicker for it. Seldom was its aim at fault, and it seldom if ever hung fire.

Bilek's stiffening form, lying face downward on the hillside where it had dropped when Kenny's gun had spat, had been exposed to the sun less than an hour before Kenny was called upon by the vigilance committee to explain. He and Bilek had ridden into the hills together. Kenny had returned home alone.

They found Kenny down at Frisco's. Boldly and with a show of unconcern he began his version, while the men of the V. C. closed in and formed the semicircle around him.

Big and forbidding, Bill John Mickle stood in the doorway, cutting off the one avenue of retreat. Bill John had presided as master of ceremonies on more than one previous occasion of this kind.

"He tried to kill me," Kenny told them. "I had to kill him."

But, looking from one rugged face into another and reading their silent verdict, the accused lost his self confidence, and in the desperation with which a stag held at bay fights for life Kenny strove to convince the silent, unbelieving men of the truth of his words.

There was no one to champion his cause. The men of the V. C. did things at first hand—every man to his own defense. Determined to maintain at least a semblance of law and order, they had found it necessary to take the law into their own hands, sometimes to sacrifice human life to make human life the more secure. They did it unflinchingly.

Kenny had had his warning. A week ago he had seen these men form a semicircle and pass judgment on Sam Carter, whose gun had barked when some one here at Frisco's plucked a fifth ace from the gambler's sleeve. Before his man was cold Carter's legs were dangling three feet from the ground and his body swayed from a taut hemp rope.

So Kenny, remembering Sam Carter's fate and searching the grim faces that watched him in for the encouragement he did not find, trembled.

"He tried to kill me," he repeated slowly.

Silently one after another slowly shook their heads. They knew Bilek for a man of peace. And they knew Kenny. His record nullified his words.

"I WAS RIDING ON THE UPPER TRAIL, AND I SAW IT. HE KILLED HIM IN SELF DEFENSE."

If it were not for the one thing, thought Kenny, he could make them believe. That he and the man he had killed had been bitter rivals until Frisco's daughter Katie had given her heart to Bilek completed his condemnation, and the silent, rugged men would not believe.

Slowly, one after another, they shook their heads.

"Say your prayers, Kenny."

Bill John Mickle from his stand in the doorway pronounced judgment on the culprit.

"And may God have mercy on your soul!" he added. Somewhere back in civilization he had heard that.

The condemned man did not pray.

Despairing, he saw the semicircle broken where a man from whose arm hung a coiled hemp rope stepped out of his place and advanced quickly toward him.

Kenny's fingers itched for the feel of his gun. In another moment the noose was slipped over his head and drawn so tight it pinned him where the big, rough knot pressed hard against his neck.

"Say your prayers, Kenny," Bill John repeated. "It's your last chance to say them."

Kenny looked dazedly about him. He was not looking for hope. Of hope he knew there was none. Fear, to which he had been a stranger, chilled the blood in his veins. Still he did not pray. To Bill John Mickle, who still stood in the doorway looking down upon the little tragedy enacted in the little arena as a judge looks down from the bench, the man with the noose about his neck turned an appealing, helpless, whitening face, and his lips moved. But no sound escaped them.

The silence was that of the hills and of death.

It was broken by a footfall inside the saloon, and from behind Bill John appeared a woman, little more than a girl. She was Frisco's daughter Katie, who, attracted by the crowd, had come from the kitchen which was set apart a little way in the rear.

For one second she surveyed the scene through eyes red with weeping; then she stepped into the semicircle of men.

Kenny, the rope about his neck, went whiter at sight of her and trembled, afraid of the woman for love of whom he had gone to his ruin.

But how he had loved her! If he might know that she even now still cared one little bit he could go to his doom and die like a man.

"Time's up," announced Bill John, snapping the case of his watch.

"Wait."

Something in the girl's voice as she spoke—something Kenny least of all had expected and which he could not define—caused him to lift his head. Would she taunt him for killing her lover, he who had known the way to a woman's heart, now that he was going to his own death?

"He tried to kill me," he pleaded. "I cannot make them believe me, but I had to do it."

"That is what I have come to tell you," answered the girl, addressing the men who formed the semicircle. "I saw it all. I was riding on the upper trail, and I saw it. He killed him in self defense."

Kenny looked at the girl unbelievably. She whose lover he had shot down, whose scorn he had expected, she had come at the crisis to save his neck. They must believe her.

In spite of the hemp rope, he threw back his head and laughed boldly in triumph, for he had cheated the death that a moment before hovered over him, and in life there would now be no handsome, hated Bilek to win away the girl's heart from him.

Bill John Mickle from the doorway was speaking.

"Kenny," he said, "she has saved your worthless hide, but you've had a narrow escape. Let this be a lesson to you. We can't hang you now, but this community don't need your kind, and you got to go. Before sundown—understand?"

Unblinking and defiant, the girl who had drawn nearer to the man she had saved, as though to further protect him from the rest, turned upon Bill John.

"If he goes, then I go too," she threatened, knowing full well that every man in camp was dependent upon her, the only woman within forty miles.

Kenny, who was a man of action, lost no time marveling at Katie's unexpected words. He heard, and a proud advantage over these rugged, silent men swelled within him. At the instant he regained all the bold defiance of his nature.

"Let us go," he said to her.

"I am ready."

The men who had formed the semicircle were silent and still no longer. They gathered round Bill John and Frisco and voiced their protest against the girl's going. It was unanimous.

"I guess you can stay, Kenny."

Reversing his former decision with these words, Bill John walked away, and Katie, laughing in the pride of her victory, ran back to her kitchen behind Frisco's saloon. She felt certain that Kenny would come to her there presently.

Three hours later, when the men who had formed the semicircle were back up in the hills and Frisco dozed in a corner of his saloon and the mining camp was lifeless and still, the man sought the woman who had saved his life.

For more than an hour he had been cursing himself for a blind fool while he lay outstretched upon the bunk in his shack at the foot of the hills. Any one else, he told himself, would have known that the girl had loved him all the while and that, like a woman, she had only pretended Bilek had won her away from him.

But, even though she loved him and had loved him while he had not known it, Kenny felt that he owed her a great debt for what she had done. She had saved his life. He owed her that at the very least.

He resolved then that he would devote to her happiness and thought a little of mending his ways. He would make it all up to her.

At the kitchen he found her. She was wiping the dishes when he came, and, resting his elbows on the rough window sill, he thrust his head and shoulders inside.

"Katie, that was a mighty big thing you done for me today," he said simply.

The girl dried her hands and came and stood beside the window.

"You saved my life, girl," the man went on. "Why did you tell 'em you saw me—saw it all?"

But still the girl answered nothing. "Was it because you love me, Katie?" After a little hesitating moment the girl looked up, straight into Kenny's hungry eyes, and slowly shook her head.

"No," she said—"no, I don't love you, Kenny. It wasn't that."

The man started, surprised. "Then, why did you tell 'em that lie?" he demanded of her. "Why didn't you let 'em think the job?"

"Because," the girl answered him—"because I need you, Kenny; because I want you to help me. Do you love me, Kenny?"

"God, how many times have I told you?" he cried passionately. "I'd give

"YOU WILL DO THIS FOR ME—WHAT I ASK"

you my life, my heart and soul, my name."

"That's what I'm going to ask of you, Kenny," she said. "It's your name I want—just that."

"My name?" he asked, understanding nothing of what she was trying to tell him. "My name? For what?"

"For the child whose father you killed today," she answered bravely, a little quiver in her voice, and hung her head to hide what might be in her face and in her eyes. "Do you understand now?"

Kenny staggered backward as one under the weight of a heavy blow and stared for a moment, unbelieving. Then he said:

"Yes, I understand now."

"We were to be married next Sunday when the parson comes," she added, but Kenny gave no sign that he heard. He had turned his back to the window and was looking far away across the hills.

"You will do this for me—what I ask?" She pressed him for an answer. "I have been honest with you, Kenny. You must remember that. I need not have told you, and I saved your life today."

"You saved my life, yes," he cried, turning quickly upon her, "but you loved him!"

"You will do it, Kenny?" she insisted as he was turning away.

"Tomorrow I will tell you. I don't know," he answered, and without another word he walked away and went to his shack.

Before sundown a man on a horse, with his blankets rolled into a pack behind his saddle and his outfit strapped to his back, rode out of camp and up into the hills.

It was Kenny, and he was going away.

Down in the little kitchen behind Frisco's saloon in the valley a woman, little more than a girl, was weeping bitter tears.

In the Family.

Uncle Henry married my father's cousin. They lived alone in a great house, which had the most dismal library in the whole wide world. It was all black walnut, lined with books with dull leather backs and uninteresting titles. Over the shelves, against a border of black velvet, were rows of marble statuettes that came from Europe.

There were two invalid chairs with big wheels, although neither Uncle Henry nor Aunt Ella were really invalids, and in one corner of the room was a Swiss music box that played lullabies and airs. Finally Uncle Henry died, and then Aunt Ella, and all the property had to be divided.

Aunt Ella had always worn a large black cameo likeness of Uncle Henry, which had been cut in Rome. It was set as a brooch and was surrounded with rather large sized diamonds and was an object of most sacred veneration to us all. We felt that it should go—as the greatest treasure of all—to the niece with Uncle Henry's name. Can you imagine our feelings when she had it made into a belt buckle?—New York Independent.

Caught It, and It Was Her Own.

Anna Belle Wilson was the proud possessor of a well developed case of whooping cough, and, as she explained it, "It was the first one of the 'catchin' diseases I ever had."

She was just developing a good, healthy whoop when her mother gave her some advice as to the danger of her playmates in catching the disease.

"You must be very careful about playing with other children," her mother said. "When you see them coming to play with you do not lose any time in running from them or they will take it from you."

Imagine Mrs. Wilson's surprise and amusement when Anna Belle catapulted into the front door only a few feet ahead of little Miss Jane Keyes, one of her playmates.

"Mamma! Mamma!" the child screamed. "For mercy sake, shut the door! Jane is after me, and if you don't help she'll take the whooping cough from me! And just think, mamma, it's the only one I ever caught too!"—Indianapolis News.

On Wednesday afternoon there was a collision between one of the heavy auto trucks carting stone for the Winchester Rock & Brick Co. and the 140 Arlington electric. The accident occurred in front of the Niles Estate in Arlington on a straight stretch of road. The electric was badly damaged, one-half of the front vestibule being ripped off clean. The stone truck was not injured in the least. Fortunately no one was injured, although the motorman of the electric had a narrow escape.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Sudden and Unexpected Change at Winchester Office.

Acting Postmaster in the morning and without a job at night tells the story in a nutshell of Ernest W. Hatch's sudden and unexpected ousting from the Winchester office on Tuesday. To say that the Town was surprised would be to put it mildly. Mr. Hatch's successor is Mr. Patrick E. Fitzgerald, Chairman of the Winchester Democratic Town Committee.

The story of the surprise follows: Ernest W. Hatch, Assistant Postmaster at the Winchester office, was appointed Acting Postmaster May 20th, following the death of Postmaster James H. Roach. His appointment was made by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, which company furnished Postmaster Roach's bonds, and his appointment was made subject to the approval of the U. S. Post Office Department.

ERNEST W. HATCH
Deposed Winchester Postmaster

It was then announced that a competitive examination would be held at some unannounced date in the future for the appointment of a Postmaster. While an examination would be held, it was not to be under Civil Service.

Since that time Mr. Hatch has been holding office. On Monday afternoon he received word that Mr. Patrick E. Fitzgerald had been appointed Acting Postmaster, and on Tuesday shortly after noon received a visit from John H. Drew of the firm of O'Neil & Parker, Boston representative of the bonding company, together with Mr. Fitzgerald. He was then told that Mr. Fitzgerald had been appointed Acting Postmaster and requested to turn over his office to him. This he did, at the same time turning in his resignation to the Post Office Department.

Mr. Fitzgerald assumed his new duties on Wednesday morning. Mr. Hatch had held a long and satisfactory career in Post Office work, and has the reputation of being one of the smartest postal men in this vicinity. He entered the service as clerk at the local office May 1, 1901. On April 1, 1902, he was transferred to the Boston Post Office, and on April 28th was appointed clerk at the North Postal Station. He remained at this office until Jan. 10, 1910, during the latter part of which time he was financial clerk in the Superintendent's office.

PATRICK E. FITZGERALD
New Winchester Postmaster

He came to Winchester as Assistant Postmaster Jan. 10, 1910, under Postmaster J. Winslow Richardson, and served during his term and the term of the following Postmaster, the late James H. Roach.

He planned to enter the competitive examination when it was held, but feeling after the sudden and uncalculated change in his administration that his chances would not be as attractive as had previously been imagined, he decided to sever his connection with the Post Office Department.

Mr. Hatch has accepted a position with the Carr Fastener Co. of Cambridge, and enters upon his new duties Tuesday.

CHAPPELL—McCALL.

Quiet Ceremony Marked Marriage of Governor's Daughter.

The wedding of Miss Margaret McCall, youngest daughter of Governor and Mrs. Samuel W. McCall, and Mr. Alfred Hebard Chappell, Jr., of New London, Conn., which was performed at the McCall residence on Myopia Hill Saturday afternoon was marked by simplicity and quietness, only relatives and a small number of intimate friends of the couple being present.

The ceremony was performed out of doors, the pergola at the southwest side of the house overlooking Mystic Lake making a most charming and appropriate spot for the wedding, with its surrounding vines and flowers, backed by the magnificent sweep of country lying away towards Boston. Rev. John W. Suter, Rector Honorary of the Church of the Epiphany, was the officiating clergyman. The Governor's family worshipped under Mr. Suter for 28 years during his pastorate at the church, and he christened each of the children.

The couple were attended only by Mr. Valentine Chappell, brother of the groom, who was best man. The bride had no attendants and was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white satin embroidered with pearls, her dress being made with full court train of tulle over satin, with trimmings of crystals and pearls. Her veil was of tulle and was held by a bandeau of pearls.

A small reception followed the ceremony, the decorations in the house consisting of lilies, larkspur and greenery. The ushers were all classmates of the groom at Yale and included Messrs. Elmore Brockwick of St. Louis, Huntington Lyman of New York, Chard Powers Smith of Watertown, N. Y., and Archibald Richards of New York. The music was by a stringed quartet.

The groom is a graduate of Yale, '16, and is one of five brothers, all Yale graduates. He left this week to attend the second camp at Plattsburg.

LABOR DAY.

Manager LeDuc made a ten strike when he secured the Converse Rubber Co. to play here Monday (Labor Day). Here is a team that is an attraction worth going to see. They have played great ball all season and suffered only two defeats, and it was no disgrace to be beaten by the teams that defeated them, namely, Sanford, Me., and Marblehead, as both these teams have a little something on most of the semi-pro nines. Converse has handled the Minute Boys two nice trimmings, and also Arlington and Wakefield, and from the article of ball they are putting up, it looks as though Winchester would be numbered among their victims. The game will start at 3.15 prompt, and as there will be no extra seats on the field, an early arrival will insure comfort. Autos, as usual, will be allowed in. This Converse crowd brings a big crowd of rooters with them, four trucks going with the team to Fitchburg and large crowds going to Arlington and Lexington with them.

WAR CONDITIONS HIT WINCHESTER.

The first obvious sign of war conditions in Winchester will be shown tonight when the Home Market Co., which has done business for many years in the Waterfield Building at the corner of Church and Common streets, will close its doors. Not enough profit to make it worth while continuing is the reason given for closing.

NOTICE.

There will be no drill for the Home Guards on Monday evening, Sept. 3rd—Labor Day. The next drill will be Thursday evening, Sept. 6th.

M. C. Tompkins.

Mr. Hatch's letter of resignation follows:
Winchester, Mass., Aug. 28, 1917.
First Asst. P. M. General,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:
I have been Acting Postmaster at this office since January 10, 1910, and have been Acting Postmaster since the death of Mr. James H. Roach, the former Postmaster, on May 19, last, and, so far as I know, my services have been entirely satisfactory.

It has now seemed good to the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. to appoint another man in my place as Acting Postmaster. Feeling that I cannot in justice to myself remain in the office under him, I hereby tender my resignation from the service, to take effect at the close of business August 28, 1917.

Respectfully,
(Signed) Ernest W. Hatch,
Acting Postmaster.

MILITARY DRAFT.

More Exemptions Granted—Men Who Go to Camp Next Week—First List Passed by District Board.

The local Exemption Board will announce this morning the following list of exemptions granted to second call men. A list of 60 names will be posted, of which 22 are Winchester men. In addition to this, there will be posted the first 5 per cent of the local Draft who will go to camp at Ayer next week. In this list are four Winchester men:

Rowe, Preston B.,
39 Myrtle terrace
Little, Alfred E.,
19 Everett avenue
Stevenson, Fred C., 26 Clark street
Crowell, Donald G.,
28 Everett avenue

Of these men M. Rowe will leave Sept. 6th and the others Sept. 8th.

In addition to the exemptions granted and the 5 per cent quota leaving for camp, the District Board has returned its first batch of names to the Local Board as acceptable and passed. This list includes men who did and did not claim exemption.

It was stated at the Exemption Board last night that following the first 5 per cent called to camp next week, 40 per cent would be called on Sept. 19th, 40 per cent on Oct. 3 and 15 per cent at a later date. This has not yet been verified by definite orders to the Board.

First Lot of Men Passed by District Board

The District Board for this Division—District Board 3—has made its first announcement of men accepted for service from the first call list sent it by the Local Board at Arlington. This list was sent to the Adjutant-General at the State House yesterday morning, and it contained the names of 97 men in this District, 42 of whom are from this town. This means that the names in this list will be in the first Draft. Some of them accepted service without protest and others, who filed claim of exemption and whose claim was refused by the Local Board, have been also passed.

The 42 men from this town who are in this first lot passed by the District Board are as follows:

Order drawn	Draft	Name
Dist. Town	No.
*6	3	1878 O'Brien, James P., 25 Hemingway st.
*13	8	1752 Lingham, Clarence M., 208 Main st.
*15	9	1572 Fioravante, Errico, 11 Spruce st.
*30	13	1495 Dineen, John Jos., 43 Irving st.
*36	15	1732 Lawton, Henry D., 31 Pond st.
*41	18	2099 Rowe, Preston B., 39 Myrtle ter. (En.)
*42	19	1369 Belville, Arthur A., 43 Brookside rd.
*76	28	1705 Kellough, Willard P., 6 Lakeview rd.

BASE BALL.

Bases on Balls and Wild Throws by Smith Cause Him to Lose His Game.

By "Mack"

Gene Smith, Winchester's pitcher, will have to take the responsibility for the loss of the game Saturday to the Brighton K. of C. In the fifth inning with the score 1 to 0, in favor of Winchester, Smith gave 4 bases on balls with one hit and one error by Duffy netting 3 runs for our opponents, which should never have been scored by consistent pitching. The Sunday Globe states that it was a great pitching battle between Smith and Shea, but you fans who witnessed the game need not be told, that Shea had all the better of the argument; pitching a much more steadier game and was there in the pinches when his meant runs. Then in the twelfth inning an error by Burke and a rank throw by Smith to the first baseman put men on second and third when they were in a position to score with any sort of a hit, which they did when McInerney, the Brighton third baseman, slammed out a three-bagger against the foul pole in left field. There has been considerable discussion in regard to that hit, but if ever a ball was fair, that hit was; of course, Bill Coady called it foul in the first place, but reversed his decision when he saw it hit the foul pole and as further evidence that the hit was fair, Jack Hevey told the writer it struck inside if anything, of the foul line. So let the Alibi rest and give Brighton credit for winning the game. The only reason I have put the statement of the Globe in my article is, that there are a great many base ball lovers away from town and the only means they have of getting facts of the game are from the Sunday Globe until they get the STAR on the Saturday following the game, and they can rest assured they will get the truth from the STAR.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

How Much Can a Town Manager Really Save?

Editor of the Star:

Last week I considered one phase of the subject of savings by town managers; today I propose to present another aspect of the problem, namely, whether those savings are real or only apparent.

In his 1916 report the Norwood town manager says: "As a headline, the remark that we had saved $123 per capita this year on purchases would be startling, and some might condemn it as sensational. Inasmuch as this purchasing for all departments is handled by the Manager, we are somewhat reticent about going into results too deeply; but I trust our readers will be charitable and forgive any seeming boastfulness."

He conquers his reticence and braves the risk of being charged with boastfulness by proceeding to list the savings under twenty-seven items, totalling $14,790.60. He then explains that "these savings are figured from actual differences in prices resulting either by early contracts or by stock up just prior to a rise in price, or are the differences from prices paid in other towns equally situated as to freight rates, etc."

On the face of it this is certainly a good showing, and it struck me as worth while finding out how Winchester fares, with no town manager to save us money. Using the same test and standard employed in Norwood I discovered that we saved last year $4,000 on pipe, $900 on cement, and more than $2,100 on coal, making $7,000 on these three items; I was too busy to carry the investigation further, but am quite sure that twenty-four other items would yield at least another $8,000, and thereby equal the Norwood total. It seems reasonable to assume, therefore, that our regular departments are quite as able to save money as is a town manager.

But whether this is a real or only an apparent saving, I am somewhat in doubt, since purchasing in large rather than in small quantities, buying through competitive bids, anticipating a rising market, and the like, may be interpreted either as the saving of money, or, fully as properly, simply as the exercise of ordinary business sense.

In this connection my own experiences on the school committee come to mind. In receiving bids on coal in the spring we used to secure prices fifty cents to a dollar a ton lower than those paid by individual purchasers. Furthermore, in the

FOUND DEAD.

Restaurant Proprietor Expires Suddenly of Heart Failure.

When Frank D. Carr, employed at the Winchester Restaurant, went to commence his work Saturday morning at five o'clock, he found the proprietor, George E. Sargent, lying dead. Dr. Richard W. Sheehy was immediately called, but Mr. Sargent was beyond aid. His death was due to heart failure. He was 59 years of age.

Mr. Sargent and his wife came to Winchester about four months ago at the time they bought the restaurant. They boarded at No. 22 Vine street. Besides his wife the deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Percy Cameron of Brockton. Mr. Sargent came here from Campello. He was a Mason and was affiliated with the Brockton Lodge.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the Beaver Brook Cemetery, East Bridgewater, where the remains were interred.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow we have a return game with the Revere Athletics. This team beat us about a month ago in the best game played on the field this season. Neither team scored for eight innings and in their half of the ninth the Revere team put over one run which proved sufficient to win the game. The Manager has informed Manager LeDuc that his team has been strengthened for this game, but on what they did to us before they do not require any strengthening, and if the Winchester team will take the writer's advice they will get busy and put over enough runs to win the game in the early innings. Safety first in this case.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The following permits have been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending Aug. 30:

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

Wise men are not exempt from doing some foolish things. Solomon, dreaming of a choice of wisdom, though that choice might involve the loss of both wealth and fame, demands our highest respect, but Solomon, the husband of seven hundred wives, many of them heathen women, the worshipper of heathen gods as a result of their influence, and the votary of extravagant and illicit pleasures, calls for our rebuke and even our disgust. Anyone who, like this royal investigator, is determined to find out what the world is made of, and what it is worth to the individual, is sure to make a mistake. There are some things it does not do to trifle with. The Spectator has known young men who started out with the idea that they were going to explore the wickedness, both political and bestial, of the great cities in which they had sought a residence, with the idea of giving information as to the extent of metropolitan crime and debauchery, and who now lie in drunkards' and libertines' graves as a consequence. They were first disgusted, then rendered curious, then dazzled, then fascinated, then overthrown by the glittering follies they sought to know.

The constant study of impurity is very apt to cause impurity, just as the analysis of melancholy is pretty sure to intensify the disease it was intended to cure. We who would know more about good, will not find much wisdom in first learning all we can about evil. By the time our investigation is over the chances are that we shall find that our first interest has vanished. One might as well go to Greenland to increase one's interest in the tropics, or live for years among those who have never had any schooling to give him an appetite for learning, or associate with the poorest and filthiest of earth in order to give him a zest for wealth and cleanliness, or to go on tours of discovery among the illicit pleasures and inordinate gains of this world with the idea that thereby he may increase his desire for a clean life. Fortunate will he be if at the last moment he discovers his lifelong mistake.

Old statute books are the tombs of dead ideas. How much ignorance, prejudice and injustice are buried in them. How strange and absolute the objects they sought to accomplish. It was a confident belief of the good old times that an act of Parliament could alter all things, even the laws of nature or the heart of man. Witness the attempts to regulate men's religious beliefs by statutes, and to control the course of trade. In the early days of New England strange laws were enacted and cruel punishments inflicted. Think of the ducking of women, accused of being common scolds, in a horse pond, while no such punishment was dealt out to men with abusive tongues. The laws in those days had little regard for the female sex, and awarded a more severe punishment against a woman than against a man for the same offense. The penalties of crime in most cases were the invention of the Court. Men were prosecuted for preaching unsound doctrine—the court of course, determining what was sound—and punished with fine and imprisonment. At Wells, Me., in 1669, George Garland was ordered to have 39 lashes "for visiting the widow Hitchcock," which was hard on the widow as well as on George. Married couples with incompatible tempers, were ordered to live in peace with each other under penalty of forfeiting "20 pounds to our Sovereign Lord, the King." In 1671 Sarah Morgan, for striking her husband, was ordered "to stand with a gag in her mouth at a public town meeting, and the cause of her offense written on her forehead, or pay 50 shillings to the treasurer." The Spectator has seen no record of the punishment awarded to men who beat their wives. They were, however, called to strict account for uncivil speeches or abusive language addressed to each other, and in 1669, Edward Weymouth was prosecuted "for cursing and swearing, and wicked wishes to his wife." People had to be cautious in their speech in those days, and offences now unknown to the law were constant matters of adjudication. Fifteen persons were indicted at one term for not attending public worship. What a busy time the Middlesex Grand Jury would have if this were a criminal offence in 1917. In 1648 the town of Woburn imposed a fine on every voter who did not attend town meeting by nine o'clock, or who absented himself without leave before the adjournment. There is too much neglect of voting in our day, but how would such a law work in Winchester now?

The Spectator.

MILITARY DRILL BY PIGS.

Farmer Newman at Belchertown Well Known Here.

Pigs that do military drills and perform intricate evolutions alone, are an interesting feature of "Jack" Newman's farm at Belchertown. Mr. Newman's numerous Winchester friends will read the following account with interest:

Farmer Jack Newman, who named his trained Carlisle Indian runner ducks after famous Indian school football stars, has organized his piggy according to the infantry drill regulations and says he thinks "military ham" would read well in his advertisements next fall.

Jack has nearly a hundred pigs on his farm at Belchertown, and out of the hundred he has picked a squad of 32, selected as the most intelligent of them all.

His tests for intelligence are ingenious. One of them is to set a pail filled with corn and middlings on one end of a plank elevated about two feet above the ground. An empty pail similar in appearance is on the other end, only under this pail and extending from the bottom is a piece of red cloth. He lets one pig out at a time, and then by the number of false moves it makes in various trials before it learns to reject immediately the red cloth pail he judged the acuteness of its intelligence. Every one of those in his military squad is able to select the proper feed pail without hesitation.

Another of his tests is to set a pail of feed just outside the wire fence within which the pigs are enclosed. Then he makes an opening in the fence a few yards away. The dull pigs keep trying futilely to get through the fence at a point opposite the pail, but you'll see the pigs with brains try it once, then retreat and look around until they discover the opening.

It took about two weeks to select his squad, then the drilling commenced. Every morning before breakfast these pigs followed their drill-master around the edge of the field, just inside the wire. Then they paraded across the centre and did a regular country dance grand march. You know what that is, if you've been where Fisher's Hornpipe and Money Musk prevail.

This kept up for about two weeks, then one morning after letting the pigs out of the barn, Jack was delayed at the entrance to the field so the pigs started to go through their evolutions alone. And they've been doing it ever since. Perhaps they figure they won't get their breakfast until they go through their evolutions.

Of course, as they grow older, they may not keep it up. Jack doesn't know about that, as he never has had a pig army before, nor has he ever heard of one, except the "Schwein" that the Germans mention, although that seems to be badly misrepresented.—[Boston Herald.]

RUN OVER BY AUTO.

Rosie Frumson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frumson of Main street, had a narrow escape from serious injury when she was knocked down and run over by an automobile Monday evening in front of her home. Although the car passed over her, she escaped the wheels, and her only injury was a bad cut on the knee.

According to report the girl ran from her home across the street and ran directly in front of the auto, which was driven by William McGowan of Woburn. The driver saw her and sounded his horn and tried to avoid striking her, but was unable to do so. She was knocked down and the car passed over her, stopping when she was between the rear wheels.

Dr. Sheehy was summoned, who took the girl to the Winchester Hospital, and after her wounds were dressed she was taken to her home.

LAURENCE—HOLWAY.

Lieut. Charles W. Laurence, son of Rev. and Mrs. William I. Laurence, formerly of the Unitarian church in Winchester, and now of Auburndale, was married at Hotel Lenox, Boston, on Wednesday evening, August 22, to Miss Lois Lyford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Holway of Machias, Me. The father of the bridegroom officiated.

Lieut. Laurence is to leave shortly for service in France, having been graduated recently from the Coast Artillery Camp at Fort Monroe, and appointed second Lieutenant in the U. S. Army. He is a graduate of the Institute of Technology, and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. Miss Holway graduated from Vassar College in 1916, and has been appointed an instructor in that institution.

The groom has been at an officers' training camp and attained the rank of second lieutenant.

A WINCHESTER BOY IN RUSSIA.

Among the few Americans who are witnessing these troubled times in Russia is Mr. John F. Blackham of this town. Mr. Blackham, who is Russian representative of a large New York exporting house, has spent the past year in Moscow, where this week is assembled the National Conference representing all factions in Russia, upon the result of whose deliberations depend the future of the nation. During his short stay in that country he has seen the overthrow of an Empire and the birth of a Republic.

Owing to the strict censorship, his letters home refer but very briefly to the internal troubles of Russia, and not at all to the war, but it is expected that if there is foundation for all the despatches we are reading in the daily press, that he will have some interesting experiences to relate upon his return.

SEND-OFF FOR CO. H.

The residents of Stoneham held a big celebration and farewell lawn party on Monday night for the members of Co. H of the 6th Regiment, the Stoneham Company. Members of the Company passed through Winchester during the afternoon in a long procession of automobiles on their way from camp at Ayer.

The Company marched through the principal streets and gave an exhibition drill and were given a banquet at the Armory, followed by speeches and a dance.

Several Winchester boys are members of Co. H, among them being George F. Harrold, John F. Harrold, Joseph MacMannus, H. Randall and Benjamin Lloyd.

STATE GUARDS AT WAKEFIELD.

Winchester Company Had Successful Hike With Taste of Camp Life.

Co. F, 12th Regiment, M. S. G., more familiarly known as the Winchester State Guards, had its first taste of real camp life over the week-end when the men marched to Wakefield and pitched their tents on the range and enjoyed rifle and revolver practice from Saturday to Monday. The Company left at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and were back in Winchester at 8 o'clock Monday morning.

The start was made from the Town Hall in the presence of a large and enthusiastic gathering of families and friends, and the Company got a good send-off for its fine appearance and smart maneuvers. Each man was in full marching order and carried a weight varying from 40 to 50 pounds, including slickers, a half tent with pegs, canteen, rifle and personal effects, not forgetting the necessary blanket. In fact it is reported that the blanket was the one thing the men found the most use for, for while the weather was exceptionally hot and muggy at the time of leaving Saturday afternoon, the night, and more especially Sunday night, was quite cold. A rousing fire in the company street however, gave comfort to a number who were a little thin-blooded, and the two days proved to be among the finest of the summer.

Some of the luggage, including the supplies and cooking necessities, was sent up on Saturday morning by auto, and the men found everything in readiness when they arrived and started in pitching their tents. The cooking was in charge of Private Rodman M. Price, who had as his chief assistants Privates Harry G. Davy and Bayfield Thompson. They evidently did a good job, for the Guards all appear to have been well satisfied with the quantity and quality of what they got to eat, with especial mention of the large quantity of ice cream which they enjoyed on Saturday night through the courtesy and generosity of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald.

Saturday afternoon was taken up in pitching tents and laying out camp work and duties, and on Sunday, after a short drill in the morning, the entire day was spent shooting. The men shot at 200 and 300 yards, and at 25 yard pistol practice. Considering the fact that many of the Company had never fired a gun, the scores were remarkably good, it being said that over 30 qualified at 200 yards, making 37 or better out of a possible 50 bullseyes. In the pistol shooting Lieut. Smalley especially distinguished himself.

The shooting proved of considerable interest to the friends of the members and the following scores, picked from among the best, are published with the consent of the officers:

200 Yards

Lieut. Smalley 39; Sergeants Hovey 4, Sanborn 38; Corporals Doble 44, May 37, Rivinius 43, Taylor 39; Privates Abbott 43, Ashton 42, Barr 39, Blanchard 48 Butterworth 41, Berry 41, Crawford 38, Dearborn 41, Flanders 40, Gleason 43, Hight 40, Johnson 38, Richardson, W. A. 44, Smith, 39, Sheldon 48, Tibbits 45, Thompson, W. 42, Woods 37.

300 Yards

Corporals May 38, Rivinius 39; Privates, Ashton 37, Blanchard 41. The camp was visited by a large number of Winchester people on Sunday, friends and relatives being in evidence all day, much to the appreciation of the men.

Reveille was sounded on Monday morning at 4 o'clock and the Company had breakfast, made up its packs, struck its tents and was on its way before 6. The 7 1/2 mile march to Winchester was made in the remarkable time of 2 hours and 20 minutes, the headquarters at the Town Hall being reached at about 8 o'clock. 67 members of the Company were present and not a man was obliged to fall out on the trip, although several admitted that they were rather tired Monday night after working all day.

The Company reported at the Town Hall on Monday night for inspection of equipment, but drill was omitted.

TAX RATES GREATLY INCREASED.

Although the high state tax and higher local municipal appropriations have affected all cities and towns which have announced their tax rates, there is a general report from all boards of assessors that the change in the income tax law has been responsible for large losses in the personal property valuation of all municipalities. Of course, each city and town has received its share of the State's revenue from this new taxation, but it is evident that the various municipalities would have received more revenue from taxing such property at the local rate.

Brookline was one of the towns hardest hit by reduced personal property valuation under the changed law. Boston, on the other hand, benefited thereby and is one of the few to enjoy a reduction in the tax rate, small though it is.

Many boards of assessors have evidently tried to retrieve valuation losses in the personal property column by increasing the valuation of real estate, automobiles and other so-called tangibles.

A warning from the assessors of Wakefield to the voters of that town is applicable to almost any municipality in the State. The Wakefield board predicts an abnormally large State tax next year, because of war expenditures, and sees greatly reduced building activity because of the high cost of materials and the general reluctance of people to build at this time. These factors will increase each town's share of the 1918 State tax and cause a large falling off in the value of new buildings taxable.

Among the 24 cities and towns in the vicinity of Boston which have announced their tax rates for 1917, extremes are noticeable. Amesbury's rate, for instance, goes up $5.90, while that of Peabody is reduced $7.60. The general tendency is upward, however. Of the 24, 17 have raised the rate and but five have reduced it. Two remain unchanged. To date, Stoneham has the highest rate, $27.70, while Peabody bids fair, among the larger municipalities, to have and had the honor of having the lowest, $15.

Some of the surrounding rates are of interest as compared with Winchester:

	1917	1916	Increase
Winchester	$19.40	$18.40	$1.00
Malden	23.30	21.40	1.90
Medford	21.40	19.80	1.60
Reading	25.00	20.60	4.40
Stoneham	27.20
Wakefield	24.40	23.20	1.20
Somerville	22.00	21.40	.60
Newton	19.80	18.90	.90
Arlington	25.50	23.80	1.70
Needham	18.00	same
Saugus	26.30	24.30	2.00
Brookline	15.70	14.80	.90
Bedford	21.00	19.00	2.00

FELL FROM BICYCLE.

John Carroll of Water street received a bad fall while riding his bicycle down Main street Saturday afternoon, his face being badly cut and he receiving numerous cuts and scratches on his hands. The accident occurred in front of the Unitarian church.

According to reports Carroll was riding down the hill and was followed by an auto. Another auto was approaching and as Carroll thought the car behind intended to pass him he rode out into the car tracks. In doing so his wheel slid along the rail and threw him.

He was partly stunned by the fall and was lifted from the street and carried to the High School lawn by passers-by, and Dr. Sheehy summoned. Examination at the emergency room at the police station, to which he was carried, revealed a bad cut on his face and other cuts on his hands. After his wounds were dressed he was carried to his home.

MEDFORD COMPANY MAY LOSE ARMORY.

Whether the armory of E Company of the Fifth Regiment in Medford, which was endowed by the late General Samuel C. Lawrence, shall revert to the Masonic Educational and Charity Trust Fund, now that the command has been attached to the 101st United States Infantry, is a question which is engrossing the attention of the people of that city.

The armory cost more than half a million dollars and was donated with the understanding that the Medford company should be known as the Lawrence Light Guard. According to the will of General Lawrence it specifies that if there is no Medford Company known as the Lawrence Light Guard for a period of five consecutive years, the armory and trust fund revert to the Masonic trust.

If a company is formed within that time the armory automatically becomes its property.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

fall and winter, prices were advanced fifty cents a ton; so that, in a way we might have argued that we sometimes saved $1.50 per ton on coal; and as the schools burn more than six hundred tons a year, we might have claimed a saving of $1,000. It never occurred to us, however, to put ourselves on the back by announcing in our report that we had saved the town $1,000. That was before the days of town and city managers to teach us the art of self-glorification.

If, for example, a school committee and a town manager, by asking for bids, obtain the same prices, then they both save nothing, or they both save the same amount, as you please; but if a town manager can, for instance, get coal at twenty-five cents a ton cheaper than can a school committee, plainly he does in that case save twenty-five cents, and should receive credit for it. My own query, as set forth in last week's Star, is as to whether a town manager is able to do better on prices than can the existing town departments, and this I very much doubt.

To get back: whether, then, the saving is genuine or fictitious, one thing is sure: if it is real in Norwood, it is real in Winchester; and if it is only an apparent saving in Winchester, it is also only an apparent saving in Norwood. If Norwood saved nearly $15,000 on twenty-seven items, Winchester saved $7,000 on three; if Winchester did not save the $7,000, Norwood did not save the $15,000. Any way you look at it, Winchester seems as capable of doing business in a business-like manner without a town manager as Norwood is with one.

SUMMER REVIEW SCHOOL.

The second session of the Summer Review School extending from July 9 to August 17, 1917, in the Prince School Building, was entirely successful. There were registered a total of 88 children, 41 girls and 47 boys. Of these, 10 attended purely because they were interested in doing school work. Of the remaining 78, 64, as noted on the lists below have been recommended for promotion and saved a full year in school.

The attendance of the summer session this year was almost exactly double one year ago. The wisdom of giving an opportunity of this character has been fully demonstrated, as has also the fact that pupils can study efficiently and happily in warm weather.

Mrs. Anna T. O'Sullivan was Principal, with Miss Mary H. Barr and Miss Edna M. Hatch as assistants.

The Town Manager plan is to again come before the voters for explanation at a mass meeting called for Tuesday evening, Sept. 18th.

Secretary Daniels thinks that he is punishing the Navy League in his determination not to accept clothing from the League for the army and navy boys. Who is he punishing?

Former Lieut. Gov. Cushing has announced his candidacy for the nomination for Governor. He gives as his reason "a widespread dissatisfaction among our citizens with the present administration."

We were told when Gen. Wood was demoted to the southern division that he was to have an important position with charge of the large bodies of troops which would be drilled there. Now that he has been sent to a still more remote and insignificant post another explanation is due.

The Highland Playground appears much neglected this summer. Last year the field was put into condition so it could be used for base ball, but this season it seems hardly suitable even for that. It would be interesting to learn just how the $600 appropriated by the Town has been used at this place.

Winchester has not many "slackers" among its young men. It will furnish its full quota and some over. But it is to be hoped that they will not have to go abroad and that peace will come that will be lasting, according to people the right to live in peace and happiness, which is not possible with the present autocratic and militaristic Germany.

It will probably be next year, if not later, before that connection is made at Arlington with the Elevated for through cars to Harvard Square. This because of the financial condition of the Bay State Railroad. After this has been straightened out, then Arlington opposition may possibly develop that will cause further delay. But sometime the matter may be ironed out in favor of Winchester.

William Jennings Bryan has been heard from regarding the war. He says: "There can be but one end to the war—that is the overthrow of Germany. I find the desire to support the government practically universal. If a different impression prevails anywhere, it is based on the fact that newspapers report the exceptional thing rather than the ordinary thing. If one man of a thousand utters some disloyal sentiment, the disloyalty of the one man is announced, while the loyalty of the 999 is not emphasized."

The polluted waters of Mystic Lake have caused a decided falling off of attendance at the two boat clubs this summer, many members stating that the odor and color of the water is too nauseating to use for pleasure. As a result active steps have been taken by both organizations—the Winchester and Medford Boat Clubs—to protest against the nuisance. Petitions are now in the hands of officers of the clubs, signed by a majority of all the members, and addressed to the Metropolitan Park Commission reading as follows: "We the undersigned, do hereby protest against the ban placed upon bathing in the waters of the Mystic Lakes. We respectfully request that the Commission take steps towards the elimination of the pollution now existing in these waters. The uncleanliness of the water is a hindrance to the pleasure of both canoeists and bathers alike, and a menace to the health of the many people who seek recreation and rest at this place." This petition is soon to be forwarded to the Commission.

It is reported that the special town meeting called for Sept. 24th has as its primary object the appropriation of some seven or eight thousand dollars for the Winchester Company, State Guard. This should provide food for considerable thought on the part of the tax payers. That the State Guard are a desirable and needed body is without question and admitted by everyone, but the Company should not be confused in any way with the so-called Home Guard. As State Guards the Company is subject to orders of the State and may be used in any part of the State; Home Guards are for local service only. It would seem (as was stated at the time of organization) that the equipment expenses should be met by the State and not by the Town. If we are correctly informed the Town has already turned over to the Company the greater portion of the $500 appropriated for the use of the Committee on Public Safety, and the appropriation will be in addition to this sum. If State Guard companies are to be financed by individual municipalities, the poorer towns and cities will apparently be left out, and will be unable to raise their State Guard Companies; on the other hand, being under State jurisdiction and subject wholly to State duty, it would seem fitting that the State bear the necessary expense instead of the Town, as we have been repeatedly told would be the case.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

A special meeting of the executive board was held on Thursday at the home of the Chairman, Mrs. James Corey.

The report of the Knitting Committee is as follows: About 55 boys have been equipped in full. This means over 260 articles. We have sent to the Navy League 650 articles. We have on hand at present plenty of knitted articles and those boys who need them may apply upon application to Mr. Elizabeth Downs.

An appropriation of $75 was made from the treasury for the knitting.

The Comfort Bag Committee reported that 32 bags are made and partly filled.

The Kit Committee has given out 50 Army Kits and about 25 Navy Kits.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

August 27, 1917.
The Board met at 7.30, all present. The records of the last meeting of August 20 were read and approved. Bay State Street Railway Company: Notice was received from the Public Service Commission of a hearing to be held on Thursday, September 6, 1917, at 10.30 o'clock in the forenoon at 1 Beacon street, in regard to proposed changes in reduced rate workingmen's commutation and excursion tickets in Massachusetts. A copy of this notice was ordered sent to the School Committee.

Special Town Meeting, September 24, 1917: A letter was received from the Winchester Committee on Public Safety stating: "At a meeting of the Winchester Committee on Public Safety held August 1st, it was voted to request the Selectmen of the Town of Winchester to call a Town Meeting, September 24, 1917."

Mass Meeting September 18, 1917: The Board voted to hold a Mass Meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday, September 18, 1917 at 8 p. m. This meeting is to be called in order that the Committee of Five appointed by the Town to present to the Legislature the Town's petition for an act to allow a change in our form of government may have an opportunity to make its report and give any information that may be desired by the voters.

Cross Street Bridge: The Town Counsel appeared before the Board and made a report in regard to the piers under the Cross Street Bridge. The Board voted to instruct the Town Counsel to take up the matter of removing the piers under the Cross Street Bridge with the County Commissioners.

Street Railway Investigation Commission: Notice was received from the Street Railway Investigation Commission appointed under Chapter 129 of the resolves of 1917 in regard to holding another public hearing on all matters affecting problems relating to street railways of Massachusetts at the State House, on September 5, 1917, at 11 o'clock a. m. The Clerk was instructed to write the Town Counsel and request that he be present at this hearing.

Aberjona River: The Town Counsel appeared before the Board and made a report in regard to the pollution of the Aberjona River. The meeting adjourned at 10.15 p. m.

George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

GAS!

Louis Enright, of New York, who announced in April, 1916, that he had discovered a cent-a-gallon substitute for gasoline, has disposed of a half-interest in his invention to Benjamin F. Yoakum. Mr. Enright says that the delay in placing the gasoline substitute on the market was due to the fact that he had been tied up for a year by an option on the commodity he had sold to a munitions corporation, which expired April 28. He has been working to discover a chemical that will, when compounded with the gasoline substitute, prevent any chemist from analyzing the green fluid. Enright said he asked the munitions corporation to pay $1,000,000 cash in advance of the delivery of the formula, and an annual income for 17 years equivalent to one-eighth of a cent for every gallon of gasoline sold in this country at the time of the deal, or about $400,000 a year.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The first Saturday in October has been decided on as the date of the Republican and Democratic State Conventions. The latter will meet in Faneuil Hall in Boston, but the meeting place of the Republican convention has not yet been decided upon.

In court Tuesday, Luigi Guzzi, charged with overspeeding an automobile in Woburn, was fined $5.

Mr. H. Z. Cobb and family leave town this week for New York City, where they have taken apartments for the winter on Riverside Drive.

The family of Mr. Richard Clifton of Lebanon street, are spending a few weeks at Harwichport.

Mr. Edward Benet of Lebanon street will leave Tuesday to attend a college at Sherbrooke, Canada. His mother will go with him and spend a week.

The last Sunday afternoon concert of the season was held at the Winchester Boat Club last week. There was a good attendance of canoeists and visitors at the Club during the afternoon and a pleasing program was enjoyed.

BASEBALL.

short and pitcher. When Dana Wingate was at his best there was no comparison between him and any of the shortstops, and Smith with a little use of his head, would be alright, but he wants to play the whole game.

Saturday after that had inning, the 5th, Manager LeDuc told him to let the other side hit, which he did, and he pitched exactly five balls to retire the side, the fielders taking care of the hits for him. He has got a team back of him if he will only use it.

Winchester has got a fine player in Burke on 3d base, a much better fielder than Harkins, and also better batter. Rowland of the White Sox, has promised to give him a show when he comes to Boston this next trip, if the race is not too tight.

Dickerman had to go to Westfield to bid his brother goodbye, and sent up a fine player in his place. He was a great fielder, but a little off at the bat, although reports say he can hit.

Shea, the Brighton pitcher, had Winchester batters swinging their heads off, as the 17 strike-outs testify, he got every player on the team at least once, or more, by the en route.

McHugh, the second baseman for Brighton, must have borrowed a pair of "Babe" Ruth's pants. He surely was a sight in the pair he had on.

McQuinn's boss was away on his vacation and we have Buchanan of the Riverside, in his place. This player is a fine catcher and hard worker, also a fine batter, but did not do much Saturday. He will also play this Saturday.

To the fans who got down early was furnished some amusement by a "kid" out in left field doing batting practice. The "kid," Joe Callahan, went after everything in sight and he made some catches that would have done credit to a much older player. When he got tired of the field he played short and second and did equally as well there. That kind of work makes ball players.

Converse Rubber Co. beat Lexington for the second time. I understand the sports in Lexington dropped quite a bit of change on this game. The bets were made with the understanding that they would be all off in case either team withdrew from the field. That's a fine way to play ball.

St. Ambrose won from West Newton, A. A., and our old friend, Harkins, won the game for his team by a fine hit in the 10th.

Wakefield gave Arlington an awful drubbing, 8 to 0. "Jiggs" Donohue, the Arlington catcher, was held responsible for the loss of the game by the Arlington fans. Of course, the other fellows don't know how to play ball, and some one has got to be the "goat," but 8 to 0 score does not need an alibi.

Standish Club of Dorchester beat Wollaston, but Henry Mathews did not pitch; a player named, Rowe, did the box work while Henry played left field, getting one hit.

Marblehead beat Queen Quality 3 to 0, and won a purse of $600. About 7,000 people attended the game. There is no team in Massachusetts got any business to beat Marblehead with their present lineup. Here is one of the most aristocratic seashore resorts in the country with some of the best people of New England attending the games and they are allowed to play for a purse of $600, while Winchester is not allowed to play for anything. Its to laugh when you fans come to listen to all the alibis about that Lexington game.

It seems to me that it would be a good idea to let Manager LeDuc handle the team from the bench, as that is what he is there for. If he shouts from the bench it is in the way of encouragement, and not to "knock" the player. I have never heard him give a player a call down on the field yet, after the game he sometimes hands a few jolts to a player for some poor piece of work and lets it go at that, but when you sit on the bench and have a certain party come along and call the players and umpire "boneheads", etc., it gets on your nerves and you feel like saying a few things. These players are doing the best they can, and that is all that can be asked of them.

I have not heard anything in reply to my statement in the STAR last week, except from Manager LeDuc. He is perfectly willing that I should have the team for that day and in justice to him I will also say he is willing to do his part towards making the game a success. But oh where, oh where is the rest of that bunch of live (?) sports connected with Winchester Baseball Association? Echo answers, where? Come on, give the Winchester fans what they are entitled to or get out, and leave some one else do it.

BAD AUTO ACCIDENT ON CAMBRIDGE STREET.

A bad automobile accident occurred on Cambridge street at the foot of the hill at the Robinson estate Wednesday afternoon when a heavy truck skidded and side-swiped a passing touring car. Both autos were tipped completely over and were badly wrecked, the tracks of the Arlington electric being blocked for a time, disarranging the schedule.

The truck was owned by the Hood Rubber Co. of Watertown and was driven by James F. Reeves of West Somerville, who was learning to operate under the direction of the regular driver, Herbert P. Nelson of Brighton. The touring car was owned and driven by Dr. Qualitiero DeAmazaga of Roxbury, who was its only occupant.

It is claimed that the truck struck some of the sand which is piled along the side of the road used in repairing, and the rear end swung completely across the road just as the touring car was passing. The truck caught the touring car on the running board just ahead of the rear wheel, and both autos went over.

Dr. DeAmazaga was quite badly hurt, but insisted upon being taken to his home, William J. Murray being called to convey him. One of the men on the truck is reported to have been slightly injured, but did not make the fact known at the time. The other man escaped unhurt.

Word of the accident was telephoned the Police from the Robinson residence and officers visited the scene and aided in removing the cars from the electric tracks.

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Additions to Roll of Honor of Local Enlistments.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions.

The list as filed has been printed for the past two weeks. The following names have been received and added during the past week: Marshall, Charles R.

Reserve officers' training Corps, Fort Snelling, Minn.
Olmsted, Curtis S.
Naval Reserves
Wright, Ralph Edson
Co. A, 1st Corps, 101st Mass. Engineers

For Mental Digestion.
"Lady, let me sell you a package of Cerebellumbiscuits," said the grocer. "You will find them unsurpassed as a brain nourisher. In fact, I can truthfully recommend them as food for thought."

For the City Beautiful.
"Why did you give that awful-looking tramp a dime?" "Oh, merely as a small contribution towards city improvement. He wanted it for carfare to the next town."

Natural Aristocracy.

The democratic element in modern society is undoubtedly gaining in strength every year, and there is no good reason for lamenting its advance.
But it will never do away with the natural aristocracy which has made skill in the conduct of business the endowment for the acquisition of a few.
The weakness of co-operative production thus far has been its gross undervaluation of the manager.—Nicholas Paine Gilman.

Branding Loafers.

The brand of "S" figures in an extraordinary act passed by parliament in 1547. An able-bodied man or woman found loafing and not seeking work for the space of three days could be seized and brought before two justices of the peace, who, upon confession or on the proof of two witnesses,
"shall immediately cause the said lo-afer to be marked with a hot iron on the breast the mark of 'V' and adjudge the said person living so idly to his presentor, to be his slave for two years. The said slave shall be made to work by beating, chaining or other wise." If convicted of running away during this period the justices could cause him to be branded on the forehead or the cheek with the letter "S" and then adjudged to his master as a slave forever. For running away a second time the penalty was death.—
London Standard.

A Cumulative Persian Story.

A hunter finds some honey in the fissure of a rock, fills a jar with it and takes it to a grocer. While it is being weighed a drop falls to the ground and is swallowed up by the grocer's weasel.
Thereupon the huntsman's dog rushes upon the weasel and kills it. The grocer throws a stone at the dog and kills him. The huntsman draws his sword and cuts off the grocer's arm, after which he is cut down by the infuriated mob of the bazaar. The governor of the town, informed of the fact, sends messengers to arrest the murderer. When the crowd resisted troops were dispatched to the scene of the conflict, whereupon the townspeople mixed themselves up in the riot, which lasted three days and three nights, with the result that 70,000 men were slain. All this through a drop of honey.

Calais and Its Lighthouse.

Calais is rather an untidy place for a French town. The Place d'Armes, where the tower of the Hotel de Ville has remained since the fifteenth century, is the center spot. Here Calais meets its friends and has its cafe noir.
In the square, towering out of the roofs of surrounding houses and dwarfing them, is the old watchtower. Since 1818 it has been superseded as a light-house by the magnificent one at present in use. Never shall I forget the effect of this lighthouse as I stood under it that night. The revolving spokes of light cast away into filmy space in all directions, looked like the ribs of a huge umbrella being turned by the white handle, which was the lighthouse tower. So tall is this that its revolving light can be seen from a distance of twenty miles at sea.—Wide World.

Value of Reading.

There is perhaps nothing that has a greater tendency to decide favorably or unfavorably respecting a man's intellect than the question whether or not he be impressed with an early love of reading. Books gratify and excite our curiosity in innumerable ways. They force us to reflect. In a well written book we are presented with the mat-urest reflections or the happiest flights of a mind of uncommon excellence. It is impossible that we can be much accustomed to such companions without attaining some resemblance to them.—
William Godwin.

A Duet With Oneself.

A new use of the phonograph, or whatever a talking machine should be properly called, is that of singing a duet with oneself. Having made a record in soprano or baritone, the singer can slip the disk on to the machine, push the lever and add the tenor, alto or other accompaniment to the heart's content, achieving an unusual and, if it were not mechanical, a scarcely credible effect.

Advice to Authors.

"Be brief. Boli it down. Be concise. Study the great writers of terse English."
"What's the use?" growled the disgruntled amateur. "According to you, the best model I could get would be a laundry list."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

REIGN OF THE MOVIE.

Motion Pictures Found in All Parts of the World.

In Moravia, the capital of the negro republic of Liberia, the solitary "movie" of the town—and, indeed, of the country—is none other than the Liberian House of Representatives!
The pictures are shown on two evenings a week, and they are invariably attended by the dusky president, whose presidential chair is set aside for him as a free seat.

The "picture" craze has reached the Arctic regions, for at Haparanza, a little township in the extreme north of Sweden, and just on the Arctic Circle, there is a handsome little cinema, patronized by Laplanders.
It is frequently snowed up and unable to open.

The South Sea Islands, another inaccessible part of the globe, have likewise succumbed to the lure of the "movies." In the Island of Tahiti there are no less than three kinemas, and business is brisk. The South Sea Islander will sell his shirt, or, if he does not possess such a luxury, his girdle, for the price of a ticket for the "pictures."

One of the queerest places in which a picture show has taken place is in the middle of the Arabian Desert. It was given three years ago by a party of European film agents, who were accompanying an Arab caravan from Smyrna across Asia Minor. A screen was rigged up from bed-sheets, and an acetylene lamp pressed into service for the lantern.
The "orchestra" consisted of Arabs, and their instruments were tom-toms and camel-bells. An hour's show was given, and the spectators, composed of some hundreds of Arabs attached to the caravan, grouped themselves on the desert-sand, with the sky for their roof.

But possibly the most out-of-the-way picture drome in existence is the one discovered by Cherry Kearton, the well-known African traveller, in Uganda. It belongs to the Kabaka, or ruling chief, a nice, cultured youth, educated under an English tutor. He possesses both his own kinematograph camera and his own private kinema, and Mr. Kearton developed several of his films for him.
And in the little picture theatre, situated thousands of miles from civilization, the white men saw screened, to their amazement, films of English, French, and American life which the Kabaka had purchased during his foreign travels.

No Man's Lands.

There are throughout the world several parcels of no man's land, delined and guaranteed by treaties. One of these curious strips of neutral territory stretches across the isthmus that connects the rock of Gibraltar with Spain. It is about half a mile wide and British sentries and the Spanish sentries face one another by day and by night, year in and year out, from opposite sides. The territory in between these two chains of sentinels belongs neither to Britain nor to Spain.
Another similar strip of no man's land exists in North America between the United States and Mexico. Although only sixty feet wide, it is 700 miles in length, extending from El Paso, in Texas, westward to the Pacific ocean.

Altogether there are in the world about fifty of these neutral zones, varying in width from a few yards to as many miles, and the sum total of their areas would make quite a respectable minor state. All the rest of the land surface of the globe is, nominally at all events, in the possession of some power or the other.—Pearson's.

Call Him "Father."

Boys, when you speak of your father don't call him "the old man." Of course you are older now than when you were taught to call him father.
You are much smarter than you were then, you are much more manly looking, your clothes fit you better, your hat has a modern shape, and your hair is combed differently, in short, "fyer" than you were then. Your father has a last year's coat, a two-year-old hat and a vest of still older pattern. He can't write such an elegant note as you can, and all that, but don't call him
"the old man." Call him father. For years he has been rustling around to get things together. He has been held to the thorny path of uphill industry, and the brightest half of life has gone from him forever. But he loves you, though he goes along without saying much about it, therefore be not so ungrateful. — Spokane Spokesman- Review.

Unreformed.

I wish more things were like the English sparrow. How it thrives, although every man's hand is against it!
But we must spray fruit and use a serum on meat animals and doctor the soil which produces the cereals. It always pleases me to visit a patch of wild plums; they get along without bothering anyone. What a fight man is compelled to make for the apple, and what a free gift the wild plum is!
I once rode through the country in a motorcar, and the road was lined with wild crab apple trees. The crab apple trees were in full bloom and very beautiful, but no one had sprayed them or trimmed them. They were a free gift of nature. Are the English sparrows, the wild plums and the wild crab apples so healthy because they have never been reformed?—Ed Howe in New York Independent.

Getting His Fortune Told.

"The future holds a great deal for you."
"When will it begin to loosen up?"—
Kansas City Journal.

Our doubts are traitors and make us lose the good we oft might win.— Shakespeare.

Got His Answer.

A bachelor said at a tea to an old maid:
"Have you ever noticed, ha, ha, ha!
have you ever noticed, ha, ha, ha! that bachelors as a rule are much richer than married men?"
"Yes, I have," the old maid answered.
"Well, how do you (ha, ha, ha!) how do you account for it?"
"Like this," said the old maid: Poor men marry, and rich ones don't. Men are much readier to divide nothing with a woman than they are to divide something, you know.—Detroit Free press.

Treasured Trees.

Two trees to be seen in the main street of Thorshavn, the capital of the Faroe Islands, have an interesting history. Trees resolutely refuse to grow in these islands, except in some few sheltered spots, and the inhabitants therefore prize them greatly. When the road was made it was decided to leave the trees in the middle of the carriageway rather than be guilty of the crime of felling them.—Exchange.

Cholera.

Cholera was first recognized by the Portuguese in India as far back as the middle of the sixteenth century. It has the peculiarity of following a well defined route, with progress just about equal to that of an average journey on foot.

Long Lives the Kicker.

Bacon—It doesn't do any good to kick, you know. Elbert—What are you talking about, man? Why the donkey is the longest lived of domestic animals.—Yonkers Statesman.

Must Have Been Poor.

Critic—How did you get the idea for that play? Playwright—Out of my head, of course. What do you mean? Critic—You must be glad that it is out!

Desperately Ill.

Mrs. Parke—Your husband has been ill, hasn't he? Mrs. Lane—I never saw him so ill. Why, for two weeks he never spoke a cross word to me.

Put Them Aside.

Remedy for things past that cannot be remedied and care for things to come that cannot be prevented may easily hurt, but can never benefit one.

His Ailment.

Wife (as her husband creeps upstairs at midnight)—Well, what ails you?
Husband—Creeping (they parody), n'dear!—Detroit Free Press.

Temptation always gets an introduction to you under some other and more agreeable name.

Three of Them.

Dearborn—Do you know the seven wonders of the world? Wabash—Well, I know three of them. Dearborn—Only three? Wabash—Yes, I've only got three sons, you know.—Exchange.

Revenge No. 1.

Adam partook of the first shad.
"You made such a fuss over losing a bone I thought I'd give you plenty," observed Eve.—New York Times.

Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint.—Daniel Webster.

FRESH AIR PICNICS.

Robert Gould Shaw house in the notable G. A. R. week just closed has given its childhood constituency a joyous picnic which does honor at once to its distinguished head and its current virile management. The local Evangelical Church Union was host and under Miss M. B. Doolittle as head, the Shaw house children were the delighted guests on this unique occasion.

THE PRESIDENT

Who welcomed the brilliant, gallant Colonel Shaw and his earliest martial Pioneers of Liberty.

Having prayed weekly together through the summer, in the absence successively of the several local pastors, it resolved to work and serve together also as was met. Our Middlesex Fells Fresh Air Union furnished the desired opportunity.

Decorated appropriately with "Old Glory" the centrally and conveniently located Fells band stand, there were gathered under its graceful canopy 50 poor children of the Colonel Shaw house vicinage.

the one mile distant Bear Hill tower and more games on the the broad green athletic field, luncheon at 4 p. m. of ice cream, bananas and cake was served.

If, when the Picnic Union of the five towns jutting up against the Fells—Malden, Medford, Melrose, Winchester and Stoneham—was started in July, 1917, others were allowed for a time to take the laboring oar, Stoneham credited with beginning the new Union movement, in the later entertainment is again leading by its full and willing share in the work.

Epworth League associates, Girl Scouts, as well as Melrose Camp Fire Girls have been in evidence in leadership of late. The Stoneham local Church Union named above last week most successfully entertained the Robert Gould Shaw poor children and enterprising people, was followed by a joint committee of Congregational organizations and on Wednesday closed the series by a rally of Stoneham Scouts entertaining a fresh section of "Deaconess Industrial School" poor children of (West End) Boston.

The portrait of Robert Gould Shaw emphasizes stalwart patriotism; of Dr. Charles Rice, president of the Federated church action and of Father Clarke associated endeavor of young people to fill worthily the places of the present active seniors in continuing the grand, solid social work for Christ and His kingdom.

The gallant Colonel Shaw fitly leads the line in this G. A. R. week as at Fort Wagner he headed the make-weight service of an emancipated race to the powers

"FATHER ENDEAVOR" CLARKE

Four committees of the four Evangelical churches of Stoneham as follows: Mrs. O. W. Richardson and Mrs. Robert Newcome, Congregational; Mrs. Arthur Hovey and Mrs. Kelley, Baptist; Mrs. Kinney and Mrs. Graham, Methodist; Mrs. Wheeler with adequate aid, Evangelical; furnished a rich and abundant menu, an equal quarter part each.

After varied sports and games by the children about the stand, dinner was served by the four committees of the four churches acting together as they had so often prayed together, cooperating in harmonious, sumptuous and generous fashion.

Later, after a spirited "hike" to making for righteousness and general betterment. To the universal joy also presaging early, assured and lasting victory to home, church and native land.

Troops both of adults and children from our nearby town were present at the Shaw-Stoneham picnic last week besides the Church Union official workers.

Last but not least Mr. Arthur H. MacPhee, with his swift auto, both at 10 a. m. and again 5 p. m. did yeoman's service for which he has the unanimous thanks of the Middlesex Fells Fresh Air Picnic Union membership and especially the undersigned, perhaps the chief beneficiary.

John H. Emerson.

REV. CHARLES F. RICE, D. D., President Federated Churches

WILL DISCONTINUE CAR LINES.

Some of the Bay State Street Railway lines will be discontinued, according to a statement from President Sullivan, unless opposition to the efficiency, or one-man car, is removed.

When asked what he had to say with regard to the opposition of some of the Bay State employees to the introduction of the one-man car, President Sullivan said: "All I have to say is that the one-man car, or the efficiency car, is coming because service to the public demands it, and when public service calls, no man or group of men can successfully oppose whatever the public wants. The chief objection to the introduction of the efficiency car is that it may throw some men out of employment.

"We know for absolute certainty, and this fact may be given the widest publicity now as well as later, that we shall discontinue some cars absolutely. We plan to substitute efficiency cars on some non-paying lines. Should that not be approved we shall operate no cars on such lines.

"We also plan to operate such cars on some lines by giving more frequent service. Unless these one-man cars are substituted on these lines, two men instead of one will be thrown out of employment."

The packages of soldier's and sailor's note paper—ready to mail—can be had at Wilson the Stationer's.

LABOR DAY FEATURE.

Director J. Searle Dawley in speaking of Marguerite Clark's latest photoplay, "The Valentine Girl," which he directed for the Famous Players Film Company and which will be released on the Paramount Program, said: "In the Valentine Girl I believe that we have secured the ideal combination—a plot that is technically perfect and a leading role that fits Marguerite Clark as well as any she has ever played. Miss Clark's winsome personality lends itself particularly well to child impersonations and yet as a 'grown up young lady' she has a certain charm of manner seldom if ever equalled on the screen.

"In this picture she combines the two in her own inimitable fashion and has produced a character that will, I am sure, greatly endear itself to the heart."

The story is about a little girl, Maria Morgan by name, whose mother is dead and whose father is a confirmed gambler. She isn't brought up at all like ordinary children, but like the immortal Topsy, she "just grew up," and it is no thanks to her father that she blossoms into winsome young ladyhood.

"The Valentine Girl" will be the attraction at the Woburn Theatre next Monday, Labor Day.

FINED $10 FOR STEALING POTATOES.

Mrs. Ann Johnson was fined $10 in the Woburn court last week by Judge John G. Maguire on the charge of stealing potatoes from the garden of James Cullen. The case was heard previously and was continued in order that Mrs. Johnson might produce witnesses and furnish an alibi. Mr. Cullen testified that he saw Mrs. Johnson taking the potatoes from the garden. His ten year old son also testified. Mrs. Johnson appealed.

BASEBALL MONDAY MORNING

Cambridge Playground Champions Play Winchester Playground Team.

As a fitting climax for the successful playground season at Manchester Field, a baseball game has been arranged between the Rindge Team, champions of the Playground League of Cambridge and the Winchester Playground team for Labor Day morning at 10 o'clock. It may be said for those who enjoy a baseball game that it will be well worth their while to journey to Manchester Field and witness these two teams, which have already played two very interesting games, Cambridge winning one by the score of 5 to 2, while the other game went 10 innings to a tie. This Cambridge aggregation which is composed of young boys, 15 and 16 years of age, is the champion Playground team of Cambridge and possesses players who are able to hold down berths on the Cambridge High School teams.

However the Winchester team is rounding into shape and by Labor Day it should be in such good condition as to give the Cambridge team a good trouncing. The High School boys who are on the team are Vally, McAdams, Cummings, Dunbury, Flaherty, Walsh, Callahan, and Matthews; while Tansey and Black enter the High School this fall and both show signs of being future ball players.

The probable lineup will be:

Winchester	Cambridge
Vally 1st	Cote ss
Callahan 2nd	Foley 3rd
McAdams 3rd	Cleary 2nd
Black cf	McGovern 1st
Walsh cf	O'Connor lf
Flaherty p	McCrehan cf
Tansey rf	Zaracoff rf
Mathews c	Getro c
Cummings lf	Davis p

PLAYGROUND GAMES.

The Playground Juniors of Manchester Field defeated the Woburn Juniors Monday afternoon in a very one-sided game by the score of 11 to 5. The visitors, who lacked team work, were never considered dangerous and this afforded the Winchester team a chance to try out many new plays. The features of the game were the pitching of Tansey, and the playing of Dwyer and Carroll for the winners, while Keal and R. Kearns performed in good style for the losers.

The lineup:

Winchester	Woburn
Dwyer 3rd	Ahearn 1st
Carroll ss	R. Kearns 2nd
Goode 2nd	Glennon ss
J. Tansey p	Sargent lf
McDonald 1st	L. Kearns 3rd
Ryerson rf	Duran cf
T. Tansey lf	Leonard rf
Callahan c	Keal c
Foster cf	Desmond p
Innings	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Winchester	0 0 1 0 2 0 1 1 0 — 11
Woburn	3 0 1 2 1 3 1 0 — 5

Juniors Win Again

The Playground Juniors of Manchester Field easily defeated the Woburn Juniors in a one-sided game Tuesday afternoon by the score of 12 to 6. For five innings it was a very interesting game with the game tied at 4 to 4, but in the 6th and 7th innings the Woburn team actually went to pieces and the Winchester team secured a lead of 8 runs, which gave them an opportunity to try out many substitutes. The features of the game were the playing of Callahan, Goode, McDonald, Ryerson, Foster and T. Tansey for the winners; while Glennon played an exceptionally fine game at short-stop for the losers, knocking down a clean hit with his bare hand.

The lineup:

Winchester	Woburn
Dwyer 3rd	R. Kearns 1st
Carroll ss	Glennon ss
S. McNeilly ss	Sargent lf
Goode 2nd	L. Kearns 3rd
Sullivan 2nd	Duran cf
J. Tansey p	Seader rf
McDonald 1st	Keal c
Ryerson rf	Sam McNeilly c
McGrath rf	Desmond p
T. Tansey lf
Callahan c
Foster cf

Innings	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Winchester	2 1 0 1 0 5 3 0 — 12
Woburn	0 0 0 4 0 0 2 0 — 6

Seniors Lose Game

The Rindge Playground Seniors of Cambridge defeated the Winchester Playground Seniors at Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon by the score of 5 to 3. It was a very close race until the ninth inning, neither side being able to obtain a substantial lead over the other. However, in the first half of the ninth inning with the score tied, Cote of Rindge, secured a scorching two-bagger, which drove in a man from second and later scored himself. This practically decided the game for the Winchester team lacked the necessary punch and were unable to score any runs in the last half of the ninth. The features of the game were the hitting of Cote of Rindge, who succeeded in getting two doubles and a single. McCrehan and Rogers also played well for Rindge, while Black, McAdams and Mathews excelled for the Winchester team.

The lineup:

Rindge	Winchester
McCrehan lf	Vally 1st
Zaracoff 3rd	Black ss
Cote ss	McAdams 3rd
Rogers 2nd	Dunbury 2nd
O'Connor p	Flaherty p
Boyle c	Mathews c
Cleary rf	Walsh cf
O'Toole cf	Tansey rf
McGovern 1st	Cummings lf
Innings	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Rindge	1 0 0 2 0 0 2 — 5
Winchester	0 2 0 0 1 0 0 — 3

QUANNAPOWITT FAIR OFFERS MANY PRIZES FOR THE CHILDREN.

Undoubtedly this will be the banner year for exhibits of children's garden work at the Reading-Wakefield Fair, Quannapowitt grounds September 12, 13, 14 and 15. Twice the usual space has been reserved for the children this year, and the cash prizes are the usual generous amounts this fair has now become noted for.

For those who like to make exhibits of collections there are opportunities in six classes, for which there are 15 prizes offered.

There are 36 classes for those who have vegetables to exhibit and these exhibitors are offered 144 cash prizes.

The girls are urged to try to win some of the 33 prizes which are offered for cooking. Good prizes are offered for white bread, graham bread, loaf cake, johnnycake, doughnuts, cookies and apple, squash, pumpkin, mince and Washington pies.

And all those doing so much canning of vegetables should remember there are nine classes in that department where 27 cash prizes are offered. Especially show examples of your skill in canning peas, beans, tomatoes, corn, squash, beets, cauliflower, dandelions, Swiss chard and spinach.

Don't forget the flower gardens either, for 81 prizes are awarded for the exhibit of your choice specimens.

People generally were surprised the last two years at the fine quality and the great quantity and variety of the exhibits made by the children. Last year the space required was twice as much as that used the previous year, and this year in order to accommodate the anticipated demand, the school garden exhibit has been compelled to move to the Grange floor, and in doing this, the school exhibit has in turn crowded out and deprived two Granges of the space in which to make their customary exhibit.

Any public school pupil is entitled to take part in this competition, and those desiring detailed information about conditions may obtain it from the school garden committees, who will be furnished Premium Lists by the Secretary, E. H. Perley. More than 300 prizes are offered this year.

FLYGRAMS.

It is a short haul from the garbage can to the dining table via the fly route.

It is better to screen the cradle and wear a smile than scoff at precautions and wear mourning.

Flies in the dining room usually precede nurses in the sick room.

Screen windows and prevent crepe on the door.

A fly in the milk may mean a member of the family in the grave.

It costs less to buy a screen door than to get sick and lay off a month.

Flies are a disgrace, they indicate nearby filth.

No filth, no flies, fewer flies, fewer dead babies.

How long will you continue to let the fly eat at your table?

Get the flies before they get you.

Lice are accidents, fleas are a nuisance, bedbugs are a disgrace, but flies are a householder's own fault.

Do not buy fruit, meat, groceries, etc., where flies are tolerated. If the flies beat you to it let them have it.

The fly is a home wrecker. Destroy it.

When the fly comes in the window, good health goes out the door.

If man were as persistent as the fly, there would soon be no flies.

If at first you don't succeed, swat.

RAILWAY INVESTORS ORGANIZE.

That Massachusetts street railway stocks have depreciated over fifty per cent in the past five years, that investors have gone on strike and refuse to put any more money into street railway properties, and that those who own street railway securities, of whom there are over 30,000 in Massachusetts, must immediately bestir themselves to save their investment from becoming a total loss, were the points brought out at a meeting held at the Algonquin Club.

The conference was attended by owners of street railway securities from all parts of the State. Representatives of savings banks and of insurance companies were especially in evidence. Their interest in the rehabilitation of street railway properties and in the passage of laws which will give investors in those properties a square deal can be understood when it is stated that the savings banks alone have thirty-three million dollars invested in street railway securities and that the insurance companies have over five million dollars invested.

SARATOGA SUFFRAGE CON-FERENCE.

Mrs. Norman deR. Whitehouse, Chairman New York State Woman Suffrage Party since 1915 says: "When suffragists from all over the State of New York gather in Saratoga on Aug. 29th and 30th, there will be less than ten weeks left of the great campaign for bringing democracy to New York. This last-lap conference of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party will gather from the ranks of the suffragists prominent men and women in every walk of life who will come together to give and receive inspiration for these last weeks of work, which on Nov. 6th will tell the story of suffrage in New York State.

The meetings will be held in historic Convention Hall, the scene of practically all the important political conventions of the State. The conference will be welcomed to Saratoga by its Mayor, Hon. Walter P. Butler and among the speakers will be: Hon. Charles S. Whitman, Gov. of New York, Hon. John Purroy Mitchell, Mayor of New York City, Hon. James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany; Hon. Herbert Parsons, New York State member of the Republican National Committee; Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank; Jacob G. Schurman, President of Cornell University, and Mrs. Ella Alexander Boole, Ph. D., President New York State Women's Christian Temperance Union. Western New York suffragists will come in gaily decorated automobiles. Mrs. Frank J. Stone, Chairman of the Eighth Campaign District, will be pilot of a mammoth parade whose route will be over 300 miles long. In every city of any size there will be street celebrations and short speeches and literature will be distributed—Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw alone distributing 10,000 leaflets from her car."

The extraordinary growth and efficiency of this organization is most remarkable, showing the intense interest that has been roused since the 1915 campaign. As in that campaign, each of the 150 Assembly Districts in the State has a leader and there are 600 working clubs; but the striking growth is shown in the voting precincts. More than two-thirds of the 5,798 election districts in the entire State have captains and committees at work. The actual enrolled membership is now more than 800,000—more than either the Republican or Democratic Party of the State have on their enrollment books.

A new active organization has been formed called the Men's Advisory Board of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party. Among its prominent members are men of letters, statesmen, financiers, labor leaders, professional men, and all sorts and conditions of men, "all brought together by the one ambition to see New York State made 'safe for democracy' by insuring self-government to all its people. And women are people." Watch the papers for reports of this important Convention.

M. E. Allen.

PROGRESSIVE SCHOOL.

Adds New Course and Evening Sessions to Meet War-Time Demands.

The serious lack of office help caused by enlistments last spring has been intensified by conscription this fall.

Banks and business houses have been unable to secure young men to fill the vacancies thus caused, and are looking to the young women to supply the deficiency.

The Bryant & Stratton School, Boston, with characteristic enterprise, is doing its part to relieve the situation by adding a new course—Mechanical Accounting—and opening an evening session.

The Mechanical Accounting Course can be taken in about six months, so that by another spring the result of both efforts will be available to the business community. The equipment for this course is of most modern, up-to-date type, and includes calculating, listing, bank bookkeeping and commercial bookkeeping machines.

The Evening Session will be appreciated by a large number of ambitious men and women who have a desire to better their condition, but are unable to attend a day school.

MEDAL PLAY AT COUNTRY CLUB.

C. P. Whorf gained a place in the finals in the Capt. Crane Cup tourney at the Winchester Country Club Saturday afternoon. The regular weekly card was a medal play with full handicap.

The score:

	R. L. Smith	79	8	71
	J. K. Williams	103	28	75
	R. T. Damon	105	28	77
	C. P. Whorf	94	12	82

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

"Here Comes the Bride" is a supreme laughing success at the Hollis, where joyous peals of merriment give glad greeting to the crispest, funniest farce comedy that Boston has enjoyed in many years. A wonderful cast of expert players is provided to unravel the countless comic twists and tangles through which a golden thread of romance runs. "Here Comes the Bride" is more than a laugh provoker. It is a real love story of infinite charm and it throbs with the eager enthusiastic sentiment of youth.

Comedy characterizations, as clean cut as a cameo, are given by George Parsons, Frank Walsh, Inez Buck, Mildred Booth, Walter Fenner, Mario Marjeroni, William Lennox, Albert Reed, Kenneth Keith and Thomas Meegan. "Here Comes the Bride" is already a coast to coast laughing sensation, for it was given in San Francisco coincident with its presentation by the original cast in Boston, and was received with equal enthusiasm at both ends of the trans-continental line. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees at the Hollis with a special Labor Day matinee Monday.

The assistance of the ladder truck of the Fire Department was asked for last Saturday evening when a young member of the household of Mr. George G. Tarbell of Ridgfield road locked herself in the bathroom and forgot the combination. A ladder raised to the window resulted in a quick and safe liberation. On Sunday evening a similar instance occurred at the Lane Building, when one of the tenants became locked out in the corridor. As in the first case, the Fire Department's ladder proved an easy solution to the problem.

Automobile owners are warned that they must restrict their pleasure riding and if they do not do so the government is likely to take drastic action. Unquestionably, there is altogether too much pleasure riding, too much fast driving and too long trips and the curtailment suggested would benefit everybody.

Preparations are being made by the citizens of Stoneham for a lawn party to be held on Saturday, Sept. 8th on Pomfret street grounds, in aid of the enlisted men. ### MATCHES AT COUNTRY CLUB.

Freddie Wright and G. Heller of the Albemarle Club scored a win over L. A. Babcock of Winchester and L. E. Marsh of the Worcester Country Club at the Winchester Country Club Wednesday, taking an 18-hole match by 6 and 5. After Marsh and Babcock halved the first three holes the Albemarle players went out for a victory and the result speaks for itself.

Wright in his round Wednesday broke the par record for the Winchester Club's course by scoring a 74. He was out in 37, with a 6 at the second, and home in the same figures with a 6 for the 13th hole, which is 250 yards and is par 6. Wright played wonderful golf, never missing a drive or a putt, and approaching dead to the pin. The only other player in the State who shares the honors with Wright in breaking 75 is Francis Ouimet, who has scored a 72 on these links in practice.

WINCHESTER SCHOOL GARDEN EXHIBITION.

Saturday, September 15, 3 to 9 p. m.

All who attended the School Garden Exhibition two years ago will anticipate with much pleasure a similar exhibition of flowers and vegetables to be held in the Town Hall, September 15. In addition to the usual exhibits there will be a canning demonstration by School Gardeners, and many boys and girls will exhibit the results of their first efforts in preserving fruits and vegetables for the winter in various ways.

Another interesting feature will be a sale, conducted by the children, of surplus vegetables from the School Gardens and from the Fort-nightly Hospital Gardens. No admission fee will be charged and a large attendance of grown-ups as well as children is expected.

WAR RELIEF WORK IMPORTANT MEETING.

All the workers who have been interested in the branch that has met at the Parish House of the Church of the Epiphany, are cordially urged to attend a meeting next Friday, Sept. 14, at ten o'clock, in the same place. There will be an open discussion in regard to the work for the coming year, which is very important. Those who have been knitting during the summer are requested to bring in all the finished work.

Come and bring your friends, that this organized work may start under favorable circumstances. Contributions of money, and materials for the comfort pillows are urgently solicited by the Standing Committee. Mrs. Louis Barta, Cabot street, Treasurer.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

The rain Saturday caused a postponement of the Revere Athletic game and it will be played this Saturday. This team is one of the best we have faced this year and they have been beaten only once by any club this season, and as I said last week, an early start in the run getting by Winchester will help out towards a victory. I understand they bring a new pitcher with them and it is said he is a wonder.

BASE BALL.

Converse Rubber Co. Gets the Break and Defeats Winchester in a Great Game.

By "Mack"

Before the largest crowd of the season Winchester fell a victim to the strong Converse Rubber team on Labor Day afternoon. This Converse team came here heralded as a great crowd of ball tossers, and they lived up to their reputation, but at that they had nothing on our own team except in the matter of luck. Smith outpitched Somerville in every inning except the eighth, and as usual the fatal base on balls was his finish. Cronin opened the inning with a base on balls and was sacrificed to second by Urann and scored on John Murphy's fine drive to right, and here is where Smith fell down. He should have taken McCarthy's throw in and got the runner going to second as he had all the time in the world to do it, but he let the throw go right through to McQuinn, where there was one chance in a hundred of getting the runner. The result was, a man on second where he could score, and he did a minute later bringing in what proved to be the winning run. Winchester scored their only run in the 9th, and a man was left on second with no one able to bring him home. The home team put up a great game behind Smith making some fine plays and with a little consistent hitting might have won the game. The writer has seen all the best teams of Greater Boston in action against Winchester this season, and without prejudice can say that no team that has played here, has shown any marked superiority over our own team. And as I have said in my articles before, if Smith would only let his players do some of the playing for him, several of the lost games would have been on the winning side of the ledger.

SERVICES AT THE UNITARIAN CHURCH.

Next Sunday morning services will be resumed at the Unitarian church. At 10.30 a. m. the minister will preach on "The World Salvation," showing the need of a larger ideal than personal salvation if the Kingdom of Good Will is to come among men.

The first session of the Sunday School will be Sunday, Sept. 16th. For the three Sundays of September the School will meet as a unit, and Mr. Metcalf will take the time usually devoted to the lesson with an account illustrated by the Stereopticon on the talk of the Christ as found in Ben Hur. The regular lessons will begin the first Sunday in October, and the record for "recognition" will begin then.

The first meeting of Knights of King Arthur will be held about the first of October.

WAR SERMONS.

Commencing next Sunday morning, Rev. Mr. Chidley, Pastor of the First Congregational Church, will commence the first of six sermons on the war. The topic for next Sunday, Sept. 9, will be: "A Sermon for Those Who Fight." This will be followed on Sept. 16, "The Omnipotence of Love."

Sept. 23, "A Sermon for Those at Home."
Sept. 30, "A Place in the Sun."
Oct. 7, "What America is Fighting For."
October 14, "Kultur or Culture?"

Rev. Mr. Chidley says: "World conditions give a peculiar emphasis to spiritual things just now. Many who never thought very deeply on religious questions are thinking long, long thoughts as the issues of war press closer to us and ours."

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

Change Would Cause Voters to Lose Interest in Elections.

Editor of the Star:

There are a number of objects to be aimed at in any government, national, State, or local; the creation and maintenance of a constant healthy, lively public interest is one of the most important, and the New England town government has been pre-eminently successful in this respect. This system is no creation of yesterday; it dates back not only through nearly three hundred years of New England history, but through still other hundreds in England; while those who have read and who remember their Caesar and Tacitus will recall that in its broad outlines it prevailed two thousand years ago in that part of north-western Europe whence came our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. An institution of such antiquity and effectiveness has earned better treatment than to be lightly revolutionized by a radical application of fad-spun theories.

Thomas Jefferson long ago expressed his belief that the "townships in New England are the vital principles of their governments, and have proved themselves the wisest invention ever devised by the wit of man for the perfect exercise of self-government, and for its preservation."

More than a century later James Bryce, author of the best treatise on American government ever published, was able to testify to the continued existence of this characteristic, by stating that of the various "types of systems of local government, that of the town or township with its popular primary assembly has been the best. It is the cheapest and the most efficient; it is the most educative to the citizens who bear a part in it. The town meeting has been not only the source but the school of democracy."

These are simply two of many testimonies which might be quoted from witnesses of high authority.

The Winchester Town Government Act provides, among other things, for a short ballot, nor would, so far as I am aware, is the only New England town now having such a ballot. As has been previously related, for

SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hartson of Hillcrest Parkway celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Monday afternoon and evening. About one hundred and twenty-five guests enjoyed their hospitality and brought tokens of cut glass and silver. This amiable couple have resided here during the past twenty years and have made many friends. The grounds, which are laid out in a most attractive manner, were very prettily decorated with strings of colored electric lights, while the house was decorated with flowers, ferns and lights. Many guests came from out of town and renewed acquaintances with old friends present. Among the gifts brought were two dozen silver knives and a dozen silver forks from friends at the Highlands. The refreshments were served by young people, both afternoon and evening. Music was a pleasant feature and late in the evening the rooms were cleared and dancing enjoyed. This couple have the well wishes of hosts of friends for their future.

BLANCHARD-PARKER.

Fall Wedding at Unitarian Church Wednesday.

The first fall wedding of note, an event of considerable interest to Winchester society, was that of Wednesday afternoon at the Unitarian Church, when Miss Dorothy Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Parker, Jr., of Willwood street, and Mr. Wallace Blanchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denman Blanchard of Pine street, were united in marriage by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, pastor of the church, at four-thirty.

The ceremony was attended by a large gathering with guests from many of the surrounding places besides the home town. Decor

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator has been requested to publish the following poem under the title "In a Summer Gone By." Miss Minnie Irving is the poetess:

There's a rusty old sword hanging up by the door
That a youth of the patriot army once wore,
And a broken old spinning-wheel under it stands
That whirled 'neath a patriot maiden's fair hands;
The sword has grown dull with the wear of the years,
And a cobweb alone on the spindle appears;
But the blade it was blue and the wheel it was spry
When Washington fought in the summers gone by.

Sweet Betty sat turning the wheel in the sun
In a sad-colored gown as demure as a nun,
When Hiram came in at the white wicket gate
By the lavender beds to discover his fate.
She looked at the sky and she blushed rosy-red,
And she stooped for a sprig from the lavender bed,
For she knew very well by the light in his eye
That Hiram came wooing that summer gone by.

He spoke of the cot in the wood-land's embrace
With windows that waited to frame her sweet face
In a tangle of roses, and how to the end
Their lives and their pleasures would peacefully blend;
But swiftly she turned, with her cheeks in a flame,
"Why dream you of peace or of pleasure—for shame!"
While others go forth for our country to die?"
Said the patriot maid of that summer gone by.

"There is bloodshed and famine abroad in the land;
Go get you a sword and a troop to command,
And fight for our country; and when it is free
Return to the rose-girdled cottage—and me!"
He went, with a sob swelling up in his throat
And the lavender sprig she had dropped in his coat;
And she washed him from sight with a smile and a sigh
"Mid the roses and pinks of that summer gone by."

No letter, no message, and deep lay the snow,
"It will come, then," she said, "when the crocuses blow."
No message, no letter, and sun-shine and rains
Had summoned the hawthorn to hedges and lanes.
She sat at her wheel with the tears dropping down,
And a lavender sprig in the breast of her gown.
When they told her how bravely a soldier could die,
And brought her his sword in that summer gone by.

She laid her pale lips in a kiss to the blade.
"I gave you my dearest, my country," she said;
"But I die for his sake!" And she suddenly pressed The bloodthirsty blade to her beautiful breast.
Green lieth her grave on the hill-side afar;
Above it each night hangs a luminous star;
And the lavender grows in the flower-plot nigh
As it grew in the dew of the summer gone by.

"It has always seemed to me," said a clear-headed good-hearted Winchester woman, after a discussion upon the events in local society, "that of all the wasted time that one could imagine, that was the worst used, that was spent in arguing, and especially on the topics upon which the people who talked could never by any possibility agree. It seems such a useless expenditure of time and breath to talk with nothing in the world to be gained by it. I am willing to converse, world without end; if there is any purpose, but to go on hour after hour discussing something that often leads to a good deal of warmth and upon which there is no possibility of arriving at an understanding, is, in my opinion, simply ridiculous."

"A great many years ago, I learned, when there was danger of anything like a heated argument, to hold my peace. If I advanced an idea and somebody took it up and attempted to convince me that something else was far better, or that my conclusions were wrong, I simply sat still and looked at him in silence."

"They did not, as a rule, continue the subject very long, and I was spared a great deal of wear and tear and the possibility of getting drawn into a heated discussion, a thing which I detest. It is no unusual thing for people to find themselves at enmity simply over words. No principle is involved, nothing is gained and no one is benefited; therefore, my way is, when somebody sets out in a determined vein to talk me into something, frequently on a topic that I am not in the least sympathy with, I refuse to have anything to say on the subject and settle back in my chair, prepared to listen, without limit of time, but under no circumstances to express my opinion, either pro or con. I find, by the way, that the argument which is all on one side is not likely to be a very long one and that the discussion in which only one person takes an active part lacks that acrimonious quality that the ordinary debate is likely to have."

Since 50 years or even less, there has grown up in this country the whole science or art of physical culture. There has been fear on the part of some that this art is degenerating into athleticism and will do harm instead of good, as was the case in ancient Greece. While there may be some danger of this, yet it is to be hoped that it will be averted. At any rate, there is far less danger in over-doing physical culture than there would be in neglecting it.

It is true that exceptional powers of mind have now and then displayed themselves in persons physically weak; but even if this is true, there are certain advantages resulting to all mental processes, ordinary or exceptional, from that which promotes the health of the brain. A further benefit conferred by physical training is its influence upon character. A host of mushroom frailties, vices, and foibles break down in the presence of such vigorous growths as the resolution, the endurance, and the manly self-reliance engendered by a habit of orderly and thorough training of the body. Justice, fairness, and fellow feeling are developed by the same wholesome training, and thus many a lad at school acquires almost unconsciously that living force of character without which intellect is of but little account.

Let us, then, by all means, perfect our system of physical culture and see that every boy and girl in Winchester has the advantage of it. The Spectator.

WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Let Your Idle Books Help Our Soldiers.

Our young men are sacrificing their education, business, professional training and home life to serve their country.

They need books and current magazines for study, recreation and diversion in lonely moments. You can help them by donating books and magazines which will be forwarded to army camps, the front, and the hospitals.

Books on the War, Popular Travel, History, and Biography, as well as Short Stories, Detective Stories, Stories of the Sea and Adventure, are desired. Any readable book of general interest, will appeal to the soldiers, as there are men of varying tastes among them.

"Do your bit" by immediately bringing to the Public Library such books as you wish to donate.

The United States War Department has asked the American Library Association to furnish and maintain public libraries for the thirty-two cantonments and National Guard training camps, with their hundreds and thousands of young men.

It is the intention to raise in the United States a fund of one million dollars for this great work—less than a dollar for each soldier and sailor in the service.

To secure this amount, the inhabitants of each city and town are asked to give an equivalent of five per cent of its population. One dollar apiece from the stay-at-homes will give to those who are fighting our battles a nite of the pleasure they crave, relieve the pangs of homesickness and loneliness, keep them in touch with the life they have vacated, and bring to them inspiration and encouragement.

The librarian will gratefully receive donations for this fund.

Flora A. Quimby, Librarian.

PARTY REGISTRATION.

Secretary of State Langtry announced that, notwithstanding a general impression to the contrary, it will not be necessary for any citizen to declare his political party allegiance before the day of the September primaries in order to vote at the primaries.

Secretary Langtry states that the voter will take place when the voter asks for a ballot at the primaries. Each voter will be required to announce his name and residence and the warden will ask this question: "With what political party do you desire to be enrolled?"

If the voter refuses to answer, he will not be allowed to vote.

The enrolment thus effected will continue in effect for three years unless sooner changed upon 30-days' written notice to city or town clerks, or Boston election commissioners, according to act of last year.

HIGH SCHOOL BASE BALL.

As Base Ball Editor of the STAR we suppose it gives us the right to cover everything in the way of base ball in this town. What we want to say is this, that from the outlook this season it does not seem as though we will be able to turn out any sort of a foot ball team in the High School, and if it would be proper to suggest, it would be a good idea to start fall baseball practice and get an estimate of the material that may be available for next year. There is no question but what Winchester has made a good choice in the selection of a faculty coach, and a man that knows the game from A to Z. Other towns do, this, Wakefield and Peabody being examples; both towns had first class school teams owing to early fall practice. Let Mr. Mitterling size up the players, he will do the rest.

HART-BRADLEY.

Mrs. Florence M. Bradley of 20 Adams street, Bangor, Me., and Henry J. Hart, who makes his home at the Bangor House in that city, were quietly married Saturday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William S. ## HOW TO KEEP FIT AFTER 45.

From the Instruction Book of the Senior Service Corps, Organized By Walter Camp for Men Past Military Age.

Drink without eating and eat without drinking. Five glasses of water a day, none with meals, will make you free of the doctors.

Warm feet and a cool head need no physician.

A bath, cold if you please, hot if you must, with a good rub, starts the day right.

If you will save your smoke till after luncheon, you'll never have smoker's heart.

Wearing the same weight underclothing the year around will save you a lot of colds.

Dress cool when you walk and warm when you ride.

Your nose, not your mouth, was given you to breathe through.

Clean skin, clean socks, clean underwear every day.

Don't sit with wet feet. Walk until you have a chance to change.

Never let a day pass without covering four miles on foot.

See how high you can hold your head and how deeply you can breathe whenever you are out of doors.

Hot water quick is the best thing for a sprain.

Short shoes and shoes that don't fit cost a lot in the long run.

Getting mad makes black marks on the health.

Envy, jealousy and wrath will ruin any digestion.

When you rob the trolley company of a nickel by walking you add a dime to your deposit of health.

You'll never get the gout from walking.

Sleep woos the physically tired man; she flouts the mentally exhausted.

The best record in golf is the record she has made of restored health to the middle aged.

Tennis up to the 30s, but golf after 40.

Nature never punished a man for getting his legs tired. She has punished many for getting their nerves exhausted.

Two hours of outdoor exercise by the master never yet made him over-critical of the cook.

Don't ask the heart to pump extra blood to the brain all day and then to an overloaded stomach all night.

Tight shoes have sent many a man to bed with a cold.

Leg weariness never yet produced brain fog.

Loose clothes, loose gloves, easy shoes spell comfort and health.

No wise athlete stands still after exercise without putting something over him.

Open windows don't make half as many colds as closed ones do.

Too many drinks at the 19th hole undo all the good of the other 18.

The best way to use the Sunday supplement is to stick it under your vest while you walk an hour against the wind, and then come home and read it.

Blood pressure does not come to the men who walk a lot out of doors; instead it looks for those who sit and eat a lot indoors.

Many a man finds too late that his motor car has cost him more in health and legs than it has in tires and gasoline.

A four or five-mile walk daily makes your credit at the bank of health mount up steadily.

Nature won't stand for overdrafts any more than your bank.

The men who chase the golf ball don't have to pursue the doctor.

You never saw a dog fill his mouth with food and then take a drink to wash it down.

BASE BALL.

years and of course when you have a good team you get the crowd with you.

Somerville is the same old steady, reliable pitcher, but he will never get over the habit of falling down on bunts. Winchester only tried it once and got away with it easily.

Right here I want to say that bunting seems to be a lost art with Winchester. With the exception of Dickerman, no one seems to try it.

Probably a great many of you fans do not know the reason of Somerville's inability to handle a bunt. Well, through an accident he has lost the greater part of the forefinger of his right hand and when in a hurry he cannot pick up a ball like an ordinary pitcher.

When "Mack" drove out that two-bagger it seemed as if it would have been good base ball to sacrifice him to third and then with any kind of a hit, or boot on the part of the other side, he would be in a position to score.

The Malden crowd started a great game of "Craps" down at the lower end of the field, or at least that is what the writer has been told they were doing, but a hurry call from the police scattered them, and "Bill" Nicholson says that after they came up the Parkway each one handed him a quarter, so "Bill" had no kick coming.

Some of the indignant spectators said the police should have arrested this crowd. But as in all cases of arrest the police have got to get evidence and in this case they had about as much chance as a snowball has where Kaiser Bill will land after the war.

It was a hard crowd to handle, especially on the third base side, and when Officer Kelley appeared everyone seemed to breathe a sigh of relief. Mr. Davidson of the Park Board, then suggested that the Base Ball Management had better get a second officer, which they did. And later Sergeant McCauley appeared and he surely pushed that third base crowd back with his usual energy. There is only one way for an officer to handle a crowd like that, and that is to go after them as though you meant business. No other way will do.

Now on the first base side, which is usually occupied by Winchester fans, there is absolutely nothing to do except look after the "kids" when they get too strenuous. It seems on Labor Day that there was some criticism about the way the crowd was pushed back beyond the first base foul line. There is no need for anyone to be pushed back there, as there is plenty of room for all unless they crowd the foul line, which the writer did not see them do Monday, and I generally keep my eyes open for just that thing.

Now for the roofing part of it. The Brighton K. C. brought only a few rooters with them and they did some great rooting for their team, and Labor Day the only live part of the game was when the Malden crowd started to root and this is as it should be. Base ball as I have said many times, is for people with red blood in their veins, and the one thing lacking on Manchester Field is the good old rooting that goes with any live ball game. By that I do not mean to act the rowdy or be obnoxious in anyway, but good clean cheering will help to win many a game. You should bear in mind you are not attending a Sunday School convention and sit with your hands folded waiting for the meeting to adjourn, but get up and let off some of the excess energy that each one of you have got somewhere in your system. It is up to our side to get the other fellow's goat, or they will get ours if it is not chained. It seems a little late in the season for this advice, but I have been waiting for some of this rooting all season, but it has failed to arrive.

And here comes The Times to the bat. And they surely hit for a home run every time they come up. Listen:

J. Willard Hayden of Lexington, manager of the Minute Boys, is today entertaining the members of every team that has played Lexington this season, with seats at the double header game at Braves Field and a big dinner at B. A. A. afterward. Hayden is one of the best "sports" in this vicinity and he is proving it to the satisfaction of fans and players alike with the spirit of generosity and good fellowship he is constantly displaying.

Hayden is the man who took the fall out of Winchester, several weeks ago, and made Winchester quit on the proposition of a series of games between Winchester and the Minute Boys.

One of the ladies connected with the Management of the Winchester Hospital spoke to the writer about a game for that institution. Well, why not? Now this game should be played early this month before the weather is too cold for base ball. There is no reason why it should not be. Last year it was held on the worst possible day of the season, and the crowd was disgusted before the game was half played, and then the writer had to chase around the field and dig up players to fill out the Winchester team. But at that it was the best game of the year with the strongest team we ever faced.

I can vouch for Manager LeDuc, he is ready, and the writer is waiting to do his part. Come on Base Ball Association (?) What are you going to do? An early reply will oblige, and you are not going to get away with this as easy as you did with the Minute Boys' game. I fail to see anything too good for Winchester or Winchester Institutions.

Here's what the other teams were doing Labor Day.

St. Ambrose handed the Saugus team an 8 to 0 beating. Neither one of the Mullens played for Saugus, and probably that accounts for the one-sided score.

The Maples of Salem fell down before the United Shoe team, 4 to 2. A great many players on the Maples were former members of the United Shoe.

Marblehead beat Manchester twice. The morning game was a heavy hitting game. Bailey, our nemesis last season, had nothing but his glove and was batted all over the field. McMahon took his place without warming up, and held the Marblehead crowd in check. In the afternoon Manchester managed to get three hits off Davies, losing the game 2 to 0.

The Minute Boys beat a team from the Quartermasters' Dept., 4 to 1. Trayers did the pitching for the army players.

Falmouth and St. John's C. C. broke even for the day, winning one apiece.

Brighton K. C. beat Wakefield 2 to 1, Shea getting 11 on strikes.

Pere Marquette played their last game of the season against the Emerson Shoe Co. of Rockland, and were beaten 6 to 5. The Pere Marquette team has lost almost twice as many games as it has won, and still they want a big guarantee to play.

Arlington won twice with the Maynard town team with their usual lineup.

Standish Club won the series from Wollaston by getting the game Labor Day. Joe Fahey pitched for Wollaston.

Peabody and the Cornets of Lynn had a rough house. Pierotte, the Lynn pitcher, and Bill Joyce, the Peabody Manager, had a fist fight after the game. Both of these teams have a tendency to this kind of work, and other teams should be careful about arranging games with them. Henry Mathews pitched for Peabody, and did good work.

An error by "Decker" Thornton helped him to the loss of the game. The Lynn team only got four hits off him.

Revere Athletics won from the Linden A. A., 7 to 0. Steele, the Revere pitcher, allowed only two hits.

The West Medford A. A. seems to have a strong team down there, and have lost only a couple of games this season, and they have played some strong teams.

Downer, Ordnance Reserve, Watertown; James Leslie Johnston, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, Company C, Framingham, or on way to France; George Warren Johnston, Medical Reserve Corps, Company N, Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt.; Edward James Lloyd, 6th Massachusetts, Camp Devens, Ayer; Horace Martin, Naval Reserve, Commonwealth Pier; Wilbur Walter McEwen, enlisted at Newport, not yet called; Frank McEwen, U. S. S. Louisiana, Norfolk, Va.; Leicester Raynor, Field Artillery, Boxford; Maurice Oscar Reebnacker, 5th Regiment, H. D., Marine Corps, somewhere in France, and who was one of the first to place the Stars and Stripes on French soil; Edward Karl Reebnacker, 6th Massachusetts, Camp Devens, Ayer; Howard Chapin Spaulding, Naval Reserve, Bumkin Island, and Wesley H. Blank, who was drafted, and Clarence M. Lingham, who also was drafted. Those who have been, or are members of the State Guard are as follows: H. Wadsworth Light, James Johnston, John L. Lutes, H. Earle Richardson, Harry C. Sanborn, Newton Shultis, and Edward S. Winn.

RINDGE BEATS WINCHESTER IN FINAL GAME OF THE SEASON.

Labor Day morning the Rindge Playground team came here for a game with the local Playground boys. This Cambridge team won the championship of the playgrounds in that city, and the article of ball they put up showed why they did it. They had a "kid" pitcher named Cote, and he got twelve of the Winchester team on strikes. The Winchester team was woefully weak at the bat and some of the players could not hit the ball with a barn door tied to a paddle, and they also made seven errors to help the good cause along. McKenzie, Shaughnessy and Hevey helped out the Winchester team and without them it would have been a farce. Black at third, put up a good game and that about tells the story.

The score: Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E Rindge 2 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 4 2 2 Win. 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 0 3 6 8 Batteries, Cate and B. Zarakraft; McKenzie and Shaughnessy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. ## Shingles that won't catch fire from sparks

The wind may blow and sparks may fly. HAVE NO FEAR if your house is roofed with RUBER-OLD shingles.

No roof covered with RUBER-OLD shingles ever caught fire from sparks. Insurance companies regard these shingles highly because of their fire-resisting qualities.

We recommend RUBER-OLD shingles because we know they can't warp, curl, rot or split.

They can be laid like wood shingles, without felt or tar paper lining. They offer the architectural effects of Slate or Tile at a much lower cost.

The Republican State convention will be held at Springfield, Oct. 6.

An exchange observes that "about the only way a bride can attract any attention nowadays is by marrying a civilian."

A reckless automobile driver in Winthrop was fined $20 for failure to stop within eight feet of an electric car that was allowing passengers to alight.

Keep an eye on your flag. When it becomes torn and tattered, get another one.—[Stoneham Independent.]
But what are you to do with the old one. You can't burn it. You can't sell it to the junkman. You simply can't do anything with it, except to keep it. Of course this comes from sentimentalists.

A driver of an automobile truck was before the court at Woburn yesterday for driving on an excluded road in the Fells, who could not read nor write. He had a license, but could not read the warning sign. The judge was surprised. The man was fined $5. This is an indication that not much is required to procure an automobile license.

One of the prettiest views about town is the vista across the Mill Pond from Mt. Vernon street. With the well kept shores and grassy island this spot, formerly so unsightly, is now a show place of the centre. The Town Hall grounds on the east side of the pond have greatly improved by the recent rains and are in thorough keeping with the surroundings.

We hear a great deal about the exorbitant prices charged for coal and flour. But did it ever occur to you that in about all the other necessities of life you are paying from 50 to over 150 per cent more than you paid a year or so ago. And in the end the total excess paid for the numerous necessities is far greater than was paid for coal and flour. And there appears to be no remedy. The slogan among all dealers in all articles appears to be
"get all you can."

A garden thief in Leominster was sentenced to ten days in jail last week. An extension of this enforcement of the law to other cities and towns would no doubt be beneficial to owners of fruit trees and gardens.
In this section a complaint is followed by an arrest only to have the judge of the court put the offender on probation. Which is very discouraging to owners of gardens and fruit trees, who see in the disposal of the cases very little incentive to raising fruit and vegetables.

There seems to be a concerted if not willful attempt to wreck the Royal Arcanum, which has and is doing so much good. Another bill of complaint seeking the appointment of a receiver has been filed in the U. S. district court. A complaint of a similar character brought earlier in the year was not sustained and it looked as if the order might weather the storm but the filing of a second complaint will tend to disgust the members and arouse a distrust that bodes no good. These attacks are decidedly injurious to the members of the organization, and appear to be the result of spite. The organization is perfectly solvent.

The meat in the reply to the Pope by President Wilson is the following paragraph: "We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure, unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves, as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. Without such guarantees, treaties of settlement, agreements for disarmament, covenants to set up arbitration in the place of force, territorial adjustments, reconsti-tutions of small nations, if made with the German government, no man, no nation, could now depend on."

The usual repair work on the railroad gates in the centre has been going on for the past fortnight following the putting of the crossing into operation by the Highway Department. Sunday and Labor Day the sun of the crossing was without making it one of the most dangerous spots Winchester has had this summer. The number of near accidents at busy times during these two days was without number, and that no fatality occurred is a miracle. The usual hump on both sides of the crossing, recently eliminated by Supt.

Clark, is now very much in evidence and ready for fall and winter travel.
It would seem a saving in money and risk for the Railroad to lay pipe tunnels between the gates and thus do away with the regular monthly digging for once and all.

R. E. Robbins, deputy fish and game commissioner, says in a warning to protect and save bird life:
"The great dangers of this situation
—too obvious to need explanation—must be met at once. Learn the game laws thoroughly. Obey them conscientiously. See to it that others obey them. Report all violations to the game commissioners.
Thus may you help to make these laws a power for great good. Add to this—and it cannot be too much emphasized—a systematic, year-round administration of justice to the bird's most mortal enemy.
Every cat not really needed as a ratter and mouser, or counted as a member of the family, should be promptly and mercifully put to death, on sight. Every cat allowed to live must be kept indoors all night, well fed always (and especially just before going out), prevented from roaming at will,
and, in general, carefully trained to be a law-abiding citizen. One cat, in its lifetime, may kill several hundred birds; one bird may kill many hundred thousand insects.
Save the birds!"

Prof. Albert M. Kales of Chicago says:

"The clear perception of what is necessary for the maintenance of the extra-legal government will provide the wise politician with a deep-rooted political philosophy. His creed, if uttered, would sound something like this: I believe in the disfranchisement of the voter by keeping him too ignorant politically to vote intelligently. I believe that all voters, no matter how intelligent in general, can be made politically ignorant in voting by placing upon them a burden of investigating candidates and attending elections, but which they can conceivably, but which will not in fact, perform. I believe that such a burden upon the voter can be produced most readily by the centralization of governmental power in every possible way, and the constant application of the elective principle. I therefore believe in fostering the popular fear of kings, the popular prejudice against the centralization of power and the filling of offices by appointment.
Above all I believe in more democracy (i. e., more applications of the elective principle) as the cure for the ills of democracy. With these deep-seated convictions, the course of action of the wise politician in many respects is not difficult to predict and not difficult to understand when it is observed". And this leads the Boston Herald to say,
"Are not these pertinent reflections for the consideration of the constitutional convention and the public in connection with the initiative and referendum?"

FISHING IN RESERVOIRS.

Question Again Before the Court Yesterday.

This question has again been brought actively before the town.
Simmered down it is a contest between the town and the Metropolitan Park Commission. The Commission will not police the reservoirs unless it has absolute control of them and prohibit fishing. The town allows its citizens to fish, but to prevent indiscriminate and free fishing to all outsiders, it looks as if the town would have to police the reservoirs at its own expense, as the Commissioners refuse to police the reservoirs if fishing in any form is allowed. In other words the Commission wants absolute control of the reservoirs and its shores, and it is inferred, to make them part of the park system. The town is not willing to give its reservoirs and surrounding land to the Commission.
There is a confusing lease given to the Park Board by the town that is causing differences of opinion and now it is proposed to enter on the task of clearing it up Monday, Sept.
17, in the court at Woburn.

Some time ago there were arrests made at the North Reservoir by the Park police of several Winchester men for fishing. The cases were dismissed by the court. Now complaints have been brought against Messrs. Frank Richardson, Charles B. Bird and Mr. Spaulding and they appeared before Judge Johnson in the Woburn court yesterday charged by the Park police with fishing in the North Reservoir contrary to the rules and regulations of the Park Commission. The defendant's were represented by counsel while the commission was not represented except by the arresting officer.

Mr. Bird was the first of the trio to be called and he pleaded not guilty. Mr. A. E. Whitney explained the existing situation to the court, which the latter is somewhat familiar with from previous cases brought before him. Judge Johnson said he hoped the question would be settled for good and all, and he therefore continued the case to Sept. 17, that counsel for both sides be given an opportunity to argue their cases and settle the question for all time.

Messrs. Whitney, Kendal and Sanderson of the Water Board were present, to testify for the town's side of the case.

It is understood the Water Board favors regulated fishing as the reservoirs are crowded with fish, which are dying and polluting the water and which have to be taken almost daily from the reservoirs.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 4, 1917.

The Board met at 7.30, all present.

Town Hall Engagements: The Board voted to grant the Winchester School Committee the use of the small Town Hall on Saturday, the 15th of September, for the annual school garden exhibit.

Town Hall Engagements: Mr.
Ralph L. Ripley of 11 Thane street, Dorchester, Mass., with a letter of introduction from Mr. Frederick N.
Kerr, appeared before the Board in regard to a petition which had been received from him asking that a license be granted him to produce an entertainment consisting of moving pictures to be given in the Town Hall during the coming Fall and Winter. As the Fire Prevention Commissioner has refused to allow the Winchester Town Hall to be used for a moving picture entertainment, the Board refused Mr. Ripley's petition.

Markets: A letter was received from the State Board of Agriculture asking for information in regard to public markets.

Licenses, Hackney Carriages: A petition was received from Mrs. C. J.
Murray for a license for a public taxi to be stationed at the Boston & Maine Depot in Winchester. This petition was referred to the Chief of Police for report.

Bay State Street Railway Company: A letter was received from
E. J. Donovan, Supt. of the Bay State Street Railway Company, Wo-burn, stating that after giving the matter careful consideration he did not feel that the car stops should be replaced at Hemingway and Canal streets.

Gypsy Moth Departments: Letter was received from the State Forester enclosing copies of a notice to be sent to property owners or inserted in a local paper in regard to the destruction of gypsy and brown tail moths. This matter was referred to the Tree Warden.

Board of Health: Letter was received from Dr. C. J. Allen, Secretary of the Board of Health in reply to the Selectmen's letter of August 22d, which called the attention of the Board of Health to the unhealthy condition of a manhole located near the depot and belonging to the Metropolitan Sewer. Dr. Allen in his letter states that he has brought this matter to the attention of the proper authorities and enclosed with his letter a copy of a letter which he sent to the Metropolitan Water & Sewerage Board in regard to this manhole.

Licenses, Explosives and Inflam-mables: The Board voted to hold a hearing in the Selectmen's Room, at 8 o'clock p. m. on Monday, Sept.
24, 1917, in regard to the petition of Mr. I. E. Sexton, 19 Wedgemere avenue, Winchester, for a license to store gasoline in an underground tank at the above address.

The meeting adjourned at 8.15 p. m.

George S. F. Bartlett,

Clerk of Selectmen.

A WISE INVESTMENT

If You Have Invested in Liberty Bonds the only practical investment is to prevent depreciation of your real estate by having necessary repairs made now to resist the long Winter.
Statistics prove that 80 per cent of the exterior repairs are due to the storms of the Winter season. Yearly the wise automobile owner has his car overhauled to resist the wear and depreciation during the season his machine must withstand a large mileage.
Apply this exceptional logical method to your home or real estate holdings by making an appointment with me to estimate shingling, floor laying, remodeling, building and jobbing.

OUR DISGRACE.

Nothing reported from the battlefields of Europe has been more brutal, more inhuman, than the lynching of a Negro a few weeks ago in Memphis, Tennessee. That shameful affair, followed by the horrors of the East St. Louis debauch of arson, torture, and murder, at the very hour when the nation is professedly standing as the defender of manhood rights and human freedom, must seem incredible to the civilized world. There are evidently men among us as savage and cruel as any we have denounced across the sea.

Unless the government of the United States sets itself resolutely to protect the sacred rights of its citizens, who at last will blame the twelve millions of the colored race if they rise in determined rebellion to vindicate their rights by the only forces left at their command? No other race has equalled, in patient suffering of injustice and wrong, the colored race. At times it has almost seemed as if they had won their plea for justice by obedience to the Christian teaching of returning good for evil. But they too are human, and the day may be nearer than we think when lowly, enduring patience, outraged beyond measure, will give way to the spirit which will demand justice. It was out of this spirit that America was born.

Put yourself, white American citizen, in the colored man's place! How long would you endure at the hands of your fellow-citizens the cruel injustices that are being heaped upon him?—(Dumb Animals.)

PUBLICITY.

(Ernestine B. Norris in People's Home Journal)

Said Mrs. Duck to Mrs. Cluck: "I wish you'd tell me why that any day you chance to lay, there goes a hue and cry. And every fowl sets up a howl that reaches to the sky?"

"My eggs are twice as big and nice, and yet I blush to know. Were I to lay a peck a day, the price would still be low; And not a drake would action take, and not a cock would crow."

Said Mrs. Cluck to Mrs. Duck: "Your modesty is to blame; 'Tis always I that starts the cry, and you must do the same. Who never dares to 'honk' his wares must play a losing game."

"If you'll go back and loudly quack when you have fruit on hand, Your kith and kin will waddle in and bray to beat the band, And in a trice you'll raise the price of ducks in every land."

A homely speech, but it should teach me secret of success. The duck, or hen, or race of men who reach the top, I guess, Will have to own a megaphone, likewise a printing press.

GRAVESTONE ON ELECTRIC.

Monday forenoon there was a large number of Hebrews who got on the electric car on their way to the cemetery at Montvale. One of the men had a gravestone with him which he deposited on the rear platform in the way of passengers getting on or off the car. He was ordered by the conductor to remove it to the front of the car. Some years ago a hawk was seen driving through Winchester on the way to this cemetery on a dasher of which was seen a small box resting on its end which presumably contained the body of a child. Some persons who saw it, wondered whether the child was standing on its head or its feet.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

Hints for the Housekeeper.

To can tomatoes by cold pack method

Choose tomatoes not too ripe. Scald 1 1/2 minutes or until skins are loosened. Cold dip. Remove stems and cores. Pack directly into hot jars. Press down with tablespoon (add no water). Add level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Put rubbers and covers of jars into position, not tight. Lower into boiling water to within an inch of top. Boil 1/2 hour.

How to can corn by cold pack method

Corn seems to give home canners more trouble than do most products, but with care and study corn may be canned as easily as any other product grown in the garden. A little experience in selecting the ear, and the ability to recognize corn that is just between the milk and the dough stage are important. Blanch 5 minutes on cob and cold dip. Cut the corn from the cob with a thin-bladed sharp knife, and pack it at once into sterilized jars. Best results are obtained when one person cuts the corn from the cob and one person fills the containers. If it is necessary for one person to work alone, he should cut off sufficient corn to fill one jar, pour on boiling water, add salt, place the rubber and cap in position, and put the jar into the hot water at once. As corn expands a little in cooking the jars should not be filled quite full. Water-logged or soaked corn indicates slow or inefficient packing. Add level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Boil in water bath three hours.

Buttermilk a food drink

A pleasant, refreshing beverage and a nourishing food combined in one product, is found in buttermilk. People are beginning to realize that it is much better to drink a glass of milk or buttermilk than it is to consume other drinks having little food value.

Buttermilk Lemonade

A delicious variation may be made from ordinary buttermilk by the adding of lemon juice and sugar. Buttermilk lemonade usually requires the juice of three lemons to one quart of buttermilk. The quantity of lemon and sugar, however, should be varied to suit the taste.

Food value of American cheese

American cheese is a very satisfactory substitute for meat. Extensive experiments carried on by the Department of Agriculture have demonstrated that more than 95 per cent of the protein of cheese is digested and 90 per cent of its energy is available.

The Special Aid Society wishes to announce that twelve blankets (made from knitted squares) are now ready to send away. All those interested in seeing them may do so by calling at the home of Mrs. E. L. Dunning, 469 Main street, any time between Saturday morning (Sept. 8th) and the following Monday evening.

HOW TO EFFECT FOOD ECONOMIES.

1. Too thick paring of vegetables:

Remedy. Pare thinly or not at all until after they are cooked, thus save mineral matter and often 15 per cent to 20 per cent of the whole vegetable.

2. Discarding coarse lettuce leaves, celery tips and roots and dandelion and spinach nubbins and roots.

Remedy. Save and cook until tender, rub through a sieve and use with the stock for vegetable soup. They contain much mineral matter, which is very valuable.

3. Throwing away the water used in cooking rice, macaroni or vegetables.

Remedy. Save for use in stock pot or as basis for cream soups or sauces and thus use the starch and mineral matter.

4. Leaving raw food in the mixing bowl.

Remedy. Use care, patience and a flexible knife and save much good food material.

5. Discarding the cores and skins of apples when making apple sauce.

Remedy. Save and make jelly, without cost except for the sugar, heat and labor. Small amounts of each fruit juice may be canned and later boiled down for jelly.

6. Removing the pink skin from rhubarb.

Remedy. Cut through with a sharp knife and retain the skin and with it the flavor of the rhubarb.</

Sun

The sun's scorching rays dry out exposed wood and cause it to crack. Next comes the driving rain, soaking the parched boards. Decay follows.

Protect your house from the sun with paint made of Dutch Boy White-Lead thinned with pure linseed oil. That is proof against all sorts of weather and long keeps a handsome, smooth appearance.

Whatever your needs in painting (big or little) we have both the advice and all the materials necessary for a first-class job. Write, phone or call.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

"Here Comes the Bride" has gaily ushered in the new season at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. This American play is the newest Klaw & Erlanger production, presented by arrangement with Edgar MacGregor, an expert at directing successful farce comedies. The scenes are laid in up-to-the-minute New York. The picked and expert farceurs, identified with recent notable successes of the period, include Otto Kruger, who scored decisively in "Young America," "Captain Kidd, Jr.," and "Seven Chances;" Francis Larrimore, seen here in "The Master Mind," since when she has developed comedy charm in the New York and Chicago casts of "Fair and Warmer," "Some Baby," and "Seven Chances;" George Parsons and Maude Eburne of popularity in "A Pair of Sixes;" William Holden, recently with Elsie Ferguson, in "It Pays to Advertise;" Inez Buck, who was the lead in "The Mischiefing Lady;" Albert Reed, recently of Grace George's company; Franklin Arrell, vaudeville headliner and comedian of "The Family Cupboard;" and others, including Mildred Booth, Mario Majeroni, Kenneth Keith, Thomas Meehan, William Lenox and Walter Fenner.

Every soldier will want a fountain pen. Moore's non-leakable are by far the best for rough army life. Always ready—never leak. All styles at Wilson's the Stationer's. ag3,tf

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

It is an old and infallible rule in the theatrical world that only the best plays come back. This rule applies without any reservations to "Good Gracious Annabel," the vivacious comedy by Miss Clare Kummer, which will open a return engagement at the Park Square Theatre, Monday evening, Sept. 10th. Lola Fisher, as the dashing and altogether delightful heroine and May Vokes as the irrepressible "lady slave," gave great joy to theatre-goers in "Good Gracious Annabel" last season, and it will be welcome news to many that they have been re-engaged to appear in these same roles again at the Park Square, where the company will begin a tour that will take it from coast to coast. New York and Chicago both sustained Boston's verdict, which was that Miss Kummer's play and Mr. Hopkins' production of it combined to make one of the most refreshing entertainments the American stage has seen in many a year. The seats are on sale for the entire engagement, and the mail order force at this theatre assure perfect choice for all mail orders. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

It's not too early to order your individual engraved or printed Christmas greetings. Wilson the Stationer is showing the first lot of exclusive samples for this season. tf

WINCHESTER BOARD OF HEALTH

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed ten percent.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

The ten years preceding 1916 the number of persons voting in Norwood averaged 77 per cent of the number registered; in 1916, under the short ballot, the percentage fell to 24; while in 1917 it dropped still further to 13 per cent. In 1917 nine officials were to be elected, in addition to the moderator and three constables. In Winchester, after the Act is in full operation, if it is adopted, the number each year will be five, besides the moderator.

Does the Norwood experience indicate anything other than that the new form of town government has dealt a deadly blow to public interest in local affairs? Can we look with satisfaction and complacency upon the possibility of an eighth or less of our voters caring enough for the welfare of the town to go to the polls and vote?

A number of years ago a prominent citizen, who is now enthusiastically championing our proposed form of government, was much disturbed by the fact that sometimes only 50 per cent of our voters exercised their privilege. What have he and his fellow-supporters of the new order of things to say of the outlook under the new plan? It will be a sorry day for our town if Winchester ever descends to such depths of general apathy as has Norwood. This is merely one of numerous considerations emphasizing the desirability or rejecting the Act altogether.

The need of a wholesale change in the form of our town government has never been proved or even remotely indicated by the Committee of Fifteen or the Committee of Five; the ability of a town manager to save money more certainly than can the existing boards is far from having been demonstrated; and it is more likely than not that the proposed Act would seriously diminish the interests of the citizens in town affairs.

The Act should be rejected.
Charles F. A. Currier.

BURNING THE AIGRETTES.

Ten thousand dollars' worth of aigrettes, the beautiful bridal plumes of the snowy herons, were placed in a pile and burned in public recently by the Conservation Commission of New York. These egret feathers represented a year's seizure by the officials in their efforts to stop the illegal traffic, and yet they afforded only a passing glimpse of one of the most cruel and inhumane practices ever directed against innocent bird life.

The snowy heron whose plumage constitutes the "white badge of cruelty" seems destined to be forever removed from the world's birds. Laws prohibiting the sale or possession for sale, which several States have passed, are inadequate to stay the slaughter and traffic that is fraught with the greatest of cruelty. The plume birds have been nearly exterminated in the United States and Mexico, and the same condition of affairs will soon exist in tropical America. This extermination will come about because of the fact that the young are left to starve in the nest when the old birds are killed. Could the wearing of the aigrette be made a misdemeanor these birds of surpassing beauty might yet be preserved.

COUNTRY CLUB EVENTS.

Two Tournaments Played on Labor Day.

Two tournaments were held at the Winchester Country Club on Labor Day. An 18-hole medal play was run off in the morning with T. R. Bateman winner of the best net at 71 and F. L. Hunt, Jr., the best gross with 84, this being the last half of a 36-hole extending from Saturday. In the full 36-hole play Harry A. Norton took best net with 153, with F. L. Hunt following with 157.

The scores:

T. R. Bateman	gr. net	93-71
A. T. Martin		106-76
H. A. Norton		101-77
F. L. Hunt, Jr.		84-78
L. W. Barta		88-78
N. H. Seelye		95-78
H. V. Hovey		102-78
H. T. Bond		89-78
H. E. Merrill		109-79
S. Barton		109-79
P. A. Hendrick		90-80
C. P. Whorf		92-80
M. L. Cushman		98-80
R. H. Sherman		100-82
S. F. Fobes		103-83
C. A. Wheeler		99-84
S. W. Saltmarsh		123-91
E. A. Kelley		110-92

In the 36-hole medal play the results were:

H. A. Norton	153
F. L. Hunt, Jr.	157
H. T. Bond	158
J. K. Williams	166
L. W. Barta	166

SPECIAL AID NOTES.

Those wishing to contribute only the unfilled bags or one or more articles will please leave them with Mrs. Craft. 400 bags are hoped for as Winchester's contribution.

Christmas Good Cheer Bag

Tobacco: pipe, cigarettes, cigarette papers.
Stationery, envelopes, post cards, pencils, pens and pen-holders, fountain pen, indelible pencil.
Pocket knife.
Tooth brush and paste.
Chewing gum.
Safety razor, shaving soap, metal mirror.
Coin belt, coin purse.
Military brushes, pocket comb.
Wrist watch.
Handkerchiefs (khaki colored for soldiers and marines).
Adhesive plaster.
Beef bouillon cubes, malted milk tablets.
Playing cards, dominoes, checkers, and other games, pocket editions of good books, New Testament.
Folding drinking cups (nickel or aluminum).
Wristlets and sleeveless sweaters, blue and gray for the Navy and khaki colored for the soldiers and marines.

Naturally it is not expected or desired that any single Good Cheer Bag contain all the above articles. But the list gives a wide range for selection. No bag should contain less than five articles and none more than ten. Sweaters and wristlets will be sent boxed separately for regiments of soldiers and marines and through the Navy League of the United States for the men of the Navy.

By special arrangement, candy will be sent packed in cartons and then placed in airtight boxes by our shipping department. The men need sweets and a good suggestion that has come to us is that the old-fashioned candy pull and candy making parties be revived on their behalf. Any wishing to make the candy will receive recipes for the kinds best suited for the purpose by writing to our Headquarters.

It should be remembered in selecting the gifts that they must be of a character to withstand ocean travel, should be useful and yet qualified to give comfort and pleasure at the same time, and above all must not be bulky.

It is the intent to make the Good Cheer Bag more of a "Gift" than a "Comfort Bag" as the term is generously understood. We want to send Christmas to the trenches wrapped in tissue paper, tied with bright ribbon and decorated with love and prayers and hope, just as it is wrapped and tied and decorated when we keep it at home. It is strongly recommended that a Christmas card with a personal message of good cheer and Christmas greetings with the name of the giver be enclosed, and the bag directed as desired to the Army, Navy or Marine Corps.

The bags are to be made of any washable, durable material, 10 by 13 inches in size.
Return the filled bags to Mrs. C. M. Crafts, Chairman, 10 Dix street, on or before Sept. 28th.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Although there have been weekly meetings all summer for work there have been no meetings for business since June and it is hoped that there will be a full attendance at the first regular meeting of the season which will be held next Friday, September 14, at three o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, 14 Dix street. Those who wish to help finish the comfort bags for the enlisted men of the army and navy may come earlier.

It is hoped that the quota—125 bags, one for each member of the local union—may soon be completed. Material and money for this purpose will be very gladly received although the response has been very good so far. The contents of each bag will cost at least a dollar and it is desired that Winchester's bags be fully up to the standard set by the State W. C. T. U. which is somewhat in advance of some States.

At the meeting Mrs. Gleason will be present and tell of the plans now well under way for the home-like place to be opened at Ayer for the benefit of the men at the cantonment. A house has been found and fitted up for the purpose. Each member is asked to contribute something for this work and the Winchester Union has agreed to raise $125.00, the equivalent of a dollar a member. Nearly a third of this is already in hand and members and friends are asked to give as generously as possible for this most necessary work, remembering that she gives twice who gives quickly.

Again the Winchester Union is called upon to record the loss of one of its members by death. Miss Amanda Tappan, recently a resident at the Home for the Aged on Kendall street, while not an active member had been long interested in the objects and enjoyed her membership with the white ribbon forces. She will be especially missed by those who have visited the Home.

LIBERTY LOAN AND THE NEWSPAPERS.

By communications received from Washington we infer that in a short time there will be another big Liberty Loan to be placed. The government asks our co-operation in placing the loan. The newspapers of the country lifted the first loan out of the slough of despond into which it had been launched by ill advised action and made it a success by giving freely of its advertising space and ungrudgingly, columns of editorial matter for which they received not one cent in payment and not much in official recognition. Our readers will recall the big amount of advertising space we gave and how quickly the loan was over-subscribed here when it had been so thoroughly advertised. The government does not ask the steelmen to contribute the product of their mills; the mills furnishing material for clothing, and the factories making shoes, are not asked to contribute their outputs. Why should the newspapers be dealt with on a different basis?—[Arlington Advocate.]

GOOD BILL AT WOBURN THEATRE.

Margaret Illington, the distinguished star of the speaking stage, will make her debut on the photodramatic screen in the gripping and vivid drama, "Sacrifice," written especially for her by Charles Kenyon and prepared for the screen by Beatrice C. DeMille and Leighton Osmun. "Sacrifice" is a Lasky-Paramount picture which will be the attraction at the Woburn Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

Probably the most unusual photoplay of the season is the Metro-York production "The Haunted Pajamas," with Harold Lockwood as star, which will be seen at the same Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

Marie Doro, who was last seen on the screen of the Woburn Theatre in the popular photoplay "Castles for Two," will appear this week Friday and Saturday, at the same theatre in "Heart's Desire," a Famous Players' production prepared for her by Eve Unsell and released by Paramount.

GLOBE THEATRE.

The play chosen for next week by the Globe Theatre Stock Company of Boston is "The Mischiefing Lady." The choice of this comedy emphasizes the intentions of the management to present to their patrons the very best plays procurable, for not only was its success of great proportions during its run at the Colonial Theatre, but it also calls for especially fine work on the part of the members of the company.

As for the various characters, they are all skillfully drawn affording grateful contrasts, one character in particular, "Bony," being pronounced most original as well as humorous. The entire roster of the company will be employed in the many parts, and the scenic settings will be fitting. The matinees at this theatre will be on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and seats are on sale four weeks in advance. Mail orders will be carefully filled.

THE WINCHESTER STAR.

VOL. XXXVII. NO. 12.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1917

PRICE FIVE CENTS

MILITARY DRAFT.

Men in 40 Per Cent Going Sept. 19th and Further Exemptions.

The local exemption board at Arlington will announce tomorrow morning the names of those men who will make up the 40 per cent of the draft from the district who will go to camp at Ayer on next Wednesday, Sept. 19th. The names of the Winchester men who are in this list are printed below. One Winchester man, Daniel L. Haggerty of Wendell street, was rejected by the army physicians at Camp Devens this week for physical disability. Haggerty was sent out in the first 5 per cent of the Draft Saturday in place of Alfred E. Little when it was found at the last minute that Little had gone to Plattsburg.

It is now planned to take the men going to Ayer next Wednesday in automobiles, and the Committee on Public Safety in both Arlington and Winchester will furnish each six autos for the purpose. Some 55 men will make up the 40 per cent going, of which 23 will be from Winchester.

Thus far the men from this district have been assigned to the 301st Light Artillery, and as it has been announced that the men are to be kept together so far as possible, it is assumed that the remaining men in the Draft will be similarly assigned.

Another list of men in the second call who have been rejected, either for physical disability or by granting their claim for exemption, was given out last night. This list includes six Winchester men. One other Winchester man was found to have enlisted and his name was taken from the list.

The exemption board at Arlington is now meeting three times a week in place of every night, and it is now in session on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7 to 8.

Daniel C. Linseott of Central street has been appointed Draft Appeal Agent for this district in place of Charles F. Dutch who declined to serve.

RALPH H. COWDERY.

Well Known Young Man Dies Suddenly.

Ralph Herbert Cowdery, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Cowdery of 6 Mystic avenue, died suddenly at his home on Tuesday afternoon. His death was a great shock to a wide circle of friends, as he was prominently known among Winchester's young people. He was 27 years of age.

Mr. Cowdery had not been in good health for a considerable time, he being a sufferer from Hodgkins disease. Last winter he went to Milwaukee for treatment by a specialist and appeared to be improved in health. He planned to return for further treatment this fall. He was not confined to his home, although not out and about a great deal. His death was caused by a hemorrhage of the lungs, he expiring immediately.

He was born in Cambridge, but had made his home in this town for the greater part of his life and had graduated from the Winchester schools, leaving the High School in 1909 and graduating from Dartmouth College in 1913. He had been in the employ of the firm of R. G. Dun Co. as mercantile reporter for several years and was in a position to look forward to a particularly bright future. He was an only child.

On entering Dartmouth College he became active as manager of the Dartmouth Jack-o-Lantern, the college monthly magazine. He took the A. B. course and a special course in Tuck School of Business Administration. He was a member of the Dartmouth Club.

The funeral services were held from the residence yesterday afternoon at 2:30 and were conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. There was a large attendance of friends and college and school classmates, and the display of floral offerings was very profuse.

The remains were interred in Willwood Cemetery.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The grade registration for the first week of school shows 1249 pupils. This figure is estimated at about 100 less than normal. The High School registration is 343, which is 50 below normal.

The registration is characteristic of numerous features of interest in its wide variation over former years. At the Highland School, the 1st grade, usually containing about 18 pupils, this year has but 5, all boys. The 5th grade at the Gifford is unusually large and has been divided into two classes under Miss Wood and Miss Howard. The 3rd grade at this school is remarkably small, containing but 12 pupils against a normal registration twice that number. The 4th grade at the Wyman School has 35 pupils this year against a normal registration of 20.

Owing to the increase in 6th grade pupils an additional 6th has been provided, room being made by the reduction of the four 8th grade classes to three, the latter being considerably smaller than usual.

The open air 6th grade introduced at the Prince School this year is proving exceptionally popular. This movement started three years ago at this school with the introduction of an open air 8th grade, and last year an open air 7th was introduced, thus making three open air grades at this school this year.

Miss Edna M. Hubley, commercial teacher at the High School, has resigned to accept a position in New York City teaching commercial subjects. Her position has been filled by Miss Lucy H. Gage of West Medford, who has been teaching in the commercial department of the Waltham High School.

Miss Ethel M. Woodbury of the Wyman School is out on account of sickness. She is expected to resume her duties on Monday.

Owing to the increase of prices in foodstuffs, the lunch counter at the High School has been obliged to raise its prices.

PRIVATE SCHOOL.

Miss Emerson's Private School, 29 Rangleway, will re-open for the eleventh year on Thursday, Sept. 20, 1917.

After Sept. 4, Miss Emerson will be home, by appointment, to parents desiring further information about the school. Tel. 623-W. au31,3t

BASEBALL.

Revere Loses to Winchester in a Fine Game.

By "Mack"

It did not seem Saturday morning as though Winchester would be able to get revenge for the first defeat by Revere, as the weather was anything but suitable for baseball; but towards noon it cleared and proved a fine afternoon for the game, and the game also turned out to be one of the best of the season. The Revere Athletics are one of the fastest fielding teams we have seen here all this year, and played great ball in this game, as they did in the previous one. Smith had one of his good days and they were helpless before his delivery, although some great fielding behind them kept the Revere crowd in the running. The game went along for seven innings without a score, when Winchester put 2 over, and these were enough to win. Hevey reached second after beating out a hit and went to third after Dickerman singled by second. From there he scored on Carke's sacrifice fly to right field, Dickerman scoring immediately afterward on "Mack's" fine single to left.

The Revere players went out in practically one, two, three order during the game, as they only managed to get two hits off Smith.

One of the greatest catches seen on Manchester Field was pulled off by "Mack", when he came in fast on a low liner off Cassani's bat, barely getting the ball as it dropped, and after turning two somersaults he came up with it, and the most surprised man on the field was Cassani.

Remington Clark filled in nicely in right field, and took care of everything his way. It was his farewell appearance in a Winchester uniform as he attends college this week.

The score:
Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
Win. 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 x 2 7 2
Revere 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1
Batteries, E. Smith and McQuinn, W. Smith and Cassani.

ANNIVERSARY FOR MR. FOSTER.

Mr. Warren F. Foster, well known to many Winchester residents, was the recipient of many congratulations Tuesday on the occasion of his birthday. While Mr. Foster declined to state which birthday he was enjoying, he nevertheless thoroughly appreciated the felicitations and expressions of esteem, both verbal and substantial, which were offered during the day.

At the regular meeting of William Parkman Lodge Tuesday night, Mr. Foster, who has held the office of Tyler for the past 24 years, and whose anniversary in that position fell on the same date, was called before W. M. Jay B. Benton and presented with a handsome leather bill fold. Although the gift was empty of the popular Tyler, expressed his thanks to the Lodge in thorough appreciation and withdrew. He was shortly called before the Master for a second time, and on this occasion was presented with a silk hat "and all it contained." The contents included a substantial roll of bills with which to fill the bill fold. During Mr. Foster's term of office in the Lodge he has been absent but twice.

CLUB SEASON OPENS OCT. 6th.

The billiard and pool tables, bowling alleys and rooms at the Calumet Club have been renovated and put into condition for the winter season. All the tables have been recushioned and recovered and the alleys planed and refinished.

The winter social season will open at the Club on Saturday evening, Oct. 6th, when there will be a smoke talk with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, as the speaker. His subject will be "The War From a Minister's Point of View."

The usual Saturday night lunches will commence on this date. It is announced that the Board of Governors will have a batch of 25 applications for membership to act upon at their next meeting.

MRS. WALLACE A. SAVARD.

Mrs. Alice Teresa Savard, wife of Wallace A. Savard, died at her home on Brookside avenue Sunday after a long illness. She was 44 years of age and was a native of New Brunswick, N. J. Her parents being Bernard M. and Rossana (Foley) Donovan. She is survived by her husband and seven children, three brothers and a sister. High mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday morning by Rev. N. J. Merritt. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

The pall bearers were Edward Gendron, Thomas Gorman, Hugh Skerry and Louis LaForté.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The first fall meeting of the Mothers' Association will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at the Assembly Hall at the High School at 3 o'clock. Mr. Curtis, Principal of the High School, will be the speaker, his subject being "High School Matters." The meeting will be of interest to all Mothers and their friends. Mrs. William H. Gilpatrick will sing.

Mr. and Mrs. William K. Denison of Fletcher street have returned from a stay at Peterboro, N. H.

OUT-AGAIN-IN-AGAIN.

John F. O'Connor Third Postmaster in Three Weeks.

Winchester's third Postmaster in as many weeks is former Selectman John F. O'Connor, who took charge of the office last Saturday, succeeding Mr. Patrick E. Fitzgerald, who succeeded Mr. Ernest W. Hatch on August 28th. Mr. Fitzgerald relinquished the office Friday, sending his resignation to the Bonding Company in Boston, under whose orders he was appointed. He found that the work called for more knowledge of Post Office matters than he was able to give it, being as he was without assistance through the resignation of former Acting Postmaster Hatch and the vacation of Miss Vena G. Robinson, the clerk.

When Mr. Fitzgerald was appointed over Mr. Hatch, the latter tendered his resignation immediately, and as he was held only to the Bonding Company which had displaced him, he walked out without further formality. Last week Miss Robinson, who was the only one at the office at all familiar with its running affairs, left on her vacation against the wishes of Mr. Fitzgerald, who was left without assistance. Feeling that he could not cope with the situation he tendered his resignation.

His letter of explanation follows:

Winchester, Sept. 10, 1917.
Editor of the Star:

Seeing that it would be an injustice to the employees of the Post Office to burden them with any more extra work, which I felt they would be obliged to do to help me perform my duties as Acting Postmaster, and being unfamiliar with the duties and requirements, as the first Assistant decided to resign and the next Assistant had made arrangements to go on her vacation, and the next oldest employee, felt that at the present time his health would hardly warrant him taking over any extra duties, I decided to resign from the service to take effect not later than Saturday, Sept. 8.

Respectfully yours,
P. E. Fitzgerald.

Mr. O'Connor who now holds the office, is a Winchester boy and well known, having conducted the drug store at the corner of Main and Thompson streets for a number of years. Last March he was elected to the Board of Selectmen, from which he has now resigned in order that he may have a free hand in the performance of his new duties. He assumed charge of the office Saturday.

A further mix-up in the matter appeared last night, when Mr. Fitzgerald received a letter from the First Assistant Postmaster General at Washington in reply to his resignation. According to this communication the Bonding Company appears to have exceeded its authority in displacing former acting Postmaster Hatch and also in its latest appointment of Mr. O'Connor to the position. According to the interpretation of the letter appointments made by the Bonding Company should first have the approval of the Post Office Department. Mr. Fitzgerald was instructed to turn his office over to former Postmaster Hatch, but this is of course now impossible, as Mr. O'Connor is already in charge and has been holding office for almost a week.

TAX COLLECTOR RESIGNS.

A. William Rooney Gives Up Office at Town Hall.

In line with the other week-end surprises which this town was treated to between Saturday and Monday, and closely following the resignation of Selectman O'Connor to take the Postmastership, came the announcement that A. William Rooney, Collector of Taxes, had also resigned. Mr. Rooney handed his resignation to the Board of Selectmen on Saturday morning.

It is said that he had in mind giving up the office for some time, and felt that now was an opportune time, before the new commitment was made.

In accepting his resignation the Selectmen appointed Miss Mabel W. Stinson, who has previously served as deputy collector, to the office, and she will act as temporary collector until the Board make a new appointment. It is reported that already a number of applications for the position have been filed.

In the matter of Selectman O'Connor's resignation it is said that nothing will be done in the way of filling the vacancy, the Board continuing with four members until the March election, it not being anticipated that a deadlock owing to an even division of opinion will occur.

UNITARIAN NOTES.

Owing to a slight accident Mr. Metcalf was not able to preach last Sunday. The Rev. Earl Wilbur Dean of the Pacific School of the Ministry occupied the pulpit.

Mr. Metcalf will preach next Sunday morning.

The Ladies of the Friendly Society will hold a rummage sale in the near future, the money to be used to buy wool for the equipment of the soldiers and sailors.

The first three sessions of the Sunday School promise to be most interesting as the pictures illustrating the story of Ben Hur are very fine.

TOWN GOVERNMENT—A FEW QUESTIONS.

Pertinent Information Requested of the Committee.

Editor of the Star:

According to a notice in the STAR, the Committee of Five, at a mass meeting called for Tuesday evening, Sept. 18, "desires to make its report and give any information that may be desired by the voters." Probably many questions will be asked bearing upon the detailed provisions of the Act; but fully as important, to my mind, are certain broad fundamental considerations, upon which stress ought to be laid.

The members of the Committee of Five were likewise members of the Committee of Fifteen, which was in existence nearly two years. During the twenty-four months of its study and investigation of its problem, what did that committee discover in the shape of inefficiency, incompetency, extravagance, and the like, in the conduct of town affairs, calling, in the language of the preliminary report of the committee, for "radical changes in the form of our existing government?"

In the STAR of November 24, 1916, a communication signed "Committee on Town Government," asserts that "many believe defects exist which should be remedied without delay." How had these "defects" revealed themselves, so as to persuade the committee to report in favor of the form of town government proposed by it? Let us have facts and figures, names, dates, concrete illustrations, and not mere generalizations.

Will the committee kindly favor us with the names of a few individuals and firms willing to quote lower prices to a town manager than to the usual town boards and departments, together with their reasons for so doing?

His town manager's salary, and his incidental office expenses, will involve an added expenditure; does experience show that there is any saving in the amount paid other salaried officials?

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

A Miles Holbrook reports the following sales of Winchester property.

Sold for Carrie J. Laubham, her estate No. 48 Wedgemore Avenue comprising nearly new stucco house of ten rooms and three baths, double garage and about 13,500 square feet of land. The purchaser, Mr. Fred E. Ritchie of Brookline, Treas. of Lamb & Ritchie, will occupy about October first.

Sold for Nellie F. B. Erisman, her estate No. 3 Manchester Road comprising modern colonial house of eight rooms and two baths, double garage and about 5655 square feet of land to Dr. Harry Rich Bolan of Boston, who will occupy as a home sometime in October.

Sold for Mary R. Cross of Hyde Park, two houses Nos. 23 and 27 Garfield Avenue, Winchester, Mass., comprising eight rooms and about 5000 and 6283 square feet of land respectively to George A. Richburg of Winchester.

Sold for Effie G. Lawrence, her ten room house and about 9500 square feet of land No. 38 Glen Road to John R. Gilman of Winchester, who will occupy as a home after making alterations.

A Miles Holbrook has also leased for Blank Bros. house and lot No. 38 Eaton Street to Louis G. Keyes of Montvale, who is now occupying the property.

Leased for Ida H. A. Tufts, her modern fireproof house No. 18 Bacon Street, to Frank B. Tupper of Boston.

A PLEASANT OUTING.

A delightful occasion occurred on Tuesday at Lake Boone, at the camp of Mr. Edmund Sanderson. Mrs. Anna Sanderson entertained five old friends of over thirty-five years ago who occasionally have pleasant reunions. Those who were not guests at the camp went up by auto for the day and as is usual with these ladies a jolly time was held. A chicken dinner with vegetables grown at the camp received good attention by all, and through the courtesy of Mrs. William Bezgis, who is at her camp across the lake, her man and launch were at the disposal of the guests, as was also the car of Mrs. Charles Corey, which added much to the outing. After roaming through the pines and pleasant chats, with a little music interspersed, those for home left with plenty of nice memories of the day. Those who attended were: Mrs. Anna Sanderson, Mrs. Emma Swan, Mrs. Mary Shattuck, Mrs. Charles Corey, Mrs. Theodore P. Wilson and Miss Abbie Curry. Absent members were sent post card greetings.

RUMMAGE SALE.

The Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church are planning to hold a Rummage Sale, Saturday, Sept. 29th, in the store formerly occupied by the "Home Market," corner Church and Common streets. Anyone having articles to contribute please notify Miss Anna Symmes, Main street, or Tel. Win. 22-W. The proceeds of this sale are to be used to purchase wool for Army and Navy knitting. The ladies of the society have since April knitted and distributed mostly to Winchester boys, 466 articles, and hope to continue the work this winter.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Three Game Series to be Played With Woburn.

Well, here we are! The old rivals, Winchester and Woburn, at it again. Chick Meehan, who had the handling of the Manchester-by-the-Sea team this season, will bring practically all of this great team to Woburn to represent that city in the annual series against Winchester. The first game is to be played at Library Park, Woburn, tomorrow at 3.15. Now this Manchester team needs no press notices from me, as it has established a reputation as one of the three or four great semi-pro teams of Massachusetts. The only team seeming to have its number was Marblehead, and it is no disgrace to be beaten by Marblehead.

McMahon, the old Woburn twirler, has been Meehan's partner in the box and he has been giving a good account of himself in the games he pitched. As Woburn has been without first class ball all summer, the fans up there are eager for Meehan and McMahon to put a team on the field and test their metal against Winchester. On paper Woburn will have a great team, but base ball is a very uncertain game and the stronger the team the better game Winchester seems to put up. If Winchester can come across with the same article of ball they played against Revere, and Smith put them over, why it looks from where we sit as though Winchester had a good chance to win the series.

BAPTIST NEWS.

The Young People's Society entertained delegates of other societies on Tuesday evening, and plans were formed for inspiring more active service in various societies in suburban churches for the fall and winter seasons.

The Woman's Missionary Society will entertain the missionary societies of other churches in the Boston East Association at an all-day gathering of these societies on Oct. 16th.

NOTICE FOR AUTOS AT TOMORROW'S GAME AT WOBURN.

Autos as usual will be allowed on Library Park. When coming from Winchester turn in Church avenue near Times Building and this takes you to the entrance of the park direct. In going out of the Park take Harrison avenue and Winn street.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The following permits have been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending Sept. 13:

Frank W. Winn of 3 Euclid avenue. Concrete garage at same address 12 x 24 feet.

Rev. John P. Gorham of St. Charles Church, Woburn. Receiving tomb of concrete block at Calvary Cemetery. 23 x 19 feet, for St. Charles' Church.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Election Officers Appointed For Primaries.

The Board met at 7.30, all present. Records read and approved. Town Hall Engagements 1917 and 1918. Sergeant Harry S. Sanborn appeared before the Board in regard to obtaining the use of the Town Hall for the Winchester State Guards for one night a week during the coming fall and winter season.

Selectmen's Department. Selectman. The Board received the resignation of Mr. John F. O'Connor as a member of the Board of Selectmen.

Selectmen's Department. Unclassified. Mr. Jonas A. Laraway of the Board was appointed a committee of one on State Aid and Soldiers' Relief to take the place of Mr. O'Connor who had previously served as this committee of one. It was the sense of the Board that no other changes be made in their committees.

Election Officers 1917. On receipt of a ruling from the Town Counsel that the Election Officers should be appointed for each Primary and Election, the Board appointed under suspension of its rules the following persons to serve as Election Officers for the State Primary to be held on September 25 and the State Election to be held on November 6:

Republicans

William Adair
William G. Packard
Harry Y. Nutter
Eben Caldwell

Democrats

John F. Donaghey
Charles F. Newell
Francis E. Rogers
Robert H. Sullivan

Licenses 1917 Hackney Carriages. A license of this class was granted to Mrs. C. J. Murray, effective to May 1, 1918.

Cross Street Bridge. A letter was received from the Town Counsel stating that he had filed a petition to the County Commissioners in regard to the piers under the Cross Street Bridge and which the Board had previously instructed him to do.

Street Railway Investigation Commission. A notice was received from the Street Railway Investigation Commission of another hearing to be held at the State House on September 19, 1917 at 11 o'clock A. M. in regard to matters affecting the problems relating to the Street Railways of Massachusetts.

Licenses 1917 Explosives and Inflammables. The Board voted to grant the petition of T. Quigley, Jr., for permission to install a 200-gallon tank at 22 Lake Street, for the storage of gasoline.

Licenses 1917 Explosives and Inflammables. The Board voted to renew the license of Robert W. Deane for the sale and storage of gasoline at his place of business on Converse Place.

Arlington Gas Light Company. A petition was received from the Arlington Gas Light Company for permission to lay the following services:

J. O'Connell, 15 Oak St.
P. J. Dempsey, 207 Main St.

Also a permit to renew service for H. Parker, 408 Main St.

Central and Bacon Streets. A letter was received from C. E. L. Wingate in regard to the dangerous condition at the corner of Bacon and Central Streets. This matter was referred to the Town Engineer for report.

Bay State Street Railway Company, Hemingway and Canal Streets. A petition was received from William J. Stevenson signed by himself and twenty-four others petitioning the Board to demand of Mr. E. J. Donovan, Supt. of the Bay State Street Railway Company, that he restore the car stop at Hemingway Street. Messrs. William J. Stevenson, Dana C. Pickering, acting for himself, and M. A. Stinson, David N. Hammond and Charles H. Gallagher appeared before the Board in regard to this petition. Mr. Charles H. Gallagher as Secretary of the North-Side Civic Association also presented a copy of a vote which was passed by this Association at a meeting on September 7. This vote respectfully urges the Selectmen to require the Bay State Street Railway Company to replace the car stops at Canal and Hemingway Streets.

Metropolitan Sewerage System. A letter was received from Mr. Lewis Parkhurst suggesting that the Board request the Metropolitan Sewer and Water Board to remove its pipe which crosses the Abernethy River under the railroad track near the Wedgemere Station. The Board voted to request the Metropolitan Sewer and Water Board to remove this pipe.

Licenses 1917 Explosives and Inflammables. A petition was received from Robert W. Deane for permission to store gasoline in a 1,000-gallon tank and for the sale of gasoline at his new premises on Converse Place. This matter was set for hearing Oct. 1, 1917.

Street Lights 1917. Petitions For. A petition was received from F. D. Tobin signed by himself and Frederick Milson and Albert L. Symmes for the installation of an electric light on Chisholm Road. This matter was referred to the Committee on Street Lights.

The meeting adjourned at 10.20 p. m.

George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

The Board held special meeting on Friday evening. All present.

Collector of Taxes. The resignation of Mr. A. W. Rooney as Collector of Taxes was received.

Miss Mabel Stinson was then appointed Collector of Taxes pro tem.

Meeting adjourned.

John F. O'Connor,
Clerk of Selectmen pro tem.

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

Hints for Housekeepers.

Windfall Apples—Pie Filler

Use second grade of windfalls. Wash, core, pare, and remove all decayed or injured spots. Slice apple quickly into a basin containing slightly salted cold water (about 1 teaspoonful per gallon), to keep from discoloring. Pack fresh cold product in glass jars, add one cupful of hot, thin syrup to each quart of fruit, place rubbers and covers in position, seal, but not completely. Sterilize 15 minutes in hot water bath; remove jars, tighten covers, cool, wrap in paper and store.

Meat Substitutes

Several foods are more or less interchangeable and while we need not give up meats entirely we should sometimes substitute other foods in place of it.

The nourishment from one slice of roast beef five by three inches by one-eighth of an inch thick can be obtained just as well from the following:

16 almonds, 1 serving of baked beans, 1 serving of kidney bean stew, 1 serving of lima beans (2-3 cup) 1 ounce American cheese, measuring 1½x1½, 1¼ inches thick, 1 tablespoonful cream cheese, 3 ounces cod or other fish, 1 large egg or 1-13 small eggs, 1 glass milk, 25 peanuts, 1 tablespoonful peanut butter, 1 cup canned peas, ¼ cup canned salmon, 2 sardines, 5 walnuts.

Eat Less Meat

Experiments show that athletes are stronger where only 1-6th as much meat as was formerly, is on the training table. Most people eat too much meat. The average adult man will do better on ¼ lbs. meat a day, with bread, cereals, fruits and green vegetables, and with one glass of milk, one egg and some cheese, beans and nuts.

WINCHESTER'S ENLISTMENTS.

Additions to Roll of Honor of Local Enlistments.

So far as can be ascertained there is no complete record of the list of Winchester men who are enlisted in the various branches of the Army and Navy, or who are serving abroad as ambulance drivers or in various hospital units. The STAR has a card file of all such men who are serving in the conduct of the war, compiled as complete as possible from all information received at this office, but realizes that this list contains many omissions.

The list as filed has been printed for the past two weeks. The following names have been received and added during the past week:

Hodges, Benjamin
Signal Corps Reserve Hard, Theodore 101st Engineers
Little, Alfred E.
Plattsburg
Mathews, Ernest C.
Battery A McGourty, Charles V.

WALKING TICKET OFFICE CAUGHT AT WINCHESTER.

Chief McIntosh and Sergt. McCauley captured a walking ticket office in the person of Martin Flaherty Tuesday when they arrested him at his home hiding behind a large picture standing against a wall in his room.

Flaherty, who is 19 years of age, already had a record, he being arrested here last June for beating up a Winchester police officer. At that time he was in the Navy, but had since been discharged as an undesirable.

He has been in the Hampton, N. H., jail, from which he escaped, and was charged with entering the Boston & Maine Railroad Station at that place and also a house. It was thought that he might seek refuge at his home here.

When the police visited the house they were denied admission, but they succeeded in getting inside and making the arrest. When he was searched his clothes and even his shoes were found well filled with railroad tickets from Hampton to various points. He was taken in charge by the Hampton police.

LIFE AT CAMP DEVON.

Just at this moment, this Saturday night, within hearing distance of the headquarters offices, there are notes of the liveliest ragtime floating from windows of the barracks of United States Ambulance No. 13. They have the first piano in camp, bought this afternoon from the company fund, and it makes them forget the defeat of their ball nine, 8 to 5, this afternoon at the hands of Regular Cavalrymen detailed to Ayer.

They were organized at Pittsfield last March as a Red Cross unit under Capt. Robert J. Carpenter, who was at the border last summer with Field Hospital No. 1 of the Massachusetts National Guard, and who is a nephew of Capt. Arthur H. Brown at Divisional Headquarters, the man who tucks the correspondents in bed at night and asks them if they have said anything they shouldn't.—[Herald.]

CAMP LIFE.

Extract From a Letter From a Member of the Winchester Company of the State Guard
To His Son Somewhere
In France.

My dear Boy: *****

I have marked the camp pictures too on the back. We had a pretty strenuous two days but a splendid time in spite of the hard work. We left Winchester at 2 p. m. Saturday afternoon with our packs on our backs containing tent halves, rods and pegs, our ponchos, toilet articles, towels, socks, change of underwear, sweaters and blouses, then haversacks with dishes, sauce-pans, etc., which with canteens and rifles made some load for an eight mile march on one of the hottest, muggiest afternoons of the year, over hard asphalt roads mostly uphill to the range at Wakefield. One man had to be taken into the car following and when we arrived and were lined up in position to set our tents another, who had kept up on his nerve, collapsed. I felt numb and got my work on the tent done in a kind of daze. We were called at once to mess, but the only thing that looked good, or rather tasted good to me, was the feed tea which I couldn't get enough of. Not but what the grub was good; but flat on the ground for me. Only a few minutes though for I went on guard duty at seven, a half hour after our arrival, for two hours, and then two more from one to three and reveille at 4.30, so you can figure out how much tramping I did, and how much sleep I got. Hardly time for a wash, and then to give us poor old soldiers a rest and change, setting-up exercise, which I am not as used to as you are, before breakfast, ten minutes after which we had a company drill, open formation, in a rough field, down on the ground, up and "follow me" down again, etc., just to take the kinks out and settle our breakfasts; and then a march a short distance to the range. We shot first at 200 yards and those of us who got 75 out of a possible 100 qualified to shoot again in the afternoon, on the 300 yard range. Mine was first squad up and after my previous experiences my front sight looked like a buzzing fly, but I was most anxious to qualify and gritted my teeth, steadied down as much as I could and was one of those to get by. We were put on the markers and then on the butts after shooting until mess, and then on again for the sharp shooters at once. I had to hustle to get through as I was assigned to the cook with three others who hadn't qualified and were waiting for me to fall in. The cook, Red Price, is in my squad and he is a wonder, has cooked in Alaska, and can do anything from the rough stuff to a dainty salad for the Captain's table and all at once too.

I suspect him of asking for me as we have hit it off well together and I think he wanted me to see him at work in his special line, he in daily life is a bond salesman with office near mine. He was appointed Company Cook and had two regular assistants, Messrs. Davy (Harry) and Thompson assigned to him. They went up ahead of the Company with all the equipment and commissary supplies, which he had bought for the Company, in one of Mr. Harry Norton's big motor trucks loaned for the occasion. Extra men were assigned to him for each meal and to some he gave the dirty work and to others the tasks of honor. I being a squad-mate was especially favored, my first job being to chop wood while he was getting the whole machine going and assigning the men to their various duties. Just as I started in Harry Norton came along and snapped the two shots which I am sending you. Everyone about this time loafed but Father, those who hadn't been on guard duty had slept the night before and if they hadn't qualified on the range had the afternoon to receive callers which they brought around to view the more fortunate ones like myself who tried to look like heroes and came in for jollying on our jobs. Well to get back to mine, that wood was in round oak logs about eight inches in diameter and was harder than pig iron. The first time I fozled my drive altogether, and the next my axe made a dent about one-fourth of an inch in the log I had picked out as the softest of the lot. Seeing a bunch of visitors approach I took refuge back of the cook house and ran onto the prettiest little pile of wood all chopped and piled you ever saw. It may have belonged to another company or been just a gift from God, anyway I sat down for the proper time, had a pull at the old pipe, then loaded up my arms and on arrival asked the cook where to put it. He slapped me on the back which automatically deposited the wood and told me I was the first man who had come back with a load and the only one not to find fault with the calibre of the sticks, in short his very words were "My boy, you're some wood-chopper."

Considering that this in its accomplishment brought me the only ten minutes of rest I had in forty hours,
I agreed without bothering to emulate G. Washington and as a reward was immediately assigned to chopping watermelons, which I had to carry down from the ice-chest by a rickety ladder ten feet to the ground, and believe me unless it be a greased pig nothing is so illusive to handle on ladder work as a watermelon. I cut them the way they do for a barbecue in the South, which greatly interested a bevy of ladies brought round by the Captain at just this time. You will see them in the picture with their ends cut off standing like large flowers on the table—the watermelons not the ladies of course. The cook was so much pleased with the ladies' approval of the work in his department that as soon as they moved on he insisted that I must be the one to take up to the officers' tent a pitcher of a cool drink especially brewed for them. It looked mighty good to me but not to take to the Captain's tent, however the excuse that I was shirtless didn't go and I had to wash and dress, (as you will see me in the picture looking like the long well sweep with the bucket on the end), and run the gamut of the company street, where I was held up by the ubiquitous photographer and several common privates who were thirsty. I stood behind the Captain's table and with the cook's compliments served the guests in what I conceived to be the proper manner for a military butler. Then back to the mines for mine, this time to mash potatoes and open bottles until the hungry line came down the pike to be served. The rations we had were really wonderful and we are most fortunate in having a member of the company who is a genuine culinary artist and takes a joy and pride in his line. We had on that day chicken soup with rice, chicken fricassee, giblets and noodles, mashed potatoes, bread, ice-cream, soft beer and watermelon; and everything was good. After dinner Sergeant Blossom had arranged a quiet game of bridge to which I was invited, he having secured the supply tent and arranged barrels and boxes for table and chairs with lights and everything complete, but after one rubber we agreed that bridge for once had lost its charm and joined a ring around the camp-fire until nine, when taps put all but the guard to bed. I rolled up on hitting the hay and went at once into dreamless sleep until I was awakened by hearing the guard turned out as I thought for reveille. I was just about frozen stiff and in a numb way oped around for my watch on 'ad that I had been asleep just an hour and a half, with 6 hours of chilly wait till morning.

I joined a crowd of shivering sentinels around the fire at the guard house who were trying to convert some ice-cream over the fire into a substitute for hot toddy. It didn't do me a bit of good so I wandered off down the street to see if I could get a blanket from private Norton's closed car which was equipped with everything from field-glasses to kimonos. I approached the sentinel in a conciliatory way on my side of the line, but he didn't wait for me to cross and I was held up and challenged.
He let me by with orders to report to him when I came back, which was mighty good of him. It seems this was contrary to orders which I don't think he, and I know I, didn't appreciate at the time and his accommodation got him into trouble for which I was afterward mighty sorry, as reference was made by the Captain to the fact that some of the guards were lax in their duty. That was all, but it was too bad. At the time I thought only of getting warm and when I got to the car and climbed in to get a robe I found it inside as warm and cozy as a little boudoir with its electric lights, glass sides, drop curtains and comfortable cushions, one of which I turned diagonally, making ample length, put a cushion under my head and two robes over me and was just dropping off to sleep when a hoarse voice said
"Who's there", a hand grabbed my arm and visions of warmth and sleep vanished. It turned out to be Thomas, the chauffeur, who was sleeping in the truck nearby and thought me he was as good as a violet, tucked me in, turned off the lights and I slept for the first time with my boots off, warm and comfortable till reveille Monday morning. When I got back and told the frozen tenters of my comfortable berth elaborating on all the frills, they would have thrown things at me from sheer envy if it hadn't been for military discipline.

We had breakfast at five, struck our tents, cleaned up the street and marched off for Winchester at six, reaching the Town Hall a little after eight. There was frost on the fields, the morning was lovely and we made the distance which had seemed so hard before, easily and comfortably, singing as we marched.
So you see you are not the only one in the family a-soldiering, and while it was a hard jaunt for us old fellows, there was no complaining and I can only hope that the real campaigners are as good fellows, and get as much out of their greater opportunity for experience, as did the men of our company, on its first taste of soldiering. You know we have been made State Militia now, which is completely organized, eleven thousand strong. Our Captain is extremely efficient and very much in earnest, and every officer and man is interested to make the Winchester Company as good if not better than any in the State. We have a fine personnel and men are brought together who because of different business interests would not otherwise have a chance to meet.

And last of all we stand as the guarantee of law and order, and are doing our bit in taking the place of those who are called to go to the front, you and the other boys. *****

Yours faithfully,
Dad.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.
Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a consti-

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

Did the Committee of Fifteen (for whom the Committee of Five can speak, since they were members of it) find out to what extent existing boards co-operate in making purchases, and thus fulfill one of the functions and reap one of the supposed advantages of a town manager, namely, concentrated purchasing?

To select a specific example: did the two members of the Committee of Fifteen, one of whom is a member of the Committee of Five, look into the affairs of the Board of Selectmen, to which both were subsequently elected, exhaustively enough to learn something about the contracts made by that board, so that, for instance, in the purchase of coal, they could take advantage of existing contracts, and not purchase elsewhere at higher prices?

The Committee of Fifteen in its final report says: "It is the belief of your Committee that if the plan now suggested by it is adopted, and as a result the citizens at each annual election are called upon to elect only members of the Board of Selectmen, members of the Finance Committee, and members of the School Committee, their attention will be so centered upon the qualifications of the candidates for these offices that no inefficient or improper person can be chosen."

The STAR of December 15, 1916, contains a letter signed "A Member of the Committee," closing as follows: "In its work the Committee has been more or less governed by the short ballot principle, which is:
first, that only those offices should be elective which are important enough to attract (and deserve) public examinations; second, that very few offices should be filled by election at one time, so as to permit adequate and unconfused public examination of the candidates."

How does the experience of Norwood, the only town in New England having the short ballot, impress the Committee of Five as contributing toward the attainment of its ideal of a keen public interest, when, as in the last election, only 13 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls?

I believe in fighting hard, but also in fighting fair, and accordingly prefer not to "spring" these questions at the mass meeting, but to propound them in advance, and thus afford the committee ample opportunity to prepare answers, provided, of course, the committee deems the questions deserving an answer.

Charles F. A. Currier.

FIRE AT BEGGS &amp; COBBS.

What at first looked like a serious fire occurred at the big Beggs & Cobbs plant on Swanton street last Friday forenoon at about 10 o'clock.
The private box at the factory gave the first intimation of trouble, and as the blaze made a fairly large volume of smoke, most of the townspeople who could do so, hastened to the scene.

Fortunately the fire did little damage and was quickly extinguished. It was apparently caused by spontaneous combustion in a big dust pipe. This pipe, about 24 inches in diameter, runs from the shop to the leach house and carries away the dust from the machines.
This dust took fire at the leach house end of the pipe, setting fire to the leach house and running along the pipe.

The fire fighting apparatus at the plant was immediately put into action and did good service, while as soon as the fire department arrived additional streams were added. The shutting off of the blower which forced the dust through the pipe allowed the smoke to return into the factory and forced the men working there outside. During the work of extinguishing the blaze a section of the big pipe fell from the weight of the water played into it.

Owing to the fact that power wires of the Edison Company ran along the side of the leach house, the current was turned off for about 20 minutes after the circuit breaker blew out, a repair gang arriving at the scene and cutting out the factory.

The only damage done was to the leach house, which is only a shell covering the big vats, and to the dust pipe.

ATTACKED ON PARKWAY.

Miss Amy Ledwidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo L. Ledwidge of Mystic avenue was attacked on the Parkway a short distance below the Unitarian Church Monday night by an unknown man. The young woman put up a stiff fight and her assailant was glad to release her and make his escape.

Miss Ledwidge was going to her home at about 10 o'clock. As she turned from Main street down the Parkway she noticed a man coming from the direction of the Railroad Station and who was headed for Main street, stop and follow her.
While somewhat frightened she hardly thought he would molest her, but when he suddenly made a grab for her she was ready for him and scratched his face and fought him with all her strength, screaming loudly for help meanwhile.

The man released her and started on a run down the Parkway. As Miss Ledwidge lived in the same direction she ran after him in her endeavor to reach safety, which frightened him worse than ever.
Her screams were heard in the neighborhood and several men ran to her assistance, too late however, to catch the offender, who made his escape somewhere in the vicinity of the footbridge.

Although a search was kept up during the night the man was not found. Miss Ledwidge was able to give a good description of him to the police, who are working on the case.

Entered at the post-office at Winchester,
Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

This is "boom" fish week. This is not necessary, for fish has kept pace with all the other necessities of life, when nothing is cheap.

Winchester is not very keen over the approaching primary. The war, and the fact that our young men are "going over" takes first place in our thoughts.

Remember the question is not whether you personally can feel that you can afford to waste food; the point is that the nation can not afford to have food wasted by anybody.

It is singular that a bonding company has the authority to appoint a postmaster. It had generally been supposed that this authority was vested in the Government only.

The Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut, in its findings of a collision of electric cars whereby nineteen persons were killed, says:
"That the motorman was drowsy and that the conductor was asleep just before the crash."

Tuesday morning took the record for cold weather since last spring.
The thermometer dropped to close around 30 degrees and considerable ice was found in shallow pools. The heavy killing frost did considerable damage in this vicinity.

To meet increased price conditions, the plans for the proposed post office building, it is intimated, are to be revised. Why not ask for an increase of the appropriation. An inferior building should be strongly opposed by the citizens.

A big difference is noted in this town in comparing the number of assessed polls and the number of registered voters. The total assessed polls for 1917 is given as 2,865, while the Town has only 2,014 registered voters. Evidently the two political parties have considerable work ahead of them.

An exchange observes that "The Government figures showing that the per capita circulation of money in this country today is $46.53, were obtained by dividing the total amount of money in circulation by the number of men, women and children in the United States, and not by counting the cash in a lot of people's pockets."

The men who volunteered to serve during the war are not greatly pleased over the receptions being given by the people to the drafted men, while but slight notice is accorded the volunteers. This is true, and it is hoped that when commissions are being passed around that they will not be forgotten. In years to come they can proudly claim that they were "volunteers."

So far as coal is concerned, it is doubtful if New England will get much lower prices than have prevailed. The trouble seems to be in the cost and means of transportation. If coal is $2 or $3 or any reasonable price at the mine, it does not help much when transportation is from $5 to $6 per ton. It would be advisable to lay in the winter's supply now, as later it may be a question whether coal can be procured, and not one of price.

The ruling of the attorney general that justices of the peace come within the regulation exempting judicial officers causes a ripple of amusement. In some States justices of the peace hold court, but in Massachusetts their official duties are not very exacting. It is safe to say that all whom the draft might remove would not cause such a dearth of justices that the business they do would be seriously interfered with.
Anyone claiming exemption on this ground would be looked upon by many as approaching so close to being a slacker that it is doubtful if many claims for exemption will be filed by these officials.—[Greenfield Gazette and Courier.

Charles F. A. Currier of Winchester, where the town manager plan is under consideration, figures if Norwood as claimed saved $1.23 per capita through a town manager that the same good results may be obtained without so radical a change by collective buying and the application of sound common sense. This saving is made on twenty-seven items and the total amounts to a saving of $7,000 was made in the latter town on three items—$1,000

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL MARRIED.

The wedding of a former well known young lady of this town occurred at Epping, N. H., on Tuesday evening when Miss Helen Thompson Holt, daughter of Mrs. Henry C.
Holt, was united in marriage to Mr.
Richard Mitchell, son of Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell of that place.

The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church by the pastor, Rev. Mr.
Bragg. The couple were attended by Mr. Phillip Mitchell, brother of the groom, and Miss Sylvia Holt, sister of the bride, and the four bridesmaids were the Misses Mollie Ladd and Nan Ledy of Epping, Ruth Phippen of this town and Winifred Woodman of Medway.
Two little flower girls completed the wedding party.

The bride made her home here for a number of years, and her many Winchester friends extend to her every good wish. She is a graduate of the Girls' University School of Chicago, and has recently been teaching in the Epping schools. The groom is a graduate of Exeter Academy and New Hampshire State College.

They will make their home in Portsmouth, N. H.

STATE GUARD NEWS.

Company Starts on Second Camping Trip Today.

Monday evening, after the regular drill, the officers and non-commissioned officers met at the Calumet Club for an oral examination. This examination was conducted by Captain Tompkins, and dealt with problems in patrol and out-post duty.

The company roster is now full,
and several names are upon the waiting list.

The following incidents illustrate the reputation for efficiency our company is acquiring: One of the members was approached by a friend living in a city some distance from Winchester. This friend said he wanted to join our Company because, while there was a State Guard Company in his city, they were not well-drilled, and he understood the Winchester Company was undergoing training that would give a man good preparation for Plattsburg.

Another member encountered a friend who had recently joined the State Guard Company in his town (not far from Winchester). "We have a good company out there," said the friend, "but, of course, we are not in a class with the Winchester Company."

The spirit and enthusiasm of the company is one of its outstanding features. During the Wakefield encampment, not a complaint or "growl" was heard during the entire trip.

The Company leaves Winchester this morning at 10.00 o'clock for its second encampment. The men will march in heavy marching order to their camp which will be situated between Pleasant street, Arlington, and the Belmont Country Club, on a country road known as Marsh street.

Saturday will be the big day. In the morning one of the officers will take one squad, and march for "parts unknown" in the general direction of the Belmont Country Club or the Concord Turnpike. At some spot they will deploy and simulate an outpost of a hostile force located somewhere near Concord. The remainder of the Company will start from Pleasant street, Arlington, and advance against this outpost with the purpose of passing or capturing them, and outflanking, capturing, or annihilating the supposititious company.

To one interested in military tactics, this should be very interesting work to watch.

Herbert Gourley was mustered into the Company last week, bringing the membership up to the limit prescribed by the State.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Among the approaching weddings is that of Mr. Stanley Burnham Weld, son of Mr. and Mrs. George
A. Weld of Sanborn street, and Miss Sara Frances Felber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav A. Felber of Bacon street. Mr. Weld is at present at Sahland, Me., and has enlisted for military duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Reynolds and family of Francis circuit have been spending the past fortnight autoing through the mountains.

The Police Dept. auto caught fire
Wednesday afternoon at Cambridge, where Chief McIntosh was attending court. A short circuit in the wiring of the starter caused the trouble.
The Chief extinguished the blaze with the extinguisher carried in the car and little damage was done.

Mr. Luce of Waltham, member of the Constitutional Convention, in the debate on the initiative and referendum Wednesday, explained that he represented the "middle-of-the-road" men, who had avoided extreme positions for or against the measure. Referring to the campaign of vituperation which had been conducted in behalf of the I.
and R. outside of walls of the convention's chamber, he said that it had become almost impossible for a self-respecting man to support the measure in any form. He denounced the slander and the bitterness which had been poured out by the Boston American against members opposed to the I. and R.

Among the approaching weddings is that of Leo Vincent McNally, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McNally of Eaton street, and Miss Gertrude Elizabeth Keleher of Royal street, Lowell. Mr. McNally has returned from the South, where he has been working on the erection of one of the army cantonments.

The class on elementary dietetics will resume their lessons in the High School Assembly Hall, at 10.30 a. m.,
Sept. 17th, 19th, 24th and 26th.

Mrs. William B. French has returned to Winchester and is now at 110 Church street.

Mrs. Sarah Taft Stone of Washington street, who fell down stairs last week, is progressing very favorably, under the circumstances.
Although no bones were broken she was considerably bruised. Mrs.
Stone is the mother of Mr. E. Henry Stone, and Misses Anna and George Stone and is in her 92nd year. On her ninetieth birthday, her cousin, ex-President Taft, sent her a beautiful autograph letter.

If You Have Invested in Liberty Bonds the only practical investment is to prevent depreciation of your real estate by hav-

Statistics prove that 80 per cent of the exterior repairs are due to the storms of the Winter season. Yearly the wise automobile owner has his car overhauled to resist the wear and depreciation during the season his machine must withstand a large mileage.

SCHOOL GARDEN EXHIBITION.

At the Town Hall, Saturday, September 15th.

In addition to the usual display of flowers and vegetables at the Garden Exhibition, Saturday, some features of special interest will be an "Information Bureau", conducted by our Junior Farmers, who will tell you how to select the best vegetables and how to store them properly for the winter.

A Garden Exchange and Sale in charge of School Gardeners will attract many who want fresh fruit or vegetables in small quantities or for canning and storing for winter. If you have more potatoes, apples, or other produce than you can use, you may leave your name at the Garden Exchange, where a customer may be found; if you wish to buy these products direct, they will be furnished so long as they last.

What ambitious boys and girls can do to help the food supply for the winter will be demonstrated at the Canning Table, conducted by school gardeners, who have done something in this line.

Those who are interested in "Garden Thieves" and "Freaks of Nature", will have an opportunity to see them at close range, Saturday, and a general good time is promised all who attend the Exhibition, which is free to all.

FREE INSTRUCTION BY COM- MONWEALTH

Editor of the Star:

It may be of interest to your readers to know how extensive a course of instruction is being carried on for the citizens of the Commonwealth without any expense more than a normal charge for text books, etc., by the Department of University Extension of the State Board of Education.

I have just been sent a prospectus of the courses offered for this year, to be taken either by correspondence or in groups locally taught, where a large enough group can be secured, and find that a vast variety of subjects can be thus adequately studied, all the way from the modern languages to household economics, including practical courses in various forms of engineering and the like.

Inasmuch as many of your readers may not know about this excellent opportunity to receive instructions without expense, I would suggest that, if interested, they write James
A. Moyer, Director, State House, Boston, Mass., asking him to send them a prospectus, and I think that they may find much to interest them in it. If I can assist any of them in enrolling in these courses, I shall be very much pleased to do so.

Yours very truly,
William A. Kneeland.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The following case of contagious disease has been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Sept. 12th: Typhoid fever 1.

Note: This case originated outside of Winchester, the patient being a young woman who was indisposed and who came here with friends, her condition being diagnosed as typhoid upon her arrival.

The pop concert to have been held at the Winchester Boat Club on Saturday evening, Sept. 22nd, has been indefinitely postponed.

Difficult to Translate.

A correspondent sends me another story of the difficulties attending the translation of Biblical metaphors into the Eskimo language. "A missionary talking to his converts-to-be had occasion to refer to the 'everlasting crown of glory.' The language did not permit of the precise rendering, so the phrase was turned by the interpreter into the 'beautiful old hat which will never wear out.'—London Observer.

OPEN FALL TOURNAMENT AT WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB.

The Winchester Country Club is holding its annual open fall tourna-ment this week. Starting yesterday with the qualifying round of 18 holes medal play, the first and second rounds in all divisions will be played today, with the semi-finals and finals tomorrow.

The qualifying round called for the first sixteen low gross scores from scratch and the second, third and fourth sixteen playing on the basis of the Mass. State Handicap List—three-fourths handicap being allowed. Tomorrow's play will include in addition to the finals of the tourna-ment a handicap vs M. G. A. rating, three-fourths handicap, which is also open.

Winchester medals, suitably en-scribed, will be awarded all winners, and the net receipts of the tourna-ment will be donated to war relief funds.

Fred J. Wright, Jr., the Massa-chusetts junior champion golfer and western junior title holder, was the low gross score yesterday in a field of over 100.

Wright's score was 78, one of the two players to get around in figures better than 90, the other being R. M. Purves, who was one stroke behind Wright. There were five players tied for low net at 75. Wright, of course, is to be elimi-nated since he will take the trophy for the low gross score, and the others in the tie are R. M. Purves, F. L. Hunt, Jr., Winchester; W. Clarkson, Vesper; A. M. Bond, Winchester. Hunt played the course in 80 and played some fine golf.

Wright was out in 38 and home in 40 over the hard and hilly course. Purves took one more stroke for the first nine than did Wright, but played the home holes in the same figures.

Paul Tewksbury was around in 81 and today meets Wright in the first round of match play in the first division. Three divisions qual-ified for match play and there is a fourth fight, with four names bracketed. Drawings for match play:

First Division

Clarkson, vs. A. M. Bond
Paton vs. Arsdale
Wheeler, Jr., vs. Stanley
Tewksbury vs. Wright, Jr.

Second Division

Drydocking a Warship.

One of the operations a naval officer dislikes more than anything else is docking a big warship to undergo repairs. It is one of the most difficult and tricky jobs imaginable, and the slightest carelessness may mean mighty costly damage.

Before being floated into the dock the vessel is usually lightened of every-thing that can be easily taken from her, and then she is towed in by tugs.

The greatest care has to be taken to get the huge mass to float in exactly its proper position so that when the water is pumped out of the dock it will come to rest upon the keel blocks in such a way that its great weight is evenly distributed. These big repair-ing docks, or graving docks, as they are usually called, are built in a series of steps, so that they are much nar-rower at the bottom than at the top. These steps give support to the balks of timber which keep the vessel up right.

A float, called a "marker," is used to show that the ship is in its right position before the water is drained away. Any calculation and the vessel might heel over and there is no stopping a 25,000-ton ship when it begins doing that.—P.

WINCHESTER MEN BUY AND SELL WHOLE TOWN.

Martin A. Brown Head of Concern Which Takes Lincoln, N. H., from Geo. E. Henry.

For many years it has been the custom to refer to Lincoln, N. H., as "Henryville," because the Henry family, father and sons, were the ones who put Lincoln on the map, as the saying is.

They owned the entire town, practically. A few houses in the village are owned by others, but in the main, the Henry family owned everything of any value. They and their employees ran the town meetings and directed town affairs for many years.

Since the death a few years ago, of the senior Henry, the founder of the lumber and pulp industry—the only business of the village—the three Henry boys, John H., George E. of Highland avenue, this town, and Charles B., have been branching out in other lines, and have acquired vast interests in California, Mexico and the Southern States in manufacturing, lumbering and lands.

When it was announced, the other day, that they had sold all their business interests in Lincoln, to the Parker & Young Loan Cut Company of Lisbon, over the other side of the mountains, in which Martin A. Brown of Stratford road, a Boston lumber man, is the most active owner, it was no surprise to their intimate friends, but the news startled their employees and other town-folks.

$3,000,000 Deal

The sale of the Henry outfit is one of the biggest realty deals on record in New Hampshire. With the vast woodlands, in the neighborhood of 70,000 acres, mostly spruce, a lot of which is virgin forest, went a fully equipped railroad of about 14 miles, passenger, freight and lumber cars, locomotives, etc., more than 100 dwelling houses, an opera house, a 50-room hotel which cost $200,000 to build some years ago, a hospital, a general store doing a business of $200,000 a year, saw mills, pulp and paper mills, five fully equipped lumber camps with accommodations for 400 hands, automobiles, boarding houses and valuable water rights, including a town water system.

It is understood that the new owners paid in the vicinity of $3,000,000 for the property, and they consider it a great bargain. Martin A. Brown, who has had his eye on the property for some time, and was the chief spirit in the acquirement of the Henry holdings, says that the more he sees of the property the better he thinks of it.

In addition to the property in this town, there is a pulp mill at Livermore Falls, near Plymouth, N. H., which the Henrys operated in connection with their paper mill here. The new owners, it is said, plan to increase the capacity of both mills and develop the lumber business on broader lines.

Of late years, the Henrys cut only spruce for their pulp mills; dressed lumber was only a side line with them.

Mr. Brown, the active head of the new concern, which is already in possession, is one of the biggest lumber men in New England. It is said that he proposes to materially increase the dressed lumber lines, and their new lumber holdings afford them additional supplies of the particular woods in which they deal.

Fortunes Made in 25 Years

Twenty-five years ago, on the 29th day of last August, the Henrys invaded the territory of Lincoln. At that time there were but two old farmhouses in the neighborhood, and they were two miles apart. The Henrys had been lumbering in Zealand, N. H., on the other side of the mountains.

The elder Henry bought a big tract of lumber. The late George Van Dyke, in his day one of the best-known lumber men in New England, was his partner in the holdings. Later he sold out his interest in the Lincoln property to James E. Henry, father of the present Henry boys, and since then the Henrys have been sole owners of one of the largest and richest lumber tracts in the country.

George Henry of this town, one of the sons of James E., who has always had charge of the woods end of the business, with a lumbering outfit, men, horses, wagons, etc., preceded his father and his brothers several hours. It was a long, hard struggle through the forest and down the steep grades of the mountain peaks, but the outfit was used to roughing it, and they made light of their hardships. The Henrys saw in the great towering trees a fortune.

They knew that the life of a lumberman was not a bed of roses. The barn connected with one of the farmhouses was hired for sleeping purposes. The cook tent was pitched in a clearing, and that night the little company of hardy woodsmen slept in the hay on the barn floor.

The next day the elder Henry and the other two sons, with more men and horses and lumbering paraphernalia, arrived.

River Played Them False

The sound of the ax was heard that day in the thick woods which covered what is now a thriving, enterprising, happy community of 1,200 souls. The main street of Lincoln was not even on paper then. The railroad and the pulp mills were but a dream.

There was much work to be done. There was no time for frivolities. Money was scarce. Transportation to the railroad was still to be developed. It was a new primitive settlement at the gateway of the White Mountains.

At first the Henrys thought that the stream which flows through their property and down through the Pemigewasset Valley offered them the means of getting their lumber to market. They figured on floating their logs down the stream until they were finally into the Merrimack River. They even talked of putting up a sawmill at Lowell, Mass., where they could market their lumber, but that was abandoned.

The stream was too shallow and too rapid. They lost most of their first season's work and some of the logs went to sea, one of the Henry boys said, the other day, laughingly recalling their early struggles.

They concluded that the railroad was the surest and most economical way in which to get their product to market. In time, they built one, extending it further and further into the woods, until now there are over 14 miles of main line and branches. A new extension is under construction for the purpose of tapping a tract of virgin forest.

Hard Sledding at First

In the hard times of the early '90s when money was tight, the concern had pretty hard sledding, but they weathered the financial storm. There were times when the Henrys couldn't pay a $5 claim against them for days at a time, but they were of an optimistic nature, held on with bull dog tenacity, and the wheel of fortune stopped at their number on the board.

The tide had turned and from that time on, the concern prospered, enlarged its sphere of activities and put in a pulp and paper mill which was fed by their almost exhaustless supply of spruce lumber back on the mountains.

All the while the town was taking on its present day appearance. The number of employees steadily increased. The Henrys built fine modern houses. The water power was used to drive the machinery in the saw and pulp mills and to make electricity for the works and the town.

Streets were laid out and granolithic sidewalks were put in. Churches lifted their spires against the hills. Modern schools were built and the town was connected with the North Woodstock telephone exchange.

The Henrys revolutionized lumbering in New Hampshire. The usual method of lumbering is to go into the woods in the winter with a big gang of men, cut the trees and haul them to the stream. In the Spring they are floated down to the mill pond, where they are stored until they are wanted for lumber or pulp mills. This method meant that a large capital was necessary to conduct a lumber business, as it was from six months to a year before the lumber was marketable.

Will Still Call Lincoln Their Home

The Henrys changed all this.

They railroaded their lumber from the woods to their saw and pulp mills. Logs cut today are loaded on to the cars and a locomotive hauls them to the mill. The next day they are sawed into lumber or ground up into pulp. A few hours later the finished paper is ready to ship to the market. The paper is paid for in 30 days and money is coming in every month to finance the operations of the company.

One of the Henry boys looked after the office work, another superintended the pulp mills and the third was the head of the lumberjacks. All worked together.

When it was announced that the property had been sold, Mrs. Jas. E. Henry, the mother of the boys, declared that it was pretty hard at her age, 86, to be sold out of a business she had been engaged in all her life, she is now reconciled to the change of ownership, and wishes the new management the same success her husband and sons had with the property.

The Henrys are naturally proud of their success in developing a thriving modern village, and a great business in a wilderness, in the brief period of 25 years. They all have fine residences and they always expect to call Lincoln their home, although one has a home in California, another in Winchester, and another in Florida.

Have Been Good to the Town

The Henry boys have been good to the town. Every Thanksgiving they have seen to it that there is a fine, fat turkey on the table of every resident of Lincoln, whether the recipient is rich or poor, whether he or she works for the firm or not. Gold is distributed among all employees at Christmas.

Each employee is taxed 50 cents a month, and for that is given free medical and hospital treatment. The hospital is in a large square building opposite the Henry office on the main street of the village, and is in charge of Dr. E. D. Burt.

One of the Henrys gave a public library to the town. Another built the Methodist Church and the family contributed $2,500 to the building of the Roman Catholic Church. They built a hotel for the benefit of their employees, in which is located the Opera House. The latter may be had for any public purpose free of charge to the townspeople.

The Board of Selectmen of the town is made up of George E. Henry, W. C. Fogg and Daniel Wallace. E. B. Conant is town clerk and the town treasurer is John H. Henry.

New Owners Will Change Little

The new owners of Lincoln say that they do not contemplate making any great changes in the management of the property. Old and trusted employees will be continued in their positions.

"We are very well pleased with our purchase," said Martin A.

Brown, representing the new owners, "and we hope that the pleasant relations which have existed between the help and the former owners will continue. Whatever changes we make will be for the purpose of bettering conditions and increasing the business of the company."

"Lincoln is a fine town—clean and prosperous—due to the interest of the Henrys in the welfare of their employees, some of whom have been here since the start. They had a fine organization. The men and women employed in the business are all loyal and contented, and we hope that they will show the same loyalty and interest to the new owners as they have displayed in the welfare of their old employers."

"I don't believe that there is a cleaner lumber town in the country than Lincoln. I haven't been able to detect a blot in the entire town.

"It is one of the best examples of a happy, contented, sober, industrious community in all New England. Everybody is democratic and is interested in the town. Labor and capital work hand in hand. Nobody is envious. Everybody is glad that prosperity abounds and that those who braved the hardships of the pioneer days reaped the harvest of their labors."

"I know that the property is one of the best in New England. Its possibilities are almost boundless and with the co-operation of all concerned, we shall continue to be a happy family, each doing to others as he would be done by."

Frost

Jack Frost cuts deep into the poorly painted house. Each cold snap freezes the moisture in the boards and cracks the wood just as freezing bursts bottles of water.

Keep out the moisture with weather-proof paint made of Dutch Boy White-Lead thinned with pure linseed oil. That will defeat Jack Frost. It will add fresh beauty, long remain smooth, non-cracking and weather-proof.

We have all paint materials for big or little jobs. And friendly advice, too. Call, phone, or write us.

A REMARKABLE PROPHECY.

The following prophecy by the monks, Fratre Johannes, who lived about the year 1600, is remarkable in its application to the present world crisis. The Advertiser at first doubted its authenticity, because of a few discrepancies in the text, but the matter was referred to the newspaper information bureau at Washington and Director Frederic J. Haskins replied as follows:

"In reply to your letter asking whether the prophecy by the monks, Fratre Johannes, is real, we would say that this prophecy was discovered on old parchment in the Convent of the Holy Ghost, at Wisnar, in Germany, and is kept under glass in the Town Hall of this city. There have been numerous translations, which text varies somewhat. We are returning your copy of this prophecy."

The discrepancies which we noted, and which you also may notice, are probably due to the variations in the translation of the text. On the whole it is a remarkable prophecy. It is as follows:

The real Antichrist will be one of the monarchs of his time, a Lutheran Protestant. He will invoke God and give himself out as his messenger, or apostle.

This prince of lies will swear by the Bible. He will represent himself as the arm of the Most High, sent to chastise corrupt peoples.

He will have only one arm, but his invulnerable arm, who will take for their device the words, "God is with us," will resemble the infernal regions.

For a long time he will act by craft and strategy. His spies will overrun the earth, and he will be master of the secrets of the mighty.

He will have learned men in his pay, who will maintain and undertake to prove his celestial mission.

A war will afford him the opportunity of throwing off the mask. It will not be in the first instance a war which he will wage against a French monarch. But it will be one of such a nature, that, after two weeks all will realize its universal character.

Not only all Christians, but all Muslims and even more distant peoples will be involved. Armies will be involved from the four quarters of the earth.

For by the third week the angels will have opened the minds of men who will perceive that the man is Antichrist and that all will become his slaves if they do not overthrow this conqueror.

Antichrist will be recognized by various tokens—in special he will massacre the priests, the monks, the women, the children and the aged. He will show no mercy, but will pass, torch in hand, like the barbarians, but invoking Christ.

His words of imposture will resemble those of Christians, but his vows of all the human race. He will have an eagle in his arms, there will also be an eagle in the arms of his confederate. But the latter will be a Christian, and will die for the malediction of Pope Benedict, who will be elected at the beginning of the reign of Antichrist.

In order to conquer Antichrist it will be necessary to kill more men than Rome has ever contained. It will need the energies of all the kingdoms because the Cock, the Leopard and the White Eagle will not be able to make an end of the Black Eagle without the aid of the prayers and vows of the human race.

Never will humanity have been faced with such a peril, because the triumph of the Antichrist would be that of the demon, who will have taken possession of his personality.

For it has been said that twenty centuries after the incarnation of the Word the beast will be incarnate in his turn, and will menace the world with as many evils as the Divine Incarnation has brought it graces.

Toward the 2000, Antichrist will be made manifest. His army will surpass in number anything that can be imagined. There will be Christians among his cohorts and there will be Mohammedans among the defenders of the Lamb, as well as some heathen soldiers.

For the first time the Lamb will be red—for blood will flow in the domains of the four elements at once.

The Black Eagle will hurl itself on the Cock, which will lose many feathers. It will soon be exhausted, but for the Leopard and its claws.

A ROAD TO TRUE HAPPINESS IS "EVERYWOMAN."

Henry W. Savage's Wonderful Play Now Playing at the Boston Opera House.

"Everywoman," the stupendous spectacle, which has proven to be a real dramatic and musical sensation, has drawn thousands of amusement-lovers to the Boston Opera House during the past week. Attendance records bid fair to be smashed by this Broadway enterprise of Henry W. Savage, which contains all the attractive elements of drama, opera and musical comedy.

The cast of "Everywoman" is peculiarly fitting and one which is admirably adapted to bring out the beauties of the text of the Walter Brown play. From the first entrance of every character there is no doubt or speculation as to its intent. The symbolism of the drama is never puzzling. Everything is painted in the most appropriate colors and there is no preaching. The lesson which is promulgated by "Everywoman" is one which who runs may read. To miss seeing it will be a real calamity to any thinking mind.

Paula Shay, Helen Daine, Berta Donn, Ethel Kay and Margaret Batterson are at all times within the picture.

Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given at the Boston Opera House, during the engagement of "Everywoman." The prevailing prices, during the engagement will be best seats one dollar for both evening and matinee performances.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

There will be only two more weeks of "Good Gracious Annabelle" at the Park Square Theatre, Boston. No more engaging comedy has ever appeared in Boston, and the universality of opinion is exhaustive of praise for the play and production.

Lola Fisher as the irrepressible Annabelle is a positive delight, and acts as though the little lady were visualized in reality. Through the playing of this role Miss Fisher has leaped into fame as one of America's leading comedienne, and New York with Boston and Chicago figuratively took her to their hearts with affectionate regard.

May Vokes, so well and long known as a great funmaker along her individual lines, has a part that fits her exceedingly well. Edwin Nicander is another popular member of the cast who fills his roll with distinction. The scenic settings by Robert Edmond Jones come in for their full share of praise through the manner in which they so acceptably frame the comedy. With the departure of this comedy only two weeks away it behooves theatregoers who plan to attend to order their seats at the earliest possible moment.

Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

GLOBE THEATRE.

"Arizona," a stirring melodrama in four acts is the offering announced for the coming week at Loew's Globe Theatre, Boston. The revival of this popular military play, from the prolific pen of America's foremost dramatist, Augustus Thomas, will no doubt prove the means of bringing to the Globe Theatre record-breaking crowds.

Robert Le Sueur will play the role of the young lieutenant, while all the other leading members of the organization will appear in important parts. The matinees at the Globe are Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 2, while all evening performances begin at 8 promptly. The prices are from 15 to 50 cents for all performances. The bill for the week of September 17th will be "A Pair of Silk Stockings."

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS OF A LAND OWNER.

I have just bought a little over an acre of land on a lake over in Winchester. The property is covered with big pine and oak trees, with a sprinkling of white birch. A few weeks ago some youngsters, who are probably the sons of his Satanic Majesty, got into this place and hacked off about eight of those white birches, leaving them on the ground.

Now that I've bought the land, I haven't any money for anything else, but if I had any money left I would put up a sign on that property similar to the one put up by a Cape Cod farmer. He painted the following notice on a couple of barrel staves and nailed them on a tree:

"Notis Trespassers will be persecuted to the full extent of 2 mongrel dogs which aint never been overly soshule to strangers and 1 dubble-barl shot gun which aint loaded with sofypillars, dam if I aint getting tired of this helrasin on my property."

I feel just about the way that farmer felt, only just a little stronger. It the Boston papers carry the headlines some day that I am accused of murder the readers of The Vagabond will know why I shot or stabbed or whatever it is I do.

One time when I was a newspaper reporter I wrote a hot editorial against a man who had built a stone wall around his property and had placed broken bottles on the top so as to keep people from crawling over it. I wish to goodness I could apologize to that man now. I know exactly why he did it, and I'm with him heart and soul.—[The Vagabond.]

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Members of the Union who have been doing work for the soldiers or sailors, such as knitting or making other articles at home, are asked to send in a report of what has been done to Miss Eugenia Elliott, 197 Parkway, Tel. 569-J, as soon as possible in order that it may be included in the report to the county convention which will meet September 26, at Watertown. It is only fair that the local union should have due credit for the work done by the members.

Additions to the fund for the house at Ayer continue to come in, and it is hoped that the full amount pledged may be received this month. The amount for the union is $125.00 and more than two-thirds is already in hand.

Contributions for the filling for the comfort bags are still much needed. We append the list of contents desired:

Pocket comb, tooth brush, blue or white bandanna handkerchief, spool each, white and black thread, no. 24; buttons, white and black, 6 each; 4 darning needles and spool grey darning cotton, 6 No. 5 needles, 6 safety pins, 1 pin ball filled with pins, 1 roll sterilized one inch bandage, small package absorbent cotton, small tube vaseline, roll adhesive plaster, cake of soap, writing materials, pair blunt scissors, Testament or Gospel or Proverbs, a motherly letter and some good literature. To buy these even at reduced rates, of good quality, at the present time will cost a dollar and gifts of any of the above articles or the money to buy them will be gladly received. The bags already made are very attractive and will remind the recipients that there are friends "back home" that will think of them while they are doing their bit. If you have already given, give a little more. Only once in an ordinary lifetime does such a call come and we may not refuse to respond.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

"Here Comes the Bride," a new farce-comedy which is the latest production of Klaw & Erlanger, by arrangement with Edgar MacGregor, is now playing at the Hollis Street Theatre. The dramatists have evolved a merry maze of whimsical fooleries around the central figure of a young lawyer who has lost his fortune and his sweetheart by fighting a cruel trust in behalf of a poor inventor.

The cast is very strong in the names of expert and popular farce comedy players. Among them are Otto Kruger and Francine LaRimore, fresh from their New York success in Belasco's "Seven Chances," but with other individual achievements to their credit. Others are George Parsons and Maude Eburne, who were great funmakers in "A Pair of Sixes," with William Holden, Franklin Ardell, Albert Reed, Mario Majeroni, Frank Walsh, Inez Buck and Mildred Booth.

GERMAN PRISONERS.

An American journalist thus speaks of the life of German prisoners in England:

"I had in mind particularly the German prisoners in England. There are about 70,000 of them, as I said, and the British Government has spent millions of dollars taking care of them. Their camps are regular villages with houses especially built for them, stores where they can buy things with the money that has been sent them by their relatives and friends, workshops, where they can make useful articles, athletic fields where they can play games, gardens where they grow flowers and vegetables, theatres where they give plays, and churches where they worship. Among the prisoners are men of all trades, of course, including many cooks and bakers, and I wish you could have seen the pictures a friend showed me the other day of the great quantities of food that were being prepared for the prisoners' meals. The British Government has also provided herds of cows that furnish fresh milk and butter for the men, and I haven't any doubt but that these ex-soldiers are happier now than they have been at any time since the war started."

This is the noble reply to the Hymn of Hate. Is it not altogether too noble?

A LOYAL HUSBAND.

Late Smith-Dorrien, who is engaged in adding to the comforts of wounded British soldiers in English hospitals, tells an amusing and affecting story of a private soldier who had just recovered from a severe wound, according to the Youth's Companion. Feeling ill and very homesick, he went to headquarters to obtain a leave of absence. "I haven't seen my wife for more than a year," he said in a most dejected manner. "Why," said the colonel to whom he had applied, "I haven't seen my wife for nearly two years!" "Well," said the soldier, earnestly and respectfully, "that may be sir, but my wife and my wife aren't that kind!" The farouche was immediately granted.

A gentleman incident happened recently in a Pennsylvania school. The school Mayor was lecturing a class of boys on smoking and the evils attending it. Suddenly he saw a grin overspreading the faces of the scholars, and on inquiring the cause, an innocent-looking chorub yelled out: "Phew, sir, yer pipe's sticking out of yer pocket." The smoking lecture was abruptly brought to a close.

MILITARY DRAFT.

40 Per Cent Leaves Arlington This Morning.

Word sent from Washington last week postponed the departure of the 40 per cent of the Military Draft for Ayer from Wednesday until today, the men being given a two day respite. It had been planned to take the men by auto from Arlington to Ayer, but with the postponement of the departure came word that the men were to be sent by train. Clerk P. A. Hendrick immediately wired for permission to send the men by automobiles as planned, and this was granted late this week.

The men assembled at Arlington last evening at 5 o'clock for instructions and roll call, and will leave that place this morning at 9 o'clock. The Winchester men will go to Arlington any way which suits them, and there they will be taken care of by a group of five automobiles from this town. The Arlington men will be similarly cared for by the necessary number of Arlington cars.

The arrangements for the auto transportation were made by the Committees on Public Safety of the two towns. Winchester's work being done by Mr. George B. Kimball of the local committee. The local boys will be taken to Camp Devens by John S. Perry, Horace E. Cummings, Edward S. Foster, Harry G. Davy, Ernest L. Davis and George P. Kimball, it being expected that all will drive their own cars.

According to newspaper report the 55 men constituting the Draft from this district will be assigned to the National Guard, going to fill Co. E.

The names of the men from Winchester leaving today are as follows:

Examination of All Candidates Asked For.

Immediate examination of every man registered for military service under the Selective Draft act is proposed in a telegram from Provost Marshall General Crowder received at the office of Gov. McCall.

Similar telegrams have been sent to all other Governors, and if the plan is approved and adopted the local selection boards will proceed with the examination of every man registered in their respective divisions.

One advantage in examining all registrants at this time is that the men will know in advance their responsibility for future calls and will be able to arrange their business accordingly.

It is estimated that approximately 3,000,000 men have been called for examination in the first draft and there are about 7,000,000 left. Examination of all the registrants, it is said, may take the rest of the year.

No Second Draft Planned

Provost Marshal-General Crowder, in issuing new ruling concerning the execution of the selective Draft law, reiterated that no date has been set for a second call for men for the national army and that, so far as is known no second call is contemplated by President Wilson.

Rulings issued provide that a registrant whose order of liability does not permit his being selected for the first quota cannot, even at his own request, be advanced and sent with that quota.

The acceptance of substitutes for men selected for military duty is prohibited, and local boards are instructed not to consider claims for exemption based upon a discharge of a registrant from the army, navy or marine corps at the expiration of enlistment or for some physical disability, since corrected.

TOWN GOVERNMENT ACT.

Explained Before Mass Meeting at Town Hall Tuesday Night.

The mass meeting announced for Tuesday night "to enable the Committee of Five, that was appointed by the Town to present the new Town Government Act to the Legislature, to report and give such information in regard to the Act as they may have" was held in the Town Hall with an attendance of close to 100 citizens.

The first half of the meeting was taken up by the explanation and description of the benefits of the new form of government as given by Mr. Frederic S. Snyder of the Committee of Five. As it was previously announced that the meeting was not held for discussion, the following portion of the time, up to close to the end, was given to answering some nine or ten questions asked with a discussion opening at the very close of the meeting by Prof. Chas. F. A. Currier upon permission granted by Mr. Snyder.

To those who attended in hopes of learning something further in connection with the plan as applicable to Winchester, the meeting was a disappointment, for there was nothing on the negative side of the proposition outside what could be touched upon in questions and what Prof. Currier sought to bring out at the close, and except for this the meeting was given up wholly to the advocacy of the change in government and its advantages.

Chairman Robert B. Metcalf of the Selectmen opened the meeting and explained its purpose. The meeting was called in order that the Committee of Five could take the plan up section by section and show how the new plan would differ from the old. As there would be no votes taken, discussion would be held, but the Committee was prepared to answer questions. He then requested Mr. F. M. Ives to take the chair and take charge of the meeting.

Mr. Snyder had been chosen to present the comparison between the present and proposed form of governments and to explain the benefits which would accrue from the change. This he did in a complete and lucid history and description of the matter from its start up to the present. He said that the idea embodied no untried principle and was largely a grouping of all the best ideas in town government of today. The Legislature had readily passed the present bill and no doubt felt that Winchester made a good laboratory to try out the idea, which would be watched with interest all over the State.

Upon closing he stated that it was the plan of the Committee to hold meetings all over the town before organizations and societies from now until the matter came up for vote in order to acquaint the people with its desirability.

The meeting then being open for questions, Mr. John Holland starting the ball rolling by requesting whether the purchase of school supplies by the School Committee covered coal. Mr. Snyder answered that it did not; coal being purchased by the proposed Manager; other supplies by the School Committee.

Mr. Rowe asked a similar question with reference to the Library reading matter, which brought the answer that this would be purchased by the Library Trustees.

Rev. William Fryling asked what objection there was to the election of the Manager by the citizens instead of appointing him by the Selectmen. Mr. Snyder answered this was illustrated by the present appointive system. Better results would be secured by the appointment; the Town could thus get a skilled man; it could not get efficiency by an election; if the appointment was not satisfactory public

HEDTLER-WASHBURN.

At a quiet home wedding at 119 Highland street, Chelsea, last week Wednesday evening, Mr. Oscar Hedtler of that city and Miss Winifred B. Washburne of Bangor, Me., were united in marriage. The groom is well known in this town as the head of the auto supply firm of The Oscar Hedtler Co., whose store is on Main street. His bride has been associated with him as manager of the Winchester business.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. George A. Barrow, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church of Chelsea, and took place at eight o'clock. The double ring ceremony was used. The couple were unattended and the bride wore a wedding dress of white net over white silk, with trimmings of pink. Her bridal bouquet was of brides roses. A reception followed the ceremony.

Mr. Hedtler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Hedtler of Chelsea and is commander of the Spanish War Veterans, Department of Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedtler will make their home in Winchester at 39 Mystic Valley Parkway.

WAR RELIEF WORK.

Every Friday morning, in the Parish Hall, Church of the Epiphany, work will be carried on for War Relief. The making of warm garments and comfort pillows, and knitting are the special activities of this group. Since the price of wool has advanced so fast, and there are many knitters eager to do the work, we earnestly solicit contributions toward the wool fund that the warm knitted articles may be ready for the winter. All contributions to be sent to Mrs. Louis Barta, Treasurer, Cabot street.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

Committee Unwilling to Give Plain Answers.

Editor of the Star:

The mass meeting Tuesday evening was suggestive, though not very informing, with one exception; Mr. Snyder gave an admirable analysis of the new Act and must have made it quite clear to those who had not already studied it carefully. Otherwise we were not much farther ahead at the end than at the beginning, with, however, the proviso that the committee emphasized its previous attitude of being unwilling to give plain answers to plain questions, of wishing to stifle discussion, and of hoping to jam the proposition through without affording the voters of the town an opportunity to engage in a full and free consideration of the most important measure ever submitted to them to act upon.

The Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and the Chairman of the Committee of Five, announced that the meeting was for information and not for discussion; it is true that, later on, discussion was permitted; but this does not contravene the fact that the committee had deliberately decided in advance not to permit discussion. The Committee is apparently unwilling to trust to the measure being accepted or rejected on its merits, but prefers to prevent debate. Fortunately there are other avenues for the expression of opinion; there is no evidence as yet that the committee can apply any gag rules to the columns of the STAR.

The committee persistently refuses to inform us of the results of its study of the recent history of our town government as showing why we need to make a change anyway. The Chairman was so good as to say that I have myself tried to befool the issue. His statement was a perfectly gratuitous assumption, and is both absurd and amusing, when one remembers that from the beginning to the present day I have been hammering away at facts as convincingly as I know how, where as if there is any befooling at all it is by the committee itself, which has dealt largely with glittering generalities and hazy theories. ## BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow the second game of the series between Woburn and Winchester will be played. Our boys did not do themselves justice in the game last Saturday, and will be out to show Woburn that they won not because they are a better team, but that they had the breaks in the luck. Far be it from us to belittle Woburn in their victory Saturday, but we will advise them in advance that they will have to travel some to get away with a win tomorrow. Manager LeDuc will play his team as it stood last Saturday and will only make a change in the box. And right there we will have a pitcher whom the fans of Winchester can depend on. We have had several opportunities this week to secure reliable box men, but Manager LeDuc was out for a good one and got him. This man, Mulrean, has been all the season with New London in the Eastern League and was called by Providence of The International League about eight weeks ago to help in their drive for the pennant. But luck went against Providence and they lost out by half a game to Toronto. Mulrean has been pitching great ball and should be easily able to hold Woburn and make the game interesting. If the weather is pleasant we will have the largest turnout of the season on Manchester Field and as the seating capacity is limited the early arrivals will be the ones to get seats.

Mulrean comes from Montvale, and we expect that section of Woburn to turn out in full to root for their favorite. There has always been a big demand to see McMahon and Mulrean facing each other, and as this is the first chance that they ever had it looks as though you fans were going to see some fireworks. Each pitcher has his own following, therefore, there will be lots of "goat" getting. So tie yours. Game at 3:15 prompt, and get down early.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS.

Calumet Club Announces Two Tournaments.

Announcement was made this week of the opening of the bowling season at the Calumet Club when the dates of the two most important tournaments of the season, the Winter Tournament for the men and the Mixed Tournament for men and women, were given out. The two tournaments will be made up of the usual number of bowlers to a team and will start at about the usual time customary in past years.

The Winter Tournament will begin on Oct. 8th, and entries are required to be in on or before Sept. 24th. The Mixed Tournament will begin on Dec. 1st, and further information concerning this will be issued later. Provided usual bowling enthusiasm prevails at the Club, the Spring Tournament will commence about Jan. 15th.

Extensive repairs are being made to the alleys this fall, it being anticipated that upon their completion the Club will have the fastest alleys in its history. Owing to the extensive work on the alleys they will not be open for use until tomorrow night.

Beginning Oct. 16th the alleys will be open afternoons from 2 o'clock on Tuesdays and Fridays for the ladies.

STATE GUARDS.

Winchester Company Goes on Second Encampment.

At 10 o'clock last Friday morning, Co. F lined up at the Town Hall to start on their second encampment. The men carried their full field equipment—bunk roll, haversack, mess-kit, canteen, rifle, etc. At 10:15 the order "Squads Right—March" was given and they started on the long hike up Church street, then High street and across the golf links to Arlington Heights, up over the highest point of the heights until a country road called Marsh street was reached, and down this road to the camp site. Camp was set up in a level pasture surrounded by ideal country for maneuvers; rolling, rocky pasture land, thick woods, marshes and steep hills.

After tents were pitched, properly ditched and cleaned up, Mess was sounded. After mess a short rest, then drill in close and extended order most of the afternoon. When the company was dismissed after drill, some of the men still had sufficient energy to choose sides and engage in a real football scrimmage—the football being produced by a particularly thoughtful Sergeant. While team play was somewhat lacking, a spirited game resulted, being delayed considerably by arguments as to the number of downs and yards gained.

Guard mount followed with the 2nd platoon on duty Friday night. Soon after guard mount, mess call was sounded and the men charged the cook tent in fine style, and annihilated Cook Price's offerings.

After mess came retreat, the color guard being Sergeant Lampey, and Privates W. Richardson and Woods.

After retreat a roaring fire was started in the company street, and the singers got busy. Top Sergeant Hinds led, seconded by a quartet of excellent voices, who were in turn ably supported by the entire company. Corporal Wirgin entertained with several solos and a recitation.

At 9:30 tattoo was sounded, then at 9:45 came the call to quarters, and taps at 10.

Saturday broke fine and clear, just cool enough to put the men right on their toes. First call came at 5:00 o'clock, colors at 5:15, mess at 5:30, sick call at 6:00, fatigue 6:15, and recall from fatigue at 6:30. An hour's rest and first call to drill sounded at 7:30.

Lieut. Smalley then took one squad and marched toward the Concord turnpike, while Capt. Tompkins led the rest of the company in an opposite direction toward Pleasant street. The problem was this: a body of hostile troops were resting in Concord, their advance guard was somewhere along the Concord turnpike, and Lieut. Smalley's squad represented the outposts of the advance guard. Capt. Tompkins' objective was to sufficiently out-flank the hostile outposts so that they would be cut off from the main force, or come upon them so suddenly that they would have no chance to retreat.

MOORE-ETHERIDGE.

Miss Alice Louise Etheridge was married on Saturday evening to 2d Lieut. Charles Edward Moore of Roanoke, Va., at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Etheridge, 21 Lebanon street, by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, of the Unitarian Church. The bride's only attendant was Miss Charlotte B. Edmunds of Salem. Mr. Frank S. Hunt of Peabody was the groom's best man.

The bride was gown in cream satin trimmed with chantilly lace and wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Edmunds wore robin's egg blue taffeta and carried a staff with a basket of sweetheart roses.

The residence was decorated with pink roses, hydrangeas and asparagus fern, the ceremony being performed beneath an arch in the living room. The wedding march was played on piano and violin by Mrs. Lawrence H. Tool and Miss Marion L. Reed of Brookline.

A reception followed the ceremony which was largely attended by many friends of the couple from this and surrounding places. The ushers were Mr. Roland H. Page of Boston, Mr. Maurice Frye of Peabody, Mr. Walter G. Cheever of Somerville, and Serget Harold L. Etheridge, brother of the bride.

The wedding was hastened as the groom soon goes into active service, and after a short wedding trip, Lieut. and Mrs. Moore will make their home in Roanoke, Va., where Lieut. Moore is stationed with the Engineers Officers' Reserve Corps. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva O. Moore of Peabody.

NEW VOTERS.

The registration of new voters held by the Registrars at the Town Hall brought in 15 names as follows: Bailey, William H., 22 Eaton st.; Damon, Ralph T., 56 Fletcher st.; Fraser, Angus B., 9 Russell rd.; French, Arthur E., 108 Highland av.; Gorry, George W., 5 Winthrop st.; Martin, William, 94 Church st.; Phelan, Joseph E., 1 Rangleway; Warren, Clarence A., 5 Winthrop st.; Wheeler, Maynard E., 6 Cliff st.; Davis, Myron M., 22 Lebanon st.; Gould, Samuel E., 2 Park ave.; Crane, Roy E., 8 Lawrence st.; Whorf, Clarence P., 10 Prospect st.; Hucksins, Albert K., 6 Park ave.; McElhiney, Arthur F., 16 Baldwin st.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Lost First Game in Series.

By "Mack."

I have seen many ball games in Woburn in the days gone past, between Winchester and Woburn, but I do not think I ever saw a Winchester team play as badly as we did last Saturday. It seemed from where we sat as if the players had a case of stage fright. Smith, the pitcher, was continually in the hole and that upset the rest of the team, and they fell down behind him. Well, as I have said to a great many managers during the season when they offered excuses for the loss of a game—one alibi is as good as another—holds good in this case. You fans can blame Smith, Duffy or St. Angelo, or tell Manager LeDuc where to get off, but the one fact that stands out above anything else is that Woburn did not earn a run, and what have you got to say to that? Of course, Duffy made a couple of foolish throws which gave St. Angelo made two errors which were responsible for two runs and Barry let a fly ball between himself and St. Angelo after he had called for the ball, and Duffy and Burke made an error on the same ball. Well, that accounts for the beating, doesn't it? There will be no change in the Winchester lineup next Saturday, and I'll wager a package of Christy Sullivan's stories against a plugged nickel, that Winchester plays a 50 per cent better game of ball than they did last Saturday. I said there would be no change, but I should have said there will be one important change and that in the box.

In another column of the STAR you will find the announcement, outside of that we will stand pat. Just a word about Smith, here is a young pitcher with all kinds of curves and speed, but lacking the one essential of a good pitcher, control, and a pitcher without control is about as much use as a submarine without a periscope.

FISHING CASES DISCHARGED.

Court Rules Commission Had No Authority to Make Arrests.

The three fishing cases came up in the Woburn court Monday morning before Judge Johnson and resulted in all being dismissed. The Judge stated that after conferring with two other members of the bench he was of the opinion that the Metropolitan Park Commission, by whose officers the men were arrested had no right to forbid the fishing, and also that the Water Board of this Town had no right to make the lease of the reservoirs to the commission.

A few weeks ago Metropolitan officers took Frank S. Richardson, Charles B. Bird and Howard Spaulding for fishing in the Winchester reservoirs. They were arraigned in the Woburn court and were defended by Arthur E. Whitney of the Winchester Water Board, who contended that the Metropolitan Commission had no right to forbid the fishing. A lease given the Commission by a previous Water Board was declared by Mr. Whitney to be invalid, he claiming that said lease was not signed by all members of the Board.

These two points appear to have been sustained by Judge Johnson, who further stated that where reservoirs in the State were placed under the jurisdiction of the State Board of Health, said Board made no attempt to regulate or forbid fishing, leaving this matter to the Water Commissions. He cited an instance in the City of Springfield.

There was little interest in the case, but three residents outside of those interested attending the court.

SERVICE FLAG AT CALUMET.

There will be hung over the fireplace in the reception hall of the Calumet Club tomorrow night a handsome 6 x 3 foot service flag in recognition of those members of the Club who are now giving their services to their Country. On one side of the flag will be twelve stars placed in the field and on the reverse side will be the names of the twelve members lettered in gold.

The Club members who are in the service are:

- Dr. Irving T. Catter
- Rev. Murray W. Dewart
- Charles N. Eaton
- Loring P. Gleason
- Willard P. Kellough
- Dr. E. Russell Murphy
- Dr. Herbert E. Maynard
- Geoffrey N. Noley
- Charles C. Rogers, 2nd
- H. Wray Rohman
- John L. Soutter
- Charles Woolley

KEEP A GOOD FRONT.

Buying a good suit is good judgment. It gives a man poise, prop, push and personal pride and may help to land him a better job.

But he who neglects to keep a good suit looking like new, is winked at as a down-and-outer. A new suit continues to be an asset only when it is kept to look like new. Always keep a good front by keeping that suit cleverly cleansed by Hallanday's. It may get you a better job. Call Hallanday's Winchester Shop, 9 Church street. Tel. Win. 528. ## COMING EVENTS.

Dates That Should be Remembered When Making Engagements.

Sept. 22, Saturday. Base ball on Manchester Field at 3:15. Second game in Winchester-Woburn series.

VESPER SERVICES COMING OF UNUSUAL ATTRACTIVENESS.

The series of vesper services held last season at the First Congregational Church proved so popular, that it is again being planned to continue them on the first Sunday afternoon of each month at 5 p. m. It is the intention of those responsible, to secure artists of recognized ability and reputation, and at the first vesper, which is to be held Sunday, October 7th, Mrs. Grace Bonner, Williams, the well known soprano, will sing. Mrs. Williams is one of foremost interpreters of oratorio and church music in this country. The complete program of artists who will appear up to January will be published next week.

WINCHESTER SCHOOL GARDENERS.

A Fine and Successful Exhibit by Enthusiastic Children.

Motto

"Die when I may I want it said of me by those who know me best that I always plucked a thistle and planted a flower where I thought a flower would grow."—Abraham Lincoln.

In recognition of honest effort in gardening the people of Winchester hereby welcome to the company of

"Patriotic Helpers"

As the days go by, this little card, reminding you that you had a part in serving your home, your community and your country in a time of need, will mean more to you than any prize that you might receive. That the experience gained in this year's work may enable you to do even more in the year to come is the hope and wish of all who love girls and boys and growing things.

"Good, better, best! Never let it rest, Till your good is better, and your better best."

This is a copy of the card planned by Mrs. Woodside, Winchester's garden teacher, and distributed among the young gardeners as a souvenir of their summer's work.

The exhibition held last Saturday afforded the public an opportunity for judging of the success of this work, in the excellence of the vegetables and flowers shown. First, second and third place tickets were awarded by the judges, Mr. Samuel Symmes, Mr. John Wills, and Mrs. Josef Sandberg. The small Town Hall was flanked on four sides by heavily loaded tables. Of the three in the center, two were devoted to the flowers donated by Mrs. Warren, Miss Downs and Mrs. Woodside, the sale of which defrayed part of the expenses of the exhibition. A third table was ably presided over by Masters Lincoln Russell and Ralph Symmes, who demonstrated the packing of root crops, and answered intelligently all questions pertaining to planting, raising, and harvesting. Many grown-ups went away wiser, about our friend, the potato for instance, after hearing form, size, quality of skin and "eyes" discussed by these youthful experts. This table held a much-admired 35-pound pumpkin raised by Robert Comfort.

Under the south balcony Miss Consetta Serrina carried on a thriving canning industry, carefully demonstrating each step of the process. Since the middle of August this ten year old girl has not only preserved thirty jars of vegetables and fruit but she has taught her mother and older sisters the art of canning. Besides the well-known vegetables there were others less familiar such as strawberry tomatoes, ground almonds, Burbank's sunberries, peanuts and cotton plant. There was one exhibit that might have been classed among the rarities unknown, even unexpected by the oldest inhabitant. Miss Martha Salice is responsible for a vegetable that caused much controversy. It was of a watermelon green and had the dimensions of a base ball bat. Some declared it to be a melon of foreign extraction; others an attenuated cucumber; while one imaginative spectator detected symptoms of its relation to the bean family. None suspected its true status in vegetable society—a squash in disguise. It was unique and won a blue ticket. There was an exhibit of sorry-looking vegetables that had strayed from the straight and narrow path in the course of their career and came under the heading "Freaks of Nature." There was a corn-stalk measuring twelve feet in length. Even the despised weeds quaintly termed "Thieves of the Garden" were accorded a place among their betters.

After the exhibition the children were allowed to do as they chose with their products. Some were sold, some were taken home and some were sent to the hospital. A generous bouquet of flowers was sent to the grave of one of Winchester's best little gardeners, Master Paul Nelson, whose sad death occurred a few weeks ago. A blue ticket marked his exhibit shown by his sister.

Great credit is due Mrs. Woodside and the children for their effort during this most trying summer. In the present study of food conservation could anything have been more timely than this school garden work? The raising of vegetables is not all that Mrs. Woodside teaches the children, as those who have watched the working out of her method fully realize. She brings a very real love for "girls and boys and growing things" to her teaching, and the practical experience of a successful farmer as well.

Previous to her marriage with Major Alonzo Woodside, and during a period of ill-health caused by overwork as public reader and teacher, she bought a produce and stock farm of 160 acres in the Middle West and demonstrated her ability as business woman and agriculturist by superintending the management of it for four years, finally selling to advantage before coming East. During her travels in America and Europe, Mrs. Woodside has always been interested in the scientific growing of vegetables and flowers. Among her many experiences she remembers with pleasure a visit to the home of her friend, Miss Marie Jorstadt in Christiania, the woman of extraordinary foresight and ability, who received a medal from King Haakon for introducing school gardens into Norway. From Miss Jorstadt Mrs. Woodside learned many things, that later, were to prove invaluable to her in her work as teacher of school gardening.

Thanks to the fund provided by The Fortnightly, the able assistance of Miss Winifred Welsh was secured for the latter part of the term.

FLAG RAISING AT HOSPITAL.

An interesting event at the Winchester Hospital on Monday afternoon at three o'clock was the raising of a new flag to the top of the fine 50-foot staff which has recently been erected at the west of the entrance. Both the staff and flag were the gifts of a group of boys known as the Boys' Hospital Club, and which has already presented the institution with its fracture bed.

The ceremony was simple and was attended by a considerable gathering of children, parents, nurses and Hospital officials. The flag was held by Donald Tucker of the Club and was raised by the President of the Club, Lincoln Russell. An address was made by Miss Katherine Pond, President of the Visiting Nurse Association and the pledge of allegiance given, followed by cheers. The boys making the gift raised their funds by two plays given last winter and spring. The Club is composed of Lincoln Russell, Donald Tucker, Thomas Jansen, Lyman Smith, Chauncey Mitchell and John Martin.

ANDREW—McCALL.

Speaking at the farewell exercises of the New Bedford National Army recruits, Charles S. Hamlin, president of the Federal Reserve Bank—a Democrat, incidentally—paid the following tribute to Gov. McCall:

"Massachusetts has done splendid work under his leadership. His name will go down in history with that of John A. Andrew, as the two great war governors of this great Commonwealth."

Patriotism and politics do not always coincide, but it may well be held as a merely patriotic duty for Massachusetts Republicans to go to the polls next Tuesday and register their emphatic approval of the service of Gov. Samuel W. McCall. That he will again win his party's nomination and be re-elected admits of little doubt. Yet it is the duty of every citizen to contribute his vote to that end and to make the indorsement as unmistakable as possible.—[Boston Journal, Sept. 18, 1917.]

COUNTRY CLUB TOURNAMENT.

The three-day open tournament at the Winchester Country Club from Thursday to Saturday drew the largest crowd of golfers to this place yet seen at any similar tournament in the State this year. Great interest centered in the play from the qualifying round on Thursday up to the finals Saturday afternoon.

From the qualifying round the first 16 played from scratch, the second, third and fourth 16 playing on the basis of the Mass. State Handicap List—4 handicap being allowed.

Fred J. Wright, Jr., Mass. junior champion golfer and western junior title holder, was low gross scorer in the qualifying round out of the field of over 100 starters. He went the course in 78. In his two rounds of match play Saturday he won his semi-final match with Larry Paton of Homestead by 1 up, and followed this by defeating F. L. Hunt, Jr., 3 and 2.

Winchester players who went out in the first round of the first division and their results were as follows: Clarkson, Vesper, defeated A. M. Bond, 3 and 2; J. A. Wheeler, Jr., defeated R. W. Stanley, Brae Burn, 1 up; F. L. Hunt, Jr., defeated S. T. Hinks 4 and 2; G. M. Brooks defeated J. B. Hayden, Vesper, default; R. L. Smith defeated J. A. Faren, Scarborough, 1 up; H. T. Bond defeated A. M. Hoxie, Wampatuck, 3 and 2.

In the second round Wright defeated Wheeler 5 and 3; Hunt defeated Brooks 5 and 4; Bond defeated Smith 1 up.

In the semi-finals Wright won and Hunt defeated H. T. Bond 7 and 6. In the finals Wright beat Hunt 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen

The Winchester men in the second 16 finished as follows: W. D. Eaton defeated Rivinius 8 and 6; Stephenson defeated W. W. Cutler, Hatherly, 5 and 3. In the second round Eaton defeated Stephenson 2 and 1. In the semi-finals Eaton defeated Galbraith, Concord, 3 and 1, and in the finals Liggett, Brae Burn, defeated Eaton 1 up.

Third Sixteen

Olmostead defeated E. Lyons, invited, 4 and 3; Sherman defeated Cummings by default; O. B. Sewall, Concord, defeated Smith, 3 and 2; A. R. Cutler, Hatherly, defeated Elkins 2 up. Second round: Osgood, Salem, defeated Olmostead 1 up; Sherman defeated Sewall 4 and 3. In the semi-finals Sherman defeated Spring, Brae Burn, 3 and 1, and in the finals Osgood defeated Sherman 3 and 2.

Fourth Sixteen

In the semi-finals Nutting, Newton, defeated Underwood 4 and 3 and Boyle, Scarborough, defeated Walker 2 and 1. In the finals Boyle defeated Nutting 4 and 3.

Wright Played Great Game

Wright, the State junior champion was out in 37, against 38, in the first round, and he had chances of getting an even better medal score. In the second round Wright wasn't crowded to any appreciable degree by J. A. Wheeler, Jr., of Lexington, the Western junior champion advancing by a 5 and 3 score.

The only match in the second round that went to the home green or anywhere near it was the contest in which H. T. Bond defeated R. L. Smith, both playing on to that home green. In the contest between Wright and Paton Saturday, there was little to choose between either of the players. Each made mistakes when the chances for victory looked bright. Wright started off by winning the first hole and Paton evened the match at the third after putting his third to within a foot of the pin and scoring a 4. Wright, at this hole, lost his ball on his second shot. They halved the next two holes. Then Wright took the sixth and seventh and, as the next two were halved, Wright, with an approximate 6 at the third, scored a 29 for his first nine. Paton was 43, being 2 down.

Saturday afternoon Wright gave a stellar putting exhibition. For the first six holes it is doubtful if any golfer could have beaten him on the putting green. After the turn he lost him the chance to win two holes, the first coming at the 13th, where he was nicely over the brook after playing two excellent shots, while Hunt, who had popped his drive, looked due to lose another hole.

Hunt, after being short on his fourth, placed his fifth dead and scored a 6, halving the hole. Wright's third was short of the green and his fourth left him a short putt for a win. He missed and a 6 resulted.

At the 14th Hunt took three putts after being nicely on. Wright, who also reached the green from the tee about 20 feet away, had two for a win, but failed to hole a short putt. The hole was halved in 4.

Much credit is due Hunt for his performance with the Alhambra player up to and including the 10th hole. From that stage on the outlying Wright and playing perfect short approaches, did not show as good form.

They halved the first hole in 5, after Wright was nicely on in 3, 12 feet from the hole. Hunt pulled his tee shot and sliced his second. His third was short. A nice approach six feet from the pin, which he holed while Wright missed his putt of 12 feet by inches, must have given him a lot of confidence. The Winchester man got away a great drive to the second, only to hit a tree on his second. Wright reached home in 2. Hunt, on his third, was over 20 feet. He made a great bid for a half, missed it, and Wright was 1 up.

It was at the third that Wright started his great putting. He placed his second 30 feet this side of the hole. Hunt, on his like, was over in the rough. The latter made a nice recovery, the ball stopping a short distance from the cup. Wright holed his 30-footer for a 3 and Hunt scored a 4.

Hunt reached the green after playing two nice shots to the fourth, his ball resting 15 feet from the hole. Wright was short on his like and his approach shot left him a 20-foot putt. He holed it and the hole, which to all appearance belonged to Hunt, was halved in 4.

Nice Running-Up Shot by Hunt

Hunt put his second to the fifth hole five feet from the cup and scored a 3, Wright being trapped on his second. To the sixth, 175 yards Hunt was a few yards short of the green. Wright hooked his tee shot into the woods and on his second had to play over the trees. The ball stopped rolling 18 feet from the pin. Hunt made a nice running-up shot to within a couple of feet of the hole. Wright putted and the ball nestled in the cup, the hole being halved in 3.

Hunt sliced into the woods going to the seventh and failed to get out on his second. His third was sliced. Wright was home in two and won the hole in 4 to 7. A win by Hunt at the ninth in 3 to 4 left him 1 down starting for home. Wright's medal for the first nine was 36, Hunt's 38.

Wright got the better ball away to the 10th hole. Hunt just missed being trapped on his second. Wright's ball bounded into the trap on his second and he failed to get out on his next. Hunt was over 12 feet away on his fourth, missed the putt coming back and scored a 5. Wright just missed getting a half at this hole by inches.

A sliced drive by Hunt at the 11th, his second being trapped, gave Wright a lead of 1 up. The Alhambra player increased this to 2 up by winning the 12th. Hunt's ball was buried after his drive. He tried to use a brassie without success and the hole was won by Wright in 5 to 6.

It was at the 13th, as stated above, that Wright made his first blunder. He made another at the 14th.

At the 15th Wright was short on his second and Hunt was to the right of the green. Wright pitched his next on about seven feet from the cup and Hunt was six feet over. Wright got his putt. Hunt missed his six-footer and the match was done. They halved the 16th in 4 and Wright was the winner by 3 and 2. The cards:

Wright	5	4	3	4	5	3	4	4	4	36
Hunt	5	5	4	3	3	7	4	3	38
Wright	6	3	5	6	4	4	4
Hunt	5	5	6	4	5	4

Open Handicap vs. Massachusetts Rating

The open handicap vs. M. C. A. Rating Saturday afternoon resulted as follows:

W. D. Eaton, Winchester, 1 up; P. Tewksbury, Woodland, 2 down; A. L. Fowler, Wollaston, 2 down; H. T. Bond, Winchester, 3 down; G. M. Brooks, Winchester, 3 down; B. K. Stephenson, Winchester, 3 down; J. A. Wheeler, Jr., Winchester, 4 down; P. B. Elkins, Winchester, 4 down; R. C. Van Arsdale, Pittsfield, 5 down; J. A. Farrer, Winchester, 5 down; A. M. Bond, Winchester, 5 down; P. A. Hendrick, Winchester, 5 down; R. W. Stanwood, Brae Burn, 6 down; C. A. Rean, Winchester, 6 down; I. Hilton, Winchester, 6 down; C. A. Wheeler, Winchester, 8 down; J. K. Williams, Winchester, 8 down; R. T. Damon, Winchester, 11 down; M. T. Brown, Winchester, 10 down.

F. L. Hunt, Jr., B. K. Stephenson and S. Trafford Hicks, will take part in the three day tournament of the Belmont Spring Club, this week. On Friday last in the first round of match play at the Winchester C. C. Wright beat Tewksbury in the first round of match play for the President's Cup after a good match had been played by 3 and 2. There is no doubt that if they happen to meet at Belmont, the gallery that is expected to be present will witness an excellent round of golf.

Freddie Wright's exhibition at Woodland just after he defeated W. Lambert Hunt of Winchester in the open tournament at the Winchester Country Club was of the championship caliber. Wright, playing with Dr. J. A. Stockwell as his partner against Paul Tewksbury and J. Y. Shoaff, in the first 18 holes defeated the latter pair on the best ball and aggregate by 9 up. In this contest Wright and Stockwell holed putts of 40 feet each for three.

That father-and-son tournament to be staged at the Winchester Country Club next week, to be followed by a mixed foursome, sneaks well for the committee at the Winchester Club. This is the first father-and-son tournament in this section and by all reports the event will be an interesting one. Fifty-six players will take part.—(Boston Globe.)

A FATHER AND SON TOURNAMENT.

Winchester Country Club has arranged through the Chairman of the Golf Committee, Bart Stephenson, a father-and-son tournament, Scotch foursome, for Sept. 28th, and the following day a mixed foursome will be staged. There will be 56 players in the Scotch foursome for the first event, the senior members of the family including the following 28: R. H. Sherman, E. C. Starr, F. C. Fish, R. B. Metcalf, H. J. Olmstead, G. O. Russell, W. F. Flanders, J. E. Page, A. S. Higgins, F. L. Avery, J. L. S. Barton, F. L. Hunt, William Keyes, G. W. Fitch, W. S. Forbes, F. E. Getty, George Neiley, P. A. Goodale, R. W. Hart, I. Hilton, F. M. Smith, E. McDonald, H. C. Hosley, A. B. Saunders, A. P. Tenney, R. D. A. Thompson and H. A. Wilkinson.

OUR MEDICAL SERVICE.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: The writer feels that the public interests in our town are in one direction at least being most inefficiently served, and that the common welfare requires publicity in the matter.

I refer to the medical service, and whereas I believe no one would wish to criticize the ability and skill of our physicians, it seems to me that the withholding of this service in financially or otherwise unattractive cases is a serious matter.

Few phases in human life are more hazardous to the parties involved than the time of confinement of the expectant mother. It would seem to me as a layman—even after due consideration of the various impositions, attendance without payment, etc.—to which every physician must necessarily submit, that the humanitarian instinct if nothing more, would prompt any doctor to respond immediately to these emergency cases if possible; yet last night (Monday) such a case was refused for one or another reason by every physician in town who could be reached by phone, including the Town Physician.

The mother-to-be had not expected confinement for several days and had not arranged for a physician; during the evening the husband had tried unsuccessfully from 8 to 11.30 to get a doctor, and as a last resort came to see if Mrs. Smalley, who had attended as nurse in a former confinement, would advise him what to do.

Physicians were successively called on the phone—the night telephone operator lending her hearty assistance, but upon learning the identity of the case they invariably refused attendance—those of course who were absent or out on cases—Drs. Brown, Simon, Mead, and Sheehy—excepted; as a last resort Dr. Sheehan of Stoneham, was phoned and though suffering from a severe cold, offered to attend if no Winchester physician could be procured.

The exigency of the case allowed of no further time, nor alternative other than that Mrs. Smalley was left to handle the confinement alone, and as a matter of fact, was the sole help of the mother throughout. It seems to the writer that such a condition of affairs is disgraceful; our town is one of the wealthiest in the State, and the proper care of the poor,—most especially the medical care, is a duty. We have a Town physician who, if my conception is not at fault, is obligated to see that such emergencies are properly taken care of; assuming that he is at any time day or night, unable to attend personally, he should delegate a substitute; no case should be ignored where a fatal termination is possible without skilled attendance.

In this instance the husband works for the Winchester Rock & Brick Co., earning about $12 per week, and having a family of four small children; how can a man in such circumstances pay a doctor's bill? Is it right that such cases should be denied the medical aid which the Town theoretically provides and pays for? Should the willingness of a former district nurse prove the only available help for the poor and needy in any instance of this nature?

I hone and believe that the proper authorities in Winchester will immediately correct this neglect; but if not, the motherhood of this town will surely see that the proper remedy is applied.

Edward B. Smalley,
15 Cross street,
Winchester.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

William H. Mulholland has filed a petition asking to be appointed as administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Margaret E. Mulholland, who died September 8. No valuation of the estate was filed.

Mrs. Zerilda E. Arrell of Winchester has asked to be appointed as administratrix of the estate of her husband, John Arrell, who died April 16. The estate is valued at $3,600, all in real estate. The heirs-at-law are Ralph E. Arrell, a son; Marion G. Arrell, a daughter, and Lillian G. Arrell, a daughter, all of Winchester.

The estate of George W. Richardson is inventoried at $4,200; $1,000 in personal property and $3,200 in real estate.

The estate of John H. Carter is inventoried at $2,460.91, all in personal property.

Mrs. Edith V. Sargent has asked to be appointed as administrator of the estate of her husband, George E. Sargent, who died August 25. The estate is valued at $650, all in personal property. The heirs-at-law are Mrs. Edith V. Sargent of Winchester, a widow, and Evelyn C. Cameron of Brockton, a daughter.

MRS. PHINEAS A. NICKERSON.

Mrs. Sarah C. Nickerson, widow of the late Capt. Phineas A. Nickerson, died at her home on Church street Tuesday after an illness dating from January. She was a native of Harwich and had made her home in this town for over 30 years. Her husband died here three years ago. She is survived by two sons, Herbert Hill Nickerson of this town and Curtis Nickerson of Leominster. She was identified during her life here with various social and charitable organizations and at the time of her death was a member of the Unitarian Church, the Ladies' Friendly Society and the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association.

The funeral services were held from the residence yesterday noon at 12.30 and were conducted by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, Pastor of the Unitarian Church. The burial was in Willowood Cemetery.

They look just alike

There are more than 300 imitations of RU-BER-OLD Roofing.

They all look like RU-BER-OLD.

And they all claim to be "just as good." But their good looks and their wearing qualities are only on the surface. The quality isn't there and they soon warp, crack or rot.

Better start with the genuine RU-BER-OLD—made by the Standard Paint Co. Though it costs a trifle more by the roll, RU-BER-OLD will save you trouble and expense, and will give years more service.

We guarantee RU-BER-OLD because we know its worth. In thousands of cases it has given good service for more than 20 years.

RU-BER-OLD comes in Slate Gray, Tile Red and Copper Green. Tell us how much you need and we will figure what it costs.

A WISE INVESTMENT

If You Have Invested in Liberty Bonds the only practical investment is to prevent depreciation of your real estate by having necessary repairs made now to resist the long Winter. Statistics prove that 80 per cent of the exterior repairs are due to the storms of the Winter season. Yearly the wise automobile owner has his car overhauled to resist the wear and depreciation during the season his machine must withstand a large mileage. Apply this exceptional logical method to your home or real estate holdings by making an appointment with me to estimate shingling, floor laying, remodeling, building and jobbing.

Dollars to doughnuts it will be McCall over Cushing at the primary election.

The price of raw sugar imported into this country has increased 112 per cent since 1914.

The question of allowing fishing in our reservoirs will have to be decided by the citizens in a town meeting of some future date.

It is reported that the lowest bid received for the erection of the new postoffice building was $9,000 higher than the amount set aside by the government for the erection of the building. And prices are going higher every day.

Cultivate pigs advises one of our contemporaries. The last cry was raise hens. Horse meat is being recommended as a food and after the experts research a little longer perhaps we may find some virtue in the conservation of the cat.

Last week a dozen of average sized tomatoes sold for more than was asked for the same number of oranges. The frost was said to be responsible for this. Housewives who have not yet put up their supplies for the coming winter, will find that they cannot now afford to do so.

There does not appear to be any probability that the consumer will benefit much, at present, from Mr. Hoover's control of the necessities of life. The latest revelation is that he is not to meddle with prices of meat, or of farm produce. Why this special consideration for the farmers?

Melrose is to keep a record of its men in the service of the United States Army. The work includes the securing of names, addresses and various information about each local soldier or sailor. This will be undertaken as soon as proper cards are furnished by the State bureau, the information to be forwarded to the State bureau, and local files to be retained in Melrose as well.

It was the custom not so very long ago for politicians in order to curry public favor, which meant more votes, to "bang" the railroads of New England. The vote seekers have now gone about on another tack, after about putting the railroads out of business. They now ask that the railroads be given a fair deal. But this now comes too late, perhaps to remedy matters as investors do not care to put their money at the mercy of politicians.

In September, 1915, this office sold a lot of waste paper, baled, at 25 cents per 100 pounds. There was then no shortage claimed in white paper. Last week, after being offered the same price for paper, a lot was finally disposed of at 35 cents per 100 pounds. During the interim waste paper has sold as high as 50 cents per 100. Although it has now dropped to almost pre-war prices, the finished product continues to raise in price each month.

Last week was "fish week," and all the people in this part of the country were asked to eat of it. The result was that a mackerel that sold a short time ago for ten cents went up to thirty cents. The same thing occurred during the wheatless week, when the people were asked to eat dark bread—a bread made up principally of oat meal, graham flour and cattle feed (bran). Some persons are getting rich at the people's expense, evidently.

As the Committee of Five announced at the meeting of Tuesday night that it would speak on the proposed change in Town Government between now and election before various organizations and societies in town, it is expected that this subject will receive considerable attention. This is especially anticipated in view of the fact that it is very probable that such organizations and societies will want to hear both sides of the subject, and the opposition has not yet been afforded a real opportunity to air its views.

Word has gone out that the potato crop of Amoscook County will be far below normal this season. When the farmers planted in the spring, they expected to repeat last year's performance when record prices prevailed and made another clean-up. Rust and blight have done their work. It is claimed, and many farmers say they will be satisfied if they break even. This sounds like the early reports from the peach crop which is always ruined in the early spring. No a-days, anything to keep the price up and force the people to pay exorbitant rates.

There is a great deal of loose talk about food saving. We need to save only those foods which can be exported at least cost and which can be used by our Allies. It is therefore not absolutely necessary to undertake in each household a reduction tion in the amount of food consumed, but rather a reduction in the amount of certain kinds of food. For these we can substitute other kinds. It is important that householders should be told that sugar, pork, beef, should be used most sparingly, and that while it is desirable to be economical in all things it is necessary to save particular foods that need to be saved because they will be useful to our Allies. For these particular foods householders can substitute other kinds that are just as nutritious.

The primaries are to be held next Tuesday. There is great danger that a full Republican vote will not be cast on the assumption that Gov. McCall will get the nomination anyway. Therefore if everybody takes this for granted, and that he is perfectly safe, there is danger of a different story after the primaries. Gov. McCall is our honored townsman. He has given an excellent administration, during these strenuous war times, and every voter should back him up by going to the polls next Tuesday and casting a ballot for him. Show your loyalty to Mr. McCall and the town. Give him a rousing vote.

"But while it is true that with affairs of great moment engrossing the people there is little interest in politics, it by no means follows that Republicans are going to be unmindful of the obligation they are under to see that Gov. McCall is re-nominated and re-elected. Prior to Mr. McCall's election the Democratic party had for five consecutive years succeeded in electing its candidate, and Republicans are not so ungenerous as to overlook the service that Mr. McCall rendered in putting an end to these successes. The Governor's re-nomination and re-election last year was in keeping with the traditional policy that accords a worthy Republican Governor three terms, and this year there is no reason to believe that Republicans will not complete the program merely because Mr. Cushing thinks he would like the office."—[Springfield Republican.]

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 17, 1917.
The Board met at 7:30. Present, Messrs. Metcalf, Jewett and Laraway.

Pickering Street: Having received a report from the Town Engineer, the Board decided to hold a hearing in the Selectmen's Room, on Oct. 1, at 8 o'clock p. m., to hear the petitioners for the acceptance of Pickering street as a town way.

Street Lights Ordered: The Board voted to install a 60 candle power incandescent light on the third pole up from Forest street on Chisholm road.

The matter of the petition for a street light on Lawson road was referred to the Town Engineer for report.

Sheridan Circle: On receipt of a report from the Town Engineer the Board voted to hold a hearing on Oct. 1, to hear the petitioners for the acceptance of Sheridan circle as a town way.

Surface Drainage North Main Street: The Town Engineer reported that the Superintendent of Public Works of Woburn had stated to him that Woburn was in no position to expend any money for surface drainage on North Main street this year, but he said that if a scheme was prepared later and submitted towards the end of the year, that Woburn might take definite action. This matter was again referred to the Town Engineer for a plan and estimate for drains for this section.

Arlington Gas Light Company: Voted, that the Arlington Gas Light Company be granted permission to lay the following services: J. O'Connell, 15 Oak street and P. J. Dempsey, 907 Main street.

Service at 907 Main street to be granted only on condition that the Arlington Gas Light Company used the sewer trench.

The request of the Arlington Gas Light Company to renew its service for H. Parker, 408 Main street, was held up pending further information from the Company.

Arlington Gas Light Co.: A letter was received from Harrison Parker, 408 Main street, in regard to the request of the Arlington Gas Light Company to renew its service at his residence.

Bay State Street Railway Co.: The Town Counsel reported that the Board of Selectmen have no right to demand the Bay State Street Railway Company to replace car stops. He suggested, however, that the company be urged to move back to Hemingway street the car stop near that street. Mr. Metcalf reported that a letter had already been sent to Mr. Donovan, Supt. of the Bay State Street Railway Company in regard to this suggestion.

Kendall Street: Mr. Timothy Callahan appeared before the Board in regard to the condition of the sidewalk in front of his premises at 20 Kendall street.

Farrow Street: Mr. Daniel Murphy appeared before the Board in regard to the construction of Farrow street.

Sidewalks, Petitions For, Euclid Avenue: A petition for a granite sidewalk on Euclid avenue in front of Lot No. 70, was received from John C. Gilbert.

STOLEN AUTO RECOVERED.

A Buick sedan was stolen from in front of the residence of Mr. Alfred H. Hildreth, 12 Chestnut street, Wednesday, being recovered late that night by the Brookline police after it had been abandoned in that town by the thieves.

Mr. Hildreth left the car in front of his house at 8 in the morning. It was not missed until almost 3, when Mrs. Hildreth went out to use it. When the police were notified it was found that four boys of ages in the vicinity of 15 and 16 years had been noticed in the vicinity and had even talked to officer Cassidy in the center. They had been seen hanging around the house by Mrs. Hildreth and by neighbors, and without doubt were responsible for the disappearance of the car.

Word of the theft was immediately telephoned to all of the surrounding places within a radius of 25 miles, and late Wednesday night the Brookline police returned notice that they had found the car near the Allston line abandoned. Some glass was broken, but the car was in fair condition. It had been driven about 75 miles and had run out of water, oil and gas.

Word was telephoned from Boston police yesterday noon that one of the youths who had participated in the theft had been arrested. During the afternoon Thomas J. Janssen, 16 years of age, of Roxbury was turned over to the Winchester police. He was recognized while in the stolen car by a Boston officer, who called to him to stop. He speeded up and got away, but early yesterday morning was arrested at his home in bed.

The names of two of the other youths, who reside in Roxbury, are known to the police, and their arrest is expected shortly.

MRS. PETER KELLEY.

Mrs. Catherine Kelley, widow of the late Peter Kelley and mother of Patrolman Daniel P. Kelley of the Winchester Police Force, passed away on Tuesday morning of infirmities due to her advanced age. She was 76 years old and had been in poor health for a considerable time.

Mrs. Kelley was a native of Ireland and had made her home in this town for the past 25 years. Besides Daniel P. Kelley, she leaves two other sons, Frank J. of New Hampshire and Patrick J. of this town.

The services will take place this morning, with high mass of requiem at St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. The burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The September meeting of the Mothers' Association was held on Wednesday at the High School Assembly Hall. After the business meeting, Mrs. Gilpatrick sang a group of songs that were greatly enjoyed by those present. It is a matter of regret that more of the mothers were not present to hear the talk of "School Affairs" by Principal Curtis, of the High School. His talk was interesting and many little matters that evidently had been misunderstood, by the parents, were satisfactorily explained. It is hoped that we shall have another talk from Mr. Curtis, in the near future.

Notes

There was a fine crowd considering the counter attraction at Reading.

We saw many old familiar faces who have been conspicuous by their absence during the season.

The two Winchester boys in the team, Hevey and "Mack", got a great hand when they came to the bat.

Meehan and Conlon seemed to be the favored ones in Woburn, although the fans did not forget "Doc" McMahon.

Bill Nicholson and John Mead helped out on the tickets together with the writer.

The receipts were not as large as expected, but still neither team got stuck, both making expenses.

O'Neil on first base for Woburn, looks like a comer, he played great ball for the team, taking several bad peps a la "Stuffy" McInnis.

Conlon filled in at second base and as I have said many times this season, that a man new to a position never makes a success of it the first time out. His position is at short, and he was picked by all Boston papers for that position.

Mulcahy played his last game for Woburn, as he is in the draft and leaves the city (Friday) today for Ayer.

Leland is a wireless operator at the Navy Yard and was ordered to report for duty at noon, but expects to be on hand Saturday.

St. Angelo is the former Queen Quality player and led the team in batting for the season. The only hit he got would have been a home run on our field.

"Mack" was the only one to get a hit off McMahon for seven innings, only to be caught off first base a minute afterwards by McMahon's snap throw. Dana Wingate used to be his favorite in former series, so probably "Mack" will do for this one.

Manager LeDuc warned each player to watch for this throw, and as the players saw how he worked it the chances are they will not be caught so easily in the next game.

All up for the big game tomorrow if it is a pleasant day. A big crowd will be on hand. The added attraction in the box will surely fill the field.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

tracting sunshine from cucumbers is child's play, compared with extracting facts from this Committee. The Committee announces that it will not cite names or departments, but evidently this does not apply to instances which seem to favor its own side; for immediately the Chairman referred to the case of an official of satisfactory education and training, but with personal habits which made him a burden to his associates; it was impossible to associate the voters with the situation and hence he was repeatedly elected. It is not true that under our present form of government there is no way of getting rid of such men. Immediately there came to my mind several precisely parallel cases, in which the individuals concerned were quietly given to understand that they'd better not stand for reelection, and they didn't. Similar procedure can always produce similar results.

Two members of the Committee of Five are retired men of leisure, having all the time there is. It would be very easy for them to prepare a statement showing what the facts are regarding our recent history which prove the need of the radical changes proposed; and incidentally they might answer a few other questions asked by me in last week's STAR. Very likely some persons may think I would prefer to have the committee continue its policy of studied silence, in the expectation that such an attitude would cause a reaction against it and its proposition. But such is not my feeling in the least. Each one of us, including the Committee, ought to prefer the welfare of the town to the triumph of his own personal opinion. Let us have a free, full, frank, open discussion of the merits of the plan, and a comprehensive statement of the facts justifying the change to the end that the voters may act intelligently and accept or reject the Act, according as it does or does not deserve approval.

Charles F. A. Currier.

LETTER FROM DANIEL KANE.

The following letter from Daniel Kane, now serving with Battery C, 6th Regt., Coast Artillery, somewhere in France, is printed through the courtesy of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Kane:

Dear Mother:

I received your letters too late to answer from the United States, so I am answering from "across the pond."

FRESH AIR PICNICS.

The 19th frolic, under the auspices of the Middlesex Fells Fresh Air Picnic Union, occurred Wednesday, the 29th ultimo. The slight delay in reporting was occasioned by extra time required in assembling cuts for its adequate illustration.

The guests of the occasion were a second, yet entirely new section of the Industrial Training School of the Deaconess' Home and Neighborhood House of Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

It was notable for three things: 1st. The number of poor children entertained—72.

2nd. The striking appearance of the entertainers all in Girl Scout khaki attire numbering with visitors 24.

DR. W. T. PERRIN, President

3rd. The unexpected and spirited program of exercises occurring immediately after dinner in the pavilion prepared and kept a secret by the bright Miss Carlson, long time and exceptionally efficient manager of so large a company of wriggling youngsters.

The Girl Scouts and their friends crowded the entrance and vacant spaces and surroundings of the pavilion while the abundant music, varied songs and recitations and fancy dramas of the supple and alert little ones were in evidence. Cheers for Mrs. Charles Chase,

The Principal is Miss Alice M. Robertson, president and superintendent of the Training School at Brookline; a college graduate and an eloquent exponent of the needs and usefulness of our now widespread deaconess' work, loving and devoted friend also of all the girls from year to year, consecrating themselves to personal Christian work under her skilful direction.

Dr. George S. Butters, personal friend of so many hundreds, preparing for the ministry and social work at Mt. Vernon St. School of Theology, is widely known and highly esteemed by students of both sexes in these relations for his val-fore, Miss Carlson and close friends, who so often accompany her, and Miss Thomas, secretary, are co-workers and mutual helpers at the Boston center and especially of those multitudes of little people, most of them of so limited advantages and few fresh-air privileges other than these occasional outings afford.

Below is given a list of the uniformed Girl Scouts, led by Mrs. Chase, their secretary, whose pleasure it was to see and benefit by personal presence and kindly service so very many still younger than they: Barbara Chase, Louise Dyer, Mildred Kinney, Viola Kinsman, Helen ued example, wise counsels and personal helpfulness in many ways. His much prized "Birthday Letters" go out to hundreds annually, it is said, freighted with loving congratulations and counsels, which his watchfulness and personal interest in multitudes of the young are continually suggesting.

W. T. Perrin and the undersigned were classmates at B. U., graduating in 1874.

The portraits of others seen here and groups of little ones represent Whiteman, Elisha Breen, Doris White, Beatrice Swallow, Edna Schurman, Helen Moran, May Richardson, Helen Wardwell, Doris Sullivan, Ada Holman, Martha Terry, Alfreda Terry, Miss Hinchcliffe, Marjorie Downs, Hazel Colley, Mary Parker, Marjorie Chesley, Ruth Densmore.

Two more picnics for this season were some time since definitely arranged. Possibly one may be held. The other will be scheduled to set the ball rolling in June, 1918. Twenty was the number fixed upon as the goal this year, considering unforeseen delay in beginning and further delays incident to transition from single town to circuit endeavor and management.

THREE STORES ENTERED.

Three stores in the centre were entered Saturday night by an unknown thief, and notwithstanding the fact that he succeeded in opening up all parts of the places for investigation, only $2 was stolen.

The stores entered were all in the Brown-Stanton Block. Entrance was gained by way of a rear window in the cellar of the Edison store. From this place the thief entered the cellar of the E. C. Sanders Co. by unscrewing the hinges on a connecting door. He gained access to the office and store by boring through the panels of several doors with an augur and then reaching his hand through and slipping the catch.

A wooden partition separates a portion of the Sanderson cellar from that of A. B. Allen, the druggist, and here the thief bored out a board and squeezed through the narrow opening. It was in the latter place that he got the $2, there being a few pennies in the telephone box and in Mr. Allen's desk. Strange to say practically nothing else was taken from any of the stores, although a pair of overalls was found in Mr. Allen's which had been brought from Sanderson's, together with a chisel used in forcing the desk.

In the Sanderson cellar a whole pile of cabinets containing tools and locked with padlocks was broken into, but nothing was taken. There was much of value which the thief might have stolen, but for some unexplained reason he passed it by. Quite a little damage was done by the numerous holes bored through the doors and in fact at many places where the thief thought he could gain entrance into other portions of the building. He seemed to prefer to bore two or three dozen holes to get a door open rather than go over the top through the open transom.

LEARN ABOUT THE FLAG.

Through the courtesy of Rep. William A. Kneeland copies of the second edition of the pamphlet "Our Flag," issued under the direction of the Secretary of State, have been distributed among the school teachers in town, and 100 copies have been left at this office, which may be had by the first persons calling for them free.

This book is a valuable edition for anyone who can secure it. The first edition was exhausted almost before it was off the press and Rep. Kneeland was among those members of the Legislature who put through the appropriation for the second printing. The book gives all facts and data concerning the Flag.

Housewives will have to learn how to make bread, and then go back to old-time conditions when about every woman made her own bread. This will be found a good move to reduce the high cost of living.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

STATE GUARDS.

safely. The work was very realistic. Lieut. Shurtleff was sent out from the main body with a detachment, hoping to either out-flank the enemy if he devoted his attention to the main body, or to lead the enemy to believe his (Lieut. Shurtleff's) detachment was the main body, and thus detract attention from Capt. Tompkins's force.

The writer was attached to Lieut. Shurtleff's detail, so must of necessity give the maneuvers as he saw them. Lieut. Shurtleff advanced along a road parallel to the course of the main body and about one mile distant. The enemy was first encountered after about three-quarters of an hour, the first engagement occurring between our point, consisting of two men, and a single hostile sentry. One of our men was killed, but the sentry was severely wounded and captured. They were next encountered after a cautious advance of about half a mile. Our point came upon three sentries followed by a supply wagon. The point signalled the rest of the detachment, and they closed in on the sentries' flank, and captured them with their supplies. The main hostile body was finally disclosed, Lieut. Shurtleff's troops deployed along the top of a ridge, and were waiting for some move on the enemy's part, when time was called.

The men cooked their own noon mess, consisting of a regular field ration of one onion, one potato, three slices of bacon, two slices of bread, and tea.

After mess, three-quarters of an hour rest, and then we advanced upon our own camp in close and extended order, finally capturing it in a spirited charge. It was now about 2:30 and a long rest was ordered. Instead of resting, some of the boys dug out the football again, in spite of the top Sergeant's warnings. Tiring of football, Private Woods brought to light 2 pairs of boxing gloves, a ring was formed, and several fast 1 minute bouts took place. In the last match, Assistant Cook Davy, Champion of the Commissary Department, in executing his famous non-over punch, struck Private Hibbsman with his head instead of his glove. Private Hibbsman, who is the middle-weight champion of the front rank of his squad, received the blow on his nose, and retired gracefully with the claret streaming down his face. Cook Davy retired at the same time with a lump on his head.

Guard mount at 4:30 with the first platoon relieving the second, then mess, retreat, and the camp settled down around the fire. Taps at 10, and all was quiet.

At about 1:00 o'clock Sunday morning, the camp was aroused by several revolver shots out in the woods, and the noise of several people moving through the brush. The guard was called, and also a support of seven men was deployed along a stone wall to the west of the camp. These men were held there for about half an hour, but no further disturbance was heard; the marauders apparently retiring when they saw the camp well guarded. Double sentries were posted the remainder of the night.

Sunday was another beautiful day. Call to drill was sounded at 7:30 and the Captain took the Company down to a large, abandoned race track. Here about three hours were spent in close order drill, then headed back to camp in extended order formations.

At noon mess, Major McMahon, in command of the Battalion to which Company F is attached, was present. At about 2 o'clock the company was marched in review before the Major, and shortly afterward he inspected the camp.

"Strike tents" was sounded at 4 o'clock, the grounds were thoroughly policed, company assembled, and at 4:20 "Forward March" was given, and the company headed for Winchester.

The route of march was around through Arlington centre, by way of Pleasant street, Mystic street, Cambridge street, Everett avenue to Bacon Church street, to the Town Hall, which was reached at 6:30. The Company was immediately dismissed, and the members, in very extended order, at double time, headed for hot baths and bed.

Much credit is due Supply Sergeant Sanborn for the efficient manner in which he handled the transportation of supplies. He is a tireless worker, and seemed to be on his feet every hour of the day and night.

Monday night there was no drill, all the evening being taken up by inspection of the men's equipment. Bugler Dotten severely sprained his wrist during the football game at Camp.

Although the official start of the Company was not made until 10:00 o'clock Friday morning, Supply Sergeant Sanborn, Cook Price and a detail of men were on the job at 6:00 o'clock in the morning.

It is interesting to know the work of Chief Cook Price. He served food that in every instance would have been a compliment to the best of chefs. But, with all the trimmings, he fed the Company at Wakefield at an average cost of 27 1/2 cents per man per meal. And at Belmont he beat this by averaging 23 1/3 cents.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of Bridget C. Butler, late of Winchester, in said County, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Katharine T. McDonald of Winchester, in said County, or to some other suitable person.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the eighth day of October A. D. 1917, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted. And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing postpaid a copy of said citation to the next of kin of said deceased, seven days at least, before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of September in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventeen.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

(P. S. C. 1899)

Boston, September 12, 1917.

On the Petition of the Bay State Street Railway Company for approval of re-location of tracks in Forest street, at Highland avenue, in the town of Winchester, established under an order of the selectmen of said town dated August 15, 1917, the Commission will give a hearing to the parties interested at its office, No. 1 Beacon Street, Boston, on Wednesday, the twenty-sixth day of September, instant, at ten-thirty o'clock in the forenoon.

And the petitioner is required to give notice of said hearing by publication hereof once prior to said date in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, to serve a copy hereof at least five days prior to said date on the Town of Winchester, and to make return of service and publication at the time of hearing.

By order of the Commission,
(Signed) ALLAN BROOKS,
Assistant Secretary.

leader of the Scouts, and Miss Carlson, with her aids, were vociferous and abundant at the conclusions, and the quick dispersion to every part of the wide grounds. Yet before the latter it should not be omitted to say the active and ready crowd of Girl Scouts led all in a spirited and impressive salute to "Old Glory" suspended within after arrival and flying gracefully without and above as worthy and timely decorations of the interesting occasion.

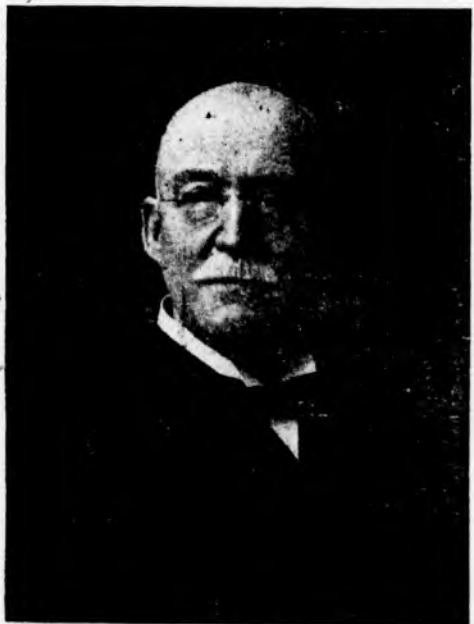

This gracious and growing Deaconess' organization, with its varied activities, figures in four centers in the Metropolis and State: The Home and Industrial School of Massachusetts avenue as mentioned above; the Training School for Christian Workers, the Haverhill Fresh Air Camp and the "Rest for the Aged" in Concord, Mass., with its ample grounds and excellent appointments, the munificent gift of a generous donor (name withheld) of a few years since.

The president of all for many years has been and is the Rev. Willard T. Perrin, D. D., a leading member of the New England conference and one of its able district superintendents for the full term of six years. His portrait heads our list.

Wind

With every howl, the wind tries to loosen the paint from your home. It drives its way into the cracks and crevices. First it dries the exposed wood and then swirls in the torrents of rain. Decay follows the soaking and spreads under the painted parts.

Paint which will prevent this destruction is made of Dutch Boy White-Lead mixed with pure linseed oil. Either pure white or tinted any desired color, it offers a smooth, unbroken surface which neither wind nor rain nor sun can crack or scale.

Examine your buildings closely and let us know if there is need of paint. We can help you.

TOWN GOVERNMENT ACT.

opinion would cause the Selectmen to make a change.

Mr. James S. Allen, Jr., asked what the status would be of the Plumbing, Building and Wire Inspectors; would members of the departments be appointed by the Selectmen or elected by the Town; did the Town have anything to say whether there would or should not be such departments. Mr. Charles N. Harris replied, saying that these departments would remain unchanged. Mr. Allen said that the statutes provided for a Building Inspector but not for the organization of his department, neither did the proposed bill mention this under a head as a department; would such organization be through the Selectmen or Town. He explained that as a revision of the Town Building By-Laws was under consideration such a question had arisen. Mr. Harris asked what was meant by the Building Department. Mr. Allen replied that he referred to further organization in addition to the Inspector, and he assumed, from what he had heard, that this left such organization to the Selectmen and not the Town. Town Counsel Charles F. Dutch said that no change is made in departments except such as is specifically mentioned; otherwise the Town had the same control as always.

Mr. George Jackson wanted to know if officers appointed by the Selectmen could be removed by the voters without the Selectmen's consent. Mr. Ives replied that they could not. Mr. Snyder said this was no different than existing conditions. Mr. Jackson said that these officers were now elected, and if unsatisfactory they could be defeated; with the change proposed they could not be removed.

Mr. Allen asked if the Town could elect officers not mentioned and provided for by the statutes. Mr. Dutch replied that under the Town By-Laws such officers could be shifted and thus be taken care of.

Prof. Currier said that as he found the meeting was to secure information and not for discussion, he could not bring up several points which he had intended, but that he was unable to make out to what extent the changes were based on the workings of the town government in the past with regard to inefficiency, or expected future faults. Mr. Snyder felt that Prof. Currier desired to beforesaid the issue; so far as his question called for criticism of men or departments his committee did not intend to enter, the matter was a much broader one and should be considered from the whole viewpoint.

Upon Mr. Snyder's conclusion Prof. Currier stated that he felt this answer, or lack of answer, came under the head of discussion. Mr. Snyder then said that his committee would welcome discussion. Mr. Currier replied by again repeating his question.

In reply Mr. Snyder stated in substance that present difficulties were recognized and the situation could be improved. Prof. Currier said that in view of welcoming discussion, why should there not be a discussion of the affairs of the past; no facts had ever been given for the reasons for the change. He cited cases where such facts were given to the people who were to vote on the question.

Mr. Dutch thought the Committee's attitude right and proper. He could capitalize events in Winchester, but would not do so. In general the change was needed by the growth in all departments; in the increase of each function many other increases were constantly multiplying; it was high time for a business administration and the Town needed a business administration. Prof. Currier replied with the statement that his remarks were misunderstood; he did not intimate that there had been any corruption.

Mr. John B. Willis asked if it were possible to get a Manager who would be an expert in all the departments under him. Mr. Snyder replied that he could not know it all, but he would know when others did their work well, and would be able to judge the value of ability of heads of the various departments.

Mr. Louis Parkhurst desired to know why the Finance Committee had been reduced from 15 to 5. Mr. Snyder said it was agreed that the committee of 15 was too large for the work. The question was how far to reduce it to 9, 7 or 5. As this committee would be on the job all of the time, the smaller committee was thought the more efficient.

Mr. William Adriance asked in comparing Brookline with Winchester if the former place was satisfied with its form of government. Mr. Arthur H. Russell replied that the selective form of town meeting in Brookline had been in force but a comparatively short time, and he was not sure just how it had worked out. Mr. Adriance replied that he referred to the government of the town and not the meetings, and stated that he thought the Brookline system more advisable.

Mr. Snyder replied that the selective town meeting brought back the small town meeting and made the "little town" again. This change was made to handle the big town. Mr. Dutch felt that other schemes should not be considered as alternatives; Winchester's scheme combined what was thought to be the best in all.

Ex-Selectman Charles E. Kendall stated that in his opinion the greatest value this town possessed was its civic interest. Would not the new form cause a loss in civic interest? Norwood showed a vote of 77 per cent before adopting its present system and this fell to 13 per cent afterward. Would not Winchester's change result in a similar falling off in interest.

Mr. Dutch stated that the explanation of the Norwood figures lay in the fact that the election was one with no contest whatever; that in the discussion of town meeting affairs the interest was as great as ever.

Prof. Currier replied by saying that no contest in this town at election did not kill the interest. He said that the Moderator at Norwood's town meeting had told him that he had detected less interest in town affairs since the change.

The hour was then 10:15, and as the bulk of the meeting had already left the hall the meeting closed.

NAVY'S PERFECT MAN IN METRO WONDERPLAY.

At the Regent Theatre Shows Him "Slacker."

With a chest that measures 44 inches, standing 6 feet 1½ inches in his stocking feet, John O'Neil, an artist by profession, a fighter by instinct, answered the first call to arms issued by President Wilson after war with Germany had been declared. When a man to represent the United States Navy was required for "The Slacker", Director William Christy Cabanne sent a personal representative to the Brooklyn Navy Yard to find a man who would screen well.

At the navy yard it was suggested that Private John O'Neil would be the man for the picture.

Millicent Fisher, the girl whom Director Cabanne says has the most perfect screening face in the world, represents Miss Columbia. Around her are massed the sailors of the Allied fleets. There is a British tar, a French sailor, and John O'Neil, the pride of Uncle Sam's Navy. These men surround Liberty, protecting her from destruction at the hands of the autocrats of the Kaiser's Allies.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The first regular meeting of the Winchester Union for the season was held last Friday at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, on Dix street, with a large number present. The work on the comfort bags for the soldiers was continued with the result that a large portion of the bags may be sent at an early day. During the business meetings there were interesting reports from those departments whose activities have not been discontinued during the summer and plans were laid for the season's campaign.

Mrs. Ella M. Gleason spoke of the work to be done at Ayer and which is meeting with warm support from the workers all over the State. She told of the special needs and made an urgent appeal for help along these imperatively needed lines. The worth of this enterprise has already been demonstrated and every woman should do her bit.

Delegates were also appointed for the Middlesex County convention and it is hoped a large number will attend the sessions to be held at Waverly, Wednesday, September 26.

Members and friends are again reminded that funds for the Ayer work and for the filling of the hundred and twenty-five bags for the soldiers or linen cloth of any kind for the surgical dressings committee. Give, and then give again!

SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

Our readers will be very much interested in the notices that have just been issued regarding the Melrose School of Religious Education, which is to open in the Orthodox Congregational Church on West Foster street, Melrose, Monday evening, October 1, and continue on Monday evenings until Dec. 17; then after a brief vacation, open again January 7, and run through March 25th.

The faculty is a most unusual one, having on it the most noted teachers and leaders in religious work in this country and includes Prof. Edward P. St. John, Mr. Clair G. Davis, Mr. H. G. Hageman, Mrs. Willen Browne Reed and special lectures by Miss Margaret Slattery and Prof. Walter S. Athearn.

The program will consist of a lecture period every Monday evening from 7:30 to 8:20 p. m., an Assembly from 8:20 to 8:40 p. m., lecture period from 8:40 to 9:20 p. m.

It is expected that there will be a large enrollment from the church workers in surrounding towns and cities. The fee is to be only $2.00 for the entire course, plus the cost of the necessary text books. This is without doubt the most important step in religious education that has ever been taken in this vicinity. Any one desiring further information can obtain it by telephoning or writing Mr. George S. Cabot of this town, Mr. George A. Goodridge, Chairman, 24 Yule street, Melrose, or to Mrs. Samuel Eldridge, Clerk, 71 E. Emerson street, Melrose. It will pay any one to send for the prospectus giving full particulars.

NEW DIRECTORS AT TRUST CO.

The Winchester Trust Company at a special meeting of its stockholders held Wednesday evening, September 19, 1917, elected four additional directors, all well known residents of Winchester: Ralph E. Joslin, Frederic S. Snyder, Charles H. Symmes and Arthur A. Kidder.

Ralph E. Joslin is a prominent attorney of Boston. He has served as Town Counsel and is strongly identified with town affairs. Frederic S. Snyder is of the well known firm of Batchelder & Snyder Company of Boston. Charles H. Symmes is a hay and grain merchant, carrying on business in Winchester. A. A. Kidder is serving with Henry B. Endicott, Chairman of the Massachusetts Committee of Public Safety.

DIRECTIONS FOR HAND-KNITTED SOCKS.

Length of Foot when finished—Not less than 10½ (ten and a half) inches; not over 12 (twelve) inches.

Medium sizes are required in the largest numbers—Foot, 11 inches.

Needles—Nos. 10 or 11.
Cast on 56 stitches; 4½ inches, 2 plain, 2 purl; knit plain 7½ inches (12 inches in all).

Heel—Knit plain 28 stitches on to one needle; turn, purl back these 28 stitches; slip one, knit to end of row. Turn, slip 1, purl to end of row. Repeat (always slipping the first stitch) till you have 34 rows in all.

With the inside of the heel towards you; purl 16 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 6 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 7 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 10 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 11 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 12 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 13 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 14 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 15 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1, etc., till all heel stitches are on one needle, 18 finished.

Pick up and knit 16 stitches down the side of the heel piece.

Knit the 28 stitches of the front needles (on to one needle). Pick up and knit the 16 stitches at the other side of the heel piece. Divide the heel stitches on to the 2 side needles, and knit right round again to the centre heel.

First Needle: knit to within 3 stitches of the front end of side needle, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Front Needle: plain.

Third Needle: knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

This reducing to be done every other row until there are 56 stitches on the needles (front needle 28, side needles, 14 each).

Knit plain until the foot (from the back of the heel) measures 8 inches; viz. 8½ inches for sock this size.

To Decrease for Toe: begin at the front needle; knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end of the needle, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Second Needle: knit 1, slip 1, purl slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

Third Needle: knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Knit 3 plain rounds, then decrease as before; knit another 3 plain rounds, then decrease as before.

Knit 2 plain rounds, then decrease as before; knit another 2 plain rounds, then decrease as before.

Knit 1 plain row, then decrease again; knit another plain row, then decrease again.

Now decrease as above in each of the next 3 rows which leaves you with 24 stitches on 2 needles, 12 on each.

Intake of Toe: Having 24 stitches on 2 needles, put 12 on needle across front, and 12 on back needle. Break off wool leaving half a yard with which to finish off sock and thread it into a darning needle. Put darning needle in first stitch of the front knitting needle as if to knit, pull wool through and take off stitch. Put darning needle in next stitch of front needle as if to purl, pull wool through but leave stitch on. Return to front needle, put wool in first stitch (the one previously purled and repeat.

SPECIAL AID NOTES.

Those wishing to contribute only the unfilled bags or one or more articles will please leave them with Mrs. Craft. 400 bags are hoped for as Winchester's contribution.

Christmas Good Cheer Bag
Tobacco: pipe, cigarettes, cigarette papers.

Stationery, envelopes, post cards, pencils, pens and pen-holders, fountain pen, indelible pencil.

Pocket knife.
Tooth brush and paste
Chewing gum.

Safety razor, shaving soap, metal mirror.

Coin belt, coin purse.
Military brushes, pocket comb.

Wrist watch.
Handkerchiefs (khaki colored for soldiers and marines.)

Adhesive plaster.
Beef bouillon cubes, malted milk tablets.

Playing cards, dominoes, checkers, and other games, pocket editions of good books, New Testament.

Folding drinking cups (nickel or aluminum.)

Wristlets and sleeveless sweaters, blue and gray for the Navy and khaki colored for the soldiers and marines.

Naturally it is not expected or desired that any single Good Cheer Bag contain all the above articles. But the list gives a wide range for selection. No bag should contain less than five articles and none more than ten. Sweaters and wristlets will be sent boxed separately for regiments of soldiers and marines and through the Comfort's Committee of the Navy League of the United States for the men of the Navy.

By special arrangement, candy will be sent packed in cartons and then placed in air-tight boxes by our shipping department. The men need sweets and a good suggestion that has come to us is that the old-fashioned candy pull and candy making parties be revived on their behalf. Any wishing to make the candy will receive recipes for the kinds best suited for the purpose by writing to our Headquarters.

It should be remembered in selecting the gifts that they must be of a character to withstand ocean travel, should be useful and yet qualified to give comfort and pleasure at the same time, and above all must not be bulky.

It is the intent to make the Good Cheer Bag more of a "Gift" than a "Comfort Bag" as the term is generally understood. We want to send Christmas to the trenches wrapped in tissue paper, tied with love and prayers and hope, just as it is wrapped and tied and decorated when we keep it at home. It is strongly recommended that a Christmas card with a personal message of good cheer and Christmas greetings with the name of the giver be enclosed, and the bag directed as desired to the Army, Navy or Marine Corps.

The bags are to be made of any washable, durable material, 10 by 13 inches in size.

Return the filled bags to Mrs. C. M. Crafts, Chairman, 10 Dix street, on or before Sept. 28th.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL SQUAD AT WORK.

Coach Mitterling of the Winchester High School had the football squad out for practice on Manchester Field Monday afternoon and put the candidates through their paces. About one-half of the squad are veterans, and with the new material which has come out there is a prospect of putting a good team on the gridiron this season.

Walter Shaughnessy is captain of the team this year. With him the old players are Campbell Ross, Richard Clifton, David Skinner, Theodore Elliott and Ralph Hunt. Among the most promising of the new candidates are George Black, Richard Case, Theodore Clifton, Ernest Kibbe, Perry Moody, Richard Riddle and Clinton Raynor. Manager Arthur Reynolds is at work on the schedule, which has not yet been completed. The first game arranged so far is for Oct. 6th with Norwood High School team. Probably one or two games will be run in ahead of that, however.

The efficiency asked of our State Guard members is fully illustrated by the following incident: Having a rather dirty fry-pan, one member took it to his home and requested that the head of his household see that it was thoroughly cleaned so that he might not be criticized at inspection. He thought it looked pretty good when he took it down to inspection the next night, but when Lieut. — remarked "you'll pass except for that fry-pan; take that home and get it cleaned up," he felt somewhat abused. His lack of tact in following directions and taking the pan home again, recruited a life-long enemy for the Lieutenant in the head of the family.

Through the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court given last week that the World Peace Foundation established under the will of the late Edwin Ginn is a public charity, and that the Commonwealth must return to the trustees the sum of $50,000 paid as a tax on the legacy of $800,000 provided in the will, it appears very probable that the Town will lose its tax of about $14,000, although this will be settled by further pending decisions.

TOWN MEETING.

Fair Sized Gathering Grants State Guards $5000 and Schools $950.

As was to be expected the special town meeting held Monday night was a rather small affair, although the attendance, swelled by the large part of the Winchester State Guard Company, was larger than had been anticipated. The meeting proved quite lively and fully up to recent statements of our praise-worthy activity in civic interest. In fact it only lacked in size in comparison with the average annual meeting.

The meeting granted the sum of $5000 to meet the expenses of the Winchester Company, State Guard, and an additional $950 to the School Department to meet the increased cost of coal. In a rather intricate vote it also succeeded in allowing for a transfer of funds to that branch of the Water Department known as Maintenance.

The interesting article of the meeting was the first on the warrant applying to the State Guards. There is a question whether this motion, calling for an appropriation of $5000, could have been carried had it been introduced and placed before the meeting by any other man than Mr. Richard Parkhurst. This gentleman presented the matter in such a straightforward manner, and left the voters, that he won his point almost unanimously. There were a number of voters who had previously expressed their opposition to this grant, but when the need of the money had been explained, and the statement made that if the voters did not care to raise the sum by an appropriate levy on every taxpayer there were patriotic citizens ready to donate the sum themselves, not a man in the hall was willing to accept the alternative.

Even Mr. Whitfield L. Tuck accepted the grant, although he felt that the sum should be met by the State. The debate brought out considerable feeling with regard to the recent departure of the drafted men, although this occurrence was not used to defeat the motion.

The meeting opened at almost eight o'clock as the hall was slow in filling. Mr. Parkhurst, in introducing the motion, outlined the work and expenses of the local Committee on Public Safety. He said in part that this committee of fifteen, appointed by the selectmen under vote of the Town, had been granted the sum of $500 for necessary expenses. It had organized along similar lines to the State Committee of One Hundred and had associated itself with that committee in its endeavor to carry out suggestions made by that body. Its first call had been to protect Town property—the reservoirs and Town buildings. This was done up to such time when it seemed unnecessary, and the cost was over the $500 appropriated. As the selectmen had power to provide for this, the expense was paid through that body.

In compliance with the request for the provision of an emergency

DONATION DAY FOR WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

It has been the custom each year for the friends of the Hospital to send gifts of fruit, vegetables, preserves, canned goods, groceries, money, or any supplies for household use. This year, more than ever, we need the support of our friends.

October 9th has been appointed as Donation Day, when any gifts will be gratefully received.

If anyone cannot deliver their contributions to the Hospital please notify the Committee and they will be called for.

VESPER SERVICES COMING OF UNUSUAL ATTRACTIVENESS.

The series of vesper services held last season at the First Congregational Church proved so popular, that it is again being planned to continue them on the first Sunday afternoon of each month at 5 p. m. It is the intention of those responsible, to secure artists of recognized ability and reputation and at the first vesper, which is to be held Sunday, October 7th, Mrs. Grace Bonner Williams, the well known soprano, will sing. Mrs. Williams is one of foremost interpreters of oratorio and church music in this country. The complete program of artists who will appear up to January will be published next week.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The following permit has been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending Sept. 27th: Marie L. Davis of 61 Mystic Valley Parkway. Concrete block and wood garage, 20 x 21 feet, at same address.

MILITARY DRAFT.

Many Bid 40 Per Cent Men Farewell at Arlington.

There was a good attendance of Winchester people at Arlington last Friday morning to bid goodbye to the 40 per cent of the first military draft leaving for Camp Devens at Ayer. Probably 200 persons attended from this Town, although there were few outside the parents, brothers and sisters, and intimate friends of the departing youths. Selectman Laraway represented that board, and with the exception of F. C. Alexander of the Park Board, who took one of the men over in his automobile, no other town officials were present.

The crowd was a sober one, with tears and chaff about equal, and as the line of automobiles pulled away from the Town Hall the boys left amid many expressions of cheer and good luck. The procession, led by an automobile carrying a large flag and the officials, departed promptly at nine. Some 55 men left for Ayer, of which number 23 were from Winchester.

The men were accompanied from Arlington to Ayer by Dr. George N. P. Mead, the medical examiner, and Winchester member of the local Exemption Board. Dr. Mead took along his medical kit in case he was needed by the men, but everything went along smoothly and there was no call for his services.

On Tuesday morning, when it was announced that the men at Camp Devens would be allowed leave to return to their home towns and vote, Mr. James J. Fitzgerald of the Committee on Public Safety immediately made arrangements to bring the boys to Winchester by auto. Telephoning to John J. Collins, Winchester's first man to go to the camp, he found that twelve of the men wished to come home and vote. The others either could not vote for lack of registration or other reasons, or did not wish to.

Four autos were dispatched to Ayer at 12:30, the cars of Mr. Fitzgerald, Louis Parkhurst, Frederic S. Snyder and Edward S. Foster being used, and the men arrived at the polls at 3:30. After casting their ballots they were at liberty to visit their people and friends until 7:30, when they met at the Town Hall and were taken back to camp.

They were warmly welcomed by their friends and enjoyed an unexpected vacation. The group included the following:

Clarence M. Linzham
Henry D. Lawton
Harry F. Dunbury
Eugene M. Danchy
John F. Maguire
Daniel E. Lynch
Albert G. Moore
Edward D. Fitzgerald
John J. Collins
Fred C. Stevenson
Arthur A. Belville
John E. Deloray

The men were instructed to gather at the Town Hall shortly after seven o'clock for their return to Ayer, and as many of the citizens and their friends as could be notified were asked to be present. There was a big crowd, including the Winchester Company, State Guards.

The men were collected in the hall and short addresses were delivered by Hon. Samuel J. Elder and Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, after which they entered the waiting automobiles and escorted by the Guards, were taken to the centre. Here another big crowd awaited them, and after a short reception they departed amid much enthusiasm.

When the drafted men left town after voting they were all given gifts of cigarettes through the kindness of Mr. Patrick T. Walsh.

It is reported that the next allotment of the draft will go to Ayer on Friday, Oct. 5th. This will take 40 per cent of the draft, leaving 15 per cent to go at a later date. The men who will make up this 40 per cent are not yet known, and they will not be known until sent to the local board by the district board.

NEW TRAIN TIME MONDAY.

The fall and winter schedule of the steam railroad will go into effect on Monday. Contrary to usual custom, the new schedule, instead of cutting off trains, adds four this fall. Two of these are inward trains and two outward. In addition several other changes are made of a minor nature in the arrival and departure of some of the existing trains.

Of most importance are the trains added. These are the inward trains leaving at 8:03 a. m. and 5:57 p. m., and the outward trains leaving Boston at 2:15 and 5:05 p. m.

Other changes are as follows: Inward—present 8:30 a. m. leaves at 8:28; 19:19 at 10:21; 3:25 p. m. at 3:26; 5:21 at 5:20; 6:08 at 6:13. Outward—6:44 a. m. leaves at 6:46; 11:40 p. m. arrives at 12:00.

Only two changes are made in Sunday trains, the inward leaving at 9:51 a. m. being changed to 9:53 and the outward 10:30 p. m. leaving at 10:35.

New and convenient pocket timetables may be had of any of the following firms:

Franklin E. Barnes & Co., George A. Barron, Edward T. Harrington Co., Kelley & Hawes Co., Winchester Trust Co.

"THE CHRISTIANITY OF THE CHURCHES TESTED IN THE PRESENT CRISIS."

At the Unitarian Church Sunday morning the minister, Joel H. Metcalf, will speak on the chasm that exists today between the Christianity of the creeds and the actual religion of the average man.

BASE BALL.

Mulrenan Too Much for Woburn.

By "Mack."

Before the largest crowd of the year Woburn went down to defeat at the hands of Winchester in the second game of the series. Manager LeDuc secured Mulrenan, the Providence and Red Sox pitcher, to do the work, and you fans who witnessed the game can say he did an artistic job when he started. LeDuc was the only man on the Woburn team to hit him and he got three singles, all that were gathered from Mulrenan's shots. In the first two innings he struck out the first five men to face him. In fact all through the game he did not exert himself and was at all times the master of the situation. The game was a good one to look at as there were just enough of hitting and errors to make it close. On the Winchester side, Duffy was the worst offender, he helped to lose the game in Woburn, and came within an ace of throwing it away down here, and his position will surely be filled by a stronger hitter and fielder Saturday, when we play at Woburn. McMahon pitched a good game, and as a great many fans said, he never had his drop ball working better than on Saturday, he had only one less strikeout than Mulrenan. Ford and Drummond put up a good game for Woburn, and with the exception

STATE GUARD NEWS.

Last Thursday evening the Company was put through Battalion drill in preparation for four Battalion drills which have been ordered to take place before November first. The first drill will be held on Manchester Field, Sunday afternoon, October seventh.

This week drill was changed from Monday to Tuesday evening, that the men might attend Town Meeting.

Company D, Woburn, held a public drill last Sunday afternoon at Library Park. Several members of Company F, attended, and all remarked upon the excellence of Company D's work.

It is very gratifying to the men who have enlisted in Company F to note the attitude of the townspeople toward them. The men in the Company are working hard and conscientiously to establish an efficient body of militia in our town. Each man has joined because he sees, through the State Guard, a way open to him for performing a service to the Town, State, and Nation in time of war. The people of Winchester have come to realize this, and at the Town Meeting Monday night to hear citizen after citizen speak words of praise and encouragement about the work of Company F, has given the men new enthusiasm to do their duty.

The winter uniforms and overcoats have arrived so that, if called for duty, the Company will now be adequately protected against all kinds of weather.

THE POST OFFICE SITUATION.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Department, State House, Boston.

Sept. 26, 1917.

The management of the Winchester postoffice is something for which the National administration is responsible. Certainly it is not one of the many cares of the Governor of the Commonwealth, and yet a few weeks ago when his attention was brought to the condition of things there, of his own notion and as a citizen of the town, he wrote a strong letter urging the appointment of Mr. Ernest W. Hatch. He did not do that because Mr. Hatch was a Republican, but because he had been for nearly nine years in the Winchester office, was one of the best postal men in New England, and his appointment would be the best thing for all the people of the town. That letter represented everything the Governor did in the matter and it did not receive the courtesy of a reply. Just on the eve of the primary some people took it upon themselves to circulate a gross falsehood about what the Governor had done. It was whispered about that he had done something just the opposite from what he did do. These falsehoods were scattered for the purpose of pulling a few votes away from the Governor in his own town. The men who circulated them should furnish their names to the STAR in order that the people of Winchester may admire them.

Yours very truly,

Stanley R. Miller,

Secretary to the Governor.

DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE TENDERED MISS ANNA DOLAN.

Miss Anna Dolan of 20 Clark street, Winchester, was one of the most surprised young ladies imaginable last Friday evening when she returned to her home after she had taken a walk in the cool of the evening.

Mr. Dennis Collins in behalf of the friends of the young lady presented her with a prettily engraved bracelet in anticipation of her birthday. Miss Dolan declared it to be a "real surprise" and her open amazement admitted of no doubt to the contrary as she thanked the company in appreciative words.

A delightful evening was spent with games, musical selections and dancing, after which a dainty collation was served. About fifty friends were in attendance.

F. NELSON HAWLEY.

New Collector of Taxes Appointed By Selectmen.

At a special meeting of the Board of Selectmen held Monday, Mr. F. Nelson Hawley was appointed to the position of Collector of Taxes to fill the unexpired term of Mr. A. William Rooney.

Mr. Hawley is a Winchester boy, a graduate of the Town's schools and has lived practically his whole life here. He is the son of the late George F. Hawley, and resides with his family at 122 Cambridge street.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 25, 1917.

The Board met at 7:30, all present. Licenses, Explosives & Inflammables: The Board granted I. E. Sexton a license to store gasoline in an underground tank of a capacity not to exceed 200 gallons at 19 Wedgemere avenue.

Bay State Street Railway Co. Hemingway & Canal Streets: A letter was received from the President of the Bay State Street Railway Company, relative to the white pole stop on Main street near Hemingway street. In his letter the president states that as a result of criticism, at a discussion of the subject before the Public Service Commission, it was decided to reduce the number of stopping places and to establish stopping places on a relative uniform system. He further stated, however, that he would have an investigation made in regard to the car stop near Hemingway street.

Cross Street Bridge: A letter was received from the Town Council stating that the County Commissioners have set the Board's recent petition in regard to the Cross Street Bridge piers for a hearing at the Selectmen's Room, on Friday the 19th of October, at 2 p. m. He suggested in his letter that the Town Engineer submit certain plans and data to be used at this hearing. The Board ordered that the Town Engineer

MEETING OF SURGICAL DRESSINGS COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the Winchester Branch of the Surgical Dressings Committee, Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell, Chairman, was held at 2:30 p. m., Sept. 24th, at the home of Mrs. Geo. W. Fitch.

One verse of "America" was sung. Mrs. Geo. H. Hill, Secretary pro tem, reported 140 members enrolled. Number of sterile and non-sterile dressings made from April, 1916 to Sept. 24th, 1917, sixty-nine thousand eight hundred and thirty-two (69,832). An increase in the cost of materials from one and three quarters to twice the original cost was reported.

Mrs. Allen Wood, Treasurer, reported:

Receipts ..... $931.17
Expenditures ..... 860.20

Amount on hand ..... $70.97
Stock on hand ..... 56.76

Interesting letters from the War Relief Clearing House for France, the American Red Cross and the Surgical Dressings Committee were read by Mrs. Cutler B. Downer.

It was voted to accept the kind invitation of the Calumet Club to use its Hall for meetings during the coming year. Meetings will be held Wednesdays from nine to twelve o'clock a. m., and from two to five p. m.

Membership dues of one dollar are to be paid at the first meeting, Oct. 3rd, and one dollar each month thereafter, to be paid at the first meeting or before the 7th of the month.

The following were appointed a committee to arrange meetings:—Mrs. George E. Willey, Mrs. F. C. Alexander, and Mrs. George A. Woods.

A business meeting was called for Oct. 3rd, at 2:30 p. m., at the Calumet Club to elect Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer.

The following Nominating Committee was appointed:—Mrs. Arthur Black, Mrs. A. A. Kidder, Miss Natalie Jewett, Mrs. A. P. Irving and Miss Barbara Fernald.

A vote of thanks was given the retiring chairman for the very efficient service she has given the group.

The workroom at the Calumet Club will be open and ready for work at 9 o'clock, Oct. 3rd. A nurse will be present to demonstrate new dressings. A prompt and full attendance is hoped for.

Marian E. Hill,

Secretary pro tem.

DOUBLE GOLF TOURNAMENT FOR WOMEN AT COUNTRY CLUB.

Captain John P. Crane of Woburn, the oldest living member and perhaps the most enthusiastic golfer of the Winchester Country Club has, in accordance with his annual custom, presented a cup to be competed for by the women.

On Tuesday, October 2d, a special tournament has been arranged in which, in handicap medal play, this cup will be competed for.

The name of the winner will be engraved on the cup, which will be played for annually until it becomes the property of the player who wins it three times.

In connection with this a Flag Tournament will be held so that players, on Tuesday, may take part in two events.

The contest for the Crane Cup has always aroused interest and it is hoped by the Committee that all the women players will attend.

Mrs. James W. Russell, Jr., and Mrs. Addison R. Pike are in charge.

STATE PRIMARY.

Small Vote in Winchester Reflects State Results.

The State primary on Tuesday brought out but a small vote in this town, a total of 653 ballots being cast, of which 567 were Republican and 86 Democratic. Reflecting the result of the vote throughout the State, Winchester gave Governor McCall a fine majority and aided in renominating Alonzo B. Cook for Auditor and Henry C. Atwell for Attorney-General.

The Democratic ticket was not productive of any contests, and to fill the existing blanks on the ballot following the office of Governor, stickers were given out at the Town Hall to members of the party.

The result of the voting in Winchester was as follows:

BODWELL S. BRIGGS.

Well Known Citizen Passed Away Last Night.

Mr. Bodwell Sargent Briggs, a well known citizen of this town who had made his residence here for a period of almost 50 years, died at his home on Bacon street last night at eight o'clock. Mr. Briggs underwent an operation last January and had been in delicate health since that time. He was 68 years of age.

Mr. Briggs was born in Boston, his parents being Edward T. and Lucy (Howes) Briggs. He came to this town when a young man and had resided here ever since. In June, 1886, he married Miss Annie B. Ellis of Woburn who survives him, together with two daughters, Mrs. Walter I. P. Badger of this town and Mrs. Dwight B. Hill of Bridgeport, Conn. One sister, Mrs. C. W. Chadbourne of Medford, and a brother, Meriam Briggs of Boise, Idaho, also survive.

He was one of the founders of the Winchester Young Men's Club, which was the beginning of the present Calumet Club, was a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., the Boston City Club and the Unitarian Church. During the latter part of his business life he had been Boston manager of the Owens Bottle Machine Co. of Toledo, Ohio.

The funeral services will be held from the residence, No. 91 Bacon street, tomorrow afternoon at half-past two, and will be conducted by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, pastor of the Unitarian Church. The burial will be at Mt. Auburn.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow Library Park, Woburn, is the scene of operation, and if the weather is anywhere near right you will see the largest turnout of the season. We are out to win this game at any cost and will have the players on the field to deliver the goods and if we get beaten we will have no excuse to offer. On the other hand Woburn will be as strong or stronger than in previous games, so you can see that this game is going to be for blood. The writer will use every exertion to have the game start on time, so an early arrival will get you seats.

Every soldier will want a fountain pen. Moore's non-leakable are by far the best for rough army life. Always ready—never leak. All styles at Wilson's the Stationer's. ag3,tf

SPECIAL AID SOCIETY.

Hints for Housekeepers.

Mrs. Edward L. Dunning, 469 Main street, has material cut for a few more warm night shirts and any one willing to help in making may apply to her. The material has been generously contributed by some of our members in response to the urgent appeal from the French Hospitals. Two dozen shirts were sent a few days ago.

The afghans, made by combining the 7 inch squares, are very pretty. Fifteen have been completed and sent away and they are proving so attractive and warm it is hoped to continue the work through the winter.

To can peaches by cold pack method Use sound fruit. Scald in boiling water and cold dip to remove skins. Pack whole or in slices in sterilized hot jars. Add boiling syrup (2 cups of sugar to 2 cups of boiling water and boil to a thin syrup). Place rubber and top and partially tighten seal. Lower jars into boiling water to within an inch of tops and keep water boiling hard for twenty minutes. Remove, tighten covers and cool. Peaches may be canned without sugar using boiling water to cover fruit and sterilizing 30 minutes.

MRS. JOSHUA D. STEVENS.

Mrs. Juliet O. Stevens, widow of the late Joshua D. Stevens, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Tenney, 18 Calumet road, yesterday. She was 81 years of age.

Mrs. Stevens was the daughter of John and Sarah (Brown) Gowley and was born in Clairmont, N. H. For many years she made her home in Fitchburg, and came to this town to make her home with her daughter about 14 years ago. She leaves two daughters besides Mrs. Tenney, one residing in Keene, N. H., and the other in Detroit, Mich.

The funeral services will be held from the residence Saturday afternoon at one o'clock and

TOWN MEETING.

hospital one gentleman had placed his house at the disposal of the Committee and certain ladies were authorized to provide equipment. This was done, provisions having been completed for the care of some 20 patients at a minute's notice. This took $404.60.

The Committee was also asked to take a census of the town by the State Committee. This was started, but owing to change in the plans of the State organization was not carried to completion. This incurred an expense of $15.50. Another census asked was that of motor trucks, pleasure cars and other vehicles which could be used if necessary, and this instance was the only one where use had been made of the work, the sub-committee having it in charge taking the drafted men to Ayer. The Secretary and Treasurer had spent but $6.15 for books and supplies. The important branch of food products and food conservation had been conducted with almost no expense, only 5.65 being needed. The preliminary expenses of the Home Guard organization cost $10.50.

The total expenses, all of which had been paid, amounted to $483.70. In asking for a large appropriation he said that the State Committee and the Governor had asked for the organization of State Guards. The State would equip such Guard to a certain extent, but to do good work the Company needed much more than had been given it. The Selectmen had approved bills of the Company to the sum of $631.70, of which the principal item had been lighting Manchester Field for drilling.

It was seen in August that sufficient warm clothing would not be had to continue the drilling in cold weather, and if the efficiency of the Company was to be maintained money to purchase this would be necessary, as it appeared that the State would not be in a position to furnish aid. If warm clothing was to be had it should be ordered at once. The great demand of the national army made it a questionable matter whether such supplies would be obtainable.

It was therefore decided to call a town meeting, and he offered the motion to appropriate the sum of $5000, payable by the Town.

The Finance Committee approved the motion. Chairman Mansfield stating that the State had ordered 1000 overcoats and more recently appropriated money for 7500 more. These would be given to State Guard companies who were to see active service, and as the Guard numbered over 10,000 men, there would not be enough to go around. Mr. Tuck, although he said he would vote for the motion, felt that the State should pay the expense. The placing of one million dollars at its disposal should provide sufficient funds, and as only $250,000 had been used by the Governor, he felt that an appropriation by the Town was not necessary, especially as the Town would be called upon to pay its State tax. He offered an amendment that the motion include paying the expenses of the drafted men in reaching Ayer, to which Mr. Parkhurst replied that his committee would meet any such expense.

Mr. Holland opposed the appropriation and Messrs. T. H. Barrett and Patrick Craughwell favored it. The vote on Mr. Tuck's amendment was put and carried and the vote on the whole motion was carried 102 to 1.

Mr. Tuck then moved to appropriate the sum of $1000 to be expended under the direction of the Selectmen for the purpose of coal for dependents of our citizens in the United States service. Town Council Dutch stated that no provision had been made in the motion to provide for the money. Mr. Parkhurst stated that he was in sympathy with the object and that one sub-division of the Committee on Public Safety had been appointed to look after such cases and also for the families of the men who had volunteered. Mr. Tuck withdrew the motion.

Mr. Tuck then offered the following motion:

Moved: That the Moderator appoint a committee of one to draft resolutions expressing our interest in the health and welfare of our drafted men in the U. S. service at Ayer and to wish them Godspeed; the said committee to be given power to purchase for the comfort of said men pipes, tobacco and cigars to an amount not to exceed $100.

The second article of the warrant brought a motion for $950 to meet the additional cost of coal for the schools. It was explained that the deficit amounted to $2500, but the School Committee by cutting its budget had reduced the sum to $950. This was voted.

Former Selectman Davidson thought that this sum should be taken care of out of the reserve fund, or if exhausted the Selectmen had the power to allow the committee to over-run its appropriation as in the case of the Committee on Public Safety. He felt it better to appropriate the money at the March meeting rather than spend money now to be raised next year.

Article 3 was for the purpose of providing the Water Department with necessary funds of maintenance. The appropriation for water construction was made this year on the basis of previous years, this money being turned over for maintenance as fast as new work was completed. Owing to the fact that new work this year had thus far averaged about 1-3 of the previous amount, the maintenance fund was running low. It was hoped to care for this by a transfer of funds and by the sale of surplus material bought in anticipation of new construction. Votes to this effect were passed, $550 being transferred and $1600 appropriated in anticipation of the sale of material. The meeting then dissolved.

MR. SHERMAN REPLIES.

Answers Criticism of Friends of Drafted Men.

September 25, 1917.

Editor of the Star:

At the special Town Meeting held Monday evening, the Board of Selectmen and the Committee of Public Safety were criticized because there were no ceremonies on the occasion of the selected men leaving Winchester for Ayer. I am informed that neither the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen or the Chairman of the Committee of Public Safety were present at the time the men left. Whether or not they should have been present or arrange ceremonies of any kind on such an occasion, notwithstanding the fact that it has been done in other cities or towns, is questionable.

In our Town of Winchester there have been many men go into the service of the United States Army or Navy, either because they were members of the National Guard, or from patriotic motives, volunteered for service. I am unable to give the exact figures, but I am informed that there were twenty-two or twenty-three men who went to Ayer last week, and I feel quite confident that there have been at least twice that number, if not more, who have gone into the service of the United States without being drafted. I do not wish in any way to criticize the men who waited to be called by the draft, believing that is the fair and equitable way to raise armies in time of peace or war, but I do think that they should receive no honors which were not given to the large number of men who volunteered for service. Why were not the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and the Chairman of the Committee of Public Safety criticized for not saying good-bye to the drafted men who went from Winchester a week or ten days prior to these twenty-two or twenty-three men? Why should not Dr. Cutter, who volunteered for service as a surgeon in the U. S. Army at the sacrifice of his professional practice, be given a send-off? What about the Rev. Mr. Dewart who went out as Chaplain of the 101st Field Artillery, and is now in France? And Capt. Carpenter of the Medical Corps, and Lieut. George G. Tarbell of the 1st Regiment of Engineers, and the many others, whose names have been published on the Roll of Honor in your paper?

I believe in fair play, and I believe that honors should not be shown to one class and not to the other. Comparisons are odious, and if there were to be any favoritism shown, (and I do not think there should be) it should be shown to the men who went voluntarily, rather than to those who waited to be drafted. I again desire to say that I have nothing but the highest feeling of respect towards all of the men who are serving their country in its time of need, whether it be by selected draft, or by volunteering. I have been informed that there is to be an article in your paper further criticizing the Town authorities for not doing more than simply sending the boys to Ayer by automobile, and I think all fair-minded citizens will realize, when they look at the facts impartially, that the position I have taken in the matter is the only fair course that should be pursued.

Very truly yours,

Roland H. Sherman.

D'AMBROSIO—BARBARO.

The wedding of Miss Bertha Margaret Barbaro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Barbaro of 43 Oak street, and Mr. Joseph D'Ambrosio of this town took place at St. Mary's Parochial residence on Sunday afternoon at half-past two, Rev. Francis E. Rogers performing the ceremony.

The couple were attended by Salvatore Riccio of Bradford, who was groomsmen, and Miss Rosa E. Barbaro, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor. The bride wore a wedding dress of white satin with lace over-dress. Her veil was caught with a spray of lilies of the valley and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore pale yellow marquisette, with yellow satin ribbon trimmings, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Following the ceremony a largely attended reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the house being decorated for the affair with white cut flowers and potted plants.

Following a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. D'Ambrosio will make their home at No. 969 Main street.

HARRY COX RETURNING.

Winchester Boy Cited in French Army Orders for Bravery.

New was received Tuesday that Mr. Harry Cox, who left the latter part of July to enter the transport service of the French Army, is returning to Winchester. It is denied that he is injured as has been reported, and his parents state that he is returning on a furlough. Whether he will return to France after a stay here is not yet known.

In connection with Mr. Cox's return it is gratifying to his friends to learn that he has been cited in the French Army orders for bravery under fire, a copy of which follows:

LETTER FROM RAYMOND YOUNG.

Winchester Boy in France Tells of Experiences.

Through the kindness of Mr. Jere A. Downs of this town we print the following letter from Raymond Young, a former Winchester boy now serving with the French Army ammunition service. The letter, which was written to Mr. Downs, follows:

France, Aug. 14, 1917.

Dear Mr. Downs:

I have now been at the front for a month and a half, and am still in good health, in fact, better than usual. I am not in the Ambulance Service, which I started out for, but in the munition transport department of the French Army. I was made a corporal two weeks ago, and now wear two stripes on my sleeve. None of the rest of our unit have any rank as yet. Two of the boys from Princeton were killed by shrapnel one night last week at the front and one wounded.

My section has escaped any injury. Miller from Tufts was hit on the helmet but not hurt. Our duty is carrying munitions from the Parks in the rear up to the front. They are taken from where we leave them on donkeys to the trenches. We carry direct to the big guns. Most of the work is done at night, no lights, and the roads crowded with troops, wagons, and convoys. There are forty men and eighteen five-ton Pierce Arrow trucks in my section. We have an American lieutenant, two sergeants and two corporals. Our camp is about eight miles behind the trenches and we hear the guns all the time. At night star shells light up the sky for miles, and the flash of the guns is incessant. There is more action at night than in the day. The German aviators are a constant menace here, especially on moonlight nights, when they make raids. They dropped four bombs on a big red cross hospital, about two miles behind us, the other night; destroyed four buildings, killed two of the patients and wounded fifteen, including several Germans. We have been under very severe fire at the front a number of times. A piece of shrapnel went by me night before last, about six feet away, and I dug it out of a tree still hot.

I have become a fatalist. I was at the front today with seventy-five and the Captain, a fine man, let me fire a French one hundred and five several times. I nearly lost my hearing when I pulled the cord. We could hear those shells roar for over thirty seconds after they left the gun, but they went too far behind the German lines to hear them explode. The Captain showed me, on a map, the battery I was firing at, 10 kilometers away.

We get very good food here and very comfortable quarters. We live in trailers. They call a truck a Camion and the trailer a Camionette. The French do not seem to be making much progress, in fact, their balloons seem to have fallen back since we've been here. I saw a Boche plane bring one down in flames yesterday. The observer in a shrapnel proof cage came down in a parachute.

I have written to Washington to get a commission in the U. S. Army when my term is up here. We have not seen any of our soldiers as yet, but several officers have been here, and have passed us on the road. They certainly have got a big job ahead of them and the artillery and aviators are the main thing. I go to Paris on seven days' permission at the end of three months, and am going to the U. S. Army bureau then. I am on the Aisne front now.

Please remember me to your sister and Mr. Remick if you see him.
Yours truly,
Raymond.

A GERMAN RAID ON A HOSPITAL.

Through the courtesy of Mr. John A. Caldwell we print the following letter from a friend, who is driving an ambulance in France, to his mother.

Somewhere in France,
Aug. 23, 1917.

Dear Mother:

No letters for quite a while, but do not expect them as a great offensive is under way here.

The expected has happened. I have lost, for a while at least, my job on the camionette. The way of my losing it and the result of the same is a thing that, as long as there is breath in my body, I shall never forget.

It was like this: About 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the 20th we were all out in a field near here playing a ball game when the Chef came running out with an order to go to a post near by, 20 miles away, and do it quick, as we were badly needed. Just 5 minutes later we hurried off. When we got there we found the place literally packed and jammed with German and French wounded—the result of the great French attack made that morning. They were in most awful shape—some with their faces shot away, others with a leg or arm gone, or ghastly chasms in their bodies; still others with terrible racking coughs caused by the German gas. All but five of the cars were used up taking care of these. I was the driver of one of these five which were to wait for the next batch. That was where Fate played me a poor trick indeed. Anyway, the five of us waited—but we were not bored in the least. First about 1500 German prisoners passed us—that was interesting and amusing. From then on until about quarter to ten we did not do much of anything but nurse our hunger (we got no supper). Then this began to happen.

We were grouped together talking about nothing much when suddenly a German airplane with his motor cut off, dropped out of the sky three bombs that landed about 500 yards away from us, and raced off again into the night. Then for over two hours that town was raided by a whole flock of planes. They followed each other in rapid succession across the sky, dropping bomb after bomb. The third plane set fire to a hospital not over 300 yards away, making a ghastly scene of it all—the men rushing for shelter in all stages of undress and in all stages of fear—the Boche planes circling overhead—all lit up in the red glow of the fire. Ten minutes later another huge fire was set further away. With the aid of these two beacons the aviators could, of course, see the earth plainly and they did most terrible execution. For the first time in my life I felt my knees shake. I admit I was darned good and scared. But I claim I had reason to be. No less than 9 of those cursed things fell within 200 yards of me. I'm sure of that because I got hit by the stones thrown by that many. One—I shall never forget it—struck not over 20 yards from me—on the other side of a railroad embankment. If the embankment had not been there I would not be here. But it was, so why worry. As it was, a man standing beside me got two pieces of shell in him, while I got two devilish cracks on the head from stones. Thank God for the steel helmet! The force of the explosion bowled me over so for a couple of minutes I was not feeling quite fit. On top of that someone yelled "gas!" A nice bunch that will drop poison gas on a hospital. I'm beginning to appreciate the French point of view in regard to Germans.

Well, of course there was great and immediate need for me and my ambulance so I loaded up with 5 freshly hit men and drove out into the darkness with those damned things still dropping all around. On my way out of town I passed the hospital that was still burning. I nearly lost my last three meals doing that. The smell of human beings burning is not a pleasant one. Anyhow I finally got out of that place, delivered my wounded (including a doctor and a stretcher bearer) and got back to the Cantonment at 3.30 a. m.

That was all of that party, but to make things worse they kept us awake from 3 a. m. on the next day by raiding the aviation field near here. I sincerely hope they leave us alone for a while—I've had enough for a week anyway.

I spoke to quite a number of Frenchmen, who had been in the war since the first and they were all unanimous in saying that there had never been a raid the equal of the one we went through. You should have heard the bouquets we got from the Chef! Oh, my, oh my! I am enclosing a piece from the "Petit Parisien" which tells a very little about it. I hope it gets through but am not sure it will.

Love to the bunch.

Gil.

TOWN GOVERNMENT PLAN.

A Protest Against the Spirit Animating the Leaders of the Mass Meeting.

Editor of the Star:

Kindly record me as standing shoulder to shoulder with Prof. Currier in his characterization of the spirit of the leaders in the mass meeting held to stifle open fair debate on both sides of the new town government plan. As a citizen of Winchester and an old-town officer, I feel ashamed of the meeting as reported in the STAR. It was conducted in such a one-sided dogmatic manner. "You cannot save a wandering sheep by worrying him to death" and few will be won over to the new plan by such heekling tactics as prevailed at a meeting purposely called to enlighten the ignorant and win the doubters. If the STAR still keeps open house and welcomes open debates on all sides of the town government question, I should like to say something later more to the point than this simple protest against the spirit which animated the leaders at last week's meeting. I never witnessed any such proceedings in Winchester. I am glad I was out of town and could not be present at such a one-sided affair.

FIRST TOURNAMENT AT CALUMET.

There was a good turnout at the Calumet Club on Saturday night for the first bowling tournament of the season. Prizes were awarded for the first and second scores in high singles and three string totals with handicap.

Messrs. George F. Purrrington and Marshall K. Berry were the winners and Henry Weed and Sewall E. Newman took second prizes. Purrrington and Berry tied for high singles, each rolling a total of 124. This prize went to Purrrington and second went to Weed with 119. Berry rolled the best three string total with 357. Purrrington being second, but as he was awarded the high single prize, Newman took second with a total of 329.

Some of the highest scores rolled follow:

OUR MEDICAL SERVICE.

A Physician's Explanation to Mr. Smalley.

Editor of the Star:

In last week's issue of the STAR a charge was brought against the physicians of Winchester which requires an explanation.

The charge was that a man whose wife required a doctor spent three and one half hours in vain and finally had recourse to a former visiting nurse whose efforts by telephone were likewise in vain making it necessary for Mrs. Smalley to undertake the duties of midwife.

It is not surprising that Mr. Smalley was annoyed and preferred the charge of lack of true, historic spirit in the medical profession.

The cause of the refusal is not properly to be laid at the doctor's door. This man and his wife had nine months in which to engage a physician to attend the woman in her confinement.

When such an engagement has been made, I have never known a doctor to neglect his duty, either going himself or, if impossible, to provide some competent colleague. Many plans and arrangements as well as essential preliminary care are necessary during that time: whether the patient shall go to the hospital, what nurse shall attend her, what provision shall be made for clothes and aseptic dressings and most of all that the doctor shall be on hand.

Perhaps few persons realize how many plans are made by a doctor provisionally in view of such an engagement: how much time is squandered waiting for overdue cases, or how many plans are interrupted by a premature call. The money the patient can pay is a small matter but preparation is absolutely essential.

It is well known in these days that the doctor is held responsible for any unfortunate development in the case—whether justly or not—while a normal case is looked upon as of no credit to the profession.

The doctors alone know that no surgery may present so many and such serious complications as confinements and no one is so thankful for the so-called normal delivery as they are.

It does seem that the least a patient can do is to give the doctor a chance to be forearmed by such preparation as he can make before hand.

Really, confinement cases are surgery and need surgical surroundings and care at that time and afterward.

So strongly do I feel in this matter that I advise all patients to go to the hospital for such an event.

There patients are prepared and cared for in such a way as best to ensure their safe and comfortable recovery.

There are free beds for those who need them and I know of no physician who would not agree to care for such a patient for nothing under hospital conditions.

DONAGHEY—FOLEY.

The wedding of Miss Kathryn Foley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Foley of 16 Summer street, Stoneham, and Mr. Thomas William Donaghey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Donaghey of this town, took place on Sunday evening at seven o'clock at St. Patrick's Church, Stoneham. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. W. J. Millerick.

Mr. Arthur L. Donaghey, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Mabel J. Hinds of Stoneham was bridesmaid.

The bride wore for her wedding dress a creation of white satin and her tulle veil was caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of brides roses. The bridesmaid wore blueorgette crepe. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, the couple being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Foley, Mr. and Mrs. Donaghey and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corcoran of Providence, R. I., the latter a sister of the bride.

The residence was decorated for the affair with potted plants, palms and cut flowers. The ushers were Messrs. James P. Donaghey and John F. Donaghey of this town, Frank Corcoran of Providence, R. I., and James Hamilton of Lowell.

At the conclusion of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Donaghey left on a wedding trip to New York and Washington, D. C. They were the recipients of many costly and beautiful gifts. Upon their return they will make their home for a time in Stoneham.

DESAULNIERS—BENET.

Miss Norma Lenora Benet, daughter of Mrs. Margaret M. Benet of Lebanon street, and Mr. Clement Charles Desaulniers, son of Madam D. Desaulniers of Salem, were married at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt, rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The couple were attended by Mr. Hugh Jarret of Woonsocket, R. I., and Miss Margaret Benet, sister of the bride.

The ceremony was of a quiet nature, attended only by relatives of the couple. They will spend their honeymoon in the White Mountains.

Look for the man on the roll

There are two ways of telling the real RU-BER-OID from its 300 imitators:

1. Genuine RU-BER-OID has the "Ru-ber-oid Man" on the wrapper of every roll.
2. Genuine RU-BER-OID gives long and satisfactory service.

Many RU-BER-OID roofs laid 20 years ago are still giving perfect service.

Genuine RU-BER-OID, made by the Standard Paint Co., contains no tar, sand, wood fibre, or other cheap substitutes that quickly wear out.

The safest way is to look for the RU-BER-OID Man on the roofing that lasts.

Buildings of every kind in every climate are roofed with RU-BER-OID roofing and RU-BER-OID shingles.

EDWARD E. PARKER
STEAM AND HOT WATER HEATING.
MIDDLE STREET, WOBURN.

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

Figuratively speaking, Winchester soldier boys left for Ayer last Friday by way of the back door.

Mr. Grafton D. Cushing was buried very, very deep politically by his friends Tuesday. He ought to have foreseen the outcome of the primaries.

It looks as though the Town Committees of the two political parties might find ground for fruitful work in Winchester, when of 23 young men drafted into government service, but one-half are eligible to vote.

The State tickets: Republican—Governor, Samuel W. McCall; Lieutenant Governor, Calvin Coolidge; Secretary of State, Albert P. Langtry; Treasurer, Charles L. Burrill; Auditor, Alonzo B. Cook; Attorney General, Henry C. Atwell. Democratic—Governor, Frederick W. Mansfield; Lieutenant Governor, Matthew Hale; Secretary of State, Arthur B. Reed; Treasurer, Humphrey O'Sullivan; Auditor, Elzear H. Choquette; Attorney General, Josiah Quincy.

Much indignant criticism has been heard over the fact that the departure of twenty-three of our young men, comprising the 40 per cent of the draft, was practically ignored by the Town last Friday. This criticism appears to be not without foundation. When the names and date of departure were announced, this office was informed by Clerk P. A. Hendrick of the local Draft Board that his board felt it would be a nice thing for the towns of Arlington and Winchester to take their respective boys to Camp Devens at Ayer by automobiles, and said he would communicate with Winchester. This was so announced in the STAR. Up to Thursday morning it was impossible to learn what arrangements had been made here to care for our boys. It was then reported that five automobiles would take them from Arlington to Ayer. Accordingly Friday morning the five automobiles went to Arlington—empty. The Winchester boys could go anyway they choose, afoot or horseback. Thursday Capt. Tomkins issued orders to the Winchester Company, State Guards, to report for duty Friday morning, assuming that the Winchester boys would be recognized on leaving by the Town. Thursday night he countermanded the order. Selectman Laraway made plans to observe the departure of the boys. He could learn nothing about them beyond that they left Arlington at nine o'clock. With all our knitting societies, our sewing societies, and our organizations for soldiers relief, it is said that no provision was made to provide for these boys. Two boys said at Arlington that they had heard they might obtain sweaters by asking a certain lady. They called at her house and were informed by a servant that she was away. They called at another house and their visit was equally futile. If Winchester people could have heard the bitter criticism at Arlington last Friday morning by these boys, their parents and friends, they would have then and there resolved to appoint one more to the already teeming list of committees, and that would be a committee to look after the drafted men. Probably nothing connected with the war has received so little attention from this town as has the military draft, which is probably the most important preparation of all in the great struggle we are entering into. One boy expressed it tritely when he remarked dispassionately "we arm't of their (Winchester's) family; but some of those fellows have got sweaters." It has been asked lately why the departure of drafted men should be made the occasion of feasting and celebration, when those who have enlisted voluntarily have been allowed to depart unnoticed and forgotten, and the question is pertinent. Undoubtedly this matter has been greatly overdone by many places. But the drafted men go to protect their Country in obedience to their Country's laws; they go to make up the army which is the greatest symbol of democracy of today, and their going should not pass absolutely disregarded. Winchester should be the family of every drafted man; he is one of her sons going forth to fight for her; he is obeying her laws, and thus far it must be admitted he has done it pretty cheerfully, all things considered. We should not let our boys go forth to war with any bitter feelings towards their home town. Everyone who enters into the service should receive consideration, and while probably no one would advocate holding any public reception or celebration, the boys should not depart unnoticed through what appears to be plain indifference.

OBSERVED 74th BIRTHDAY.

One of Winchester's old and respected citizens received congratulations on Wednesday night at the home of his son, when Mr. Thomas P. Dotten, a former member of the Winchester Police Department observed his 74th birthday.

The event was made the occasion of a small celebration by a number of his friends, and there was a happy gathering at the home of his son, Mr. Frederick T. Dotten, on Winchester place. Music by an orchestra, an entertainment by the Kerkness Brothers, 7 and 10 year old Scotch and Irish comedians, and a general good time by all marked the evening.

Mr. Dotten was warmly congratulated by his many friends and was the recipient of many fine gifts.

Among those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beamer of Woburn, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Connor and Mr. Thomas Fallon.

MEETING OF WINCHESTER GRANGE.

At the meeting of the Grange Tuesday evening a fine program was presented by the officers and members of Melrose Grange, who were the guests of the local order. Whitfield L. Tuck, Master of Winchester Grange, introduced the following list of speakers during the evening: Dist. Dep. Marston, Dist. Dep. Goodwin, Master of Middlesex-Essex Pomona, Carter; Past Master Gage of Somerville; Bro. Hoyet, Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Goodwin of Melrose, and Past Master Phillips. The remarks made by the speakers were very entertaining, and in addition to the list there was a large attendance from other places, including Tilton, N. H., Manchester, N. H., Somerville and Woburn. Refreshments were served during the evening.

near be requested to carry out these suggestions.

Street Lights Ordered: A report was received from the Town Engineer on the petition of certain persons for one or more additional street lights on Lawson road. This report was accepted and the Board voted to have a 60 Candle Power Incandescent Light installed.

Swanton Street Bridge: A letter was received from the Town Engineer stating that the development, at the recent hearing of the County Commissioners, that the present width of the Swanton Street Bridge (Woburn Loop) is such that sidewalks should be constructed by way of addition to the bridge, is very important and desirable from the point of view of the Town, even if the Town should be called upon to bear some part of the expense. In his letter the Town Counsel asks for the date of the layout of that part of Swanton street which is in question, the date when the present bridge was erected and what, if any, decree or order or other record appears with respect to the construction of this bridge. This matter was referred back to the Town Counsel to report on the rights of the Town and also to find out what agreement could be made with the railroad in the matter of expense.

Street Lights, General Subject: The Board voted to request the Edison Company to continue the morning burning the same as last year. (From December 1st to April 1st inclusive from 5 a. m. to one-half hour before sunrise.)

Hillcrest Parkway: A letter was received from Myra E. Galusha, 30 Hillcrest Parkway, in regard to placing a sign marked "To Hillcrest Parkway" on the post marking Euclid avenue. The Board voted to grant this request.

Mount Pleasant Street: A letter was received from H. K. Barrows in regard to the condition of that portion of Mount Pleasant street above Hillside avenue. This matter was referred to the Committee on Ways & Bridges.

Outside Work: A petition was received from Frank W. Winn for the construction of cement steps at his house at 17 Kenwin road. This matter was referred to the Superintendent of Streets.

Sidewalks, Highland Avenue: The Board voted to construct a gravel sidewalk along the easterly line of Highland avenue from a point about 160 feet north of Fells road to the driveway of the Winchester Hospital, and along the westerly line of Highland avenue from the driveway of the hospital to Forest street.

Highland Avenue: Suggestions were received from the Town Engineer that bushes and growth along the westerly line of Highland avenue from Lawson road to Goddu property be cut back to the street line. This matter was referred to the Superintendent of Streets.

The meeting adjourned at 10.25 p. m.

George S. F. Bartlett,
Clerk of Selectmen.

Sept. 24. The Board held a special meeting on Monday, September 24, at 7 o'clock, all present.

Collector of Taxes Department, Collector: Mr. F. Nelson Hawley, 122 Cambridge street, was appointed Collector of Taxes for the Town of Winchester to serve out the unexpired term of Mr. A. Wm. Rooney. Mr. Hawley's salary is to date from Oct. 1, 1917.

Meeting adjourned at 7.45 p. m. George S. F. Bartlett,

WINCHESTER BOYS AT CAMP.

They Are Assigned to Battery A, Field Artillery.

Through the kindness of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald, a reporter for the STAR, was enabled to visit the great camp at Ayer—Camp Devens—where our Winchester soldier boys are at the present time. If any person has an idea that the United States is not seriously entering this war, let him take a trip to Ayer, and he will come away with a different opinion. The camp is an active city of magnificent distances. The territory that it covers is almost beyond belief. Standing in front of the barracks where the Winchester boys make their home, John J. Collins, a Winchester soldier, said to the writer, "Do you see that hill over there? Well, that is to be occupied by infantry." The high low crowned hill covering many acres of almost flat land was nearly two miles from the barracks where Mr. Collins stood. And away beyond the hill stretching out on both sides was more land to be occupied by the troops. This camp is but a part of a ponderous machine that is being put together for the purpose of according to the people in all parts of the world the right to live in peace and happiness. And when this machine is fully assembled from all parts of the United States its force will be so great that Germany and her Allies will be swept before it.

The Camp at Ayer may yet be said as in the making. Work is going on there day and night during seven days of the week, and yet it is progressing as fast as the soldiers arrive there. The din from the hundreds of hammers of the carpenters is surprising, sounding in the distance like the crackling of fire crackers, so many are there of them. Miles of streets have been built and more miles are in the making and some of them are being macadamized. It is a great sight, a visit to Camp Devens.

The Winchester boys thus far in Camp have been merged into Battery A of the 301st Field Artillery. And as the battery is about full, the Winchester boys that are yet to come will have to go into another unit.

Last Sunday afternoon we were denied the privilege of seeing all the Winchester boys, as they were being fitted with uniforms. But we did see and talk with three or four of them. They are in high spirits, was the report, and are entering upon their duties with zest.

In the next company street, are the Woburn boys, Battery B, therefore they have friends and neighbors close at hand. John J. Collins was the pioneer boy to the camp, he going there four weeks ago with two other Arlington draft men. Mr. Collins was employed in the Winchester postoffice previous to going to Ayer.

There were thousands of visitors last Sunday and thousands of automobiles, so that the road between the center of Ayer and the Camp was choked, and it became necessary to walk to the Camp. The streets of Ayer were crowded with soldiers, and many young men were seen going to the camp in groups wearing tags. Arriving there they will be checked up and assigned to some branch of the service. All day and night great automobile trucks are passing to and from the Camp in endless procession. It is a wonderful place, this Camp Devens in the making, and a sight that a person will never forget. The whole scheme is too great for the visitor to grasp. All that he can do is to wonder and marvel at the huge steps being taken by Uncle Sam in the present world war.

The best time to visit the Camp is on a week day, then in all probability you will be allowed to go about the Camp in your auto. Sundays this is prohibited.

WINCHESTER BOYS SECOND AT AYER.

The Winchester and Arlington boys were the second contingent to enter the camp ground at Ayer last Friday. They came in autos, led by Chief Urquhardt of the Arlington Police Department, and were credited to State Division 30.

In the Winchester quota was Herbert W. Kelly, the old Harvard quarter mile runner, carrying his clothes in a gunny-sack over his shoulder, collarless and with shirt open at the neck, looking as if he wanted to go right at the Germans without further training.

HOW THE SOLDIER BOYS WERE SENT TO CAMP.

From all over the State came reports of the great send-off given the soldier boys on leaving last Friday for the Camp at Ayer.

At Woburn at least a thousand people gathered at the bandstand on the Common at 7:30 in the morning to speed the score of selected men on their way to the cantonment at Ayer. The time was brief and the exercises informal, but they were characterized by seriousness and earnestness. Mayor Gray made a brief address, and Dr. William H. Keleher, secretary of the selection board, also spoke. Just before the men entrained at 8:59, the crowd gave them three hearty cheers.

The drafted men of Stoneham assembled in Central square Stoneham, Friday morning at 7:30 o'clock and were given a rousing send-off, the farewell ceremony taking place in front of Buck Building. Chairman A. N. Newhall of the local board made appropriate introductory remarks and then called upon the selectmen of the several towns from which the drafted men were taken. Selectman L. V. Colahan responded in patriotic vein for Stoneham. Selectmen Dewey of Reading, Barrows of Wilmington, Nourse of Saugus, Barbour of North Reading and Harvey of Lynnfield also spoke briefly, as did Com. G. W. Newhall of Post 75 and Comrade George B. Williams of the Spanish War Veterans.

But a different story comes from Arlington. Without even so much as the ringing of a church bell or gathering of citizens, the young men of the Draft Army, 55 in number, making up the 40 per cent, left for Ayer. The same condition prevailed in Winchester as at Arlington where no notice of the departure of the boys was taken.

All the Medford boys received a miniature city flag to keep at the heads of their cots in the army barracks.

Every soldier will want a fountain pen. Moore's non-leakable are by far the best for rough army life. Always ready—never leak. All styles at Wilson's the Stationer's. ag3,tf

HOSPITAL COMFORT BAGS.

Lady Smith-Dorrie in charge of the Hospital Comfort Bags at London, England, writes that she is most grateful for the last gift of Hospital Bags, and hopes that her kind contributors will forgive her for asking them to make every effort to procure still more.

The bags are so popular with the wounded that they have become virtually indispensable.

The demand has risen to 106,000 per month and in addition the authorities have asked that a large reserve be collected to meet the anticipated heavy call.

October 1st, the Chairman of the American Hospital Bag Committee, Mrs. Wm. Scott Ferguson, No. 8 Scott street, Cambridge, Mass., is prepared to sell at cost cretonne pieces, the size for bags, at 75 cents per dozen. Material so purchased must be made up and returned to the Bag Fund.

The Winchester Comfort Bag Committee will fill orders to anyone who would like to buy material in this way.

Tablets for the names which must be put on the Comfort Bag the first thing can be procured by telephone from Miss E. M. Gould, 34 Myrtle terrace, Winchester, Mass., who will mail the tablets for markers by request.

Bags when finished may be left at the Winchester Exchange with Mrs. Carpenter, if more convenient. The Xmas Bags are not connected in any way with the Hospital Comfort Bags.

It is hoped that there may be a generous response to the latter which are sent to London every month.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

At an extra meeting called at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, Friday, September 22, a number of members of the Union made and filled bags for the soldiers and sailors. The remainder of those promised will be done soon and sent on their way to add to the comfort of a full company of enlisted men.

It has been questioned whether the men care for these "kits." One of the members took occasion to ask a member of the marine corps whether he thought they were worth while. His answer dispelled any doubt on that point. Although he is one of the fortunate boys whose parents and sisters have provided everything in that line, he spoke enthusiastically of the value of the comfort bags. "Why, I never supposed I would bother with such small truck, but when one is off by himself and no one to sew on buttons or do such things, it is just wonderful how one enjoys having the necessary things. We would not even know what we want for such things. And the first aid packages are dandy. I pity the fellows who haven't them." Which being expert opinion is valuable.

At the meeting two weeks ago Mrs. Gleason urged the members to abate no whit of their efforts in behalf of temperance because no more distilled liquors are being made. Beer is still being malted in quantity enough to keep the nation from becoming really sober. And for some people beer is more harmful than spirits because more insidious. Now is the time to make clear the disadvantages of having one's brain in a slightly befuddled condition all the time. Now is the time to urge the diminution rather than the increase of malt liquor drinking. Much has been gained for temperance during the past few months but the battle is by no means over. Let us not fall asleep while on guard.

A REMARKABLE PROPHECY.

Reprinted by Request.

The following prophecy by the monk, Fratre Johannes, who lived about the year 1600, is remarkable in its application to the present world crisis. The Advertiser at first doubted its authenticity, because of a few discrepancies in the text, but the matter was referred to the newspaper information bureau at Washington and Director Frederic J. Haskins replied as follows:

"In reply to your letter asking whether the prophecy by the monk Fratre Johannes is real we would say that this prophecy was discovered in old parchment in the Convent of the Holy Ghost, at Wismar, in Germany, and is kept under glass in the Town Hall of this city. There have been numerous translations which text varies somewhat. We are returning your copy of this prophecy."

The discrepancies which we noted, and which you also may notice, are probably due to the variations in the translation of the text. On the whole it is a remarkable prophecy. It is as follows:

The real Antichrist will be one of the monarchs of his time, a Lutheran Protestant. He will invoke God and give himself out as his messenger, or apostle.

This prince of lies will swear by the Bible. He will represent himself as the arm of the Most High, sent to chastise corrupt peoples.

He will have only one arm, but his invulnerable arm, who will take for their device the words, "God is with us," will resemble the infernal regions.

For a long time he will act by craft and strategy. His spies will overrun the earth and he will be master of the secrets of the mighty.

He will have learned men in his pay who will maintain and undertake to prove his celestial mission.

A war will afford him the opportunity of throwing off the mask. It will not be in the first instance a war which he will wage against a French monarch. But it will be one of such a nature, that, after two weeks all will realize its universal character.

Not only all Christians, but all Mussulmans and even more distant peoples will be involved. Armies will be involved from the four quarters of the earth.

For by the third week the angels will have opened the minds of men who will perceive that the man is Antichrist and that all will become his slaves if they do not overthrow this conqueror.

Antichrist will be recognized by various tokens—in special he will massacre the priests, the monks, the women, the children, and the aged. He will show no mercy, but will pass, torch in hand, like the barbarians, but invoking Christ.

His words of imposture will resemble those of Christians, but his vows of all the human race. He will have an eagle in his arms, there will also be an eagle in the arms of his confederate. But the later will be a Christian, and will die for the malediction of Pope Benedict, who will be elected at the beginning of the reign of Antichrist.

In order to conquer Antichrist it will be necessary to kill more men than Rome has ever contained. It will need the energies of all the kingdoms because the Cock, the Leopard and the White Eagle will not be able to make an end of the Black Eagle without the aid of the prayers and vows of the human race.

Never will humanity have been faced with such a peril, because the triumph of the Antichrist would be that of the demon, who will have taken possession of his personality.

For it has been said that twenty centuries after the incarnation of the Word the beast will be incarnate in his turn, and will menace the world with as many evils as the Divine incarnation has brought it graces.

Toward the 2000, Antichrist will be made manifest. His army will surpass in number anything that can be imagined. There will be Christians among his cohorts and there will be Mohammedans among the defenders of the Lamb, as well as some heathen soldiers.

For the first time the Lamb will be red—for blood will flow in the domains of the four elements at once.

The Black Eagle will hurl itself upon the Cock, which will lose many feathers. It will soon be exhausted, but for the Leopard and its claws.

The Black Eagle, who will come from the land of Luther, will make a surprise attack upon the Cock.

The White Eagle will come from the north.

The Black Eagle will find itself forced to let go the Cock in order to fight the White Eagle whereupon the Cock will have to pursue the Black Eagle into the land of the Antichrist to aid the White Eagle.

The battles fought up to that time will be nothing as compared to that which will take place in the Lutheran country.

When the beast finds himself lost, he will become furious.

Men will be able to cross the rivers over the bodies of the dead.

Antichrist will sue for peace many times, but the seven angels, who march before three animals of the Lamb, will have proclaimed that victory will not be given except on the condition that Antichrist shall be crushed like straw on the threshing floor.

The three animals will not be permitted to cease fighting as long as Antichrist has soldiers.

It will be made manifest that the combat, which will be fought out in that part of the country in which Antichrist forges his arms, is no human conflict. The animal defenders of the Lamb will exterminate the last army of Antichrist.

Antichrist will lose his crown and die in solitude and madness. His empire will be divided into twenty-two states, but none will have any longer any fortifications, army or ships of war.

The White Eagle, by order of Michael, will drive the Crescent out of Europe, where there will be no longer any but Christians. He will install himself in Constantinople.

EXPLANATION.

The Kaiser is a German Lutheran—one arm is withered.

Germany is the Black Eagle.

Austria, her ally, has also an eagle.

Russia is the White Eagle.

France is the Cock.

England the British empire, is the Leopard.—[Mansfield Advertiser.]

TELEPHONE SERVICE AT AYER.

One of the big jobs incident to the construction of Camp Devens at Ayer, Mass., where the New England draft is mobilized, was the providing of adequate telephone service. This meant not only the building of a complete central office within the camp, with switchboard facilities for nine operators, but the doubling of the size of the Ayer central office and an increase by 300 per cent in its switchboard facilities. In addition, hundreds of miles of toll circuits had to be added in order to permit prompt communication between the camp with its 40,000 men—a sizable city in itself—and all points of the compass.

President Spaulding of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company visited Camp Devens the other day when the new switchboards were put into service, and surveyed the job completed by his men and taken up by his operating force. He pronounced it a complete exemplification of the company's slogan, "Service First."

One of the biggest problems that the company had to solve was to find accommodations for about sixty additional switchboard operators required to handle the tremendous increase in business, due to the establishment of the cantonment. No suitable provision for boarding and lodging these young women could be found in the town, so the company itself undertook the task and leased a large house on the top of a hill overlooking Groton, about half a mile from the centre of Ayer. In addition, a very attractive bungalow was erected. A woman of wide experience in handling girls has been established as a "house mother", several cooks provide excellent meals and food and lodging are provided without charge to recipients. The new operators who are serving both at Camp Devens and at the enlarged central office in the town are "doing their bit", and in feeling that their welfare is so completely provided for by the Company.

REAL DANGER AND THRILLS IN SPECTACULAR SCENE FOR "THE LITTLE AMERICAN."

In staging the spectacular scenes for Mary Pickford's great patriotic picture, "The Little American" at the Woburn theatre next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, many actual dangers confronted Miss Pickford and the many other players in the production. The scene depicting views in the luxurious ball-room of the ocean liner when it was torpedoed, created a sensation even among the hardened members of the film producing circles around Los Angeles, where the picture was produced.

At the Lasky studio, where this scene was staged under the personal direction of Cecil B. De Mille, the entire plant ceased activities to witness the affair and among the spectators were many well known film people, including Douglas Fairbanks, Geraldine Farrar, John Emerson and Mrs. Pickford.

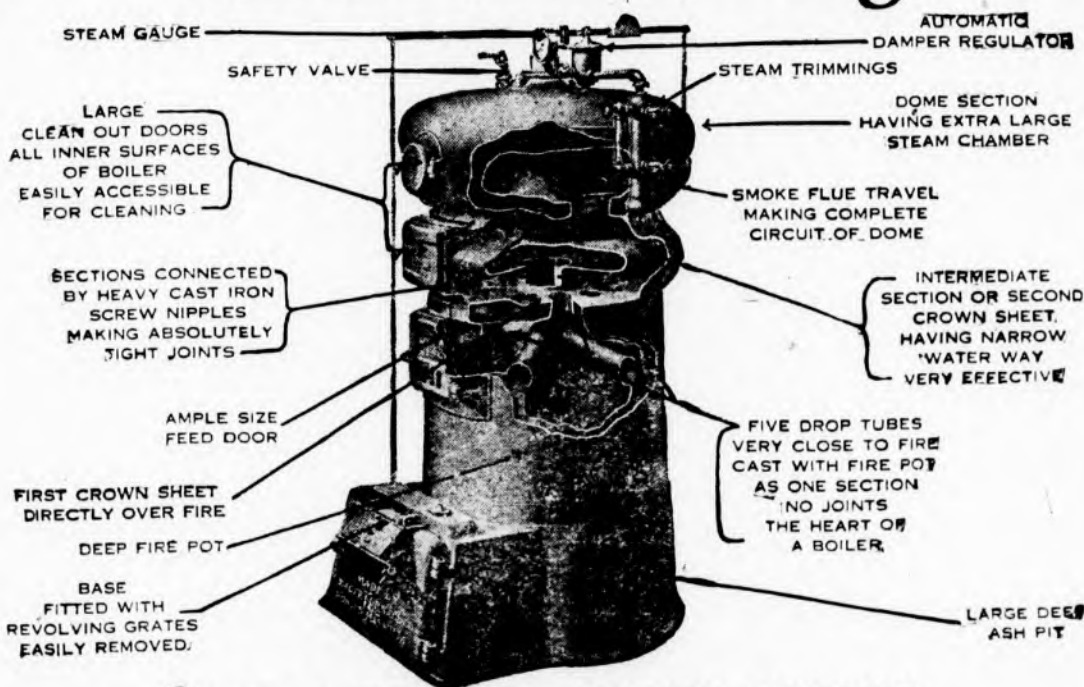

The set was built in an immense water-tank measuring 50 x 100 feet and showed the wonderful ball-room of the "Veritania". Just as the festivities were at their height an explosion that seemed only too realistic, but which as the film will show, had the desired effect, shook the entire set and immediately one end of the floor rapidly began to sink into the water. Chairs and tables tumbled over and slid down the floor to where men and women fought and screamed. Waist high in water Miss Pickford was picked up by a sturdy young fellow who struggled toward the stairs with her in his arms just as the immense grand piano crashed into the corner where they had been standing. Glasses were torn from backs, men fought with each other and women screamed in actual terror as parts of the heavy mirrors, walls and ceiling tumbled down upon them. No one thought that the scene would turn out to be one of real danger to this extent and even the spectators were screaming with excitement.

With one end of the floor pointed toward the ceiling and the other down in the water where hundreds of people struggled to save themselves, the scene was brought to an abrupt end. The floor was quickly raised through a mechanical device and the players hurried to their dressing rooms to patch up cuts and bruises that could not be taken off with a little grease paint and to remove what was left of gorgeous evening gowns and immaculate dress suits. Several ladies had fainted in the turmoil and had to be treated by the studio physician, and one young actor had his arm broken by a falling chandelier.

A special production of this exciting scene is to be shown at the Woburn Theatre next week.

The first of the regular Saturday night lunches will be served at the conclusion of Mr. Chidley's talk.

BOY SCOUTS.

The Boy Scouts of Winchester are asked to cooperate in every way in helping the institution with which they are associated in working with the Collegiate Periodical League Collecting Current Magazines and weeklies. This is truly a community work and a kind that will enable every Scout to do his "Good Turn". Scouts should treat all soldiers at the Ayer Camp as big brothers and have their interest and conditions at heart in this work.

Scoutmasters will be acquainted with this work in time to appoint Scouts to cover certain streets or districts. Make a start on this work that will carry you through. It may be for only one month, possibly two or three years.

Meeting of Scoutmasters and Assistants at Methodist Gym, Woburn, Sunday, Sept. 30 at 3.30 p. m. to make plans for Scout work during the coming winter.
